"I am happy to report that the new Convalescence Home for Concentration Camp Children is coming along nicely now after a delay in starting, due to the failure of the proprietor to have the house ready at the specified time. A part of the personnel is there now and we are in the process of selecting others. Children are arriving every few days and all in all it is proceeding satisfactorily. There are over twenty children there now. By the time this reaches you the colony will probably be pretty well filled.

"The work at Cerbere, Banyuls, and Collioure is running along as smoothly as ever. A couple of weeks ago when I was down there, we contacted the mayor of Port Vendres and gained permission to reopen our food distribution there.". . . "I called on the mayor of Banyuls. He with his wife entertained me royally in their home. They were most profuse in their expressions of appreciation for our efforts of relief and good-will. There is a warmth of feeling down there near the border that we want to cherish and carefully nourish. It is a most likely spot for the opening of a permanent mission program here."

AT HOME

Pretty soon the flickering lights of Champa mission station were discovered, the first being those of the medical station. The train drew up to the Champa platform. Depot, in this connection, is an unknown term in India. Before the dead stop came the missionaries from Champa, the medical station, Janjgir, Mauhadei cheered us with a happy welcome. Indeed a happy staff with their children pressed forward to extend the hand of welcome.

In just a few minutes all were seated in the autos (called motors in India) spun toward the mission premises only one and a half miles away. Here hundreds of flickering lights—not electric—verified the entrance of welcome. These lights are simple: tiny clay saucers three inches in diameter hold approximately one-half gill peanut or castorbean oil, over the edge lies a cotton wick burning at the outer end. In front of the bungalow the large host of Indian Christians awaited our arrival. Young and old, small and large, sang the Hindi and English welcome hymns, praising God therewith. Their faces in the dim light emitted an expression of deep gratitude, followed quite soon with hearty handshakes. Of course, each one wanted to be the first to contact.

After their dismissal the nicely lit-up bungalow was entered (so familar in all rooms). The first meal there touched our palates well-becoming.

After lingering for a while, exchanging thoughts, greetings, etc., everybody retired. Sleep, seemingly hurried away, came only on the installment plan. Finally the first morning on the beloved mission field dawned. The Champa compound was beheld as being the place where our sojourn now shall be. Our first arrival, Nov. 19, 1908, happened here. After three and one-half months, for three terms until Nov. 22, 1938, Janjgir had been our center. This change now could not be comprehended so easily.

The very first on the program now happened to be the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Korba station, 25 miles north. The trip there should be taken by some of our American friends. Here their livers might have undergone a transfer to some other position, also the throat was a dust receptacle. The services convinced us of the leading of God in the progress of the station.

How quickly has the quarter of the century slid by. How well we recalled the opening of the station by Bro. and Sister C. H. Suckau, with whom many blessed times could be spent. Both the station staff and the church had prepared welcome programs most effectively Then followed the Christmas celebration. It all felt so homelike, and is not to be described in words. To enjoy that fully must be experienced. Exceedingly deep impressions were received from the watch-night services and New Year's experiences in the Janjgir church.

The Leper Home rendered an excellent Christmas program, showing in detail the Holy story as laid down in the Bible. It is marvelous how these, humanly speaking, most unhappy human beings can prepare such a rich table for the listeners. That must be from God. 1 John 4:2, 3.

The Leper Home (we seldom call it Asylum) began on April 27, 1902, with two inmates in a tiny bamboo hut. Since then until Dec. 31, 1940, 3,243 patients have found admission. Of these, 1,317 have been baptized and admitted into the church, mostly by Bro. P. A. Penner. From the most insignificant hut developed a most attractive institution with more than 550 inmates. Each turn affirms the thoughtful planning of the grounds and buildings. These credits stand out to the Brethren P. A. Penner and F. J. Isaac. The former for his accuracy, etc., has received a silver medal.

The government now forbids further admissions in the room provided. However, at the north and south gates 56 patients are waiting for admission. If someone absconds or dies, the vacancy is immediately replenished. Some of these waiting ones are in a most pitiful condition. A person is surprised how they still exist under such reproachful conditions.

LESSONS FROM THE EARLY CHURCH

1 Cor. 3:1-15

TOPIC: HELPING TO MAKE THE WORLD CHRISTIAN

Introduction

Paul wrote this letter to the church in Corinth about seven years after the Jerusalem conference of our last lesson. In today's lesson he speaks of some troublesome conditions then existing in the church and refers to his labors among them. He states some principles which apply to Christian work in any age. In the work of helping to make the world Christian, there is something for each of us to do.

Church not Spiritually-minded, vs. 1-4

Paul mentions the root-cause of the difficulties in the Corinthian church (v. 1). They were worldly-minded rather than spiritually-minded. Paul had to speak to them as to beginners. They had not grown and developed spiritually. Their conduct and spirit manifested toward each other showed this. When one becomes a Christian, he must still contend with the old nature. He is to grow less carnal, less worldly minded, and the spiritual life is to grow up into Christ. Paul had to feed them with the more elementary truths (milk) rather than with the more advanced teaching (meat). Many Christians are like the Corinthians in neglecting their spiritual lives.

Paul was much distressed by the evidence of their carnality, their lack in Christ-likeness (v. 3), jealousy, quarrels, divisions. This was evidence of unregenerate hearts. When such is the case, the cause of Christ is much hurt. Another proof of still being carnal were the factions in the church, each claiming to be followers of different men (v. 4, also 1:12). They gathered around human leaders and were contentious about their differences. Paul shows the folly of all this. We see much of this today in the different denominations, in the divisions within denominations, and even within congregations. The Spirit of God does not divide, He unites us in a holy fellowship. A truly Christian Church is united.

Workers with God, vs. 5-11

Leaders are very important in the work of the Church. Paul says they were merely servants of Christ, who ministered to the religious needs of the people according to the ability God gave them (v. 5). The Church should not glory in men, but in God and Christ for He gave the increase (v. 6). The credit for blessings belongs to God, not to man. All our efforts would be useless without the help of His Spirit. How much we need to learn to give all the glory for work we can do to God. We are all—leaders, ministers, teachers, workers—laborers together with God (v. 9). Each has his tasks. The work is the Lord's. We are His helpers.

Paul feels confident that he has done his work well in laying a foundation of faith for the Corinthian church (v. 10). He had done it as God's grace enabled him. He built all on the foundation, Jesus Christ, the only sure foundation (v. 11). Faith in Christ as Savior, true repentance, and a willing submission to Him, are the foundation of Christian life and character. The foundation of Christianity is the Person of Christ, a dependence upon Him.

Test and Reward, vs. 12-15

There is one foundation, but two kinds of superstructures are being built by men, stone and stubble (v. 12). The Christian preacher and worker is building on the true foundation. Wholesome and false doctrines are being preached. With which are we building? The all-inclusive test of the judgment day will reveal the soundness of our work (v. 13). The reward is certain for the faithful worker with God. Only permanent results really count in the end. We have a responsibility in helping to maintain a pure Church.

What are we building into the lives of our boys and girls?

Why do some churches decline and become less spiritual while others grow and become more spiritual?

News From Colorado Camp

June 10, 1941

I am very happy to report the very congenial attitude that the boys are taking, the splendid spirit of cooperation they manifest, and the way in which they have taken hold of the situation from the very first with a determination to make the best of it. I do not know how we could have selected a better group of men than the group of 25 that came on June 5. And to my mind the tone that they are setting for the camp ought to go a long way toward opening this venture in the proper manner.

The first contingent of 25 men came from Kansas. They arrived at 6 a. m. on the fifth of June, together with Paul Comly French, executive secretary of the National Service Board, and Dr. Harold Bender from Goshen, Ind. We had arranged to meet them with 4 cars and a pick-up truck. Two cars belonged to the staff here; Rev. Bayles, minister in the Calvary Evangelical Church in Colorado Springs, offered to bring a group of men out, and so did Mr. Zook, a carpenter from the Mennonite Church in Manitou; Mr. Hennard, a Mennonite from La Junta, has been exceedingly gracious to us, offering his pick-up truck whenever we need it. So you see others are interested to the point of offering their services.

Upon arrival we paused before the dining room door where Dr. Bender offered the first prayer of thanksgiving and blessing, after which we had breakfast together. Following breakfast we had our first service of meditation and worship, as we do regularly every day. Then we got acquainted with Mr. French and Dr. Bender and with one another. Dr. Bender also got several interesting statistics concerning the background of the men here; those, I am sure, he will publish later. But the way the men took hold of the work immediately was the most heartening to everyone; even though they had spent the night on the train they were ready to do such work as necessary to get their living quarters habitable. I have never experienced quite such satisfaction in dealing with a group of men.

Our work thus far has been and is conditioning of the camp and improving the camp grounds. It is difficult to realize just how much work is necessary to condition a camp until one begins such a job; but with the help of this group of men here one can see decided progress daily. That is most encouraging.

The group here now consists of Mennonites from various branches divided as follows: 1 K. M. B.; 2 M. B.; 1 (Old) Mennonite; 6 Church of God in Christ Mennonites; and 15 General Conference Mennonites. The average age of the group is approximately 26-27; and all of them come from the farm either now or earlier.

The daily schedule will run as follows:

5:30—Rising bell (whistle so far)
6:00—Breakfast
Followed by devotional period of about 30 minutes
7:00—Embark on work project
11:45—Call to dinner
12:00—Dinner
1:00—Embark for afternoon work
4:30—Home from work, clean-up, showers, leisure time, and getting ready for supper
6:00—Supper
7:45—Evening meeting
9:30—Back to Residence halls
9:30—Lights out

Our Sunday program has been tentatively arranged as follows:

6:00—Rising bell
7:00—Breakfast
Followed by devotional period
9:00—Worship service (our first service was held out of doors)
10:00—Sunday School
12:00—Dinner
Afternoon is open for letter writing and reading or leisure time, with occasional musical vespers in prospect.
6:00—Supper
7:30—Evening meeting; a committee is already at work planning the evening programs. A Christian Endeavor program is planned for June 15.

Our education program is still in the making, and very definitely in the experimental stage. It is our plan to work out the program with the men here, using such proposals as are available from the National Service Board or the Mennonite Central Committee. At a meeting last night several propositions were recommended, including, a class in the study of our position as pacifists; a class in first-aid training and application or administration; a study of soil conservation, and the general field of conserving human and natural resources. No definite action has yet been taken, but ere long this program will also be under way. No doubt there will be opportunity for individual development of skills as well as for growth in spiritual living. Such is necessary for a full-rounded year of service in work of national importance which to us is also a year of growth and development.

We have word that another group of 30 men is to arrive the 16th of June, so we are now busy getting their living quarters ready. This requires building of a partition in the long building (112 ft. long), painting the inside, building some closet space for each man, and a lot of good thorough cleaning. It is a pleasant experience to see how different individuals exercise their initiative in planning and building things. I wish many of us could experience these thrills that we are getting here; it seems that here we can put minor differences aside, and work side by side on the tasks that need to be done. There have been no dull moments so far.

Our living quarters are not fully ready. We are using the building that the CCC organization used for headquarters, and this required a great deal of work in the shifting of partitions and the building of new rooms. Most of the rooms are now either painted or are in the process of being painted. Curtain materials are needed, and some of the societies at home might be glad to supply this if they were informed concerning the dimensions.

Although this is very incomplete, it would take a bulletin to cover the description adequately. We trust that you will come to see for yourself how the boys are living and how the entire set-up operates. Our surroundings are very scenic, and the location is very nearly ideal.

After we get the work under control to the extent that a little more time will be available we plan to keep the churches informed, perhaps by means of a short bulletin. I hope we can exchange news with other camps too.

Sincerely,
Albert M. Gaeddert

P. S. Regarding visitors: We welcome them, and trust that they will come often. We have agreed that it would be best to charge a flat rate per meal of 25 cents, in that way we could ask all of them to come and fellowship with us about the table without endangering our food budget. The lodging problem would be very difficult after all the men are here, and our information is that by the end of this month the full quota of 125 men should be in the camp.

THE ORIENTAL CHURCH

Leading Topic: What is happening to the church in the Orient? Dan. 7:13; Matt. 5:11, 12.

I. Worship Service

3. Talk on "Mission Work in China" or "The Madras Conference."
4. Offering for Missions.

II. Leader's Introduction

The world conference on Christian missions, held at Madras in December, 1938, was a great source of inspiration for the churches of the Orient. The conference gave to the Oriental churches and their leaders a new sense of responsibility in the world task of Christianity.

War conditions have greatly hindered the progress of the church in many parts of the Orient. However, it appears that the leaders of China have become so responsive to the Christian appeal, and so convinced of the power of the gospel to save a nation, that the door of a great opportunity has been opened to the Church. Besides, the war has made possible a large mass evangelism. In their grave perils the Chinese are turning to God.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

Rehabilitation	Ezra 6:15-22
Encouragement to Persevere	Isaiah 52:1-6
Establishment of Peace	Micah 4:1-5
Progress Despite Hardships	Acts 14:19-23
A Good Example of Sharing	2 Cor. 8:1-6
All One Body in Christ	Eph. 2:14-18

IV. For Discussion

1. Is war a help or a hindrance today in the spreading of Christianity?
2. In how far are the churches in America and in Europe responsible for what is happening to the church in the Orient?
3. Who are some of the great leaders of the church in the Orient, and what kind of work are they doing?

V. Facts for Study

Kagawa, the fine Japanese Christian, whose late book, "Behold the Man" might be interesting to some of you, is refusing to let the spirit of hatred and ill-will gain a place in the life of the church of Japan. He regrets the way Japan is making war on China. He has done much to bring the gospel to the down-trodden in his own country. He has a deep and far-reaching influence on the life of the church in the Orient.

The name Saddhu Sundar Singh brings to mind one of the present-day saints in this poor, perplexing world of today. He has gone about undaunted, faithfully proclaiming Christ and His Way of Life.

The church of India as well as the missionaries who work there attest the vitality of the Christian life and influence.

VI. Illustration

In the villages of lower Burma, in one of the most notoriously criminal areas of the land, there is proof that the nation-wide problem of crime can be solved. Small groups of people have been touring these villages talking about living on the basis of listening to God for His direction in personal, domestic, and community life. Through the medium of drama, song, and village meetings the message has spread with telling effect. In one village thirty to forty leading men met with the government officer to tell him they were done with drink and bribery and would cooperate with him to stamp out these evils from the district. A former brigand who ruled a jungle underworld gang operating over a large area, not only made a clean breast of his own crimes, but also began to round up his old pals for a new way of living. Drink, opium, bribery, crime —these are undermining the village life of Burma. Through this movement, the roots of these evils are being cut in the lives of many people and a new village spirit is emerging, finding expression in new educational enterprises, irrigation development, inter-village cooperation, agricultural experiment, and a new reality in religious worship.

—The Reedley Church Bulletin reports that Arthur D. Wenger of Aberdeen, Idaho, a 1941 graduate of Bethel College, will serve as their ministerial interne for three months, engaging in practical work before he continues his graduate studies.

—Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Entz invited all of the young people of the First Mennonite Church of Newton, Kansas, to their country manse, Wednesday evening, June 18. This has been an annual event for many years. Approximately 175 young people were there.

IN MEMORIAM

HENRY H. SIEMENS was born June 16, 1890. He was one of twelve children born to John F. and Sarah Siemens. On May 29, 1910, upon his confession of faith, he was baptized by Rev. Abraham Ratzlaff and admitted into the fellowship of the Hoffnungsau Mennonite Church, near Buhler, Kansas. As a son he faithfully served his parents for nearly 21 years, when he entered into holy wedlock with Elise B. Froese, daughter of Abraham P. Froese. To this union were born 7 sons: Chester, Arnold, Raymond, Walter, Abe Henry, besides Albert and Harry who died in infancy. He leaves to mourn his departure 5 sons, 3 daughters-in-law, 3 grandchildren, and his devoted wife Elise. Their home has been one of loving companionship, orderliness, and hospitality.

All his life he lived in Kansas except for four years, from 1914 to 1918, when he lived in Wyoming. During the last Christmas season a bad throat condition began to appear. It later developed that this was due to infected tonsils which had poisoned the entire system. As the days passed by his condition became worse, and on May 2, 1941, he was taken to the Bethel Hospital, Newton, for close observation and care. Here his condition improved at first and his family hoped for a complete recovery. But kidney complications set in and on Sunday morning, May 25, at 7 o'clock, after a peaceful and restful night, in the presence of his oldest son, Chester, and his wife, Elise, his Maker called him home to his eternal resting place. Significant is the fact that at the hour of his death he was listening to the song "Lily of the Valley" sung by the Bethel Sisters during their devotional hour. He passed away at the age of 50 years, 11 months, and 9 days. He was laid to rest Wednesday, May 28, Rev. John F. Schmidt and Rev. A. J. Dyck speaking words of comfort.

ANNA THIMM, daughter of John J. and Catharine Claassen (nee Penner), was born in Gage County, Nebraska, on September 4, 1897. She received her elementary school education in Jefferson County. Several winters she also attended the parochial school. On May 31, 1914, she was baptized on the confession of her faith by Elder Gerhard Penner. Almost 25 years ago, on January 25, 1917, she was married to Henry Thimm. This union was blessed with four daughters, Hildegard, now Mrs. David Jantzen; Martha; Ellen Margaret; and Anna Marie. These shared the love which this mother lavished on those about her. In her concern for the spiritual welfare of the children she often encouraged them in making early preparation for their Sunday School work. As the Lord was so near to her, the immediate family and friends shared the blessing of her willingness to help wherever possible. Her happy, friendly, yet unassuming manner was always evident.

On Saturday, June 7, she became ill. On Monday evening she was taken to the hospital. At 11:30 o'clock, suddenly and unexpectedly, she was called to be with her Lord. The immediate cause of death was a cerebral embolism. She died June 9, at the age of 43 years, 9 months, and 5 days. Mourning her early departure are her bereaved husband and children; a mother; a son-in-law, David Jantzen; four sisters, Mrs. Bertha Goossen, Katie, Helen, and Margaret Claassen; three brothers, Henry, Peter, and Gustav Claassen; and many relatives and friends. Father John J. Claassen died in 1927. Five brothers and sisters have preceded her in death. Funeral services were held on Thursday, June 12, 1941, at 1:30 at the home of Mrs. J. J. Claassen, and at 2:30 at the First Mennonite Church. Interment was made at the church cemetery. The officiating ministers were, Rev. H. T. Reimer, Rev. C. Penner, and Rev. W. H. Dyck. An octette sang appropriate selections.

Our sorrow is not, however, as deep as those who have no hope, for "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." (Ps. 46:1).

DAVID S. BEESHY, member of the First Mennonite Church, Bluffton, Ohio, died from a heart ailment at his home in Bluffton, Ohio, Saturday morning, June 14, 1941. He had taught a Sunday School class in his church for more than 50 years. Mr. Beeshy is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Florence Hilty of Lima, Ohio; and three sons, Allen, with whom he resided; I. B., of Bluffton; and Eli, of Marshall, Michigan. His wife died 21 years ago. He was a retired carpenter and cabinet maker.

Funeral services were held Monday, June 16, at 2:30 p. m., at the Paul Diller funeral home, with Rev. H. T. Unruh, Pastor of the First Mennonite Church, Bluffton, officiating. Interment was made in Bluffton Maple Grove cemetery.

grown in these 40 years. The southern field around Basna registered 167 baptisms last year.

Outside of the lighter baggage, the rest of the boxes were sent by freight from Bombay to Champa. They were received in excellent condition. The contents, outside of a few broken cups, arrived undamaged. Many persons helped in sorting, packing, closing boxes and trunks, others looked after the transportation expenses, etc. To those willing hands many thanks and a "Godspeed."

Wood is expensive in India, hard to be secured, therefore each container is carefully stored away from the destructive white ants. Our boxes from Janjgir were likewise found in Champa. The transfer belongs also to the efficient work of the missionaries. This saved us much apprehension. One must give an expression of praise and gratitude.

Now the opening of boxes ensued. A good bit of the contents were distributed to other missionaries and Indian Christians. Furthermore, the things had to be sorted and arranged in the bungalow rooms as much as possible. After Bro. and Sister P. A. Penner have left early in April, the rest shall be fully established.

The cool weather prevails, therefore, we hurriedly took care of the preliminary work and are since January 9, with a staff of Indian co-workers, almost 20 miles away from Champa among the villages on an evangelistic tour. The staff shows zeal for the work, daily three contacts are made. It is most remarkable how the staff members serve in song, music, testimony, teaching, and preaching. The Spirit of God leads on. Oh, would the multitudes turn to the Savior! Unfortunately, by February 3, we have to discontinue this blessed away-from-home work in the villages, and leave the staff here alone. It is because the work at the station and Leper Home must be turned over into our hands. During these intervening weeks before the Penners' departure many questions will yet arise.

Darling Nellie had expected to remain with us for a few months, helping in the home and office. But it has worked out differently. A vacancy had occurred in the English mission high school and she stepped as a teacher into the high school, filling the place of a missionary in Ranchi, Bengal. That is in the area where the Gossner Mission has brought thousands to Christ. Also Nellie's great-grandfather was converted during the beginning of a vast mass-movement there.

The story runs about like this. He went to draw fuel wood from the swollen river. Not far from the shore he noticed something dark floating along, which was taken to be a log. To one end of the rope which he held in his hand, a stone was fastened. The stone was thrown across this object, it was successfully lassoed. When it came near, he noticed that the imagined log was one of the monster black jungle water-snakes, non-poisonous.

He, being a snakeworshipper, made no attempt to kill it. Beside the reptile a Bengali Bible was floating. This he picked up and let it dry carefully in his home. Then he began reading the contents from cover to cover. The contents touched his heart, but the understanding failed him utterly. A friend was asked about it, and this friend then informed him of a German missionary living in that neighborhood. To him he was advised to go for information. This explanation struck deep, and so this great-grandfather and his family requested baptism. Then great suffering and persecution ensued. The people did not spare him any miseries. On top of that, lightning struck his house, and his entire belongings went up in flames.

This new Christian family circle, however, was already grounded firmly in faith and remained unshaken. Two and one-half years later he stepped into the ministry, had served for one and a half years when death claimed him.

The son, Nellie's grandfather, was then a boy in the teens, grew up, accepted the Lord, and developed into a famous pastor. During this time Nellie's father was born and raised.

In 1903, he, M. Rufus Asna, became the evangelist in our mission at Janjgir. Several years after that the church desired him as pastor. He was then ordained as the first full-fledged pastor in our mission at Janjgir. He is still functioning successfully in Janjgir. The oldest son, Nellie's oldest brother, received the ordination of a full-fledged missionary for the National Missionary Society in North India. He is the first from among the Mission to receive that ordination. He, too, has been crowned with success. The next brother, Joel, also finished the theological seminary. For several years he functioned as evangelist and teacher in our Bible School. It is amazing how that short Zacchaeus possesses such vim, very seldom detected in an Indian personality. He has now received a call from the Bethesda church in our Leper Home, to become their pastor. His acceptance has not as yet been received. That would mean a church with some 300 members. The oldest and second oldest sisters received full nurse's training. The former has died from T. B.

Nellie now has entered the useful line of her generations. May her aspiration never fail, or be sidetracked, and may her eyes constantly rest upon the Master. May those interested put her name on the prayer list. She was born in the Ranchi District by a sickly mother on May 25, 1912. After a little more than seven months, the mother passed away to be with the Lord, leaving this tiny babe in the hands of the father with four other small children. The Lord laid her into our lap for future care. This willingness to have charge over her, has never been regretted for a moment. She has been the light and delight of our home. "Lord, Thou hast done it all, to Thee rise the praises in a continuous stream!"

Before closing these notes several interruptions occurred. A man appeared, whining on account of a decaying tooth. We then remembered how less than a year ago both of us had in the chair submitted to the dentist. The teeth came out painlessly, whereas this poor suffering man squatted down on the barren ground in front of me. With my left arm flung around his head, the hand touching the lower jaw firmly, the right hand strenuously got out the first left-side molar. It was a hard pull. The poor soul patiently suffered the toothache, then the extraction as Job of yore. Grateful I was when the molar stuck in the forceps.

Next, two contractors to sink a well in the Akalsara Mission premises wanted to have their contracts verified. The Indian generally is not satisfied with one assurance. Still this is insufficient to make the story complete. We have moved in the meanwhile from Akalasara, over seven miles, to Beladula where the mission years ago sponsored a village school. This has been closed. Several converts have come from among the villagers who studied as boys in the school. One of them is an ordained evangelist and knows how to expound the Scriptures. Village schools among non-Christians have fallen into disrepute, however, this one convert alone repays the efforts put forth a manifold times. When asked to abandon any mission enterprise, let's think twice before yielding thereto.

These lines complete the trip report from America to India, delving into the beginning of resumed activities among India's millions. Pray for us (1 Thess. 5:23) while thinking of your co-workers happy in the adopted "Homeland of the East!"

Albrecht brought the Communion message, and Rev. John Neufeld of the Mennonite Bible Mission assisted in the serving.—On Sunday, May 18, 1941, the First Mennonite church was honored with the presence of a group of students from the Moody Bible Institute. We enjoyed the singing of the Young Men's Quartet, also the speaker who gave a very inspiring message. Those who participated were: Miss Edith Epp, Henderson, Neb.; John Graber, Waldo Kaufman, and Waldo Flickinger, all from Pretty Prairie, Kansas; and Reuben Friesen from Henderson, Neb. CONSCIENTIOUS IN ALL THINGS

We hear much these days about conscientious objections and conscientious objectors. In fact the term is so commonly used that, in true American fashion, it has been shortened to a mere two-letter abbreviation, C. O. What is it all about? Who are objecting and to what are they objecting?

The term, as used, applies to those who for conscience sake, whether because of religious convictions or otherwise, object to participating in combatant or non-combatant military service; who stand up for their convictions and say, "We believe that war is wrong and therefore do not sanction it by participating in it. We believe in taking the words of Jesus literally when He says, 'Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you.' We believe the following injunctions hold for us and for all time: 'Recompense to no man evil for evil . . . If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men. . . . If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink . . . Be not overcome of evil but overcome evil with good.' 'Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord.' 'See that none render evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves, and to all men.' "

Certainly this is very commendable, for we should take these Biblical injunctions literally and practice them in our every-day life. But, do we practice this same principle when it comes to other Biblical exhortations? Are we conscientious in all things? When it comes to the Lord's day, do we claim conscientious objections to certain practices, remembering the commandment, "Remember the Sabbeth day to keep it holy?" When it comes to unethical or unjust business practices do we plead conscientious objections on ground of our convictions? When we are tempted to swear or use profanity, does our conscience remind us of Christ's command, "Swear not at all . . . Let your communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay," and of Paul's exhortation, "Let your speech be always with grace"?

Is it against our conscience to worry when we know that Christ said, "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what you shall put on . . . for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things"? When a brother has wronged us, do we carry a grudge or do we practice the spirit of forgiveness?

Every Christian needs to take an inventory of his conscience every now and then by asking himself these and similar questions, and praying the Lord that he may become truly conscientious in all things, proving himself as a real and true Christian C. O. to everything that is unChristian.

General Conference Session

The Eastern District Conference is working hard to provide for the entertainment of the General Conference at Souderton, Pa., August 17 to 22.

The guests will be cared for in private homes in the community at a rate of $1.00 a night in single beds or 75c a night per person in double beds. Other accommodations may be secured in hotels or tourist homes at reasonable rates. Advanced registrations can be made by addressing Mrs. Henry S. Detwiler, Chairman, Souderton, Pa. It is hoped that we may learn of the type of accommodations you desire as early as possible so that proper arrangements can be made to insure satisfactory accommodations upon your arrival.

Meals will be served at reasonable prices in the cafeteria of the Souderton High School. Plans are being made for the serving of three meals daily, consisting of varied menus to appeal to all the guests. Any group desiring special group dinners are asked to contact Mrs. W. C. Moyer, Chairman, Souderton, Pa., as soon as possible, in order that arrangements may be made to take care of your wishes either by the local committee or at outside restaurants.

Children need not keep anyone away, as plans have been made for their entertainment and care during the conference business sessions, which will make it possible for mothers to enjoy the sessions with a free mind, knowing that they are in good hands.

The delegates and guests will be entertained between the sessions with sightseeing trips, tour of Valley Forge, a visit to the First Church in America at Germantown, Perkiomen Library which contains one of the largest collections of Mennonite records, and other points of interest that may be desired.

Still "More Things To Think About"

by W. F. Unruh, Pulaski, Iowa

Dr. Langenwalter and Dean Byers have recently written in advocacy of a readjustment in our General Conference organization. As a member of the Church Unity Committee, I should like to draw attention to an angle of this problem which any reorganization that might be undertaken should recognize and deal with as of primary importance. We confidently anticipate a movement towards union among Mennonite church groups in the near future, which will ultimately unfold itself into a united Mennonitism. This is no mere fancy or Utopian dream. The young people of several Mennonite denominations and conferences see no reason why we are not united, and they are growing impatient, we hear. We learn, too, that the ministry is favorable towards union, provided it be union and not absorption.

The willingness and readiness for unification in some instances is encouragingly evident, but the organizational set-up of our General Conference is such that efforts towards union are very difficult under the present organization. Any reorganization which may be undertaken should keep as its ultimate goal a united Mennonitism. It should be such that the following five principles in church union may easily become realities: (1) The unification of different church groups should not be comparable to a funeral for any one body. It should rather be comparable to a marriage by which each body contributes its best to make the union blessed. It should be union, not absorption. (2) In unifying the church bodies it should be a religious passion to save and conserve all the fruit of God's grace in the different bodies. It should keep and utilize whatever is good, whatever works and contributes to the Kingdom. (3) Church union should conserve valuable organization and especially the church leadership. Each of the unifying bodies should come with a desire to contribute in the biggest way in the building of the Church of Jesus Christ. (4) Any plan for union should make provision for a period of adjustment, because human nature needs time to learn to appreciate and to love things that are new and strange. (5) Every effort at church union should be motivated, controlled, and directed by a passionate desire to please our Lord Jesus Christ Who is the Head of the Church, for we seek to help our Heavenly Father fulfill His prayer "that they may all be one."

Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, in a recent editorial in the CHRISTLICHER BUNDESBOTE, has ably analyzed the relationship between the General Conference and the district conferences, or rather, the lack of relationship between these bodies. The General Conference in its present set-up is not a conference of delegates from subordinate and affiliated district conferences. Here, to my understanding (and I write privately and not by instruction of the Church Unity Committee), lies the unfortunate aspect of our General Conference organization. The General Conference organization should be such that it would allow and call for representation from district conferences and affiliated sister denominations, rather than from individual churches in different district and affiliated conferences. If the General Conference were a conference of district conference representatives it would become a comparatively easy matter to find a way for the extension of church union among the different Mennonite branches. Then the General Conference would become a large united conference for general planning and outlining of tasks. Then the district conferences and such denominations which desire to join would be at liberty to remain intact for the present to give their "utmost for His highest" with such organization and leadership as they have, seeking constantly to coordinate every activity, as far as possible, with the general plan of a united Mennonitism. If our General Conference will make provision in its reorganization to allow sister denominations to be represented to help plan our larger work, at the same time allowing each branch to function in its own way, we shall find ourselves drawn closer together year by year, until we shall "all be one: that the world believe thou hast sent me."

A REMINDER

Dear Church Leaders:

The time for the session of the General Conference is drawing very close. Only a few more weeks and August 17, 1941, is here. As secretary of the Conference I would kindly ask those who have not yet sent in there Conference Reports as well as list of delegates to do so at once. It is necessary to have this information in time to complete the statistician report. The delegate lists should be printed before the session of Conference.

Yours in His service,

Phil. A. Wedel, Sec'y.

A NEW CHURCH FOR BASNA

Basna, via Raipur, C. P., India
March 26, 1941

Dear Sunday School Boys and Girls:

Wouldn't you like to come to church with me this nice warm morning? You say, "Where is the church?" and I point to the low white-washed building before you. I think you are saying within yourself, "Well, it doesn't look much like a church." As you come into the building you see that the walls are whitewashed, too, and that the floor seems to be of mud, dried hard and patted smooth. On a low platform at the front stands the pulpit. You notice that the benches are not all the same. Near the back are some home-made benches with backs, in the middle towards the front are some made of split rails laid on blocks of wood, and at the front are no benches at all, only mats on the floor. Perhaps you are wondering why all the benches are not of the same kind—like the ones with backs in the rear. One reason is that the split-rail benches and the mats do not take nearly as much room as the others. The big trouble is that our church is not large enough for all our people.

Some of you have heard that the Boy's School had to be moved from Mauhadih to Basna. Up to the fourth grade the children can study at their own stations but beyond that the boys are sent here and the girls to Janjgir. Then out in the district there are many smaller girls and boys whose parents are Christians. They are far from school so they come in here. In all there are 116 children living in what we call the Boarding. Besides our more than 200 Christians in our own village, and the 140 or more children of these people, we must add the boys and girls from the outside. For almost two years now we have had Junior church separately from the "Big" church because there is no room. But you know there are times like programs and special services when we would all like to be together.

Last year at Christmas time, when all the boarding children had gone to their homes, we thought we might all try getting into the church for the morning service instead of having Junior church separately. Well, you should have seen us! We were packed like the proverbial sardines so that the preacher had only a small place left for himself on the platform. And when the time came for the fathers and mothers to bring the year's new babies forward for the blessing it just couldn't be done. Now what? The preacher finally told the parents to march out of the church and form a circle under the trees. The congregation followed and after the people got quiet again the babies were blessed.

After you have looked at this church that has become too little I want you to look toward the east. I think I hear someone saying, "Why, that looks like a new church building in the making." That is just what it is. Missionaries and Indian Christians and a few friends have been gathering money for a long time for a church building fund. Bricks were made as money came in and this year the work was started. The walls are now more than six feet high above the foundation. Children have helped, poor people have given free labor when they could, and others have helped with money. We are very happy to see so much done.

But we do not see how we can gather enough money for the trusses that are needed to support the roof. As we discussed our problem we wondered how many of you Sunday School boys and girls might be able to send us a nickel or a dime each. Perhaps you would not especially miss what the nickel or dime would buy. But when enough nickels and dimes get together they can buy big things. Do you have some to spare for the Lord's House in Basna?

(Continuation)

Now we are fully in the Orient. Our ship anchored in Manila Harbor late Sunday morning, on Easter Day. After nearly five thousand miles of continuous travel, there is always great commotion when a ship finally stops in a harbor. So it was on this Sunday morning. Although we had made arrangements for Easter services, there was no chance to get together for a quiet hour. A good many passengers were to get off the boat in Manila. Their friends came to meet them. One lady, who had been sick during the whole journey from San Francisco, nearly fainted when she saw her people on the wharf. When we saw that there would be no chance to have services on the ship, we decided to leave the ship too and go to some church in the city. So we did.

On the ship was no Sunday. The Philippino laborers came by the scores and started to open the large holds of the ship, and the unloading was begun. Big business cannot afford to observe Sunday! International shipping is big business; so neither special days, like Easter Sunday, nor nights are observed. By Sunday noon the unloading was in full swing, and this kept up until the following Tuesday noon. Sometimes we stood and watched the freight come out of the deep dark rooms in the ship, way down in the bottom of the ship. It is something enormous what all is loaded on such a ship. We are told that our ship carried five and a half million dollars worth of merchandise from San Francisco to Manila, and our ship is not by any means the largest on the ocean. One can hardly imagine what wealth is on the ocean in all those ships. Of course, not all the merchandise was unloaded in Manila. But our Harrison is much lighter now than it was before Manila. We are told that in Singapore, and in Penang more freight will be loaded.

When we came to Manila the newspaper reporters were busy around the ship, as usual. The results of what they found came out in the evening papers of the city. For us, as Mennonites, the outcome was very interesting indeed. Here is what the newspapers had: "The S S President Harrison arrived at Pier Seven this morning with the following passengers on board; a British actress known on both sides of the Atlantic who is en route to India to marry an officer of the British army, together with a Mennonite priest, oil company executives . . ." Since I am the only Mennonite minister on board ship, I must, in the eyes of the ship company and the newspaper agents of Manila, be the Mennonite Priest. Just what I have done to create a mental complex in the minds of these good people which makes them think of a world famous actress and a Mennonite Priest in consecutive catagories, I cannot fathom. I am sure I have not kicked over the traces in any way here on board ship, which would give reason to speak of the actress and me in the same breath. But since we human beings think in opposites, it may be that when they saw Miss Pamela Hedges flirt around with these sailor boys; and then looked at me in the cabin, writing or reading, and not running around anywheres, but rather withdrawing a bit from the general passenger group, that that gave the reason to think of the actress and me at the same time. At any rate, those of the new friends on board whom we have learned to know, and we, too, have had a jolly laugh over it already. A very dear friend of ours in Bluffton sometimes called me "the bishop of India" in a humorous mood. Now here I am the Mennonite Priest. I wonder what is next.

Since we had never been on the Philippine Islands before, we wanted to take our chance to see something of the islands. So on Monday, several friends and we went out into the country. In the city of Manila it is very much like in all Oriental cities; a picture of the East and the West, neither entirely East nor entirely West. But in the country one can see the real native characteristics and ways of life of the people. We had seen pictures of Philippino houses, but actually to see those little houses on six or seven foot high stilts, mostly made of bamboo mats, with a wooden floor; that gives a person a clearer idea what it really is. Most houses are only about eight by eight feet. Some are a little larger, but some are smaller too. In that little house the whole family lives; and they are usually large families. There are, of course, no bedsteads. The bedding is rolled up for the day, of furniture there is almost nothing. The cooking is done mostly outside or under the house. But all the houses into which we could look were clean and neat. Fancy and colorful clothes hung on a line stretched across the room. There was a real tailor-made suit or two for father or a big son. The women's and girls' clothes were gorgeous as the Oriental people love to have them.

The farther we went from the city the more we saw that life in the Philippines is not easy either. The rice fields were barren and dry. It is of course the dry season on these islands at this time. But those barren, bleak, small little fields brought us directly to India in our thinking. When there is only the scorching sun from on top; no rain and no irrigation possibility, those fields give a person the weird feeling that death is reigning. The prophet Ezekiel saw a field of dry bones. "And lo, they were very dry." It was a field of death. So it is with these small rice fields in the Orient, field on field, by the thousands. It is a picture of death. But when the rains start in June, or irrigation is possible, then life comes in all its abundance, and one hardly knows where it all comes from. "Can these dry bones live?" it was asked of the prophet. Yes, they can. So it is with the spiritually dried up soul. It can live, if it receives the refreshing showers of the forgiving grace of God.

We were refreshed by the Philippino main crop, the coconut. There are enormous groves of these fine stately trees, and their ripe fruit. They are planted about twenty-five feet apart. The trees are from thirty to fifty feet tall. Between the trees or rows of trees, the ground was mulched and clean. It gave us the impression that the Philippino farmer is really agriculturally very able and efficient. These coconuts are sold in all major markets in the world. But it seems not enough that the coconut is sold as a nut or as food. When we visited an old Spanish cathedral later in the day the old priest who showed us around, all of a sudden pointed to a large building in the backyard of the church. He said, "Do you know what they make there?" Of course we did not know. He said, "They are making gasoline from coconuts there." So coconut trees are to grow gasoline in the future.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

by Jacob J. Enz

JULY 8—"Jesus Christ the same yesterday, AND TODAY, and forever." Hebrews 13:8.

The two words "and today" were the essence of a wall motto in the home of a certain Christian. It is so easily forgotten that the same Lord Who made heaven and earth, Who created man, Who in His great love also redeemed man, and Who some day by His grace will take away His own to be with Him, that same Lord is our life today. We somehow very readily acknowledge His great works of the past and of the future, and neglect to realize that He wants to be just as near and just as great and just as loving to us right here and now!

JULY 9—"Casting ALL your cares upon Him, for He careth for you." I Peter 5:7.

Here we have one of those classic gems of Scripture. Peter apparently is summing up the message to the "strangers and pilgrims" with several important exhortations. It is the timeless character of his message which brings down to us today a sorely needed word of guidance and comfort. The word "all" is one deserving much emphasis these days; how much it takes within its scope. The little cares are to be included as well as the greater problems. It has been said that nothing is so great that it cannot be brought to God in prayer, and nothing so small that failure to bring it to God will not grieve Him.

JULY 10—"They have sharpened their tongues like a serpent; adders poison is under their lips." Psalms 140:3.

It has been said, and truthfully so, that the tongue is the only instrument that becomes sharper with use. How many are the words that we have said in a single day that were better left unsaid; and how many are the words that have been written that were better left unwritten.

"Little words may grow and bloom
With bitter breath or sweet perfume." —Anon.

JULY 11—"And it came to pass as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold many publicans and sinners came and sat down with Him and His disciples." Matthew 9:10.

When our Lord gave forth His great invitation, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden," the fact in this verse from Matthew was undoubtedly one of its results. For this He was criticized by the Pharisees, because they in their self-righteousness could see only the sins in these that gathered around Jesus. But Jesus saw more; He saw the deathless souls which He had come to redeem with His precious blood. God be thanked for His Christ Who touched the very depths of sorrow and death that we lost sinners might have joy and peace in His service.

JULY 12—"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." Psalms 119:105.

Thus the Psalmist speaks concerning the Word about which he previously said, "O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven." There is something distinctly real and eternal about this Word which is our guide. Notice further—our guidance is not by the full light of the noon-day sun, but it is by the light of a lamp. God is merciful in giving us this lesser light in our present fallen state until the blessed time when we shall be more capable of beholding the Sun of Righteousness in all His majestic glory.

JULY 13—"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord." Psalm 122:1.

Perhaps as these lines are being read you are anticipating going to the house of the Lord. If so, are you going expecting a blessing for many as well as for yourself. What about inviting that one whom the Lord has placed on your heart to go with you? It will make it a more blessed day for you. Breathe a prayer for your pastor, your Sunday School superintendent, your Sunday School teacher; keep them daily before the throne of grace. Then you will not only be glad as you go to the Father's house, but you will also say that it was good to have been there as you leave.

JULY 14—"One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord and to enquire in his temple." Psalms 27:4. (Read Psalms 27:1-5)

In the words of verse four, the Psalmist lays bare the secret of his confidence in time of distress and trouble. It is this constant vital communion with his Creator which sustains him. We need more people experiencing this communion; we need more students in the school of "kneeology"; for prayer alone can give us the constant sense of God's presence which imparts confidence.

If we live a life of prayer
God is present .everywhere.

JULY 15—"It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not. They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness." Lamentations 3:22, 23.

Dr. Max I. Reich was heard making this statement, "The grace which took me up at the first must preserve me or else I perish by the wayside!" Can you imagine what would be the result if His compassions suddenly failed, if they ceased to be new every morning? Have you ever thanked God for the grace to live a single day for His glory? It is quite possible that His blessings be taken entirely too much for granted; and that, incidentally, may be one reason why many do not enjoy the Christian life as they ought. They neglect to thank the Father for some things for which they would be only too quick to thank their fellow men, merely because these blessings are showered upon them and are allowed to become a common thing.

JULY 16—"Not rendering evil for evil or railing for railing: but contrariwise blessing; knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should inherit a blessing." I Peter 3:9.

This verse is especially clear in its emphasis upon the importance of going "the second mile", or "turning the other cheek". It is quite important that we note here the fact that we are called out to live the non-resistant life. We must be convinced of the fact that that is God's will for every Christian. There seems to be a tendency to set off this particular tenet of our faith, often allowing it to be regarded as something for large differences of opinion; but, let us not forget that "thereunto are ye called". It is God's will and one of His reasons for showing us His grace; it is part and parcel of His divine purpose that His children return good for evil. "For consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds."

JULY 17—"For here we have no continuing city, but we seek one to come." Hebrews 13:14.

Here again we may ask ourselves a question: Can we include ourselves in the pronoun "we" together with the writer of the epistle to the Hebrews? Do our lives indicate that we are but "strangers and pilgrims" here? It is needless to say that the easiest way is to submit to the easy-going, care-free life of the man of this world. His mind is all wrapped up in the almighty dollar rather than the Almighty God. His interests are in the material rather than the spiritual. Of course, the way that is spiritual is not strewn with roses. On the other hand, it may be said with Paul, "For our affliction which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. . . ."

"Giving oneself is the road to happiness, to usefulness, greatness, and fellowship with others. Fellowship with others on a right basis is creative and cumulative. The more we give of our money, the less we will have, possibly, but the more we give of ourselves, the bigger, richer, and more dynamic we become . . . Self-expression in unselfish service is always creative and energizing. In this field the more we give the more we have." —Gospel Banner

CORRESPONDENCE

SAN MARCOS MENN. CH., PASO ROBLES, CAL.

"Grace be to you and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ, Who gave Himself for our sins, that He might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the will of God and our Father: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen." (Gal. 1:3-5).

We have had a number of outside speakers during the spring months, all of whom have brought us blessings in their messages from the Word of God. On January 26 we joined with the Memorial Church of Atascadero in an afternoon service given by the Goble's Gospel Messengers, a group to whom many of our people listen regularly over the radio. There were messages in song, testimonies, and a brief but pointed message by Mr. Willems. The meeting was held in the church in Atascadero.

Rev. and Mrs. John Thiessen visited us just before returning to their field in India. They spoke on Thursday evening, March 6, showing pictures of the work, and again on Sunday morning, March 9. In the afternoon they visited the First church in Paso Robles. On March 11, Dr. R. V. Bingham and the Rev. Mr. Titcomb of the Sudan Interior Mission in Africa visited us and told us of the work which their mission is doing in that needy field. This is the mission under which Dr. and Mrs. Richard Jantzen are now serving. Their small son, Milton, whom they were forced to leave behind on account of regulations of the Nigerian government, is now on his way to them in care of other missionaries.

Rev. J B. Epp visited us on March 16 and gave the morning message. Rev. M. M. Horsch and his son, Prof. Luke Horsch, were guest speakers on April 6, the father bringing us the morning message and the son speaking in the afternoon on matters principally of interest to our young men.

In spite of a heavy downpour of rain which necessitated a hundred-mile detour, Mr. and Mrs. J. Neufeld of Shafter brought Rev. and Mrs. Chris. Ummel, our workers in the Migrant Camps, to speak to us on the evening of April 10. They are making an effort to speak in all the Mennonite churches of California so that the people may be better acquainted with the work they are doing.

On Easter Sunday, after four and one-half years of service in China, Rev. and Mrs. Paul Kuhlman with their children returned to her parents' home in the Willow creek district. Mr. Kuhlman soon secured work in Los Angeles, where they are now located. On Sunday, June 8, they again made a short visit, Mr. Kuhlman bringing us the morning message. In the evening they showed pictures of their work in China. Miss Katherine Dick, of the Sudan Interior Mission in Africa spoke to us on the evening of May

1. Our Young Ladies' Chorus was invited to sing at the Christian Endeavor Convention held in the Memorial Church of Atascadero on April 20.

Some of the "special times" which all of us enjoy are the joint meetings of our young people with other young people of our denomination in the state. Two of our churches are near enough so that this has become a semi-annual occasion. On May 18 a group from the Shafter church joined with us in a Christian Endeavor service, discussing "Peter." Luncheon was served by our ladies at noon, and the meeting held in the afternoon. Besides taking part in the discussion of the topic, our guests brought us many enjoyable musical numbers and other interesting variations. The following Sunday was the occasion of our joint meeting with the First church in Paso Robles, also held in our church. The regularly assigned themes and musical numbers were followed by a lively general discussion on such subjects as, "Service," "Witnessing," and the like.

"Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord." (1 Cor. 15:58).

ALBERTA COMMUNITY MENN. CHURCH

Portland, Oregon, June 13, 1941

The past three months have been very busy months for our church and Sunday School.

From March 30 to April 6 we had the pleasure of having Rev. Homer Leisy of Dallas, Oregon, with us for a series of evangelistic meetings that proved to be a blessing to all of us. Brother Leisy has a knack of making Bible truths so plain that even a child can understand them and so interesting that older people are challenged by the messages. We would like to suggest that some other churches in our conference get Brother Leisy instead of getting someone from outside our denomination.

On Easter Sunday 10 young people were received into the fellowship of the church by baptism. Several others have been received by letter and by baptism since that time. During the past year since the Regiers came to Portland to take over this work, a total of 23 people have joined our church and the membership now stands close to 60. We praise the Lord for these fine new members. The average attendance at our morning services is close to 55 and the Sunday School attendance is averaging over 70.

Pacific District Conference. Our church was well represented at the district conference held at Dallas, Oregon, May 15 to 18. It was very encouraging to note the sustained interest in the work of this church here in Portland. We had the pleasure of meeting fine friends again. A very wholesome spirit prevailed during the entire conference and God's blessing on its work was manifested in many ways.

On Sunday, May 18, the wedding of Miss Florence Hicks to Mr. Victor Zerfing, was solemnized in our church. Florence has been a member of our church for years and has served faithfully as pianist. Victor joined our church only lately.

On Sunday, June 1, we had the pleasure of having the choirs of the Dallas church under the direction of Mr. D. Diehm present a program at our church during the afternoon. In the evening they joined with our own singers in presenting several special and impromptu numbers at a song festival.

Daily Vacation Bible School will be in session from June 16 to 27 under the direction of Rev. and Mrs. Arnold Regier. They will be ably assisted by Miss Susan Rutschman of Pratum and Miss Augusta Fast of Dallas. We trust that this work will be a blessing to the children of our community.

Sunday it will be just a year since Brother and Sister Regier took charge of this church and it is a pleasure for me to report the splendid growth the church has made during their ministry in our midst. During the summer months there will undoubtedly be many Mennonites traveling through this part of the country and we take this opportunity to invite you to stop and look up our church and get acquainted with us here in Portland.

ZION MENN. CHURCH, DONNELLSON, IOWA

On Sunday morning, June 1, Rev. Adolph Friesen, who has faithfully served our church since June, 1936, preached his farewell sermon to a filled auditorium. After the morning services, the members of the congregation had planned a basket dinner as a farewell for Rev. and Mrs. Friesen and daughters. We all wish them unbounded success in their new field of labor.

On Sunday, June 8, we were glad to welcome Rev. H. E. Nunemaker and family into our midst as our new pastor. He comes to us from the Mennonite Church of Tiskilwall, Illinois. We trust that the pastor and people will work together as co-laborers in the Lord's work for the good of this community.

On June 15 we held in our church the annual "Get-Together" of the four Mennonite churches of Iowa. A very helpful program was rendered during the morning services. At the close of the service, Rev. D. E. Welty of Noble, Iowa, assisted by Rev. W. F. Unruh of Pulaski, conducted the installation service for our new pastor, Rev. H. E. Nunemaker. This was a very impressive service. At noon a basket dinner was enjoyed by everyone. The afternoon was spent in Christian fellowship and recreation.

BUTTERFIELD MENN. CH., BUTTERFIELD, MINNESOTA, June 24, 1941

The Northern District Conference convened in our church, June 7 to 11. It was the first time that the Butterfield Mennonite Church had the privilege of entertaining the conference, and all of our people have expressed themselves that the conference was a great spiritual feast.

The topics at the different sessions were all delivered in such a way that all workers could take something home that will prove helpful. The messages on the Holy Spirit by our guest speaker, Rev. P. H. Unruh, were all enjoyed. His messages were not only enjoyed but they were all Scriptural and helpful. We are very thankful to the Lord for sending us Rev. Unruh. He will always be welcome in Northern District churches.

We do not believe that it was accidental that we had such cool weather during the conference but believe it to be providential.

The spirit of unity and cooperation made it easy to entertain the guests. There was no discord at any time and we could truly say in all of the conference that Eph. 4:3 was true, "Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit." This same spirit predominated all of the business sessions and a Christian fellowship was realized among the pastors for which we have long prayed and have also anticipated. The Butterfield Church and pastor say that it was good for the conference to have been with us.

Fraternally, Albert Schultz, Pastor

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

July 13, 1941

CHRISTIANITY EXPANDS IN ASIA

Acts 19:8-10, 23-32

TOPIC: WHEN RELIGION AND BUSINESS CLASH

Introduction

Last week's lesson covered Paul's second missionary journey. Today's lesson and context covers the story of his third journey. Corinth was the chief scene of his ministry on the second journey and now, to a greater degree, Ephesus is the chief center of his work on his third tour. He probably reached Ephesus in the fall, and he stayed there during three winters. The time was now ripe for a prolonged ministry in this center of heathenism. He remained here longer than in any other one place (vs. 8, 10).

Paul Teaching in the School of Tyrannus, vs. 8-10

Paul began his ministry in Ephesus, as usual, in the synagogue. The Jews had invited him to remain longer while on his second journey (18:20) and preach to them. Now they listened to him longer than in other cities. For three months (v. 8) they gave him a hearing in the synagogue. Paul made the most possible of this rare opportunity. He spoke boldly, using reason and persuasion concerning the Kingdom of God. Not all accepted his message. Many hardened their minds and hearts against the truth (v. 9). They began to speak evil of Paul's teaching to others, and so a separation of the believers from the others had to be made. For two full years, Paul held daily meetings in the schoolroom of Tyrannus where he could secure a better hearing from the Gentiles. From Ephesus as a center, the word was heard throughout Asia Minor by both Jews and Greeks. Doubtless many visitors, in coming to Ephesus, heard Paul. God greatly blessed the work of Paul (vs. 17-20), working special miracles by his hands.

Opposition, Riot in Ephesus, vs. 23-32

The wonderful success of Paul's evangelization work aroused much opposition. Wherever a great and vital work of grace is being wrought, opposition is to be expected. This opposition from the Jews and Gentiles was growing. Luke describes the final riot when the pagan opposition came to a climax. The Gospel Way is sure to create a stir. The opposition was led by Demetrius, a leader of the silversmiths, and was inspired by purely selfish reasons (vs. 24-27). The gospel as preached by Paul and accepted by many was greatly reducing their profitable business. Profits were their only consideration. This is true of the liquor business today, of the tobacco, narcotics, cheap magazine, dance hall and much of the theatre business of today. It is true of gambling and vice. Whenever the gospel, religion in practical living, affects these, they are aroused. They do not want the Church to help people to a higher plane of living.

Reforms and revivals are welcome to many only so long as they do not interfere with anybody's profits from their business. Demetrius, though unintentionally, paid a very truthful commendation to Paul (v. 26). Would that we had more Pauls today who could persuade our American people to turn "to serve the living and true God." Many still place business, occupation, profits, first and foremost in their thinking and in life. Many become enthusiastic about religion, if they can secure gain, honor, or position from it. True religion has always been a check upon human selfishness. True religion will not clash with honest business. It shapes business to the mold of religion. It promotes the welfare of men as against human exploitation through greed.

What kinds of business would a religious revival injure?

How much attention should the Church pay to the reactions of such business as opposes the power of Christianity?

Why A Retreat

By Rev. Harold Burkholder,

Chairman of the 1941 Eastern District Retreat

This question has come to the minds of many people, particularly those of the older groups. Many believe that it is a waste of time to send their children to this yearly gathering of the Young People. Others feel that the spiritual gain is not sufficient to balance the cost per person. And still others show no interest in this sort of gathering.

It has been the purpose of past Retreats to bring to those in attendance real spiritual blessing, as well as a physical and mental change and rest.

It is very definitely the purpose of this 1941 Retreat to bring to the Retreaters those things that are suggested in the following acrostic—

R eceiving Christ as Savior
E nthroning Christ as Lord
T o study God's Word
R estoring the joy of salvation to those who may have lost it
E xercise and recreation for the mind and body
A dvancing the cause of Christ
T riumphant Christian living

I. Receiving Christ as Lord.

There can be no greater purpose in a Retreat than to endeavor to help some soul receive Christ as his personal Savior. Life is so short, and Jesus Christ longs to save the souls of young people.

II. Enthroning Christ as Lord.

It is not sufficient to be saved. For Jesus Christ longs not only to be Savior, but also Lord of our lives. He wants us to yield our all to Him. And "if He is not Lord of all, He is not Lord at all." He wants our talents to be used at all times for His honor and glory. He longs to be enthroned in the heart.

III. To study God's Word.

A Retreat would be valueless were it not for the Bible, God's Word, the world's best seller, the central Book of our study. In the midst of change and "Though heaven and earth pass away, my Word shall chaos, we still have the words of Jesus telling us, not pass away." It is the old Bible that still meets the new needs. As young people, we need to study God's Word, thus showing ourselves approved unto God, workmen that need not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth.

IV. Restoring the joy of salvation.

After we have received Christ as Savior we are faced by the great adversary, the Devil, who tries to hinder our service for Christ. Many times he succeeds through the modern worldly subtile pleasures, to suck, as it were, the very life out of us. Our Christian life becomes a burden, and we are not happy. It was at such a time that David of old cried out, "Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation." Perhaps the Retreat may be the means of bringing some Christian to the place where he will renew his covenant with God, and thus have restored to him his "first love", his joy of salvation.

V. Exercise and recreation for the body.

Retreat would not be complete without some program of recreation and exercise. Young people today need some good, clean, wholesome fun. Someone has well said, "A good time is doing something which after it has been enjoyed, leaves no regrets."

VI. Advancing the cause of Christ.

God cannot be pleased with sit-down-striking Christians. We must not merely hold our own, but are commissioned to advance under the leadership of the Captain of our salvation. We have His marching orders, "Go ye." Ours is not merely a defensive battle; we are to be on the offensive, ever "pressing forward to the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." May the Retreat ever help us, not only to know Him better, but to make Him known.

VII. Triumphant Christian living.

There are many Christians living a defeated Christian life. No matter which way they turn, defeat stares them in the face. Alas, they have failed to turn in the right direction. They must turn their eyes upward. They must ever "look unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith." "Now thanks be unto God which always causeth us to triumph in Christ."

After considering all the things we have mentioned, can anyone still ask, "Why a Retreat?"
which we trust will be the result of the 1941 Retreat;

Let us therefore bend every effort in making this year's Retreat the best ever. You will never regret the time and money you have invested to make it possible for you to attend.

This And That

Summer Address—From now till August 6 the address of William E. Juhnke, Secretary-treasurer of the Y. P. Committee, will be 925 Indiana St., Lawrence, Kansas. Mr. Juhnke is doing graduate work at the university.

A New District Paper has appeared in the Eastern District. This newly-born paper lacks a name, but its eight mimeographed pages are full of interesting material on district young people's work, retreat and the building of Camp Mennolan, the coming conference and the Y. P. Exhibit, missions, party suggestions, and Junior and Intermediate C. E. activities and programs. Now all the districts except the Northern and Canada have young people's papers. Would it not be advisable to have one conference young people's paper that would combine all of these into one for the sake of mutual help and edification?

Mennolan (the Eastern District's own retreat camp): The main building, a combination dining room and kitchen, is nearly completed. Work has also been done on the two combination rest rooms and wash rooms and on the tent floors. The board has decided to have a "tent retreat" this year. The camp letter suggests that we add to our Prayer List: Our Retreats—that souls may be won to Christ! and Our Conference Sessions—that God's will may be done in all things!

Y. P. Exhibit: "Among the many fine things that will be offered to the young people by the General Conference this summer will be a Young People's Exhibit. This exhibit is to visualize the past Union mission projects. It is to display outstanding convention programs and resolutions, retreat pictures and programs, posters and other publicity methods, a map showing the location of Mennonites in other countries contacted through correspondence. A review of what young Mennonites are doing and a model of Mennolan as it is to be, are other features the committee is working on."—Anna Weiss (All young people are asked to be on the look-out for worthwhile material which can be contributed to the exhibit. Those outside of the Eastern District can do this through their respective district representatives.)

C. E. Programs: The Allentown (Pa.) Senior C. E. Society has been enjoying a series of lectures by Rev. Nyce dealing with "Courtship and Marriage." These were given every other Sunday evening, with regular topics on the alternate Sundays. The last three lectures discussed marriage and the establishing of a Christian home. The Schwenksville Society conducts services once a month at the Home for the Aged at Frederick, Pa. At Easter time each one of the old folks received a plant as a gift from the society. (Certainly all of our young people ought to be well informed in regard to Christian courtship and marriage. They need to be provided with some other pattern than the world offers. Were it not well if more of our young people expressed their Christian love and concern in such a practical way as do the members of the Schwenksville Society? Christian love must be expressed if the possessor of it is not to become as a "clanging cymbal."—R. W.)

THE AMERICAN CHURCH

Program for July 20, 1941

Leading Topic: What is happening in the Church in America?

Matt. 24:4-14; Rom. 5:1-5

I. Worship Service

1. Songs from Mennonite Hymnary: "O That I had a thousand Voices," No. 509; "Once to Every Man and Nation," No. 346; "God of Our Fathers, Whose Almighty Hand," No. 347.
2. Reading of leading topic passages, and prayer.
3. Presentation of opportunities for spiritual growth through attending the Retreat for Young People.
4. Offering for Retreat work.

II. Leader's Introduction

There is an increasing spirit of unity and harmony among the leading churches of America. A number of great church mergers have been completed in recent years, or are in process. In local, state, and national federations and councils, churches are working together more closely and efficiently than ever before.

The church is responding to the social problems of these times with a demand for righteousness, for justice, for brotherhood, for opportunity. Withal, there are problems which run deep into the lives of the churches—widespread Sabbath desecration, the growing menace of alcohol, a worship of pleasure, and the danger of indifference and lack of interest and enthusiasm, for the cause of Christ and His Church.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Prayer for Zion Urged	Ps. 122:6-9
2. "Church of the First-born"	Heb. 12:22-24
3. Jerusalem's Fate Foretold	Luke 19:41-44
4. Christ and His Church	Eph. 5:25-27
5. A Model Church	Rom. 12:3-21

IV. For Discussion

1. Why would you object to live in a churchless community?
2. What should a church be like in order to present indisputable proofs of God's approval?
3. What are the duties of church members?

V. For Study

In how far is what you give a criterion of your interest in the church?

Dr William Lyon Phelps, of Yale University, was preaching in the Yale Chapel to a student group when he said this about church membership:

"The most fatal result from any line of action is no result. That is what is wrong with the church today. It ought to cost more to get into it, more to stay in it, and there ought to be more difference between church members and others. Every member, for example, should give more money to his church (where there are no dues) than he gives for membership in all his clubs put together. Then men and women who do the most for religion are not its advocates, but its witnesses. Religion is best expressed in lives."

What is more important, giving money, or giving time and thought to the church and its work? Which is more effective?

Faithful Every Day

"The best story I know," said Mr. L. H. Kinnard, president of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, "is that of a girl. It was a bitter day. A snowstorm had come in the night, and by morning a blizzard was on. A friend of mine started to his office in a limousine, but the car stuck in the drifts. No trolleys were running; there was nothing for him to do but to walk. He turned up his great coat collar and struck out. Pretty soon he came alongside a slight girl beating her way against the wind and snow. 'Say, this is fierce!' he said to the girl. 'Not so good; but it might be worse,' she said, smiling back at him. For another hundred yards they fought the storm together; then my friend stopped. 'Sister, this is no day for you to be out,' he said. 'Let's turn back.' 'Oh, I can make it all right,' she bravely answered. 'But what's the use?' he asked. 'I can go back and do my business by telephone.' She waved her hand cheerily. 'Nope,' she said, 'I can't go back. I'm your telephone operator.' It is such daily devotion to duty as this," concluded Mr. Kinnard earnestly, "that makes the wheels go 'round. The other things are all right—fine, wonderful! But they happen only once in a while. The devotion that counts most happens every day." From the American Magazine.

Are church members like that?

VII. Food for Thought

"I love thy church, O God!
Her walls before thee stand,
Dear as the apple of thine eye
And graven on thy hand.

"Beyond my highest joy
I prize her heavenly ways,
Her sweet communion, solemn vows,
Her hymns of love and praise.

"Sure as thy truth shall last,
To Zion shall be given
The brightest glories earth can yield
And brighter bliss of heaven."

1. Introduction by a Junior boy:

"Sometimes we think that people who live at a distance, or who speak a language different from our own, or who dress differently are queer; and we do not respect them as we should. Jesus came "for all the world." A Christian citizen of the world will seek the highest good of all the world just as he does for his own country and his own home. The best that can come to the world is salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, Who died that all might be saved. A Christian citizen of the world helps in every way possible that this precious gospel message may be proclaimed everywhere."

2. Stand and sing in unison: "The Whole Wide World for Jesus"

3. Discussion Period: "World Citizens must keep the laws of Jesus Christ if they are to be good Christians." What are they? How can we? (Juniors take part in this discussion).

4. Poem by a Junior girl:

"Peace, peace on earth!
For men shall love each other,

Hosts shall go forth to bless and not to destroy;
For man shall see in every man a brother
And peace on earth fulfill the angel's joy."
—Longfellow

IN MEMORIAM

MARIE MARGUERITE PENNER, daughter of Gerhard and Catharine Penner, was born November 14, 1909, at Whitewater, Kansas, and departed this life June 9, 1941, at the Allen Memorial Hospital at ElDorado, Kansas, a victim of the tornado which swept through the Whitewater district, the night of June 8. She reached the age of 36 years, 6 months, and 25 days. Marie became a member of the Emmaus Mennonite Church, near Whitewater, at the age of 17 years. She received her education in the Whitewater schools, having lived her entire life in this community. She was loving and kind, was loyal to the church and the community, and willingly assumed responsibilities although not always in the best of health. Her love for music was manifest in various groups.

She leaves to mourn her early departure her two brothers, Otto of Whitewater with whom she made her home; John of Wichita, Kansas; one sister, Mrs. Martha Stiner of ElDorado; a brother-in-law, Carl Stiner; three nieces, Lorieta, Wilma Marie, and Winifred Stiner; two nephews, Vernon Penner and Floyd Stiner; other relatives and hosts of friends. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, June 11, at the Emmaus Church. Her pastor, Rev. J. C. Kaufman, officiated, assisted by Rev. B. W. Harder and Rev. Theo. Roth.

MYRON KEITH THIERSTEIN, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Thierstein, was born January 4, 1941, at Whitewater, Kansas, and departed this life on June 9, 1941, as a result of injuries received in the tornado which struck the Whitewater community. His age was five months and five days. He leaves to mourn his early departure, his grief-stricken parents; one sister, Pauline; two brothers, Gerald and Eldred; four grandparents; and a host of relatives and friends.

Mine

I closely held within my arm a jewel rare,
Never had one so rich and pure engaged my care;
'Twas my own, my precious jewel—God gave it me,
'Twas mine, who else would care for it so tenderly?
But the Master came one day my gem to take.
"I cannot let it go," I cried, "my heart will break."
"Nay, but I come for it, to bear above, to deck my royal diadem."
"Yes, Master, Thou mayest keep my own, for it is Thine.
Safe in the house not made with hands, 'tis Thine and mine."

Funeral services were conducted at the Emmaus Church, Rev. J. C. Kaufman and Rev. B. W. Harder officiating.

ELVIN W. HERR, son of Peter and Louise (nee Geiser) Herr, was born at Silverton, Oregon, May 5, 1887, and died April 24, 1941, at the age of 53 years, 11 months, and 19 days.

On December 10, 1908, he was married to Ida Rosie Roth. To this union six children, three sons and three daughters, were born. In the year 1909 he made a public confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as his personal Savior, whereupon he was baptized. He was received into the membership of the Emmanuel Mennonite Church at Pratum, Oregon, on August 8, 1926. He remained a true Christian to the end and confessed a strong and an abiding faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as his Savior. He had been in ill health for a number of years, and although he earnestly longed to be made well he bore his sickness without murmuring and with true Christian fortitude. Although hardly realizing that his end was so near, he desired and received the communion of the Lord's Supper about 8 days before the Lord called him to his eternal home.

He leaves to mourn his departure, his wife and the following children: Ralph Leonard, Silverton; Elda May, at home; Marjorie Evelin (Mrs. Rensche), Albany, Ore.; Roy William and Clarence Peter, at home; one sister, Mrs. Leona (C. C.) Witzel, Salem, Ore.; and three grandchildren. One daughter, Alice, preceded him in death.

Funeral services were held on April 26, at 2:00 p. m., at the Emmanuel Church, Pratum. The pastor, Rev. Daniel J. Unruh, spoke on the text II Cor. 5:1-5. He was assisted in the services by Rev. Homer Leisy, a brother-in-law of the deceased. Interment was made in the Pratum cemetery.

E. J. HIRSCHLER, who served Bluffton College as professor of mathematics and astronomy since 1903, was born in Franklin, Iowa, in 1876, and died May 22, 1941. Death came unexpectedly though he had been ill for a period of three years.

He was married to Elida Zepp in 1908. After attending Bethel College he received his A. B. degree from the University of Kansas, and his S. M. degree from the University of Chicago. He also did graduate work at Yale University for a year. He traveled in Europe and was a member of a number of learned societies. He was a capable teacher and a recognized authority in his field. He knew how to find the harmony between the laws and facts of science and the truths of God as revealed in the Scriptures. He wrote the Bluffton College Alma Mater, served as its registrar for many years, and in numerous other ways gave sacrificial service to the institution.

The deceased also served the Mennonite church of Bluffton, Ohio, in many capacities, such as being Sunday School superintendent, chairman of the Board, deacon, and trustee. He served as president of the Middle District Conference for several terms and as program chairman of the General Conference for a number of years. All these institutions will miss a devoted friend.

He is survived by his widow and two children, Mrs. Hershel Ingmire, Lima, Ohio, and Alfred E. Hirschler, Ridley Park, Penn. A son, Paul, preceded him in death.

Funeral services were held in the First Mennonite Church, Bluffton, Sunday afternoon, May 25. Rev. H. T. Unruh officiated and President Ramseyer assisted.

The Story of The Mennonites

By Dr. C. Henry Smith

This "Story of the Mennonites" aims to cover the whole field of Mennonite history from the time of Menno Simons, who lived in the days of Martin Luther, to the outbreak of the present world war; and includes, not only the religious experiences of the Mennonites, but—since they have often formed self-sufficient economic and social units with special political privileges—their whole economic and social life as well, in Europe, Asia, North and South America.

Because of their migrations from one country to another through the centuries in search of religious toleration and civil liberty, the Mennonites have developed certain differences in their social and religious practices. The diversity of the national, linguistic, and social backgrounds found among the Mennonites has resulted in the formation of numerous separate groups and branches of the denomination. The author has attempted to treat each group impartially, without favor or prejudice; and has given each the space which, in his judgment, it deserves in relation to the movement as a whole.

Its 824 pages contain a wealth of information never before printed, and this book should find a place in every Mennonite home. It is bound in attractive brown satin cloth, gold stamped, and has a beautiful jacket. Price: $2.50, postpaid.

Editorial

The Fellowship of Reconciliation recently released the report that more than one thousand ministers of leading Protestant denominations in all parts of the United States had signed an affirmation pledging themselves not to use their ministry to "bless, sanction, or support war." The pledge signed by these ministers reads as follows: "As a Christian, I see no possibility of reconciliation between the central teachings of Jesus and the necessary operations of war; as a loyal citizen, devoted to the cause of liberty and democracy, I am unalterably opposed to the present threatened belligerency of this country. Both as a citizen and as a Christian, therefore, I must in loyalty to conscience affirm my pledge not to use my ministry to bless, sanction, or support war."

Dr. Allan Knight Chalmers, minister of the Broadway Tabernacle Church, New York, who had sent out letters in response to which this affirmation by these leading ministers was made, comments on this statement as follows: "Such a statement seemed to be required because some people apparently think that the ministers who have been preaching peace will naturally back down now and find good reasons for changing their minds on the problem of the Christian in the time of war. These thousand and more signatures indicate that there is one bright spot anyway in a dark-seeming world. Men of our point of view are certain of the truth of their convictions and are standing by them sturdily and steadily."

It is a sad fact, though, that not all ministers "of the gospel" take this stand and recognize that there is no possibility of reconciling the central teachings of Jesus and the operations of war. The following are a few statements quoted from a sermonette by an American minister and recently published in an American periodical: "The people in the pulpits and the pews must ring the bell calling the people to God until the Kingdom of God shines under this American sun. Let us not fail God and our country. . . . Any American is unpatriotic who does not attend church and ask God's blessing on the defenders of freedom during these days while our national destiny hangs in the balance and the future of the universe is in jeopardy. Put yourself on the side of the spiritual forces of the nation and let the power of prayer loose in this world."

Evidently there is a difference of opinion as to what constitutes true patriotism between the ministers who signed the affirmation and the minister who wrote the sermonette. Let us thank the Lord that there are still so many who have not been blinded by war propaganda, but who still stand up for their convictions that war is wrong, for as soon as the pulpit is used for the preaching of lesser things than Christ and His teachings of love and goodwill, as soon as it is employed for the spread of war and nationalistic propaganda instead of the spread of the Kingdom of God, the cause of Christ, Who should own every pulpit, is retarded.

May we do what we can to encourage those who have pledged themselves not to use their ministry to sanction war, so that this "bright spot" in these dark days may not become dimmed, but that it may increase in brightness until all people may know the Prince of Peace and follow His teachings which alone can lead to peace in our hearts and in the world.

Is the Size of the Church Important?

By an Observer

Our Mennonite churches were built in the horse and buggy days. Nobody wanted to drive much farther than five miles. There were many younger families that started the church, and for many years there was healthy growth. But many of the rural churches have a struggle to maintain their present membership and not give the appearance that they are slipping.

Town and city churches boast rapid increases, but there is little chance for our country churches to increase their membership. Is it necessary to have so many rural churches? Many farmers have, during the last generation, moved to town, but they love to attend the home church in the country. Meanwhile a live church has also been built up in the town, which is growing at the expense of the rural churches round about. And while the older people love to attend the home church, their children prefer to attend in town.

Thank God, our Mennonite people still go to church on Sunday mornings! As they pass each other on the way to church, and they may all belong to the same conference, they greet each other in friendly fashion. They don't all go to the nearest church. They go to their church.

As they start the Sunday School, they have either very small classes or too wide a range in age in the same class. They don't have enough pupils. For the preaching service the choir is supposed to sing, but the best tenor is missing, and without him the leader does not want to sing, so they have no choir selection. There are several in the audience who have good voices, but they find little interest in singing in such a small choir.

In the evening they have Christian Endeavor. If the group is divided into Juniors, Intermediates, Young People, and Adults, they feel they do not have enough to make any of the groups really interesting. They tried to have the Juniors and Intermediates together, but the Intermediates don't want to work with such small children. All they can do is to meet in one group.

The church, inside and outside, also the church yard and cemetery, are often not kept very well. They depend on volunteer service, since they cannot afford to hire a keeper, and the majority are willing to "pass the buck" to others, so that much of the work remains undone.

It is hard for the church to pay their minister. For many years their income has been small, and although the minister's monthly check is very modest, sometimes he has to wait for it, and sometimes he does not get the whole check, as much as he needs it.

Sometimes the minister would like to take his family to a different community for one Sunday, but then he would have to give his substitute $5.00, and he does not have it. So he stays at home. He hears of a fine Bible conference that is being conducted for two weeks. How hungry he is for something just like that. But that would cost him about twenty or thirty dollars and he would have to get a substitute for one or two Sundays and that is impossible. Would not the church be willing to help? Maybe they would if they understood how anxious their pastor is to get there, but knowing what a struggle they have with him, he does not have the heart to ask them. The minister knows that the church itself would be the winner if he could be refreshed at such a conference, but it just cannot be done. He must by all means attend their church conference, but what a struggle it sometimes is!

Why cannot churches unite? They can, but why don't they? Ten miles of driving by automobile is far less of an effort than three by horse and buggy. Distance is not a very great factor. Why then, don't they get together? Are these hindrances insurmountable: (1) Which church building shall be chosen and is either one large enough? (Possibly they could be moved together, or one disposed of and the other enlarged.) (2) There are two cemeteries. Can't they both be maintained? We must not let the dead keep the living apart. (3) The ministers. Which one, if either, shall remain? Since there is such a shortage of ministers at present, one could be released to serve another church. (4) The greatest difficulty to overcome might be the social readjustment. We are so used to each other. We enjoy one another. If another group comes in with us, we would not feel at home. We would have to give up some of our fond practices, as the other church does things differently. But remember, they, too, will have to give in. This will be mutual, and soon you will enjoy this new fellowship greatly. Your circle of friends will increase.

What will be the advantages of such union? Some may think first of financial economy. That will not be the most important factor. Although the churches will save one pastor's salary, to obtain a large enough house of worship, may require all of that saving for several years. Furthermore, the church will then be willing and able to really let her pastor so live that he will be relieved of financial worries, and also be able occasionally to obtain spiritual and intellectual refreshing for himself, so that he will again be a better and more cheerful minister.

When a church has 400 or more members, there will be enough musical talent that singers will love to sing in the choir. They will also sing an occasional Christmas or Easter cantata. What joy that is! They will sometimes have only the men sing, and at another occasion the ladies' choir will furnish the music.

For the children's classes in Sunday School the graded material will be used far more effectively, and they will also be able to organize various Christian Endeavor groups. Even mid-week services can be made far more attractive when the congregation is large enough.

The July number of the Christian Herald has an article on "Saving the Rural Church." Read it. The country church is worth saving, but when the church is too small to do effective work, many folks lose interest. In this age of automobiles there is no need for having many small struggling churches close together. We as Mennonites must show the world that we can and want to work together, and that we are willing for this cause to make minor sacrifices.

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

From One Home to the Other

After we had gone about twenty-five miles we came to a very fascinating handiwork of our Creator. It is a place called Tagaytay. Those of the readers who have seen the Royal Gorge in Colorado, or the Grand Canyon of Arizona, or Dry Falls of Washington state, will have somewhat of an idea what this place looks like. It is an enormous crater, likely of volcanic origin. The crater itself is now a huge lake. Then another volcano broke out in the middle of the old crater, or as it now is, in the middle of the lake. This second volcano also ceased erupting in time; and its crater has filled with water, but on a much higher level than the older lake. So the whole formation is really unique. First, the one Philippino island in the Pacific ocean. Then on that island the lake. Then in the lake another island—the dead volcano. Then on this island or volcano another lake. We tried to take some pictures of it, but the whole formation is so enormous that we do not know yet whether the camera saw all there is to be seen.

From this place we went to see something of the creation of man. We went to the airport at Cavite, where we saw the Honolulu Clipper, one of the mammoth airliners which travel across the great Pacific Ocean as regularly as the steamships do. This giant of the air has room for seventy passengers, and there are ten men in the crew. Besides this human load there is always much mail on the liner, and some other goods too. The grand total weight of the ship and its cargo is about eighty-four thousand pounds, the man told us. So over forty tons rise up and fly away. Marvelous!

This clipper is a product of modern man's genius. But we also saw something of medieval man's ability. We went to an old Spanish cathedral, where we saw a pipe organ of bamboo sticks. The priest in charge told us that there were nearly a thousand pipes. He played the organ for us. The tone was as mellow and beautiful as the finest modern organ anywhere in the world. One is surprised that not more such fine organs are made today, from such simple and commonplace material. God has given the raw material for man to make something beautiful and edifying out of it, but too often man turns these gifts of God into instruments of destruction and harm.

Before we went back to our "home" on the ship we went to the market to buy a few things. Our minds had to do some swift readjusting in order not to get run over by traffic in the busy streets. On the Philippine Islands the auto drivers drive on the left side of the road. The steering wheel of the car is on the right side. They pass other cars on the right side. When we cross the street from west to east we must first look right to see whether a car comes, and then look left when you are half across the street. At first one feels upset in one's own thinking, and if car drivers would not reckon with the possible mixup in pedestrians' minds, then I am afraid we would have been hit by some cars. When we went into a store to do some business we were reminded of the fact that we were again in an atmosphere of business ethics, where it is not so wise to accept the first price asked for an article. But we human beings get used to all kinds of conditions in this world, and it all seemed quite at home to us.

At 2:00 P. M. on April 15, our old trusted S S President Harrison, which has just now crossed the Pacific Ocean the fifty-third time, left Pier No. 7, the largest pier in the world, at Manila, turning its face to Singapore, near the equator. The ocean was calm, and we sailed along in peace. All of a sudden at midnight there was a peculiar stir mixed with a weird hush. "A man overboard," came the announcement. Somehow things were bungled somewhere, so the captain did not get word at first. The ship went on. All of a sudden the engines stopped. The ship turned around and went back at full speed. Somehow it was fairly clearly known where the man had fallen. So at the suspected place, the ship stopped. The chief officer, Mr. Nilson, and seven sailors, were lowered in a lifeboat, and went out into the dark. The large searchlights were sweeping over the waters, but no man could be seen. Yet these seamen have such a keen sense of the where-abouts in the ocean, that the lifeboat circled around only a short time before they found the man. He was still somewhat conscious, at least conscious enough to make use of his knowledge of swimming. Soon they were back near the ship with him. Then we all saw what was behind the whole matter. The men in the back part of the ship had been drinking, and this man had gone too close to the edge of the ship in his uncertain and top-heavy condition. He fell in, and the rest were too drunk to inform the captain at once. Hence the delay. The man's life was saved, but it shows again the condition of those poor people who think that they must at least periodically worship at the shrine of John Barleycorn. For us the whole event was worthwhile, because we could see a little of what is being done on board ship in case of an emergency, how a lifeboat is actually put into the ocean, and how it is hoisted up again. The ocean was calm, and yet when that little lifeboat was on the waves, it looked as though a nutshell was being tossed here and there. We do hope that by the grace of God we never need to enter a lifeboat on the great ocean.

I must add here another event which is of interest to our conference as a whole. When we came to Manila we somehow felt certain that some of our fellow missionaries from China might come to Manila on the S S President Coolidge, which came a few hours after we had arrived. So I went to the purser of our ship (The purser is the ship officer in charge of all general business on the ship. He really is next to the captain in authority.), and asked him whether he would kindly find out for me if any family by the name of Jantzen or Dirks had come on the Coolidge. He said he would. After some hours he told me that he had investigated, and he had been told that there were no such names on the passenger list. So we felt at ease thinking they had not come. After we had left Manila I noticed a young man among the new passengers who had boarded our ship in Manila, who looked very familiar to me. I walked up to him and found that he was Harry Schaeffer, son of our neighboring missionaries in India. He had come from the U. S. on the Coolidge, via Japan and China. Of course I asked him whether he had met such and such people on the Coolidge, and sure enough, he had met and known Albert Jantzens on that ship. There we and the Jantzens had both been in Manila, on the same pier, not more than a hundred yards apart, and had not met. Our ship was on the south side of pier No. 7 and their ship, the President Coolidge, was at the same time on the north side of that pier. When young Schaeffer told us this we somehow felt an inner defeat. How anxious we were to meet, and talk to our fellow missionaries from China, and learn something directly about their problems there. But it has not been. It is a real chagrin. Young Schaeffer told us that the Jantzens plan to go to Baguio, one of the larger cities on the Philippine Islands, and rather high in elevation, hence cooler than Manila; and there study advanced Chinese. The Paiping language school has been moved from China to Baguio, Philippines.

A missionary belonging to the Salvation Army who has worked in China for some years came on board our ship in Manila. She said that the difficulty for Christians is most acute in Korea. She said that Japanese soldiers stood in front of the church doors, and everyone who came to church had to show a certificate that he had first worshipped at a Shinto shrine just before he came to church. If he could not show such a certificate then he was not permitted to enter the Christian church. It does seem so similar to what the Christians in the first two centuries in our church history experienced. Will the blood of the martyrs once more become the seed of the church?

FOURTH CONTINUATION

Between Singapore and Penang

April 24, 1941

Many of our friends and relatives we know have been concerned about when we would get to the Singapore area; because conditions in this world are not as we would gladly have them. We also were a bit uneasy before we got there. But long before we were there, we had very definitely committed ourselves to the care of our heavenly Father, and so a calm came upon us which was remarkable. During the entering of Singapore harbor and during our four days stay there we could be absolutely at peace. We could of course see signs of concern around us; but all the work connected with the ship was done in a normal condition. The loading went on day and night. Also on the ship when we sail, we have so far had no "black-out." Yet we do long for the day when we shall arrive in Bombay, which we are told will be the second of May.

Although we are, in a way, cut off from the rest of the world when we are on such a long journey, yet through modern air service one finds that contacts can be made in a short time. When we came to Manila a post office man came on board ship and called out our name. We were wondering what now. But there was a very welcome airmail letter from our boys in Bluffton, Ohio. That we were most glad to hear from them there in the middle of our long journey, will not surprise the readers. When we came to Singapore, a similar event occured twice. Our name was called, and one day there was an airmail letter from Brother P. W. Penner of Champa, and the next day a letter from Rev. F. J. Isaac from our old home, Mauhadih. Both of those letters brought us into fresh and intimate contact with our co-workers in India.

Since we are here in the Singapore area we feel that we are on the other side of the world. We have to wear our thick cork hats again when we go out. And it is well to put on dark glasses, because the Oriental sun is so glaring. On the Singapore docks, where our ship was unloaded and loaded with different freight, the Oriental workers swarmed like the bees, and the noise was similar. It reminded us of the bazaars in India (markets in the open). And then many of the ordinary workers in Singapore also spoke the Hindi language. We seemed to be home again.

Well, this section of my report is only a sign of life, letting friends know that we were in Singapore and that all is well, thank God. Next time more.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

by Jacob J. Enz

JULY 18—"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." Matthew 11:28.

Hurry! Worry! Bury! These three words have often been used to characterize our modern way of living. A colored man, alighting from a merry-go-round, was met by his wife with this accusation: "Now look at you; you spent your money; you got off right where you got on, and you aint been nowhere." There seems to be a rush and "meaninglessness" about life that robs us of the quietness and rest that a soul hid with God in Christ should possess. Even you, Christian worker, you who spend much time in the work of the Kingdom, do not neglect to come to Him daily for that renewing strength which rest gives. Remember, inspiration in private devotion can never be replaced by perspiration in public service.

JULY 19—"What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" 1 Cor. 6:19.

The truth expressed in these words are certainly among those so easily overlooked by Christians. What are some of the implications here? We belong to God. Now, we know that most people have a high regard for the property of others; they will often treat others' property with such care as they would give to something very sacred. But think of the care which the average Christian gives that which belongs to God—that which He not only created and owned in the first place, but also that which He redeemed in the precious blood of the Lamb.

JULY 20—"Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." Philippians 4:6.

Someone has said, by way of briefly summing up these words, that to be careful for nothing means to be prayerful about everything. If it is not natural for us to pray, then either we have never been born again or we are allowing the pleasures and attractions of sin to distract our gaze upon His lovely face and our communion with Him. It was R. A. Torrey who made this significant, oft-repeated statement: "By praying more we will not do less and we shall accomplish vastly more."

"Oh! what peace we often forfeit,
Oh! what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
Everything to God in prayer."

JULY 21—"And the peace of God which passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." Philippians 4:7.

To speak of peace in this time of "wars and rumors of wars" seems, to the casual observer, to be almost futile. But how grateful we should be that although there is strife and conflict around us that need not be the case within us. Within is peace which is not temporary but which was negotiated by a treaty written in the blood of the Lamb that was slain before the foundations of the world, that men might be saved eternally. Because it is such a solidly grounded peace, it is one that not only passeth understanding but also all misunderstanding—a peace which continues throughout the shocks and strains of life.

JULY 22—"Behold I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me." Isaiah 49:16.

In this beautiful passage, reference is made to a custom practiced by Jews, namely of puncturing on their hands a representation of their city and temple to signify their zeal and inseparable connection with them. The Lord is speaking here to Israel telling His children of His infinite love and zeal for them, that they shall never be cast from Him eternally as a people. We may also translate this verse into New Testament terminology, for it is the nailprints in the precious hands of the Master Himself which portray to us His unending zeal and love for sinners who need redemption.

JULY 23—"He must increase, but I must decrease." John 3:30.

This is indeed an excellent formula for daily Christian living, and, incidentally, it is also a good motto for a healthy mental life. Taken as a formula for our own lives, we may ask several questions. Is He becoming more and more our central interest, and do we become progressively less engrossed in ourselves? How much less self-pity there would be if this were the case. Is He becoming daily the object of a greater part of our conversation and are more people therefore hearing the gospel from our lips? Or do they hear only our troubles? Does He daily captivate more and more of our thought life so that we are continually seeking new ways to glorify His Name? Oh, that many would resolve to take this verse as their motto!

JULY 24—"So there was division among the people because of him." John 7:43.

Down through the ages this has been the result of the preaching of the gospel. Wherever His glorious message has been presented, some have listened and accepted Him with open arms. Others have rejected Him crucifying in their earth-bound hearts the Son of God afresh. They have chosen rather to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. If this meditation should be read in the hearing of one who has closed his heart to the Lord Jesus, let this be a renewed appeal to you. "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red as crimson, they shall be as wool."

CORRESPONDENCE

HEREFORD MENN. CHURCH, BALLY, PENNA.

It has been some time since you have heard from our group. We have been so busy with the activities of our church that we became so engrossed with its duties that we forgot some obligations.

On Sunday afternoon, June 22, at 3 o'clock, one of our parishioners, Andrew R. Shelly was ordained to the ministry in an impressive service. Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson, our pastor, preached the ordination sermon while other ministers of the Eastern District Conference performed the act of ordination, the prayer, the charge, and offered the right hand of fellowship. Andrew has one more year's work at the Hartford Theological Seminary, but the Sterling Avenue Mennonite Church in Kitchner, Ontario, wants him to serve them for the summer months, so it was necessary that he be ordained.

A successful Bible School was again conducted at our church under the direction of Andrew Shelly. About 165 children attended, with 108 having a perfect attendance, 29 missed only one day and there was an average attendance of 151 for the two-week's period. There were 23 churches represented and on each Friday an offering was taken, part of which was used for relief work among the children of those areas in our world where suffering is most intense. It will be used for food, clothing, and shelter. Secondly, part will be used to secure Bibles for children who desire them. A lot of credit is due to the teachers and folks who provided transportation for the children because some of them have never been to Sunday School, and we trust that the seed sown will not return void.

On Sunday evening, June 29, a program conducted by these young people themselves was presented to a full house and a very appreciative audience. After the program the parents and friends were privileged to see the items of handwork which amounted to more than 1000 pieces.

On Wednesday evening, July 2, a farewell service for Rev. Andrew R. Shelly was held before he left for his new field of service. We wish him God's richest blessing in his work. —Mae Latshaw, Corr.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

1 Cor. 5:9-13; Titus 2:1-8

TOPIC: THE CHURCH'S DUTY IN REGARD TO LIQUOR

Introduction

Today we consider the responsibility of the Church concerning the evil of beverage alcohol. When a live organization with a large membership, takes a definite stand for something and is well known as taking its stand, its influence is far greater than would be that of many individuals separately. In its importance and in its numbers the Church surpasses any other organization in Christian lands. A united Church would have a tremendous weight.

Christian Living a Rebuke to Willful Sinners, vs. 9-13

Christians are to avoid having social intimacy with professing Christians who are notoriously wicked. It is their duty to rebuke them for their evil conduct. Sinful living must not be condoned by the Church. Paul does not forbid all social association with non-Christians (v. 10). Christians are to move about among them as chaste and sober witnesses to the gospel of Christ. Paul believed that the Church must keep herself pure and free from the reproach of harboring wicked people. To this end a separated life is the only sure way of showing disapproval of gross sin (v. 11). Christians should not even eat with them. Paul would expel drunkards, fornicators, and other gross sinners from the church (v. 13). The brewers and distillers are trying hard to make America a nation of drinkers and drunkards. It is the clear duty of the Christians to see that this can not be accomplished. The people of the world have a right to expect that the lives of Christians should resemble that of Christ.

Conduct Befitting Sound Doctrine, vs. 1-8

Sound doctrine in the early church had to do with every-day conduct. Sobriety and temperance have a prominent place. It is the duty of the Church to preach the way of salvation through Christ and also the kind of living which He requires. Paul has exhortations for all, the aged and the younger. All had their trials and temptations and each one needed Christ. Titus was to carry Paul's exhortation to the churches on the island of Crete. It is said that the Cretans, both men and women, were notorious drinkers, and hence this warning was especially needed. Paul was very anxious that the conduct of the Christians should not bring reproach upon the Word of God (v. 5). Christianity is a holy faith and demands right conduct for its expression.

The Church's Duty in Regard to Evil Conditions

The Church, above every other institution, is under obligation to take a decided stand against everything that is manifestly wrong. The Church was founded by Christ and her standards are set forth in His teachings. He declared very definitely that it is the duty of His followers "to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." The Church ought to stand always for the things which are highest, purest, and best in human life; for the things which promote spirituality and draw one closer to God. The Church ought to stand against all that leads people from God and that tempts people to sin. The Church, to be true to Christ, must take her stand openly and boldly against that triumvirate of evils—drink, gambling, and vice—which is bringing degradation and ruin to so many. The Church has the greatest moral power of any organization in the world. She is not using it as she could. The church people helped the liquor trade back to legal standing in our nation.

Why is the Church under special obligation to take her stand against evil conditions in the community?

What is our denomination doing regarding beverage alcohol?

MENNONITE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

CIVILIAN PUBLIC SERVICE NEWS

Since the last issue of the Civilian Public Service News on June 12, additions were made to the assignments at each of the existing camps and two assignments were received at the new camp at Bluffton, Indiana.

According to latest information, the present status of the camps is as follows: Grottoes, Virginia, 64 men; Colorado Springs, Colo., 81 men; Marietta, Ohio, 43 men; and Bluffton, Ind., 139 men.

A few of the assignments made by Selective Service were of a temporary nature for expediency and consequently some necessary transfers are anticipated in an effort to place all the boys as advantageously as possible for the carrying out of the planned educational and religious programs of the several churches.

Ernest Bennett went to Cooperstown, N. Y., June 30, to receive five Mennonite boys who were transferred to the Grottoes, Virginia camp. This is but an example of other efforts that will be made toward placing the boys in the most desirable camps.

With the additional classification of young men, more camps have become necessary. Consequently, two additional camp sites have been selected which await the final approval of the Washington authorities. One of these, which is to serve the assignees of the Middle West, is located near Decatur, Illinois. This camp has just been approved by Selective Service. Its work is of the nature of soil conservation and related activities. The second is still in doubt but several camp sites in the hills of Pennsylvania or West Virginia are under consideration. The work here will largely deal with the problems connected with forestry, including tree planting, gardening, and public park improvements. It is expected that these two camps shall be ready to receive assignees within the next two weeks. A third camp is contemplated in conjunction with the Brethren for the draftees in the distant Northwest. Mr Fast, representing the Mennonites, and Mr. Zigler, representing the Brethren church, are now inspecting possible camp sites in Oregon and Washington. The next issue of the Civilian Public Service News will probably be able to bring additional information.

Reports from the camps are generally quite reassuring. Both the camp personnel and assignees appear quite well satisfied and contented. The state of health also is generally good, even though the effects of the required inoculations have occasioned a number of the boys considerable inconvenience. Those of us who have been permitted to visit one or more of the camps are very much encouraged by what we saw. By the way the boys acted and worked, we realized that the morale in the camps was all that we could expect. The boys seem cheerfully willing to give a year of faithful service to their country and at the same time improve their time by practicing a desirable Christian social fellowship. Even boys from different groups that live more or less distant, appeared to see the good in one another and to enjoy their new comrades and friends.

The educational program which we intend to develop for the boys in the camps is necessarily somewhat slow in assuming definite form, but if its progress is not as rapid as some may have expected, we should remind ourselves of the fact that in a new venture, such as this is, one must of necessity proceed carefully while we feel our way on untrodden paths and uncharted fields.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY

The Northern District Young People's Day was held at Butterfield, Minn., on June 11, following the sessions of the Northern District Conference.

The special Young People's Day of the N. D. Conference, having been begun only a year ago, had been looked forward to by the executive committee and the young people of the district with eager anticipation. Great enthusiasm was shown by the young people through their regular attendance of the meetings and their hearty cooperation.

The special speaker was the Reverend P. H. Unruh of Goessel, Kansas. The topic chosen especially for this day by the executive committee was, "Christ, Our Savior, Companion, and Consumator." The different phases of this topic were brought out very vividly by the speaker.

In opening the first session, Rev. Unruh explained to us the way of salvation made possible by Christ as our "Savior". The following message, "Christ Our Companion," was beautifully connected with the first. After appealing to us to accept this one and only plan of salvation, Rev. Unruh gave out the challenge to take Christ into our daily walk and make Him our constant companion. Then in a very appropriate closing message we saw Christ as our "Consumator". The "Consumator" of victory, of righteousness, of judgment, and of numerous other things, was very clearly presented and discussed by the speaker.

We can truly say that the Lord richly blessed us during our Y. P. Day. We are looking forward to another special day for the young people in 1942, at Freeman, S. D. The Y. P. Committee
Jacob T. Friesen, Sec'y.

INSPIRING TIME AHEAD!

When we are young there is nothing quite so inspiring as fellowship with other young people who are interested in the same worthwhile things that interest us. One of the finest ways of fellowshiping with like-minded folk is by attending conferences and conventions. This is also an excellent time for finding new friends—friends among the young people as well as among the convention leaders who may make lasting impressions on us and often influence our choice of life work.

At this time we are particularly concerned with arousing the interest of our young people in the Western District C. E. Convention which will meet at the Grace Mennonite Church in Enid, Oklahoma, August 2 and 3.

The officers of the convention and committees of the host church are working hard to make the convention worthwhile. Soon they will be ready to make detailed announcements regarding the program. Please watch these pages for more information, and plan to meet us at Enid. —Helen Hiebert Mueller

From a Le Tourneau Worker

(The following letter was written by Dan Epp, son of Rev. J. F. Epp of Henderson, Neb. Mrs. Dan Epp is a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. P. J. Wiens, former missionaries to India.)

"One is your teacher and all ye are brethren." Matt. 23:8. That is how we feel about all our many friends though miles and miles apart.

Perhaps there are those who have heard of "Carry-All Scrapers", "Bull-dozers", and "Turnapulls", and who have wondered just what sort of things they are. The foregoing is earth-moving equipment manufactured by the R. G. LeTourneau Companies of Peoria, Illinois. and Toccoa, Georgia.

Despite the fact that we often dream of, not only being nearer to our loved ones, but also to those who share with us our faith, somehow, each morning as we awaken we still find ourselves in the vicinity of Toccoa, Ga. Toccoa is located in northern Georgia, and consequently it is surrounded by many beautiful hills and trees. Trees such as oak, long-needle pine, and ash are very plentiful. If in lack of entertainment, one needs only to step out through the back door and begin a hike through the woods right there. A large lake, dammed up by the company, makes swimming and boating very convenient.

What about the industrial life? What is it like? Frankly, industry does consume one's time all too hurriedly. At present we are working ten hours a day (written a number of months ago). Add to that, let's say, two or three hours for personal chores and meals and the usual time one takes out for sleeping, and a day of twenty-four short hours is soon spent leaving only a morsel of it to be lived to our choosing.

Every Monday noon after lunch, and also on other special occasions, the company takes time out for devotional services, known to us as "shop meetings". These services consist of music, both group singing and special numbers, prayers, and a sermon. Much emphasis is always laid upon acceptance of salvation and a confession of the same by word of mouth. The average shop meeting is generally closed with a request for a show of hands of those who would like to accept this true and glorious gift and who would appreciate being aided toward that end by being mentioned in a special way in the closing prayer.

Outside of the plant, religious efforts, too, are not lying idle. The Presbyterian, the Baptist, and the Methodist churches more than welcome any and all of us to come and worship with them, both on Sunday and during the mid-week prayer services. (We happen to feel most at home among the Presbyterians.) Also local prayer meetings and Bible clubs are organized. The "Gideons" have a chapter in this territory, and the "National Business Men Evangelistic Club" also has an active group here, and continued efforts are put forth for larger and more regular attendance. Here, too, much emphasis is laid upon personal testimonies and prayers.

Some of the readers may ask, "What about the race problem?" As in most other places the lot of the colored people is that of a servant. Educational institutions are entirely separate from those of our race. In many homes the same colored maids have come and gone daily to take care of the household duties for more than twenty years. These are by far the more fortunate and happy. "Yes, the 'nigger' is all right, (in his place)." Naturally though, he wouldn't enter nor leave the house through the front door, (nor do numerous other things). And then there is such a thing as a "chain gang", colored convict labor for the benefit of the state. However, thus far I have not heard any boastful remarks concerning this plan. The "anti-lynching bill", which caused so much disturbance in Congress two years ago, too echoes a bit differently here than in the Middle West. In several "bull sessions" in which I, the sole minority, was duly corrected in my views, very vividly revealed how it was possible for Congress to squander so much time on such a simple question.

"Pacifism? C. O.? What's that?" Yes, I have attempted to explain—"But surely not that, Dan—." Yes, pray for peace, of course, and do all we can to help England win the war!

MY RECREATION

Program for August 3, 1941

(To save the space for other material in the Youth section, no program will be written for July 22)

Leading Topic: Setting Christian Standards in My Recreation. I Cor. 10:31-33; Col. 3:17.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs from Mennonite Hymnary: "We Praise Thee, O God, Our Redeemer, Creator," No. 15; "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee," No. 155; "Give of your Best to the Master," No. 400.
2. Reading of leading topic, and prayer.
3. Reports from those who have been attending Retreats.
4. Offering for "Ernst Harder Fund."

II. Leader's Introduction

Normal growth includes spiritual, social, mental, and physical development. It includes work and play. The time given to recreation is by no means lost time if the recreation is of the right sort. It means recuperation from the stress and strain of the work-a-day work, refreshment of body and spirit, rest; and gives one new zest to go on with this business of living.

A Christian will fill his time for recreation with activities consistent with his Christian outlook on life. He will enjoy those things which contribute to the fulness of life, but will avoid those which would lower the tone of his Christian standards. Christ walked the fields and enjoyed the wheat, the flowers, the world about Him; He lived among men and shared their social joys; He took time off for rest, and for being alone, or with a choice group for mountain-top experiences.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Godly people, happy. Ps. 144:11-15.
2. A warning against frivolity. Eccl. 11:9, 10.
3. A happy situation. Zech. 8:4, 5 .
4. A day of recreation. Luke 9:10-17.
5. Abundant life in Christ. John 10:9, 10.
6. A mountain-top experience. Luke 9:33.

IV. For Discussion

1. Should the church plan a program of recreation for its young people? If so, along what lines?

2. Does your program of living allow any time for recreation? Do you plan how to use this time?

3. Does your recreation contribute anything to your life? What?

V. Facts for Study

A program of recreation should contribute to the abundant life. It should be healthful, elevating, inspiring, educational, on the one hand. It should be restful, relaxing, and refreshing for body and soul on the other. It should contribute to Christian growth. It is well if it offers opportunity for creative self-expression. It should fit into a total program of work and play, not taking up too much time and energy. It would not be good Christianity to make play and recreation the main thing in life, and neglect daily duties and responsibilities.

VI. Illustration

There is a story told by naturalists of fish found in African lakes. It is said that the same species of fish attain to different sizes somewhat in proportion to the size of the habitat. That is, the same fish will generally run to larger sizes in the larger lakes. However true, and whatever the explanation, it is suggestive of what happens with us human beings. Our personalities—mental and spiritual—tend to bear a proportionate relation to the size of the world we live in and the number and quality of the major interests that enlist our active interest.

VII. Food for Thought

"The little cares that fretted me
I lost them yesterday
Among the fields, above the sea,
Among the winds at play,
Among the lowing of the herds,
The rustling of the trees,
Among the singing of the birds,
The humming of the bees.

"The foolish fears of what might happen,
I cast them all away,
Among the clover-scented grass,
Among the new-mown hay,
Among the husking of the corn,
Where drowsy poppies nod,
Where ill thoughts die and good are born—
Out in the fields with God."

Poem: Faith and Sight

Our eyes are holden that we do not see
How patiently He stands, how lovingly,
The while we pause, affrighted at the way,
E'er we have crossed the threshold of the day,
The fullness of the joy He'd have us know
Ofttimes we miss, because we are so slow
To trust Him, even when we hear Him say,
"Fear not; lo, I am with you all the way."
Sometimes He lifts the veil and lets us see
How close beside He stands to you and me.
Ah! then we know it is His hand, His touch,
Moves this and that, that hinders overmuch,
And learn, at last, unfalt'ringly to say,
I know He will abide with me today.

CITIZENSHIP AS SEEN IN SONG

Program for July 27, 1941

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude: "Jerusalem the Golden," by the pianist, with violin from the rear of the church.
2. Call to worship: "Draw nigh to God and He will draw nigh to you. Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord and He shall lift you up" (James 4:8a, 10).
3. Stand and sing in unison: "There's a Land That is Fairer Than Day," The Mennonite Hymnary No. 504.
4. Scripture Reading by a Junior boy: John 14: 1-6.
5. Leader's Opening Prayer
6. Sing in unison, "Jerusalem the Golden," The Mennonite Hymnary, No. 262.
7. Reading of verses from Revelation 21, by a good reader (Juniors may follow the reading in their Bibles). Revelation 21:2, 10-21.
8. Trumpet Solo: "The Holy City."

II Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors realize that there is life beyond this life, and to create in them the desire for citizenship in heaven. To help them to anticipate eternity with joy.

1. Introduction by a Junior girl:

Many of our grandmothers and grandfathers came from across the waters to make their homes here. Before they came they sent men to see the country and to bring a report back to them. When a person is planning a trip or a visit to another country he is usually interested in that country and studies maps and books so that he may know something about it. We all know that we will not always live here on earth, and we hope to spend eternity in heaven, because if we are God's children our citizenship is in heaven. The happy songs we sing at this meeting will help us to know something of our eternal home.

2. Poem by a Junior girl:

The Home of the Soul

"I will sing you a song of that beautiful land,
The far-away home of the soul,
Where no storms can beat on the glittering strand,
While the years of eternity roll.
O, the home of the soul, in my visions and dreams,
Its bright jasper walls I can see;
Till I fancy but thinly the veil intervenes Between that fair city and me."

—Gates

3. Sing in unison: "Heaven Is My Home," Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 344
4. Duet: "There is a Land of Pure Delight," Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 343
5. Scripture from memory by three Junior boys: Revelation 7:9-17.
6. Girls Chorus: "No Night There."
7. Song in unison: "O That Will Be Glory," Service Hymnal, No. 417
8. Discussion:

"How do we become citizens of heaven?" John 14:6; John 3:3b; John 1:12; Rev. 21:7.

(Leaders, prepare for this with much prayer.)

9. Boy's Chorus: "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder."

III Mission Minutes

1. Review of mission work in India. Source material: "Twenty-five Years with God in India," and "India Calling," Spring Issue, Page 4.
2. Pray earnestly for all of our missionaries.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN H. BARTEL, son of Heinrich and Helena Nagel Bartel, was born at Norka, South Russia, on August 5, 1877, and departed this life at the Salem Hospital, Hillsboro, Kansas, Sunday evening, June 15, 1941, at the age of 63 years, 10 months, and 10 days.

In 1892, as a 14 year old youth, he with an older sister, Katherine, came to America. After a short stay at Durham, Kansas, he spent some time with his relatives, John H. Bartel, in Otis, Kansas, where he began to attend school. After some time he returned to his uncle, Adam Bartel, Durham, who had aided him in coming to this country. He had to work hard for his own support and to repay his traveling expenses to America, so that little time was left for further schooling. On May 22, 1899 he was baptized upon his confession of faith in Jesus Christ as his personal Savior, by the Elder Wm. J. Ewert, and received into the fellowship of the Brudertal Menn. Church where he remained a faithful member.

On Nov. 27, 1902, he married Maria Janz. They founded their home on a farm northeast of Hillsboro. This union was blessed with ten children, six sons and four daughters, all of whom are living and were able to attend the funeral.

He was quiet, conscientious, and of a cheerful disposition. He enjoyed good health until March 4, 1939, when he suffered a stroke from which he never fully recovered. Although he gradually grew weaker, he suffered little pain. Without any complaint, cheerfully and resigned, knowing that the time of his departure was drawing near, he slipped away shortly after ten o'clock to be with Christ Whom he loved.

He leaves to mourn his departure, his bereaved wife; ten children; one son-in-law; six daughters-in-law; seventeen grandchildren, one having preceded him in death; one brother, Peter Bartel of Southard, Okla.; and many relatives. Funeral services were held on Wednesday, June 18, 1941, at the Brudertal church, conducted by Rev. Arnold Funk and Rev. J. M. Regier. Interment was made at the church cemetery.

SISTER AGANETHA WIENS was born near Inman, Kansas, June 2, 1891. Hers was the privilege of a simple Christian home and the fellowship of a large family circle.

She opened her heart to the call of the Savior early in youth and confessed Him in baptism on the 30th of May, 1909, joining at that time, the Defenseless Mennonite church near Inman. Later she became a member of the Bethel church near the same place. After she made her home in Newton, she transferred her membership to the First Mennonite church in that city.

Sister Aganetha received her preliminary education in the district school near Inman and later the academy in Bethel College. On September 22, 1922, she entered nurses' training at the Bethel Deaconess Hospital School of Nursing. It was during her years of training here that she felt the call to serve her Lord as a deaconess, and wishing to give her life unto this service, she was taken into the Sisterhood on September 25, 1925. She entered the work with a gladness of heart and found a deep satisfaction in her calling. She grew in grace and in the knowledge of her Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, and ministered unto Him in faithful loving service. On May 29, 1927, she was ordained as a deaconess. It can be said of her: "They that have served well, gain to themselves a good standing and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus." (1 Tim. 3:13).

Sister Aganetha was injured fatally in an automobile accident on June 8, 1941. She was taken to a hospital in Eureka, Kansas, and her last days were spent in painful suffering for which there seemed no relief. She died on June 10, conscious in mind, and with the assurance and comfort of a redeemed child of God.

Funeral services were held in the First Mennonite church of Newton on June 14. The Reverends J. E. Entz and A. Warkentin of Newton, P. T. Neufeld of Inman, and H. J. Dyck of Elbing officiated.

BERNARD ABRAHAM SCHOWALTER, son of Abraham and Anna Schowalter, nee Kaufman, was born at Halstead, Kansas, on November 12, 1906.

He grew to young manhood in the home community and graduated from the Halstead High School with the class of 1924.

On May 22, 1921, he was baptized by the Reverend J. E. Amstutz upon confession of his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and became a member of the First Mennonite Church of Halstead.

Bernard was endowed with an unusual tenor voice and a great interest and love for music, and after his graduation from high school, he entered the State Teachers College at Emporia where he received his degree of Bachelor of Science in 1928, having majored in music. He continued his studies at the Chicago Musical College and was awarded a Master's Degree in voice in 1932.

After teaching for some time in Stevens College at Columbia, Mo., and at the State Teachers College at Minot, North Dakota, Bernard returned to Chicago where he has lived for the past few years, striving toward higher attainments in his chosen work.

Early in November of 1940, he became seriously ill, and before long he decided to return to Halstead to consult with the physicians there. As soon as the diagnosis was made, it was evident that there was little hope for his recovery. A subacute bacterial endocarditis, which was apparently a carry-over from a severe childhood illness, developed with alarming rapidity. After a stay at the hospital of six months, he died on June 26, at 10 p. m., at the age of 34 years, 7 months, and 14 days.

He leaves to mourn his death, two sisters, Olga and Elizabeth Schowalter of Halstead, one brother, Arthur Schowalter of Route 1, Newton, and other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held in the First Mennonite Church of Halstead on June 28, 1941. The Reverend A. E. Kreider of Bethel College officiated, assisted by Doctor C. E. Krehbiel of Newton.

The time for the General Conference session at Souderton is drawing near. Plans have been made to care for the entertainment of the delegates and guests, with the prayer that the sessions will prove a spiritual blessing to all who can attend. The committee in charge would be glad to receive any suggestion which the delegates feel would prove helpful, and to arrange for any special sightseeing trip to points of interest. The Conference sessions will be held at a point which will make it possible to make a trip to New York, Atlantic City, or Washington following the Conference, or before if desired. The committee will be glad to outline routes, itineraries or offer any assistance desired. Just drop a line to Walter H. Temple, Secretary General Committee, 238 South 14th Street, Allentown, Pa.

What Americans Read

What do our American people read? The July issue of The Religious Digest brought a condensed article by Charles J. Dutton, entitled, "Death on the News Stand," in which he reports a study he made of the reading matter of the great mass of our people. He found that the best selling magazines are the ones playing up crime, immorality, cheap love, etc. Most of the stories and articles are written, as Mr. Dutton points out, "in the guise of preaching a moral, going suggestively into details, which a few years ago no magazine even dared slyly to hint. The more sensational the text and provocative the pictures, the more the moral purpose is shouted to the skies in the last paragraph."

How does the sale of this cheap reading matter compare with the sale of better magazines? Mr. Dutton reports that one of the love story magazines sold in one month "more copies than the Atlantic Monthly will sell in a year. Together, their monthly sale was greater than will be Harper's, the Atlantic Monthly, Scribner's, The Forum, and The American Mercury during the next five years."

What is the effect of such reading upon the minds of the readers? "To a great extent they believe what they read. Take as their own, the standards of conduct set forth by them. None of these magazines could exist unless people bought them. A vast number of our youths are reading this sort of trash and unconsciously they will make the low standards of ethics and morality their own."

If Australia refuses to admit 64 of our magazines and Canada does not allow a good many of them to cross the border because they are immoral, is there not something that can be done to suppress this menace to the youth of our nation in America? Why does not the church in America take a definite stand against the sale of this trash? Why does it not put forth definite efforts to educate the youth of the churches for a good choice of reading matter? It is the duty of the church collectively and of every Christian individually to throw his influence against this menace threatening to undermine the morality of the youth of our land. —mb

A Visit to Argeles Concentration Camp

by Jesse W. Hoover

The following account of our visit to the concentration camp near Argeles sur Mer should not be considered in any sense a criticism of the Management of the camp, of the French people, or of their officials. It is an item of common knowledge to the world that France has long been a haven for oppressed peoples from almost every nation. The warmth of the hospitality shown to all, and the kindliness of the reception given to myriads of refugees during the past, especially in more recent years, has no need of our eulogies. But their generosity has in a sense been temporarily an embarrassment. For the distressing circumstances into which France has now been plunged are only increased by the tremendous burden of the multitudes of foreign migrants. I present herewith a simple statement of the facts as observed by myself, leaving the reader to judge the merits of this case of most urgent need.

When we arrived at the camp on Tuesday, March 25, just after noon, it was impossible to gain immediate admission due to the visitation of the camp by some of the higher officials from Vichy. This indicates to us that the camp is not a forgotten entombment so far as the government is concerned, nor are the officials callous to the need. We were very courteously accepted and requested to wait until later when the camp managers could arrange for us to see it. We walked over to an evergreen grove and sat down on the sand to await the appointed hour. The camp is located right on the shores of the beautiful Mediterranean Sea, at the very edge of a beautiful little village. The clean, well-kept cottages, the green gardens, and the rich, dark verdure of evergreens and palms made it stand out like a little gem in its richly wrought settings.

In horrid contrast to this pretty little village, right at its very threshold lay the most gruesome spectacle of human misery. The concentration camp joins the northern limits of the town. It is built on the sandy beach, close by the sea. We were escorted, at the appointed time by a very courteous camp official who acted as guide for us. We wish it to be understood, however, that we were not restricted in our observations by the officials. No attempt was made to hide or disguise any of the more unpleasant features of the camp. We were permitted to see everything which we asked to see.

A brief description of the plan of the camp will be helpful for a better understanding of the observations which follow. The camp is arranged in row after row of rough, temporary buildings, nearly identical in size and appearance. It is very much like a crude, uncouth, unkempt army barracks, dingy and unspeakably dirty, the buildings all made of rough lumber, covered with black tarred building or roofing paper. They are perhaps fifty feet long by fifteen feet wide by eight or ten feet high at the gables. The first section inside the camp is occupied by the managers and workers of the camp. Their quarters do not differ materially in appearance from the rest of the camp. There are eight or ten long rows of barracks in this section. A second wire barrier separates this from the next section which is occupied by the men of the refugees. The men and women are now separated. This section consists of dozens of long rows of rough buildings, the rows stretching from the very edge of the sea for perhaps the greater part of a mile inland. How many shacks were in each row or how many rows there were, I do not know, but the camp seemed to me to extend for miles. Other fences again separated this section from the section occupied by the women and smaller children. The entire camp is again enclosed by other outer barricades all of barbed wire. This camp alone is supposed to contain around eighteen thousand refugees. It will give you some conception of the size of the problem if you will stop to think of a city of that population, living in temporary huts, without water systems or sewage disposal, without street lights, trees or grass. Then add to that the further fact that there are eighteen such camps and you have a problem that challenges the imagination.

Brethren Lehman, Wiens, and I entered the camp at around 2:30 in the afternoon. The entrance is at the south side of the camp, right at the north side of the village referred to before. We passed the very narrow opening in the high barbed fence, past armed guards who presented arms as we passed. A peculiar feeling swept over me, for I realized too well that it was due only to more fortunate circumstances that I could hope to return to freedom in a couple of hours. Scores and hundreds of men more capable than I and far more highly trained, some in the highest of the professions, are confined there without any assurance of a return to freedom. We passed the workers' quarters without a pause, on through another narrow opening in the second barricade, past another guard, and were in the long corridor that extends along the western side of the whole camp. This corridor is enclosed as is the whole camp, and then is separated again from the camp proper by a final barricade. The corridor serves as a road to all parts of the camp.

We did not go into the men's quarters, for we were more interested in the children, since that is the phase of work we are in. We walked on past the men's camp with scarcely a pause, a camp that seemed almost interminable, until we arrived at the point of our destination, the women and children's camp.

We passed from the corridor through another gate and past a coterie of guards, and were in the midst of what to that moment we had seen only at a little distance. Hundreds and thousands of women, and boys and girls were milling around aimlessly in the loose shifting sand, which was almost ankle-deep and indescribably filthy. These people have been crowded together for months, and there is no way to effectively clean a street of sand. Besides, the alleys are sand, the floors of the shacks are sand. That in conjunction with the lack of proper sewage disposal facilities makes a situation that is very bad indeed. If you add the further fact that there are reported to be only three places in the entire camp where water is available, and no bath facilities whatever, then give your imagination a bit of latitude and you can feature the sanitary condition of the place. Is it any wonder to you that children ofttimes get sick under such circumstances?

Those women and children presented a most pitiable sight. Some were dressed apparently in only one shabby garment, perhaps an old dress, or perhaps an underskirt, or perhaps a pair of old trousers or an overcoat. And on their faces was written in gruesome, indellible lines the depths of suffering and demoralization into which they had been plunged.

We pressed through the crowd to the kitchen, located in a building identical with the rest in its outward appearance. In the interior was a long row of large iron kettle cookers, similar to the cookers commonly used in America for butchering or for boiling applebutter. There were about twenty-five of them lined up along the back wall of the shack. On the other side piled along the long wall, and stacked on the sand floor with the sacks reaching nearly to the roof, were the vegetables, beans and chick-peas, and the other coarse, simple foods which made up the diet of the camp. From this one kitchen alone we were told that four thousand of these hapless refugees are fed.

(To be concluded)

Lehman when the latter returned to Europe last spring after having spent some time visiting the churches in this country. Mr. Hoover is a member of the (Old) Mennonite Church.)

The Church

The work of the church under the direction of Rev. Erwin Albrecht has progressed very satisfactorily. Although there has not been a large growth of the work in numbers, the spirit of the members and friends of the church has shown a fine improvement. Rev. Albrecht has introduced a number of new services to the congregation and the interest and attendance at all of them has been good. The usual Sunday evening service has been a disappointment since the attendance was small, and for this reason Rev. Albrecht has introduced a Christian Workers' Program. This program, held the first Sunday of the month at 7:00 P. M., combines the Young People's and church program and also combines the talents of the two groups. It has been very successful in increasing the attendance on this evening. The Sunday morning service has been well attended and Rev. Albrecht has been delivering Christ's Gospel in a clear and understanding way. The attendance at all the special programs has been especially good and through these programs numerous acquaintances have been made. A new service was held Christmas morning, and the interest shown was good. The church council is working as a unit with Rev. Albrecht and a fine feeling of cooperation exists.

The Sunday School

The work of the Sunday School continues to grow under the fine and able leadership of the superintendent, Mr. Anderson. The average attendance has been ninety-five scholars, a large increase over our last report. Mr. Anderson's fine illustrations and explanations on each Sunday's lesson have been arousing the interest and spirit from the youngest to the oldest scholar or teacher. A number of attendance contests have also helped to stimulate interest in the work. Under the continued leadership and guidance of Mr. Anderson the work of the Sunday School is sure to keep growing and winning boys and girls as well as men and women to Christ.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

FROM ONE HOME TO THE OTHER

(Fifth Continuation)

We are in Indian waters. That means that we are not far from home anymore. It is the twenty-ninth of April. Tomorrow our ship is to arrive in Colombo. Although the land is called Ceylon, it really is India already. We have set our watches for the last time today; and we find that we are now fourteen hours behind the time our sons have in Bluffton, Ohio. This indicates that we have gone a little more than half around the globe. We now have the same time we shall have in India.

Our ship left Penang last Saturday (April 26), early in the morning. The harbor pilot went with us for a long distance in order to give the ship safe guidance. It reminded us of the great fact that the pilot of our souls stays very close with us when dangers arise. We welcome that pilot to guide, and do not try to grab the rudder out of his hands. In Penang harbor and also in the city we saw a good bit pertaining to war. To see such things depress one's heart. Oh, if mankind could once again live in peace.

Since we had two days in Penang, some of us took our chance to go out to see something of the country. When we stopped in this harbor eleven years ago we saw on the mountain slope in the distance the famous Ayer Itam temple. At that time our ship made only a very brief stop in Penang, so we could not go to see the temple or anything else. But now we had more time. So one automobile full of passengers went out. We first visited the beautiful rubber plantations. At first we thought that after all a rubber plantation would be just so many trees, and nothing further. But when we came there, and saw how artistically the little grooves are cut in the bark of the tree, and how gently the milky white raw juice trickles along the grooves into a little cup; and when we actually felt the rubber congealing on our fingers; we could not help but marvel at the wonder of the handiwork of God. When the raw rubber comes out of the tree it looks just like heavy white milk. I stuck my finger into a cup full of that juice. Then I held my finger about ten minutes in the air, and then I had a rubber cap over the end of my finger. I used to imagine that raw rubber was crude and porous and weak. But I found that it is really very strong. Especially when it comes out of a young tree. I kept that little piece of rubber, and one has to pull on it with a good bit of strength in order to tear off a little part of it. Yes, the natural raw product is already very strong and useful. When we saw how ready-made rubber comes out of the tree, it did not seem a long distance between those trees and the juice they give and the rubber balloon tires on the automobile on which we rode.

Then we also visited the enormous coconut groves. It seemed to us that there are enough coconut trees in the Penang area alone to supply the world with the coconuts, and oil that is needed. But the coconut groves around Penang are by no means the only groves of that kind in the world.

From the wonderful natural gifts prepared by our Heavenly Father, we went again to see some of the handiwork of man. This time it was a handiwork connected with religion. In the Orient we of course find many more people of the kind that Paul found in Athens of old, viz. those who are very religious. We went first to the snake temple. Our Western mind would wonder, what is there in the snake that would lead people to build a temple for it and worship it. But in the Orient there is found that type of faith. In this temple there are scores of snakes for which the temple is being maintained. We of course asked the guide whether those snakes were poisonous. He said they were, but since they were so well taken care of, they were not at all dangerous. But as for me, I have never developed much confidence in snakes, so when the guide took us through between the open racks, full of live snakes, I tried to make myself as narrow as possible in order not to get too near them on either side.

From the snake temple we went to see the famous Ayer Itam temple, which is a Buddhist holy place. The temple is built on a steep slope of a high mountain. We had to walk up one thousand steps in order to get to the temple, but the guide here assured us that with every step taken our souls obtained more holiness. One could not help but think of Martin Luther of old on the steps of St. Peters in Rome, also seeking soul satisfaction, though the situation there was different from what we witnessed here in Ayer Itam. Here in our experience it meant that we were very much out of breath long before we came to the thousandth step. Fortunately the temple authorities have provided for midway stations. One of those is the turtle pool. The guide told us that there were 267 turtles, and to feed them gave the soul merit. We stood there for a moment to rest; and some worshipers on the other side of the pool ventured for some of that merit and fed the turtles. But the unholy fashion with which those turtles snapped at the food thrown in! Surely, their first concern was to get something into their stomachs. This temple is filled with scores of images of Gautama Buddha, who lived in India about the time when Jeremiah worked in Jerusalem. Buddha became a god when he died, and Buddhists all over the world worship him today. The guide pointed out to us that this famous temple was the home of the various Buddhas of the various lands on earth. There was the Tibetan Buddha, the Siam Buddha, the Malaya Buddha, the Chinese Buddha, and so on. Then one's thoughts went to the Father Whom Jesus revealed, and one's heart went out in deep sadness to these poor people who really think there is healing for their sick souls in all such bunkumb. One consoling fact there is however in all this, and that is that these worshipers feel that they need something which is beyond them; and many a person in America seemingly has lost that urge. Another noteworthy point we observed was the beauty of flowers. The Psalmist speaks of worshiping God in the beauty of holiness. Though there is no comparison in this temple to what the Psalmist thought of in that connection, yet the thousands of very beautiful flowers in this temple attracted our attention. And it occurred to us that it might be well if we Christians would more often really worship God among the beautiful flowers.

Our time had come to go back to the ship. We had seen something of the hunger of the Orient for the powers beyond the material. Gods they have, more than they can count, but where is the Savior Who loves them, and has given Himself for them, to lead them and us back to the Father heart of God? Let us never give room to the thought that since these people are religious, we have no religious duty towards them. Each person on earth has a right to hear about the One Who gives life, and gives it abundantly.

Fraternally,
John Thiessen

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

by Jacob J. Enz

JULY 25—"If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." Matthew 16:24.

Here we have stated the fundamental requirement of true discipleship. Jesus asks those who would follow Him to become God-like in their manner of life. As God has given for us the very best that He had in letting His only beloved Son be crucified at the hands of sinful men, so also He asks of His own that they lay everything on the altar of sacrifice that redemption's story may be told and men find the abundant life.

"Is your all on the altar of sacrifice laid?
Your all doth the Spirit control?
Oh, you cannot have rest or be perfectly blest
Till you yield Him your body and soul."

JULY 26—"My cup runneth over." Psalm 23:5. When David first sang these words he must have reached a height of spiritual blessing seldom attained by man. He had experienced what so many Christians desire—an overflowing life. A life whose spring of joy is unceasing in its blessings. What was the secret? Every need had been filled. A cup does not run over until it is full. A stream does not overflow its banks into the lowlands until the channel is full. Nor does the life in which there is a single area of need not yet filled by His abounding grace know the glorious experience of the overflowing life which is "filled into all the fulness of God."

JULY 27—"But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets." Daniel 2:28.

A similar thought is taken from Luke 12:2: "For there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed; neither hid that shall not be known." It is so easily forgotten that although we may succeed in hiding things from men, yet it is absolutely impossible to hide things from God. In a day when man has been able to develop a camera which is capable of taking pictures in absolute darkness, that same man must be reminded that his Creator Who gave him the mentality to create such an instrument has also His method of recording that which was intended to be covered. How important that we join with David saying, "I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid."

JULY 28—"But if our gospel be hid it is hid to them that are lost." II Cor. 4:3.

We have referred to the evil, the sin which we are not to leave covered; but we are also exhorted not to cover up the light that is given for us to hold up for those lost in darkness of sin. Oh, that our inner sense of the perception of eternal things were sharpened by communion and prayer so that we could more adequately perceive how thousands are going down to destruction, to a Christless grave! But remember

"Down in the human heart, crushed by the tempter,
Feelings lie buried that grace can restore;
Touched by a loving heart, wakened by kindness
Chords that were broken will vibrate once more."

JULY 29—"Unto him that loved us and washed us from our sins in his own blood . . ." Rev. 1:5b.

These are the first two lines of a song of praise which the Apostle John has left for the practice of the redeemed, and what blessed lines they are! Here in these lines we see first of all the source of our salvation in eternity, and then the manifestation of that love in time. Another rendering of the verse is, "Unto him that loveth us and loosed us from our sins in his own blood . . . " The tense of the verb brings out the thought; first, the source of salvation is God's everlasting and unceasing love. That love became effective in time when the blood flowed on Calvary for a world of sinners; but here the verb is in the tense which denotes completed action. "For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust that he might bring us to God."

JULY 30—"And hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen." Rev. 1:6.

If the source of salvation was the ever-present love of Christ, and the manifestation of salvation was Calvary, then the ultimate result of salvation as we have read is the exalted position among a kingdom of priests unto God. Think what that means; it was the priests who went into the temple, into the presence of God. We, too, have that privilege now and shall have it in a fuller measure when some day by His grace we shall see Him as He is. Read again these precious lines: "Unto him that loveth us and loosed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us a kingdom of priests unto God and his Father, to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen."

JULY 31—"Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and blessing." Rev. 5:12.

This is one of those verses found in Holy Writ upon which it is quite possible to stop for a great length of time and just meditate. It almost seems as if our human vocabulary has become exhausted in the process of ascribing praise to the Lamb Whose precious blood became the cleansing flow. How precious to know that a time will come when the limited symbolism of time shall be replaced by the full realities of eternity—that time when our heavenly communion which is a perfect communion shall replace an earthly communion so limited by words.

MENNONITE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

RELIEF NOTES

July 10, 1941

AKRON, PENNSYLVANIA

The following letter was received at our Akron office from London written by one of the workers among Basque refugee children in England:

"Dear Mr Miller,

"I want to thank your Committee on behalf of the Spanish children here under my care, for the great help you have been to us in contributing clothes and shoes. Frankly, I do not know what we should have done without this assistance, for, as you probably know, things are very difficult nowadays.

"I have met both Mr. Coffman and Mr. Claassen in London, and their sympathetic kindness, and earnest goodwill have encouraged me when I have been finding it hard to obtain all that was needed for this Home.

"I feel very keenly therefore, that I should like to send you a personal letter of sincere thanks and appreciation for the goodness of the Mennonites in America.

"Some of the clothes you have given us have had little messages enclosed, and these have been answered by the children in letters. I hope some of these manage to arrive at their destination.

"I do not need to tell you how we people here feel about the noble work which you are doing for all needy children in this country. I can only say for my forty-five Spanish children and myself, that we thank you from the bottom of our hearts. Your gifts have been a godsend to us, and we are grateful.

Yours very sincerely,
Margaret Holliday, Matron"

LONDON, ENGLAND

Word has just come through that Brother Ted Claassen, who has been waiting several months to get back to America, has now reached Lisbon, Portugal. Brother Claassen has been detained in England for quite a while due to the impossibility of getting passage from England to Lisbon.

LONDON, ENGLAND, John Coffman letter of June 26, 1941.

"I am glad to report also that a part of the shipment of clothing which was packed in Kitchener, Ontario, the last of February, has finally arrived in London. Unfortunately only five cases out of seven cases and thirteen bales which composed the original shipment have come through to us, the rest having been destroyed in an air raid shortly after the shipment was unloaded. I hesitate to send such a report to our people lest it should dampen their enthusiasm for making clothing and knitting garments in the future. However, I feel sure that in thus bringing the results of war to their attention in such a personal way as the loss of these garments will do, will help them to realize all the more, the great losses which helpless people in this country are suffering. It should then arouse their sympathy and incite them to greater efforts to relieve the distress which arises out of the war. I feel sure, too, that their Christian love should be great enough to rise above these disappointments and enable them to continue their noble efforts in affording relief to those whose lives are made miserable and wretched by these acts manifesting the hatred of men. They will thus be able to give a greater testimony for the gospel of peace and goodwill and salvation to men which comes to men by the blessing and grace of God, through Jesus, our Lord and Savior."

CANET PLAGE, FRANCE, from Jesse Hoover letter of June 8, 1941.

"The colony, or Convalescent Home, at Canet Plage is growing very rapidly. There are now, at the time of my latest information, between thirty-five and forty children there. As you can well imagine, there are some very great problems with so large a family of children who have been sick. Miss Gerber needs your special prayers, and our special thanks, for she has done a noble work in being both mother and father as well as nurse to those extremely unfortunate little waifs. My heart nearly bursts with emotion sometimes when I am there and see the tragedies that are written indelibly into the minds and personalities as well as the bodies of these victims of war. This is the real tragedy of the spueing venom of heartless men.

"The work at Cerbere and Banyuls remains the same. We have been unable so far to secure all the necessary things to put into operation the anticipated expansion program in connection with the distribution of the Red Cross milk in those places. We are still trying to complete the necessary arrangements for this phase of work. Meanwhile the food distributions continue as always."

MARSEILLE, FRANCE, Jesse Hoover letter, June 8, 1941.

"I had the opportunity to escort five new children to La Rouviere recently. . . . We volunteered to make room for these five in our colony. The children arrived here at the office after a couple days of travel alone by train. Those who have not had the experience of traveling in Europe cannot appreciate what that means. They were sent by means of the transport service of the French Red Cross, from Biarritz by way of Paris, through Lyon to Marseille. They wore rather large tags on the front of their clothing, with the official insignias of the French Red Cross, with their names and other personal information. It reminded me a little of transporting baggage or other property. These poor Spanish refugee children were nearly worn out, as you can well imagine after being shoved and bumped around for those days enroute. It is very difficult for an adult to travel here at present, due to the very congested conditions. I was very much touched by the pitiable plight of these two brothers, fourteen and ten years of age, taking a brotherly care of the three little sisters from another family. The girls are six, five, and four. When we arrived at La Rouviere, their new home, and were waiting for the preparation of their very late supper, I was sitting in the kitchen talking to Madame Garcia when the little girls came up to me and snuggled into my arms. They needed the warmth of an affectionate heart to protect them from the cold, harsh world."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

July 27, 1941

The Holy Spirit Inspires New Testament Letters

Gal. 1:11, 12; 1 Thess. 2:13; 2 Tim. 3:14-17; 2 Peter 3:14-16; Jude 3

Introduction

The chief theme of our lesson is the inspiration of the Holy Spirit in the writing of the New Testament letters. The human mind is prone to err so God revealed His divine truth to these writers so they could write it without error. Inspiration is then the divine mind of God working on and through human understanding. Paul was thus led to write his letters which have become authoritative Christian literature and form a large part of the New Testament. Jesus treated the Scriptures as the infallibly true "Word of God" and divinely inspired.

The Inspiration of Paul's Gospel Message

The New Testament letters were written to churches and individuals as the circumstances seemed to require. Galatians was written to counteract the teachings of the Judaizers who were discounting the value of Paul's message. He states clearly that he received it by direct revelation from Jesus Christ (vs. 1, 11). The gospel of Christ, salvation by faith through grace, is from God. Paul refers (v. 12) to his experience on the Damascus road and the Holy Spirit enabled him to understand clearly its meaning.

Paul praises the Thessalonian Christians because they recognized his gospel message to them as being in truth the inspired message of God. He makes a strong declaration that his message was indeed from God. God stands back of the gospel of Christ. The effectual working of the gospel in their lives is added proof that it is from God. Peter also is fully persuaded as to the source of Paul's gospel, declaring that "the wisdom was given to him" (v. 15). Some things are hard to understand, but the things essential to our salvation can be readily understood. Scripture passages are frequently wrested, twisted from their true meaning. Frequently they are approached in an unfriendly spirit. A proper approach to Scriptures is to let them explain the meaning which the inspired writer wished to convey.

The Power of the Word of God, 2 Tim. 3:14-17

Paul had just warned Timothy (v. 13) of the increasing designs of "evil men and imposters," and now he tells him that he will be safe by clinging to the things learned in the Scriptures as taught to him since early childhood. Timothy had been carefully trained in a Christian home (2 Tim. 2:22). Happy indeed is the child whose mother and grandmother have a living faith and a knowledge of the Word of God. The responsibility of the home for the religious training of the child cannot rightly be delegated to anyone else.

The Scriptures make known the way of salvation through Christ (v. 15). They point the way to better living in this world and to heaven. It is needful to read the Bible daily for the proper nurture of the soul. The Bible is concerned with God and the human soul. It is concerned with God's love and man's sin and with forgiveness and reconciliation. Paul declares that "all Scripture is given by inspiration of God" (v. 16), literally, God-breathed. "Holy men spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit" (2 Peter 1:21). Scripture is profitable, it gives needed spiritual instruction to those who read, study, meditate, and apply it in life. The Bible is to be read, not merely looked at and kept as a charm. Through its influence life is made richer, more perfect and effective for service (v. 17). The New Testament gives us the highest revelation of God. We have no higher authority which we can follow.

What facts convince you that the Bible is indeed the Word of God?

What are the chief causes for the misuse and harmful interpretation of the Bible?

Why do professing Christians so frequently neglect the Bible?

A REMINDER

Dear Church leaders:

The time for the session of the General Conference is drawing very close. Only a few more weeks and August 17, 1941, is here. As secretary of the Conference I would kindly ask those who have not yet sent in their Conference Reports as well as list of delegates to do so at once. It is necessary to have this information in time to complete the statistician report. The delegate lists should be printed before the session of Conference.

Yours in His service,
Phil. A. Wedel, Sec'y.

CORRECTION!

Rev. Ernest J. Bohn of Souderton, Pa., sent in the following correction to be made in the article, "General Conference Session" in The Mennonite of July 8:

"Instead of $1.00 a night in single beds or 75c a night per person in double beds, it should be 75c a night in single beds or for one person for one bed, and 50c a night per person in a double bed, or $1.00 a night for two people in a bed."

Grace Mennonite Church, Enid, Oklahoma

Would you like to get away from your work and enjoy a refreshing week-end of fellowship, inspiration, and instruction? If so, come to the 49th session of the CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION of the Western District, to be held at the Grace Mennonite Church, Enid, Oklahoma, August 2 and 3.

Study the program below. Moving pictures (part in color) of the Colorado Springs Civilian Service Camp will be shown on Saturday night. The evening session will be preceded by a picnic in an Enid park. Come for it and get acquainted with other young people.

OKLAHOMANS THRILLED

Do you know that only once before, since its organization, the Western District C. E. Convention has met in Oklahoma? Needless to say, we Oklahomans are thrilled at the prospect. Here in Enid we are happy to have the privilege of entertaining friends from other states with whom we may have a "thinking" acquaintance because we read of what they are doing and what they would like to do in their C. E. societies. Now we will have an opportunity to meet many of these young people personally. Then, too, we are glad to have the convention here because it will enable more of the Oklahoma C. E. societies to be represented. We are anxious to get better acquainted with you people from Kansas and Nebraska. The program sounds almost too good to be true.

II. Leader's Introduction

Henry Drummond once said, "There are some men and women in whose company we are always at our best. While with them we cannot think mean thoughts or speak ungenerous words."

Keeping our friendships Christian is not so much a matter of choosing the right kind of friends as it is a matter of being the right kind of a friend. No friendship should stand still. There should always be an advance toward better things.

There is no better place, however, for a person to find friends than in the church. There is no better environment for wholesome, creative friendships than the church.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A Friend of God	Jas. 2:21-23
2. Friends in Sorrow	Ruth 1:19-22
3. Friendship of Two Lads	I Sam. 18:1-4
4. Christ's Code of Friendship	John 15:12-17
5. Compassionate Friends	Acts 20:32-38
6. Friends of Jesus	John 19:25-27

IV. For Discussion

1. What made the friendship between Jonathan and David fine and beautiful?
2. Is friendship a "gift" or a "task?"
3. What can we do to cultivate friendships?
4. Do you choose your friends, or do friendships just happen?

V. Facts for Study

For true satisfaction of heart we need the sympathy and understanding of a friend. Sorrow asks for the opportunity to share grief with a kindred spirit and is eased thereby; joy and happiness wants a trusted friend with whom to rejoice and be glad.

Friends help to mold our lives. The explanation of many a life is, "I had a friend." For it is true that "God never loved me in so sweet a way" as when He gave me a friend. Friendship is a gift, a treasure, something to be appreciated, something of the very finest that life offers. Yet it is not just taking and receiving and enjoying—it is also giving. Friendship is unselfish. Christ says, "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." Among the greatest words that Paul ever wrote is this one, "Love never faileth." Love is the cement of friendship.

The test of friendship is whether it enlarges your life, widens your sympathies, helps you to want to do the very best that is in you. No friendship is complete without the satisfaction there is in spiritual communion.

Blest Be the Tie

Not one in a thousand who sings the old hymn, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," knows its history. It was written by the Rev. John Fawcett, who in the eighteenth century was the pastor of a poor church in Yorkshire. In 1772 he felt obliged to accept a call to a London church. His farewell sermon had been preached. Six wagons loaded with furniture and books stood by the door. His congregation—men, women, and children—were in agony of tears. Looking up, Mrs. Fawcett said, "Oh, John, I cannot bear this. I know not where to go!" "Nor I," said he, "nor will we go. Unload the wagons and put everything back." His letter of acceptance was recalled, and he wrote this hymn to commemorate the episode.

VII. Food for Thought

"What a great blessing is a friend with a breast so trusty that thou mayest safely bury all thy secrets in it, whose conscience thou mayest fear less than thine own, who can relieve thy cares by his conversation, thy doubts by his counsels, thy sadness by his good humor, and whose very looks give comfort to thee." —Seneca

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

GOD SPEAKS THROUGH THE HEAVENS

Program for August 10, 1941

Song: "This is My Father's World."

Call to Worship: "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork" (Ps. 19:1).

Scripture Reading: Psalm 19:1-6.

Hymn: "O Worship the King"

Prayer Hymn: "Fairest Lord Jesus"

Leader's Talk: "The Psalmist, David, wrote, 'The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth his handiwork.' Wherever we turn in the realms of nature we can see God. Only a great power could have made great beauty spots like Niagara Falls, the Grand Canyon, and the Sahara Desert. Man has made beautiful gardens, but none of them can compare with those which God has created.

"Have you ever looked up at the stars at night, and, remembering what you have been told about the vast distances of the stars, and that worlds like ours are moving through space as fast as cannon balls, have you ever had the feeling of wonder, of how great the universe is, and you but a tiny mite in it all?"

"It is God Who rules the stars in the heavens, Who lifts the sun in the morning and guides the moon at night; Who causes the crops to grow; Who brings the birds back from the South in the spring. Wherever you find life and beauty and goodness, there you will find God.

"People see what they look for. If they are thinking of beautiful things, they will learn to see them, and everywhere they will find a world filled with beauty. The people who love birds see many more birds than those who are not looking for them. We see what we look for.

"As we look around at the things of nature we will see the graciousness and beauty of the Lord. He has given us so many things to make life more pleasant. He could have made everything black instead of all the beautiful colors of nature. He could have planted only a few trees and flowers. But God has given us plenty of everything to make the world beautiful. Each thing that He has given us has a lesson for us. We can learn about God through studying the beauties of nature." —N.M.W.

Vocal Solo: "Trees" (Joyce Kilmer)

Hymn: "For the Beauty of the Earth"

The Rainbow: Read the account in Gen. 9:13-17. "The rainbow of the Old Testament was a promise of God's care over the physical life of the people. Christ is the rainbow of the New Testament and brings the promise of eternal life for our souls.

"Life has troubles for all of us, some great and some small. Sometimes everything looks dark because we are discouraged, but always after the storm we see the rainbow. When we look upon Jesus and His promises we are never afraid, because we know that the rainbow of His love will always be in sight to cheer and strengthen us."

Nature Talks: (Have the members give instances when they have been especially impressed by the heavens or nature about them).

Hymn: "Hushed Was the Evening Hymn"

Closing Prayer by the Superintendent.

Program for August 3, 1941

PEARLS FROM PROVERBS

Proverbs 1:10. "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not."

I. Worship Service

1. Prelude: "Largo"
2. Call to Worship (singing in unison): "The Lord is in His holy temple, Let all the earth keep silence before Him. Amen."
3. All stand to sing: "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."
4. Scripture reading by a Junior boy, Psalm 1.
5. Leader's Prayer
6. Solo: "Yield not to Temptation."
7. Leader reads the words of the song, "Here is My Heart," while the pianist plays the melody softly. (The Juniors may hum it as it is read). If necessary explain difficult phrases, so that the song means something to its singers.
8. Sing in unison, "Here is My Heart."

II. Study Period

Aim: To warn our Juniors against evil companions and to encourage them to make friends with those who love the Lord.

1. Introduction: Proverbs is a book in the Old Testament. "Proverbs" means "wise sayings." Although this book is not so well known, it has many precious truths which are to guide us heavenward. The word wisdom occurs in the book about forty times. In Proverbs we find instructions as to whom we are to choose for our friends or associates. Let us learn to know this book better.
2. Bible drill: Prov. 1:7, 8; 1:10; 2:6; 3:5; 3:6; 3:7; 3;12; 4:14; 4;27; 6:6-11; 6:20.
3. Song: "I Need Thee Every Hour."
4. Short talks by four Junior boys:

(a) "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not." Prov. 1:10; Eph. 5:11a. (Entice means to tempt, to lead astray. Into what sins may we be led by sinners? Is it easy to say, "No"? Can you illustrate with a story?)

(b) "The way of transgressors is hard." Prov. 13:15b. (A transgressor is one who disobeys. His way is hard because he is afraid of punishment. His conscience does not let him rest. One sin leads into another. Judas Iscariot is an example of this).

(c) "He that is a companion of riotous men shameth his father." Prov. 28:7b. (Do we have a duty to bring honor to our parents? What do we do to make our parents ashamed of us? Tell the story of Absalom).

(d) "He that walketh with wise men shall be wise." Acts 13:20a. (Who are the truly "wise"? How did Ruth, the Moabitess, show that she desired to be with the "wise"?)

5. All read in concert, Proverbs 4:14, 15.
6. Boys' chorus sing: "Dare to be a Daniel" Gospel Hymns.
7. Short talks by Junior girls:

(a) "A man that hath friends must show himself friendly," Prov. 18:24a. (How can we show ourselves friendly?)

(b) "A friend loveth at all times," Prov. 17:17a. (Tell a story that illustrates this.)

(c) "Faithful are the wounds of a friend." Prov. 27:6a. (It is easy for us to have a friend tell us about our faults? How should we act if a friend points out our faults to us?)

(d) "Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not." Prov. 27:10a. (Who is our very best friend? How do we sometimes forsake our Lord Jesus Christ?)

8. Girl's chorus: "The Best of Friends I Have in Heaven," (Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 364.)

III. Mission Minutes

1. Pass around pictures of missionaries giving each child a chance to look at them carefully. (Do not use too many pictures.) Ask the children to name the missionary on the picture and tell where he is active.
2. Describe a missionary and let the Juniors name him.
3. Pray for all of our workers.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Memorize together the verse of the month: Proverbs 3:6. (Leader discuss the meaning of this verse with the Juniors.)
2. Sing the song of the month: "Here Is My Heart."
3. Together pray the prayer of the month, Psalm 51:10, 15.
4. Sing very softly: " Into My Heart."

IN MEMORIAM

ABRAHAM H. GOERTZ, son of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Goertz, was born August 15, 1885, at Goessel, Kansas. He received his education in a country school near Goessel. In 1903 he and his parents moved to Oklahoma where they settled on a farm where the parents now live. On July 16, 1905, he was baptized upon confession of his faith by Elder H. R. Voth, and joined the Ebenezer Menn. Church where he was an active member until his death. On September 16, 1909, he was united in marriage to Susie Brandt, to which union four children, three boys and one girl, were born.

He always took an active part in the affairs of the church and the community. He served as choir director in his church for many years, and also held the position of trustee. He was a dutiful son to his aged parents, seeing them every day. He was especially of great help to his blind father. Three years ago his oldest son, Albert, was killed in a car accident in Illinois, but he found refuge and strength in his Lord and Master.

He died suddenly, Tuesday morning, June 19, 1941, at his home. He reached an age of 55 years, 10 months, and 4 days. He leaves to mourn his death his widow and children: Edna of Oklahoma City, Ewald of Rockford, Ill., and Ernest of the home; his parents; five sisters, Mrs. A. H. Reimer and Mrs. Frank Goossen of Newton, Kansas, Mrs. John Brandt of Claypool, Arizona, Mrs. A. H. Thiessen of Mountain View, Oklahoma, and Mrs. Gerhard Harms of Whitewater, Kansas.

Funeral services were conducted from the church, Sunday afternoon, June 22. Rev. H. H. Hege of Corn, Okla., Rev. Gerhard Friesen of Newton, Kans., and Rev. Abe Froaze of Cordell, Okla., officiated. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

CORRESPONDENCE

SALEM ZION CHURCH, NEAR MARION, S. D.

"The night cometh when no man can work," John 9:4. These words spoken by our Master gather momentum as time goes by. On every hand we are reminded that the night is coming and that we must make the most of every God-given opportunity. Privileges such as attending church for meditation and worship, instructing our youth in the fundamental truths of our faith, and daily access to the Word of God are privileges that often times are taken too much for granted.

This year again, as in former years, a short term of Daily Vacation Bible School was offered to the children below high school age. The fine program given by the children at the end of the term was evidence that such time is well spent. On Pentecost Sunday a catechetical class of fourteen members was baptized and received into the membership of the church. A young man from a neighboring congregation, desiring to join in fellowship with us, was also admitted. Two weeks later we were invited to partake of the Lord's Supper. A large number had gathered for this service.

Recently the Ladies' Mission Society presented Miss Justina Schmidt, missionary from Nigeria, Africa, and Mrs. August Ewert, returned missionary from China, as guest speakers on their public programs. Both ladies related various and interesting incidents of their work. We were impressed by their courage. Their lives truly bespeak an earnestness of purpose that makes them willing to leave the comfort of their native homes and brave the perils that beset the journey of every true missionary.

One young man from our congregation has been called to serve in the army. A goodly number of others have had to register. Let us pray that they may be found steadfast and that their lives may be a light in an unlightened world.

A hailstorm that left marked signs of destruction in its wake swept the vicinity around Freeman. Promising fields of grain were leveled to the ground. It takes real courage to be thankful and optimistic in the face of such an experience. —Correspondent

REPORT OF THE 42ND SESSION OF THE

held in Dallas, Ore., May 15-18, 1941

Amid the blessings of God in the form of a gentle rain the delegates and visitors to the 42nd session of the Pacific District Conference of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America, began to arrive in Dallas, Oregon, on May 14, 1941.

On Thursday morning, May 15, the session was in the form of a Minister's Retreat, at which Rev. Phil A. Wedel of Aberdeen, Idaho, presided. In the absence of Rev. Shelly of Aberdeen, Washington, Rev. D. J. Unruh of Pratum, Ore., read a paper which had been prepared by Rev. Shelly, on the subject, "The Preparation of the Sermon." Discussion followed this as well as all the other presentations.

The second topic, "The Minister in his Study," was presented by Rev. Lester Hostetler of Upland, Calif.

"The Minister's Responsibility in Time of War" was the subject presented by Rev. J. M. Franz of Salem, Ore. The Conference adjourned for luncheon.

At 1:30 the Conference re-convened for the Worker's Retreat at which Rev. M. M. Lehman of Monroe, Wash., presided.

After the devotional period, Rev. Harley King of Colfax, Wash., discussed the topic, "How to Stimulate Interest in Bible Study." This was followed by a presentation of the topic "The Heritage Our Youth Has a Right to Expect," by Rev. F. F. Jantzen, of San Marcos Church, Paso Robles, Calif.

A third topic, "A Teacher's Opportunity and Responsibility," was presented by Rev. Arnold Regier of Portland, Ore. The Conference recessed for the evening meal.

The evening session began with an inspiring song service led by Mr. Diehm, local choir director. After devotionals, led by Rev. W. A. Regier of Los Angeles, Calif., an address of welcome was given by Homer Leisy, pastor of the host church. The response was given by Rev. Edmund Miller of Lind, Wash. After special music, Rev. Homer Leisy, Conference President, delivered the Conference Sermon, using Phil. 2:16 as the basis of his thought. Certification of delegates followed as well as the appointment of committees.

FRIDAY MORNING SESSION

After a short Prayer Service led by Rev. W. A. Regier of Los Angeles, Calif., the President called for the report of the Committee on Complimentary Votes. The Committee composed of F. F. Jantzen, M. M. Lehman, and P. A. Kliewer moved to grant complimentary votes to the following persons: Rev. D. A. Schultz, Miss Etta Davis, and D. B. Hess. The Secretary's report was then called for. D. B. Hess, Conference secretary reported the following summary.

Statistical

Churches in Conference, 17; 14 had delegates here, 3 were represented by proxy. The 17 churches represent 285 votes. Present total membership, 2723; membership one year ago, 2651; gain in membership, 72. Sunday School enrollment, 2905; S. S. enrollment a year ago, 2745; gain during year, 160; C. E. enrollment 1941, 1303; C. E. enrollment 1940, 1350; loss 47. Enrolled in Ladies' Missionary societies, 536; enrolled in Junior Missionary societies, 110.

Financial

Totals for church expenditures, 17 churches, $24611.70; for S. S., $2910.19; C. E., $576.41; Ladies' Mission Soc., $1018.12; Foreign Missions, $5326.94; Home Missions, $3077.71; Education, $3662.21; Relief, $601.07; Pac. Dist. Conf., $1225.57; other expenses, D. V. B., etc., $1112.41.

Total expenditures of all churches as sent in in the reports, for all purposes, $46679.94

The President now read the application of the Bethel Mennonite Church of Winton, California, for admission into the Conference of the Pacific District. Rev. Phil A. Wedel moved to receive the Bethel Church into the Conference. Motion was adopted.

The Treasurer, J. C. Jantz, reported a balance on hand June 1, 1940, of $45.88; Receipts over period to May 1, 1941, $2454.31; making a total of $2500.19. Paid out over same period, $2481.91; leaving a balance on hand in treasury of $18.28.

The treasurer outlined a detailed report which showed that the amount paid per member by the different churches was from nothing to as high as $3.06.

The Auditing Committee reported the books to be correct and commented very highly on the practical method of bookkeeping employed by the treasurer. The Committee consisted of J. P. Glanzer, Julius Franz, and A. E. Heppner. The motion to accept the treasurer's report was adopted.

Motion made and carried that in the future all statistical and financial information for the secretary's report shall be figured from January 1 to the next January 1, instead of from one conference to the conference following.

President Leisy called for the report of the Field Secretary, Miss Emma Ruth. In the absence of Miss Ruth, her report was read. She reported that every phase of the work had been able to function and prosper. Every state now has a Young People's Retreat. The Worker's Exchange had been sent to about 475 workers, seven issues were prepared. The Young People's Committee had functioned successfully during the year and had plans for further constructive work. Regret was indicated that Sunday Schools and C. E. societies had failed to send in sufficiently accurate reports so that comparisons might be made. Two recommendations were forthcoming: (1) That greater stress be laid on a more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures by the young people; and (2) a more vital experimental knowledge of Christ in the lives of the young people. It was moved and adopted to accept the Field Secretary's report with thanks and to include the work of Mrs. Miller, and that the secretary write letters of thanks to each. (Such letters have been written).

The Bethel College Report prepared by L. J. Horsch was read by Edmund Miller in the absence of Mr. Horsch. Stress was laid on the fact that our young people who are facing a most critical situation need to be well equipped to fit into their environment successfully, as Christians. He referred to the admonition given to Israel in Deut. 6:4-7. Bethel College is equipped to give the necessary preparation. The faculty remains much the same, but it will soon be necessary to add to the Bible Department. Memorial Hall has been added to the physical plant, the Kauffman Museum has been moved to Bethel from Freeman, S. D. A much-needed sewer system has been installed. Financial condition is "fair." Progress is being made in most funds and the budget could be successfully balanced. Motion was made and carried to accept the Bethel College Report.

At this point the Secretary read a letter from Rev. M. M. Horsch speaking for the heirs of the late John Dettweiler, in which he revealed the conveyance of thirteen votes in the Bethel College Corporation from the Dettweiler Estate to the Pacific District Conference.

The report of the Educational Committee, presented by Rev. Edmund Miller revealed that the young people are taking hold and financing various projects. Work with the Juniors is being stressed in several districts. Peace literature is being distributed, legislators are being contacted regarding peace issues. Young people have been urged to arrange to get their education at our own colleges. A fine book display was arranged at this conference through the efforts of this committee. Special emphasis was placed on the new Hymnary. Moved and seconded to accept the report as read.

The Educational Committee presented the following resolutions:

BE IT RESOLVED

1. That each church take an active interest through prayer, and moral and financial support in our C. O. Camps;
2. That we recommend and encourage our conference officials in a body to send a request to our senators and President at Washington, D. C., to keep us out of war and seek a just and honorable peace;
3. That we urge the individuals of our conference to write to our own senators and representatives to prevent participation in war and actively promote a just and honorable peace;
4. That we work to the end that the teaching of the Bible as Christian Ethics be introduced into our high schools as an elective course;

5. That we encourage our young people to attend our own colleges;

6. That we encourage all our churches to send their ministers to the General Conference, convening at Souderton, Pa., on Aug. 17-24;

7. That we hereby express our thanks to Mr. Ferd Wiens for his services in connection with the book display, this service having been free.

Signed M. D. Linscheid, E. J. Miller, M. M. Lehman, Educ. Comm.

These recommendations were adopted by motion.

The forenoon session closed with a worship period at which Rev. D. J. Unruh of Pratum, Oregon, spoke to the Conference on the theme, "The Leadership of Christ in the Church," using Joshua 5:13-15 as his text.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON SESSION

The Friday afternoon session was opened by a devotional period led by Rev. J. P. Glanzer of Shafter, Calif., using I Cor. 3:9-15 as a basis for thought. Miss Louise Richert of Los Angeles, Calif., then reported for the Young People's Committee. She pointed out that the young people were successfully sponsoring Retreats. They were raising the money to finance the Ummels in the migratory camps about Shafter. They had distributed to all the churches of the Pacific District the Missionary Prayer Calendar and just recently they have inaugurated a letter project by which every missionary would receive a letter from the home field and in return we at home would all receive at least one letter a year from one of the missionaries, thus drawing the bond of mutual interest closer. This report was accepted by motion.

Bro. S. S. Baumgartner then presented the report of the Evangelization Committee as follows:

Dear Brethren: The services of your committee in the past conference year consisted in giving counsel and financial aid to six of our churches. Beginning in the northeastern end of the state of Washington in the foothills of the Pend-O-Riele country we find the settlement of the NEWPORT brethren. These dear people were confronted with the task of taking down the unsafe declared church building and out of the material construct a new one. This new building, with full basement, frame structure, size 36x56, will have a seating capacity of 200 in the auditorium and will be so far along as to accommodate the Washington S. S. and C. E. Convention next month.

With a loan from the Church Building fund of the General Conference the liberal contributions of churches and friends, and mostly of the volunteer labor of the Newport people, the brethren are doing a commendable work, both spiritually and materially. Rev. P. D. Unruh gets a monthly assistance of 20 dollars from this conference. The Committee recommends to continue this aid to Rev. Unruh and requests kindly that the Newport Church compensate Brother Unruh with a like amount.

About 25 miles to the north of Spokane in a partly wooded and partly open country, our dear DEER PARK brethren are settled. They have rented an unused school building, which is in good shape, for their place of worship. There a congregation of 20 members, about 45 souls assemble themselves every Sunday for Sunday School and worship, under the leadership of Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Wiens. This church is still in its pioneer stage. The grace of God and His peace dwells among them. The Committee recommends to assist Brother Wiens with 20 dollars a month and the congregation pledge themelves to do what they can.

JUST OFF THE PRESS:

By Dr. C. Henry Smith

This "Story of the Mennonites" aims to cover the whole field of Mennonite history from the time of Menno Simons, who lived in the days of Martin Luther, to the outbreak of the present world war; and includes, not only the religious experiences of the Mennonites, but—since they have often formed self-sufficient economic and social units with special political privileges—their whole economic and social life as well, in Europe, Asia, North and South America.

Because of their migrations from one country to another through the centuries in search of religious toleration and civil liberty, the Mennonites have developed certain differences in their social and religious practices. The diversity of the national, linguistic, and social backgrounds found among the Mennonites has resulted in the formation of numerous separate groups and branches of the denomination. The author has attempted to treat each group impartially, without favor or prejudice; and has given each the space which, in his judgment, it deserves in relation to the movement as a whole.

Its 824 pages contain a wealth of information never before printed, and this book should find a place in every Mennonite home. It is bound in attractive satin cloth, gold stamped, and has a beautiful jacket.

Living the Christ-Life

It is said that St. Francis of Assisi one day said to a young monk, "Brother, let us go into the town and preach." And so the gentle old man and his young companion went forth to the town, conversing as they walked. Upon reaching the town they walked along the main streets, passed through lowly valleys and down narrow lanes until they finally arrived at the monastary again.

"Father," asked the young monk, "when shall we begin to preach?" To this St. Francis replied, "My son, we have been preaching while we walked. We have been observed by our fellow-men, our behavior has been noticed, and thus we have delivered a sermon. My son, it is of no use that we walk anywhere to preach unless we preach as we walk."

One of the marks of a true child of God is that of living up to all the light that he has. The Bible says that "to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." And Jesus said, "If any man will do His (God's) will, he shall know of the doctrine." One of the Christian's highest privileges and greatest responsibilities is to let his light shine, i. e., to let the life of Christ shine out in his daily walk and conduct. It is the life that Christians live that gives the world an idea of what Christianity is like. In the words of St. Francis of Assisi: "It is of no use that we walk anywhere to preach unless we preach as we walk." —S

There are two kinds of warfare: carnal warfare and "the good fight of faith." The first is destructive, the second constructive. The first is waged with instruments of destruction, the second by returning good for evil. The first is kept alive by hatred, the second by love. The most needed military campaign at the present time is a campaign of love and good will. —Gospel Herald

Gentleness is one of the most powerful incentives to disarmament and peace. The writer of Proverbs says, "A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger." Love of peace and the striving to make and maintain peace are characteristics most becoming to Christians. Jesus voiced this truth when He said, "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God." —S

We looked into the Swiss milk distribution center. They are furnishing milk to the younger children. They certainly are doing a splendid piece of work, maintaining a highly commendable condition of cleanliness and good order. Their project gives every indication of being efficiently managed. But of course, like all of the relief projects which any of us have undertaken, it is tragically inadequate for the dire need. There is an urgent necessity for several times as much milk as can at present be supplied. Probably the American Red Cross will help this condition very considerably with their milk shipments.

Then we visited the school, which also was located in a building identical with the rest of the camp, with the exception of its board floor. The American Friend's Service Committee through its representatives here is furnishing the equipment and materials for the school. No compulsory attendance is enforced, and naturally there is only a fraction of the total number of children who attend. But certainly this is a very commendable effort, making available the opportunity for at least a rudimentary education.

We next went over to the building where the Friends are conducting sewing and knitting projects for a few of the women and older girls. Evidence of the untold value of projects of this kind was written clearly in the countenance of the comparatively small group of workers engaged there. They appeared more contented, more satisfied than the majority of the internees who had nothing to do. The morale was distinctly raised by virtue of their having something to occupy their time, something that is useful as well. Double value is attached to such efforts, in that they serve also to help in the clothing of the woefully underclothed camp. But materials for sewing are extremely hard to get, especially thread. Unless more is available soon these projects cannot be continued. Your Mennonite representatives recently have been able to get a sufficient quantity of thread for the most urgent immediate need. We are always happy for such little opportunities for extra service, trying always to keep alert to possibilities.

We were now ready to visit some of the living quarters or "bunks." I do not recall how many we were in, but all were very similar, with the exception that some of the interned refugees apparently retain enough of self-respect and morale, even in spite of their unfortunate situation, to make some attempt at orderliness and what cleanliness is possible, while others have obviously become so far demoralized and dejected that they no longer continue to struggle against their conditions. All of the quarters that we visited had only sand floors. In a few the sand had been partially removed, leaving a more solid floor. The beds were either spread right on the ground or stretched on rude boards in the form of a sort of platform a few inches above the floor. The beds were ranged in long rows along either side of the long, windowless shacks, with only enough room down the center of the hut to walk between. Those women and children squatting there in their miserable pens with no possibility of normal family life or decent human relations, was to me a most depressing sight. Some were trying to rewarm their bit of food over a sickly fire in the center of one of the shacks we visited. Others were eating their pittance of bread as they sat hunched on their filthy beds. We observed water standing in at least one of the huts. And this was probably the best time of the year in the camp. The wet, chilly winter with its almost incessant winds is nearly unendurable. Then, we are told, water stands in many of the miserable houses. And the summer, with its withering heat on the dry sands is little better. There is nearly always a strong wind at Argeles, we were told. With the dirty, corrupted sand shifting ceaselessly through the poor walls of the temporary shelters, sifting into beds and food and clothes, into ears and eyes and mouth, and with no baths and very little water to even wash the hands or face, life certainly is reduced to the lowest level imaginable. With most of them higher moral values are nearly dead.

But the climax of the whole scene, so far as I was personally concerned, came when we visited the nursery. The building was constructed in the same general way as the other houses of the camp, with the exception that it was tighter and had a good floor and several windows. This crude, but not too unpleasant, building served as a kind of maternity hospital for the camp. The mothers were just as miserably ragged, dejected, forlorn, and pitiable creatures as I ever hope to see. Imagine bringing a baby into the world under such conditions! And try to put yourself into the place of one of those unhappy mothers. What hope or joy of new-born life is there for them? Certainly there is pitiable satisfaction in bringing a child into such conditions! It was only with the greatest effort for self-control that I restrained a flood of tears coupled with most passionate emotion, when I looked into the cribs. They are jewels just as priceless as any baby anywhere. They have the same right to a decent opportunity in life. But what promise has the future for them? For them, what star of hope can pierce the storm-shrouded horizons of life? What signal-light of promise can shine through what must seem to their mothers an impenetrable gloom? The answer lies in the response of the Christians of the world to their pathetic, almost inarticulate cry. The answer rests more particularly with the Christians of America. The response should begin more especially with our evangelical Peace Churches which have been entrusted a vision of a better way of life and a nobler level of human relationships. Seemingly secure anchorages have been wrenched and shattered for countless multitudes. We have one of the most stupendous tasks, but withal one of the greatest opportunities of generations, to point out the guiding Star that rose from Bethlehem's rude manger bed, and still shines with undimmed hope for all who open their hearts to its rays. We must be the voice in the storm to point out that unfailing light to tear-dimmed, horror-blinded eyes. We must not fail.

The part which your Mennonite representatives in France have undertaken in the relief of the conditions at Argeles are more fully described in another article. This is the purpose of the establishment of the Home for Sick Children at Canet Plage. We are bringing children from the concentration camps, especially from Argeles which is nearest, to this home which is almost a hospital, in order that they may have a chance to regain their health. We feel that this is a very significant contribution to the betterment of living conditions for the unfortunate refugee children, for it is a direct aid to those who are in the very greatest need. We look to you in America for support, for this is your work and we are your representatives. That support needs to be not only financial but also just as urgently spiritual. We are confident that you are keeping trust "Around one common Mercy Seat."

Yours for Europe's unfortunate children,
Jesse W. Hoover

THE WATCHWORD OF THE DAY IS "PREPARE"

In these challenging days there is an urgent need for mobilization of our young people. We can give them nothing better than a thorough Bible training. The Oklahoma Bible Academy is increasing its teaching staff and is better prepared to serve our young people. Our tuition, board and room are less. As usual there will be offered a fully accredited high school course. Write today for full information. Sept. 8 is the opening day. Attend our Bible Academy. Sane, sound, spiritual.

IN THE CROSS

by Marie J. Regier

(This is a continuation of an article which appeared in this paper some time ago.)

We were hoping that the first visit would be sufficient and that our prayers had been adequate for the healing of the "demon possessed" Mrs. Tuan—but it wasn't. After we were home, we heard that the spells were still continuing. So the next time four of us went. The woman was much better though. She was able to be up and around. She wasn't at home when we came, but after a few minutes she was brought in screaming, "I don't want to go, I don't want to go. Jesus only wants to kill me." We prayed again, all of us, and she came out of it and told us that she had wanted to come and meet us, "but he wouldn't let me." Then she went into another spell, and I, who was nearest to her, put my hands on her and we prayed. I didn't think I could pray so hard. Finally I felt as though my strength was giving out. Just as I thought that, the woman said, if I understood correctly, "Keep on praying, don't get tired." So we kept it up a little while longer. Then she came out of it. After that, like Simon Peter's mother-in-law, she got up and served us by getting dinner for us. She is a very gentle, thoughtful woman when she is normal. In the afternoon she had another spell, but much lighter than in the forenoon.

A few weeks later, the other three again went down and stayed for a night. I was sick and couldn't go. She still had had about two or three spells, but looked much better, Miss Kuyf said, than she had the time before. Again a few weeks passed by and we were having instruction classes here in Tamingfu. The older woman wanted to come, and the men insisted that the younger woman come too. They had to walk most of the ten miles, I think. On the way she got a spell and refused to go any farther, but her husband forced her to go on.

After they got here, where there are so many Christians, it seemed the "demon" made a last desperate stand. During prayer-meeting the younger woman went into a spell, screaming, "There are too many Christians here. This won't do. This won't do." There were, of course, many people praying. Then all at once, after the younger woman was over her spell, the older woman also got it, and worse than the younger one. Both thus took turns a number of times during the next day or two. So the Christians had their hands full. The two Bible women, Miss Kuyf, and I were not at home just then, but we came home about three days later. We were no sooner home when the two momen themselves came over, anxious to see us. It didn't take very long until the younger woman had another spell, but it didn't last long and she didn't say anything, but merely trembled all over and her eyes were closed.

As soon as she got over it, the older woman went into a spell. She tried to ward it off by saying, "I am afraid, but I don't care, I am just going to stay here; I won't go back." But pretty soon she was in the throes of it. When either Miss Kuyf or I came near she pushed us away crying, "What do you want?" Again we prayed, and she quieted down. We thought perhaps she was resting, but other Chinese women who had drifted in while we were praying said, no, it was just the demon which would not let her speak. We turned to some other business at hand and left the woman in this stupor. Finally the other women, I suppose, thought we were not doing anything about it, and so they went out and called the evangelist's wife and a Bible woman who lives near by. The evangelist's wife said too, "No, she isn't resting; look at her teeth, they are clenched."

So we all started praying for her again. As she came out of the stupor she began to shake again. Then she started singing in the voice of the priestess (she had been a priestess when she first got these spells), "Come on, missionaries, let's see who is strongest. Come on, let's fight." One is in a difficult position under such circumstances. You would like to observe from a psychological point of view, but you also have to get under and lift. So we all prayed again. Each time when we all pray like that I feel a real thrill which is more real than that which one feels when battling with wind and weather. After a bit she came out of it again. It is three weeks now since either of the women had the spells, and we have not heard that there has been any recurrence.

This is a rather striking incident, but it is not the most important result of Christian influence. I think its importance lies in the fact that it is a concrete illustration of what happens when there is united prayer and full surrender. The casting out of the above mentioned demon is relatively simple in comparison to the casting out of demons of bad temper, jealousy, greed, or lust, or whatever sins one might mention. Perhaps if we would be as fervent and as united in our prayers for these demons as we were for this one, we would see more results there too.

SMITH CORNER MENNONITE CHURCH

East Freedom, Pa., July 7, 1941

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander,
Quakertown, Pa.

Dear Brother:

Another three months is history, and the time for our report has again come. During this time, I am glad to be able to report that the blessing of God has been upon us here at Smith Corner. The work has gone along well, we have made strides forward, and have had many blessed times that will long be remembered by us. True enough, we had sorrow too. During the quarter our blind brother, Elmer (Jimmie) Langham, suffered for about ten days. Then our Lord called him home where there is no more suffering. Needless to say he is missed very much both in the church and the community.

Baptism and Reception of New Members

At the beginning of the quarter we held one week of special meetings, closing with Holy Communion on Easter Sunday. These meetings were a success in that there were seven confessions, six to be baptized and received into the church, and one coming out to be reinstated. Among these were the parents of two young children. Now, with them at almost every service, are their two little boys getting Christian training. This, in my opinion, is building with a future. At this time there also were two infants consecrated. And the Communion service was the largest since our coming to Smith Corner. There were fifty-six participating.

New Records

During this quarter we broke all our previous records in Sunday School attendance and offerings. On Easter Sunday there were 84 present; S. S. offering $4.14. We were delighted because heretofore our record attendance had been 77. One month later there were 88; offering $6.16. Two weeks after that all records were broken when 91 came out to the service and the offering was $5.68. The lowest attendance for the quarter was 54, and the highest 91; the lowest offering was $2.44, the highest $6.16. Our average for attendance was 70, and for offerings $4.57. In looking over my old reports I discovered that four years ago, July 7, 1937, I reported to Rev. Gottshall our average attendance of 55, and offerings $1.98. I am glad that the folks here are learning to give a little better for the Lord's work.

The preaching service for the morning has the same number present as the S. S.; offerings about $1.25. The evening service is not attended as well, the difference is not large, most always from 50 to 60 attend; offerings about the same as for the morning service.

Interest in the midweek service is good; from 30 to 50 in attendance; small offering; studying the book of Romans.

Womens Missionary Society and Brotherhood hold their meetings once each month. Good interest is shown; about 30 to 40 attend.

The two organized S. S. classes continue their work. They meet once each month.

It seems I have work to do outside the church also. I was elected this year to serve as President of the Eighth Sunday School District of Blair County, Assistant Bible teacher of the District Men's Organization, and Superintendent of the Home Department of the Blair County Sunday School Association. I enjoy very much being kept busy in the work for Him who has done so much for me.

In this quarter I preached 43 sermons, gave 4 Bible talks, charged and installed the officers of the Eighth District Young People's Organization.

With many thanks for the interest that the Board has shown in the work here, I remain,

John S. Raugh

OUR HISTORICAL LIBRARY

July 17, 1941

Recently the Library was very fortunate in receiving substantial historical material from the heirs of the former minister Rev. J. H. Zimmerman and Mr. Jacob Penner, Beatrice, Nebraska, Mrs. J. R. Thierstein, and Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Moyer, North Newton, Kansas. All the gifts were very much appreciated. The books are all labeled and have been added to the Historical Library of the General Conference.

Pointing out just a few items in the contributions, the Committee would like to mention fifteen complete annual sets of the Bundesbote and a considerable number of other papers, as well as Menno Simons works, a Martyr's Mirror, old editions of hymn books, pictures, and other material.

Besides this historical material, religious books and books of fiction were given to us mostly by Mrs. Thierstein, some of which were designated for Bethel College, others for the Western District Conference Loan Library, and some were added to the collection for Paraguay.

The Committee has been serving as a clearing house for old books and shall be glad to do so in the future. Good books are good friends. Whenever we place a good book into the hands of a neighbor we give him an opportunity to find an experienced companion. Write us about your unused books.

REPORT OF THE 42ND SESSION OF THE Pacific District Conference held in Dallas, Oregon, May 15-18, 1941

PORTLAND, OREGON. Since Arnold Regiers came to Portland 11 months ago, 23 members have been taken into the church. The enrollment in the S. S. is now 108. The church attendance the first three months was 40, the next three months it was 45, and the first quarter of this year it was 55. There is a growing interest evident among the young people. The Dorcas-Hi girls have repeatedly furnished the whole evening service. Also the younger ones, the Rainbow class, prove to be the right-hand maidens of Mrs. Regier's manifold activities. The orchestra is also on the increase under the leadership of Brother Anderson, and a spirit of co-operation permeates throughout the ranks. Portland looks forward to the time when the last particle of the building loan debt is wiped out before the end of the year, 1941. The installment payments which this Conference is paying every month on the parsonage have reduced the debt by this date to $3010.08.

DALLAS, OREGON. When we look at the picture posted on the wall, the eye-sore that used to stand where this church now stands, we marvel and say, "Truly God has done a wonderful work for which we are glad."

The Grace Church of Dallas has a S. S. enrollment of 202. It has an average attendance of 165, and an average church attendance of 220. Its membership at present is 169. They are looking forward to the day when the last particle of the building debt will be wiped out, when they will be able to manage without the aid of the Conference. In the last year Dallas received 25 dollars from the Home Mission Board, and 25 dollars from this Conference. The church council reports that in a recent meeting of its Brotherhood it was agreed to assume the greater part of the minister's support at this time, and all of it when the debt is wiped out this fall. We appreciate this offer and recommend that the church be allowed $15, instead of $25 as before, from this Conference till the time when they can assume the whole responsibility. We further advise them to accept the $15 allowance which the Home Mission Board apportioned to them for the year. This would sum up to $30 till this fall, and then $15 till the end of the agreement with the Home Mission Board.

ALBANY, OREGON. The Grace Church at Albany has prospered under the leadership of Brother and Sister Franz. There has been a healthy growth in the interest and in the number throughout the year. Membership is now 80. To our sorrow Bro. Franz had to submit to the doctor's orders and quit preaching for some time to regain his health. This he did on the first Sunday in May. But we rejoice with the Albany brethren in having our Oregon people, the Rev. P. A. Kliewers of the Ebenezer Church of Bluffton, Ohio, take charge of the church. We welcome the Kliewers back into their home state and into the conference work.

Albany received $15 from the Home Mission Board, and $10 from this Conference. The H. M. B. has already agreed to continue their assistance to the minister at Albany, and we recommend to also continue our part as before.

WINTON, CALIFORNIA. The work at Winton was undertaken almost three years ago. It is a matter of encouragement to report that there has been growth in interest in the following: 1. RELIGION. People who had long shown little interest in a right relationship with God and their fellow men, have done so since the work was started. 2. THE CHURCH. There are those who had lost interest and have found it again; and those who had never found it before, are now interested. 3. OTHERS. Worshipping together has in some cases led to a new type of interest in others whom they had known in a superficial way but never appreciated. 4. THE BETTER SELF. There are those who have consciously or unconsciously learned to realize the difference between just being one's self and to be one's better self or one's best self. This important fact cannot well be expressed in words, it is expressed in attitudes. 5. COMMUNITY WELL BEING. This also is best seen in the attitudes which are taken when self and community well-being either come into conflict or are blended into helpful action.

It gives your committee great pleasure to be able to report the foregoing, because these are the kinds of fruit we hoped for when the work was undertaken almost three years ago, the kinds of fruit which follow when the Spirit of Christ is given a real chance.

Recommendation concerning Winton: We recommend that the Conference declare a recess in the Winton situation as far as support is concerned, in order to give all parties involved an opportunity to discern what can be done in the future. This recommendation is made after this position was presented to all the representatives who are here from the Winton church and after all had consented thereto.

All recommendations were adopted as given above.

The Committee: J. M. Franz, Chairman; J. H. Langenwalter; W. Harley King; S. S. Baumgartner, advisory member and secretary.

During the reading of this report letters from Newport and Deer Park were read. Various changes were made by motion from the floor, and these are embodied in the revised report as given above.

When the time for the afternoon worship period came, Rev. W. A. Regier of Los Angeles spoke to the Conference on "Prayer for a Three-fold Testing," basing his remarks on the Revised Version of Psalm 26:2.

FRIDAY EVENING SESSION

This session was in charge of the Ladies Missionary Societies. Mrs. Homer Leisy presided; Miss Etta Davis was the principal speaker. The Dallas Bible School Ladies' Quartet rendered several beautiful numbers in an exceptionally commendable manner. The offering amounted to $56.16, which was given to the Pacific District Conference. An outstanding feature was a poem (original), "The Dallas Society at Work," written by Mr. Jacob Ediger and read by Mrs. Ediger.

SATURDAY MORNING SESSION

Saturday morning devotions were led by Rev. P. A. Kliewer who called attention to the Scripture as found in Ephesians 1:1-15. The Report of the Evangelization Committee was resumed where it had been interrupted for the message by Brother W. A. Regier. A vote of thanks was rendered to Rev. S. S. Baumgartner for his long service in the Conference. A motion to pay part of the expenses of mission workers to the Conference was discussed and adopted.

A brief Memorial Service in charge of Dr. J. H. Langenwalter was held for those who had directly or indirectly been associated with the Conference and had now passed on. The following names were presented: Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, Dr. J. R. Thierstein, Dr. P. R. Schroeder, Rev. W. S. Gottschall, Rev. H. P. Krehbiel, Rev. John Voth, and Mrs. Rev. J. C. Mehl. (Secretary adds Mrs. Lizzie Weber, Upland, Calif.)

A motion was introduced to receive a special offering to defray the expenses of printing the Conference programs. $10.88 was received.

The place of meeting for the next Conference was taken up at this point. Reedley, Upland, and Colfax, vied with each other for the honor. Reedley withdrew in favor of Colfax. In the final vote Colfax was chosen.

2. That we thank the Grace Mennonite Church of Dallas for their kind hospitality and efficient entertainment while we were their guests.

3. That we re-affirm our faith in the effectiveness and fruitfulness of preaching the Word of God, and that we thank God for the evident growth in membership of the Pacific District Conference during the past year, and pray that He may say of us, "Thou hast kept My Word, and thou hast not denied My Name."

4. That we pledge our appreciation of and loyalty to the principle of non-resistance inherited from our fathers, and that we refrain from any agitation that would create a feeling of suspicion and prejudice against any class, race, or group.

5. That we as a Conference express our regrets for the absence of Miss Emma Ruth, Field Secretary of our District Conference, and instruct our Conference secretary to write a word of appreciation to her for her untiring efforts and invaluable service to our Conference.

6. That we thank the heirs of the Dettweiler Estate for the transfer of 13 (thirteen) votes in the Bethel College Corporation to the Pacific District Conference.

7. That we commend the young people of the California C. E. and S. S. Conference for their work in the migratory camps of California, and that we recommend that such work be extended to other sections of the Pacific District Conference.

8. That we encourage and urge the members of our congregations to write to the President of the United States, to the United States senators and congressmen of their respective states, urging them to do all in their power to keep this nation out of war.

9. That we greatly appreciate the presence of Miss Etta Davis, missionary to China, among us, that we thank her for her message and pray that the Lord may hasten the day when normal missionary activities may again be resumed in China.

10. That we commend the Ladies Missionary Society of this district in undertaking the project whereby they will subscribe to a fund for providing the equipment for a maternity ward in the Mission Hospital at Basna, India.

11. a. That we continue to support the Young People's work and encourage them in their missionary enterprises as well as in their endeavors to carry out the larger program of the General Conference Young People's Union.

b. That the young people of each state make an effort to carry on definite Christian service within their state, such as Vacation Bible School among the less privileged.

These resolutions were unanimously adopted.

At this point the Conference was called to the worship hour. Dr. J. H. Langenwalter spoke on the theme, "Follow Me." This was a masterful exposition of Matt. 4:19.

Devotions were led by Rev. Joel Koehn of Winton, Calif. The President called for the report of the Budget Committee. This committee was composed of all Conference officers, who submitted the following budget:

Field Secretary	$100.00	Portland	420.00

PAUL PREACHES FAITH IN CHRIST

Rom. 3:21-31; 5:1, 2

TOPIC: PAUL PROCLAIMS JUSTIFICATION BY FAITH

Introduction

Today's lesson brings us to the very heart of the gospel and answers the question how we may be saved. Paul had grappled with this question for years. He had sought salvation in the Jewish way. He met Christ and underwent a spiritual transformation through faith in Him. This experience and the divine revelations he received, enabled him to show to others how to be saved. Paul sets forth most clearly the doctrine of justification by faith, a fundamental doctrine of the Christian belief. It is the very heart of Christ's gospel (John 3:16). Our lesson text is the chief statement of this doctrine in the whole Bible.

Justification by Faith, vs. 21-28

Paul declraes that God has provided a way of salvation—"righteousness of God"—independent of the law. Salvation is not a thing to be earned or merited by a scrupulous keeping of the requirements of the law. Judaism had become intensely legalistic. Outward forms had supplanted heart religion. Paul was convinced that the Jewish method of seeking salvation was ineffectual. God accepts us and grants salvation because of our faith in Jesus Christ (v. 22). Faith embraces more than mere belief. It includes a willingness to commit one's self to, and trust in, Christ. The need for this salvation is universal (v. 23). We all fall short of being what God wishes and intends us to be.

Paul declares that we are "justified freely," declared righteous, because of what Christ has done (vs. 24, 25). God's gift of Christ was an act of grace, of lovingkindnes. The sinner is liberated, saved through faith in Christ Who gave Himself as a ransom for him. Because of this voluntary act of Christ, God can and will forgive the sins of those who believe in Christ. God is righteous and just and has always wanted to pardon repentant sinners. We have no reason for boasting about our salvation; it is obtained entirely through our faith in Christ. God made the provision for salvation, but we must personally accept it through a vital trust in Christ (v. 28). This will result in a life lived under the leading of the Spirit. It will mean peace with God and freedom from a sense of guilt, a spiritual condition highly pleasing to God.

Justification and the Law, vs. 29-31

Both Jews and Gentiles are justified by faith in Christ (vs. 29, 30). God accepts all who receive Christ as Savior. Justification, salvation by faith, does not invalidate the law. Faith in Christ enables us to obey the moral requirements of God's law as we could not in our own strength. When in close fellowship with God and Christ, we establish the law, God's commands, more fully in our hearts. Good works become the rich fruits of our faith. Forgiveness comes through personal trust in Christ as our Savior.

Why did the Jew think he had ground for boasting?

What inner change accompanies forgiveness?

What was Christ's attitude toward the law?

REPORT OF PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE SESSION

The vote was in favor of adopting this budget. It was figured out that to meet the budget it would call for the payment of 67 cents per member.

Dr. Langenwalter called attention to the lack of uniformity in the reports of the different district conferences and those of the General Conference. Moved and carried to follow the General Conference forms in the future.

Rev. Hostetler spoke on the San Dimas, Calif., C. O.'s Camp. He pointed out the fine Christian character of the person in charge as well as of his wife. Much will be done for the boys when they arrive there. He urged the need of supporting the camps financially. The Conference then adjourned the business sessions.

The balance of the afternoon was spent in recreation. In spite of the rain a large group went to the Deaconess Hospital at Salem and to the newly reconstructed church at Pratum. Others visited friends and relatives.

SATURDAY EVENING SESSION

Rev. Lester Hostetler conducted a "Saengerfest" for which he is famous. (If you have ever attended one of these you have never forgotten it. If there is any combination in the possibilities of music he will find that combination and make use of it, to the honor of God). This was followed with a splendid address on "The Ministry of Music," by Rev. Phil. A. Wedel of Aberdeen, Idaho. The offering totaled $71.66 and was given to the Conference.

GENERAL CONFERENCE YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION

I have been asked to give a little insight into the work of the Young People's Union of the General Conference. This will be done under three divisions. 1. What the Union has been doing. 2. The coming Conference. 3. Some problems.

The Union has attempted to promote a better understanding among youth by acquainting young people with each other through conferences, retreats, correspondence, church papers and the circulation of literature. We have distributed standards and exchanged ideas, through the medium of The Mennonite, to aid the local societies in their work. We have endeavored to create mission interest through the Prayer Calendars and projects. In the "Mennonite Youth" page there have been discussed, besides the general inspirational material, such important Mennonite doctrines as peace and the simple life. We have taken a personal interest in Ernst Harder, a young man from South America, who is studying for the ministry in this country. In seeking for improved business methods to make our work more efficient, the follow-up system is being tried. Surveys on Retreats and a youth paper have been conducted, the results to be the basis of future planning.

The young people of the East have a rare opportunity in that the General Conference meets in Souderton this summer. You should avail yourself of the privilege of making friends with other young Mennonites. To help form friendships, a Fellowship supper is being planned for August 22. The business session of the Union is on Thursday afternoon of that week, and it is here that the whole work of the Y. P. U. will be discussed. Acquaint yourself with the program. A Conference like this is worth sacrificing other things to be able to attend. Among the many important things to be discussed will be the adoption of a more stable organizational set-up and the clarification of our peace stand. Thursday evening is given over to the inspirational program of the Y. P. U., with three short messages and several music selections.

One of the problems before our Union is finances. We are handicapped by lack of contributions to our general fund. The Eastern District has done very well, but some districts have fallen down deplorably. We receive a considerable sum of ear-marked money from some districts, which should not be used for other purposes. This relay money creates a clerical red tape problem which must be ironed out. We would like to have a composite picture of what all the district Y. P. organizations are doing, and yet it does not seem wise for funds to have to pass through so many treasuries. The problem of the Y. P. paper is still unsolved, but district papers like the "Pacific Workers Exchange," "Vine Press," "Tydings," and the publications of the Eastern District are filling the gap.

We solicit your prayers on behalf of the Young People's Union, its work, and the Conference program. May we be led by the Spirit to a right solution of the problems confronting us.

Olin A. Krehbiel
Y. P. U. Pres.

TEMPERANCE

Program for August 17, 1941

Leading Topic: A Christian Stand Against Drinking. Prov. 23:29-35; Isa. 5:11, 12; Eph. 5:15-18.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "O Could I Speak the Matchless Worth;" "Yield not to Temptation;" " Oh Jesus, I Have Promised."
2. Reading of leading topic and prayer
3. Talk by phisician or coach on "Alcohol and its Effects on Body and Mind."
4. Offering for Civilian Service Program

II. Leader's Introduction

"Practical experience and scientific teaching in this modern day add emphasis to the wisdom of even a Daniel of many centuries ago. Scientific evidence on the forming of habits and the experience of the human race have demonstrated that there is no safe halfway station when it comes to the use of beverage alcohol. Where one apparently may drink in so-called moderation, many fail. All too frequently he who is positively sure that he can walk that uncertain tight rope of moderation, discovers at last that he is just the one who cannot do so. Moderation in the use of intoxicating liquors does not lead to abstinence, it tends in the other direction."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A sober son promised	Luke 1:13-16
2. A profitable purpose	Dan. 1:5-8; 18-20
3. Temperance vital to mastery	I Cor. 9:24-27
4. An ill-spent life	Luke 15:11-16
5. Reap as you sow	Gal. 6:7-9

IV. Facts for Study

Alcohol is in no sense a tonic. It is not a stimulant, and it does not increase or improve muscular or nervous tone. It is a depressant to the nervous system, and even in small doses reduces sensibility.

An alleged and dubious "food value" is claimed for beer—"Both Beer and Ale are Nature's Liquid Foods"—and all in all, this latest champion of the amber alcoholic beverage seems to have outdone itself in an attempt to deceive the busy throngs of the American public—children, youth, and adults alike—on their way to and from work and recreation.

V. For Discussion

1. What effect has the repeal of prohibition had on drinking? on the social life of today?
2. Should we support the Women's Christian Temperance Union and similar movements?

VI. Illustrative Material

The philosophy of Saint Paul regarding abstinence strongly emphasizes the social implications and presents a higher motive for action than that which has to do merely with the effect upon one's bodily and mental self. The Pauline philosophy emphasizes the necessity for abstenance because of the effect of example upon others. His conclusive reason rests upon the fact that his own indulgence might make his brother to offend. The question decided by Saint Paul was not whether indulgence or abstinence might prove harmful to himself, but rather, whether his own indulgence might prove harmful to some one else. The strong must help bear the infirmities of the weak and are not to please themselves. Thus Paul fixed the social policy even for our generation in regard to abstinence.

VII. Food for Thought

There are still those who would rather gratify their appitites than exercise self-control. It is easy to forget that, as Christians, we are at war to the death with the enemy of mankind, alcohol.

Will fight a most powerful foe;
All honor to him, if he conquers;
A cheer for the boy who says, 'No.'

"Be steadfast. my friend, when you're tempted,
And do what you know to be right.
If you stand by the colors of honor,
God will help you o'ercome in the fight.
The right be your battle-cry ever,
In waging the warfare of life,
And God, who knows who are heroes,
Will give you the strength for the strife."

—Selected

7. Solo: "I Would be True"

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors to realize that those who belong to the Lord do not give way to anger, but exercise self-control in all things. To help them to know that Christ gives the strength to overcome sin.

1. Introduction by a Junior.

There is a verse in the Sermon on the Mount that says, "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." Sometimes we are asked, "Who was the meekest man?" Of course, we all answer "Moses." But when Moses was a very young man, he had a bad temper. He got angry quickly, and this got him into serious trouble. He couldn't control his temper. So God sent him into the desert for forty years. There he learned self-control, and when Moses came back to Egypt, he could face all sorts of insults and wrongs without an angry word. God gave him the power to overcome his sin.

2. Read in concert from the blackboard, Proverbs 16:32.

3. Bible drill: (Let all the passages be found before they are read.) Proverbs 15:18; 26:21; 29:22; 27:4a; 20:3; James 3:14.

4. Sing in unison: "When We Walk with the Lord."

5. Discussion by a Junior boy.

"What anger does to us"

(a) It makes us uncomfortable

(b) It makes everyone about us uncomfortable

(c) It keeps us from thinking correctly

(d) It makes us do and say things of which we are ashamed later.

6. Illustration given by a Junior girl.

"Two little girls, in India, were sleeping in a bungalow when a tiger came from the jungle for something to eat. He scented the children and entered the bungalow. The first thing that the tiger saw was a long looking-glass and his own reflection in it. He was very angry, because he thought another tiger had come for his prey. In two seconds he went for his supposed rival with all his might. He injured himself so much with broken glass that he soon died of his wounds."

—Selected

7. Discussion by a Junior girl.

"How can we rule our spirit?" (have self-control or conquer self.)

Why should we exercise self-control? What does I Cor. 15:10 teach us?

8. Illustration given by a Junior boy

"A man came into a blacksmith's shop and began to abuse the blacksmith. He insulted him and called him ugly names, even dared him to fight. The blacksmith did not say a word. Some one said, "Why doesn't he fight; is he afraid?" Then another man said, "No, he is not afraid. He is winning a harder battle now than if he would fight that man. The blacksmith has had a bad temper. He used to be a good fighter, but by the Lord's help he has enough self-control now to overcome his temper."

—Selected

9. A short talk, "We Should Control Our Thoughts."

III. Mission Minutes

1. Shall we go on with our study of the pictures of our missionaries?

2. Sentence prayers for all our missionaries.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Sing the song for the month.

2. In unison repeat the verse for the month.

3. Together pray the prayer for the month.

4. Leader's closing prayer.

5. As the children leave, the pianist softly plays the melody, "Have Thine Own Way Lord."

Y. P. CONVENTION

The forty-sixth annual convention of the Eastern District Young People's Union was held at the Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Pa., on May 30. The theme of the Convention was "The Christian's Duty to God and Man." The theme verse was Matthew 22:37-39. In these busy days we sometimes forget that God requires first place in our hearts and in our service.

The morning session was taken up with the usual business meeting. We are happy to report that we completed our mission project of $400; $75 to the education of Ernst Harder at Freeman Jr. College, $125 for the support of a Spanish war orphan, $100 to foreign mission work, $100 for developments at Mennolan. The new mission project for 1941-1942 adopted by the Convention is as follows:

$150 for war relief, $150 for Civilian Service camps, $150 for developments at Mennolan. The following resolutions were adopted: Be it resolved:

1. That we give thanks to God for His guiding presence during this day, and also to the Bally society for opening its doors and extending to us its kind hospitality.

2. That in view of the coming of the General Conference to the East in August, we avail ourselves of its opportunities and give our wholehearted cooperation to those who are responsible for making it a success.

3. That we be more faithful in our work at Mennolan.

4. That even though the liquor traffic seems to have sway in our country, we continue in our stand against it, and that we recommend total abstinence as the only safe guide.

5. That we are grateful to God for the privilege of living in a land that permits freedom of worship to all peoples and races; and for the special opportunity of civilian service to conscientious objectors.

6. That we stress the importance of our contributions to the Civilian Service camps, and that we encourage the various societies to give to our young men what material and spiritual aid they can.

7. That we recommend to our young people that they sincerely try to bring peace to the world through prayer, Bible study, and especially by living our nonresistant faith.

The new officers for 1941-1942 are: President, LeRoy Weidner; Vice President, Stanley Fretz; Recording Secretary, Dorothy Reichenbach; Corresponding Sec'y., Ruth Krigor; Mission Sec'y., Betty Kriner; Treasurer, Clarence Landis; Intermediate Supt., Mrs. Russel Mast; Junior Supt., Miss Catherine Niswander; Pastor Counselor, Rev. Ernest J. Bohn; Representative to General Conf. Y. P. Committee, Ernest Leitzel.

A sample copy of an Eastern District Conference Y. P. paper was presented to the Convention and accepted. The paper, to be called the C. E. Witness, will be published bi-monthly.

Following the business session there were two conferences led by Mr. George Greger and Mr. Melvin Clemens on the subjects, "The Christian's Duty to God," and "The Christian's Duty to Man."

The Convention reconvened for the afternoon session, the highlight of which was the address by Miss Etta Davis, recently returned missionary to China. She presented an inspiring message, challenging young people to turn their obstacles into doorways of opportunity. The new officers were installed by Rev.

Olin Krehbiel, president of the Eastern District Conference.

We thank God for the fellowship and inspiration we enjoyed, and for the guidance of the Holy Spirit in all our works.

Grace Moyer, Corr.

SUNDAY FORENOON SESSION

During the Sunday School hour the capacity of the Grace Church was taxed to the limit. Rev. Lester Hostetler conducted the discussion of the lesson with the entire auditorium as his class. After the S. S. hour, people were seated in the basement where a loud-speaker system had been installed, and all were permitted to hear the speaker even though they did not see him. Rev. P. A. Wedel brought the message.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON SESSION

The program was arranged by the Educational Committee. The addresses centered about the theme: "Christ and the Christian Worker: "Christ's Method as an Example to the Preacher," by M. M. Lehman; "Christ's Method as an Example to the S. S. Teacher," by W. D. Linscheid; "Christ's Method as an Example to the Young People's Worker," by Miss Alice Lehman in the absence of Miss Emma Ruth.

Music by the Juniors of Pratum, Albany, and Dallas respectively, interspersed the addresses. In the absence of Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, Rev. Hostetler conducted the question box.

SUNDAY EVENING SESSION

The Program was arranged by the Y. P.'s Committee, and Louise Richert presided. Music was furnished by the Dallas Choir. The Portland Church put on an impressive playlet entitled "The Challenge of the Cross." Closing remarks by the president followed, and with the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" the 42nd Pacific District Conference became history.

THE STORY OF THE MENNONITES

JUST OFF THE PRESS:

By Dr. C. Henry Smith

This "Story of the Mennonites" aims to cover the whole field of Mennonite history from the time of Menno Simons, who lived in the days of Martin Luther, to the outbreak of the present world war; and includes, not only the religious experiences of the Mennonites, but—since they have often formed self-sufficient economic and social units with special political privileges—their whole economic and social life as well, in Europe, Asia, North and South America.

Because of their migrations from one country to another through the centuries in search of religious toleration and civil liberty, the Mennonites have developed certain differences in their social and religious practices. The diversity of the national, linguistic, and social backgrounds found among the Mennonites has resulted in the formation of numerous separate groups and branches of the denomintion. The author has attempted to treat each group impartially, without favor or prejudice; and has given each the space which, in his judgment, it deserves in relation to the movement as a whole.

Its 824 pages contain a wealth of information never before printed, and this book should find a place in every Mennonite home. It is bound in attractive satin cloth, gold stamped, and has a beautiful jacket.

CORRESPONDENCE

ALEXANDERWOHL CHURCH, GOESSEL, KS.

July 11, 1941

"Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits." Truly we owe our Heavenly Father many thanks for the innumerable ways in which He has blessed us spiritually. Especially grateful toward God were Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Janzen, Mr. and Mrs. Corn. Epp, and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Goertzen who had the rare privilege of celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary this spring. Mr. and Mrs. T. U. Reimer, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Neufeld, and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Schmidt were the happy ones to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage.

On Good Friday night the choir from the Goessel Mennonite church favored us with a well rendered and greatly enjoyed program. Our Men's Gospel Chorus rendered a musical program on the night of Easter Sunday. Our Young Men's Chorus gave a fine sacred program in connection with Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Penner's welcome. This was the last program Herbert Franz, our song leader and choir director, gave before he left for camp. Our church misses him very much. He was also one of our pianists. Other young men who have left for different camps are Victor Voth, Leonard and Roland Bartel, Ewald Banman, and Walter Schmidt.

One Sunday morning in April, fourteen young parents took part in the consecration services of their infants. We consider it a blessed privilege and hope that next time all will take part who are blessed with a little one in the home. Thirty-three young people out of a class of forty-four members were baptized on Pentecost Sunday. One was called to his last reward a few weeks before he could be baptized. The rest intend to continue their instruction for another year. Two weeks later Holy Communion was observed at which occasion two members were received into our church by letter.

The Vacation Bible School came to a close on June 2, with a program showing the kind of work that had been done. The enrollment was 105 pupils, with eight teachers. A few districts preferred to have it in their schools, and quite a few children attended the Bible Schools in nearby churches.

The annual Sunday School program and picnic was held on June 8. The three Christian Endeavors are carrying on their work in the usual manner. We wish to thank most heartily all those who have served us from outside churches, and ask them to come again.

To make mention of the material blessings received from the Heavenly Father, we can say that rains have been plentiful, from one to four inches at a time, helping to make the summer quite pleasant and also helping our gardens to yield bountifully. Pastures have been in good condition, and row crops look prosperous. The yield in wheat per acre has ranged all the way from three to fifteen bushels. In a few rare cases the yield was around 20 bushels per acre. —Correspondent

BUHLER MENN. CHURCH, BUHLER, KANSAS

On Sunday, June 15, the first boys from our church left for the camp in Colorado Springs for a year's service to the government. In the morning, Rev. J. F. Schmidt, our pastor, had a farewell sermon for them. The boys write that they enjoy the work and that there is a bunch of fine fellows to work with. Could it be that God is using this method to bring the different churches closer together? It can be a great experience for the young men, and when they come home they can spread that blessing in their home churches. May God's richest blessing go with them.

Sunday morning, June 22, eleven young people were received into the fellowship of the church by baptism. We hope and pray that they may be a blessing to our church and also to the Church of Christ at large. June 29 we observed the communion of the Lord's Supper with a goodly attendance. May we through this communion be strengthened anew to be a shining light for Him till He comes to gather in His own; and may none of us who have pledged our allegiance to Him be found wanting. Since then, two members have been received into the fellowship by letter.

The young people of the church are meeting every Sunday evening, if possible, for discussion groups with their pastor. —Mrs. F. F. Matthies, Corr.

WOODLAND MENN. CHURCH, WARROAD, MINN., July 12, 1941

The month of June has been one of spiritual blessings for young and old. Daily Vacation Bible School was held in three different schools in successive terms with Frank Harder of Butterfield, Minn., as teacher. A two-week period was spent in school No. 82. Here Miss Margaret Harder was assistant teacher. The closing program was held in the Woodland Menn. Church on Sunday evening, June 15. The following week D. V. B. S. was held in a school five miles from the Mennonite church. The closing program was held June 22. The last week in June, D. V. B. S. was held in a school nine miles from our church, with closing exercises on Friday evening, June 27. The children were eager to learn, and may what they have learned go with them through life.

Rev. Arthur F. Ortman attended the Northern District Conference at Butterfield, Minn., from June 7 to 11. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Becker from Chicago gave a program in our church June 3. They are doing child evangelism work. Rev. W. C. Voth from China showed pictures and brought a message one evening. Rev. E. J. Berkey from Missouri held services in our church June 19. He is engaged in evangelistic work. The Sewing club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Deidrich Heppner July 4. A small donation sale was held; the annual sale having been held at the home of Mrs. George Krahn June 20.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, BERNE, IND.

Recently our church took up an offering for the purpose of redecorating the church. Apparently it was the conviction of the entire membership that this was a sore need, as was evidenced by the most hearty response in the offering. The necessary amount was received, and work is expected to begin shortly. This is a great cause for rejoicing, for we believe that the house of God should be an inviting, clean, and attractive place for worship.

Within the last week or two, two more of our church members were laid to rest in God's Acre, Dr. Ernest Franz who for over forty years was a physician in Berne; and Simeon Sprunger, a retired farmer and one of the oldest of our members. Thus one by one the habitually tenanted pews of our fathers and mothers of the faith are becoming vacant, and although we rejoice at their being present with the Lord, there is a touch of sadness in seeing these faithful warriors pass on, and we are to see them here no more. Yea, verily, we are but pilgrims here. "Wohin Pilger, geht Die Reise?"

Today our pastor, Dr. Suckau, and his wife, left for the East for a couple of weeks. Dr. Suckau is to be one of the speakers at the Mennonite Young People's Retreat in Pennsylvania.

Sunday, July 13, was a real missionary day in our church. In the morning Rev. Alfred Habegger from Montana preached. In the afternoon Mrs. Habegger addressed the Missionary Union, and in the evening Ms. Floyd Pannabecker addressed the meeting of the Women's Missionary Society. The regular monthly mission offering was taken at the morning congregation, as well as an offering at the evening meeting. Both times the response was hearty. We feel grateful that our people are seeking to heed the Biblical injunction, "Freely ye have received, freely give." —Martha Gilliom, Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

DELILAH DELCIE EWERT, daughter of Rev. Albert and Rosie (Tieszen) Ewert, was born on August 7, 1940, near Lustre, Montana. As far as known, she enjoyed good health. While visiting in South Dakota she contracted a slight cold and was taken to a physician for examination. Ten days later, on Thursday evening, June 26, she had a severe spell of coughing which was followed by a restless night; but in the morning she ate a good breakfast and slept a few hours. In the afternoon she was taken to the doctor who said that she had a slight case of Bronchitis and that her heart beats were very fast. That same evening, June 27, at 7 o'clock, she fell asleep in the arms of her mother.

Her stay here was very brief, only 10 months and 20 days. Her departure was unexpected. She is not dead but liveth; she only moved up higher and is safe in the arms of Jesus. Funeral services were held in the Bethel Lustre church on July 1, with Rev. J. R. Barkman and Rev. A. A. Dick officiating. Rev. P. P. Wiens had charge at the cemetery. She leaves to mourn her early departure, her parents, one sister and one brother, her grandparents, and many relatives and friends.

FRANCIS THOMAS MC NINCH was born May 21, 1871, in Catawissa, Penn. In early childhood he came with his parents, one sister, and two brothers, to Marshall County, Kansas, later moving to Riley County. In 1901, he came to Ness County where he was actively engaged in business until eight years ago when his health failed. After spending eight long years practically as an invalid, death came as a blessed release July 1, at 9:15 p. m., at the age of 70 years, one month, and ten days.

He became a member of the Methodist church, later transferring his membership to the Mennonite church, continuing it there until his death. He was united in marriage August 26, 1908, with Ethel Giddings. To this union were born six children: twin sons who died in infancy; Nelle, who passed away May 23, 1934, at the age of 24 years and one day; Dallas, at Fort Sill, Oklahoma; Mrs. Mildred Shank of Hutchinson; and Lila of the home. He leaves his wife, son, and two daughters; a son-in-law, Myrland Shank; and two grand-daughters, Merna and Karen; one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Gaden, Seiling, Okla.; two brothers, George McNinch of Arnold, Kans., and John McNinch of Kansas City, Mo.; a number of nieces and nephews, other relatives and friends.

We miss him in the home, his chair is empty. But we must not be selfish and wish him back, as our loss is his gain. We do not think of him as dead. He has stepped over the threshold into another room where he awaits our coming. He can never return to us, but we may go to him.

The funeral was held at the Methodist church July 3, and was in charge of his pastor, Rev. Abraham Albrecht, who was assisted by Rev. L. R. Fish of the Methodist church of Ransom.

—Rev. J. J. Plenert, pastor of the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, reports in the Bulletin of July 13 that members of Mennonite churches in Philadelphia and vicinity are busily engaged in practicing for the musical program which will be rendered at Perkasie Park on Sunday, August 17, in connection with the sessions of the General Conference. Prof. Russel A. Lantz is the director.

—An appeal has been sent out by the Foreign Mission Board which states that the Board is considerably behind in the payment of expense bills. Added expenses have been made necessary on account of the destruction of the church at Oraibi, Arizona, and the bringing home of missionaries from China. This is the Lord's work. May we all contribute to the best of our ability.

—The Western District Retreat was held at Camp Wood, Elmdale, Kansas, from July 22 to 27. Rev. Arnold E. Funk is chairman of the Retreat Committee. Other leaders were: E. G. Kaufman, P. A. Penner, J. D. Unruh, L. C. Kreider, P. A. Wedel, Mary Becker, Ella M. Wiebe, Henry Hege, Alida Schrag and Otto Unruh. Y. P. Retreats are becoming quite common, and it is well that they are. Under such leadership as that mentioned above, they are sure to be of great value to all who are privileged to attend.

—Among the many fine things that will be offered at the General Conference will be a Y. P. Exhibit. This will be sponsored by the Y. P. U., and an effort will be made to visualize the past missionary projects of the organization. There will also be displays of outstanding convention programs, Retreat pictures and programs, etc. The aim will be to present, in a comprehensive way, the activities of Mennonite youth.

—Recently Rev. Howard G. Nyce, pastor of the First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa., delivered a series of lectures on Courtship and Marriage. The last three lectures were delivered during the month of June and dealt with marriage and the establishing of the Christian home. Rev. Nyce deserves to be commended for his courage and insight. Courses for the instruction of young people are being arranged along many other lines helpful to the young people. Why not offer them Christian instruction on these important subjects also?

—Brother Ted Claassen who has been engaged in Relief work in England for over a year returned to his home in Newton, Kansas, on July 23.

—A card has been received by the editor of The Mennonite requesting us to insert Rev. J. M. Regier's name on the Middle District Conference program opposite the topic "Home Missions." Since this card arrived too late to make this change before the program was published, we call attention to it here.

A REMINDER

Dear Church leaders:

The time for the session of the General Conference is drawing very close. Only a few more weeks and August 17, 1941, is here. As secretary of the Conference I would kindly ask those who have not yet sent in their Conference Reports as well as list of delegates to do so at once. It is necessary to have this information in time to complete the statistician report. The delegate lists should be printed before the session of Conference.

Yours in His service,
Phil. A. Wedel, Sec'y.

Lift Up Your Eyes

"Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." John 4:35.

These words spoken by Jesus at the occasion of His visit with the woman at Jacob's Well, are well worth pondering. The disciples to whom they are addressed had just returned from the little village of Sychar with food and were mainly interested in their bodily welfare. They had come in contact with the people of the village who needed help spiritually, but they kept their eyes on earthly things and did not see the need of the despised Samaritans.

At the same time that the disciples were making their purchases to satisfy their bodily wants, Jesus met a woman of Samaria. She came to get water from the well, and Jesus lifting up His eyes saw the great need for living water in the heart of the woman. He offered this water to her, and she could go away refreshed and satisfied. This was a great day for that little village, for as a result, "many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him for the saying of the woman. . . . And many more believed because of his word."

The early Church lifted up its eyes and saw the white fields. They were moved to action which resulted in the great missionary activities of Paul, Peter, Philip, Barnabas, Timothy, and many others. They made such an impact upon the Roman world in that first generation of Christianity that we read of them, "So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed" (Acts 19:20). Struggle and conflict, opposition and persecution, were the common experiences of these early Christians, but they prevailed.

God expects His Church today to be gripped by that same missionary vision and zeal of the early Church. Often we plead the difficult conditions as an excuse for our faithlessness, and we do not realize that the Church has always made most progress in difficult times. God is sufficient to meet any condition and circumstance. We see this in the incident at Jacob's Well, for there were many excuses for failure. Some might have seen a very poor prospect in the woman at the well considering the life that she had lived, others might have considered it a very inconvenient time to talk to her about matters concerning her soul's welfare, etc. But Jesus considered any time an opportune time when He could help someone who needed help, and because of His contact here He won a soul and precipitated a revival at Sychar.

Jesus challenged His disciples, "Lift up your eyes." He is challenging us today. Are the times difficult? All the more reason to go on for the time may be short. Are conditions discouraging? All the more reason to labor faithfully and strenuously, for at such times individuals and peoples sense their need. May we be found faithful in the work of His Kingdom, as we hear His challenge to us, "Lift up your eyes."

MARK TWAIN ON WAR

There has never been a just war or an honorable one. I can see a million years ahead and this rule will never change. The loud little handful will shout for war. The pulpit will object at first. The great, big, dull bulk of the nation will rub its sleepy eyes and try to make out why there should be a war, and will say: "It's unjust and dishonorable, and there is no necessity for it." Then the handful will shout louder. A few fair men on the other side will argue and reason against war and at first will have a hearing and will be applauded; but it will not last long; those others will outshout them and presently the anti-war audiences will thin out and lose popularity.

Before long you will see the curious thing, the speakers stoned from the platform and free speech strangled by hordes of furious men, who in their hearts are still as one with those stoned speakers—but do not dare say so. And now the whole nation, pulpit and all, will take up the war cry and mob any honest man who ventures to open his mouth; and presently such mouths will cease to open.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

ONE DAY OUT OF MANY

By S. T. Moyer

The sun was coming over the horizon when the call came for breakfast. It was just past five o'clock on the last Sunday of May, 1941. I was off to conduct worship in a village twelve miles to the north, over the pass in the hills near Bukrel.

Our local pastor, Rev. M. R. Asna, came to the door. He was going off in another direction for the same purpose. He urged me to stop at the first artificial lake, talab, and pad the inside of the crown of my sun helmet with large water lily leaves, as protection from the intense penetrating sun.

So with tea flask and water flask, with a bottle of milk, and a tin box of lunch for inner reinforcements, and with a sun helmet and thick khaki coat for outer protection, I started out by bicycle. After going four miles, the large lily leaves were duly placed in my helmet, and I was assured full protection from the burning sun. Through thick dust and sand, along cart tracks and foot paths I pushed and padaled my cycle. The pass in the wooded hills was a refreshing experience. But misdirection by ignorant villagers was an aggravating distraction as strength waned and my body weakened from exceeding perspiration. Finally, across the fields on the horizon, through blazing heat, I saw the village, my goal. Rutty fields and impassable paths and spent strength almost brought me to a state of exhaustion. But push on I must. The temperature was about 110 degrees in the north veranda shade.

We have only three baptized Christians in that village: a confirmed young bachelor, and a discharged worker and his wife. None of these are native to the place—all imported. Can their lives and family life so radiate Christ as to make the faith attractive to the filthy, dirty, and diseased bodies and minds and corrupted souls round about?

I wanted to eat from the lunch box, but my host insisted that I try his cooked rice and curry side-dish. The mind is willing, but my flesh is weak, when it comes to native foods. Finally, to please host and hostess, I assented to take a wee bit of rice and the curry. In they brought on a brass plate a pile of rice the size of a baby's head, with curry. "Please take back three-fourths of the rice," I kindly asked of them. The side-dish was meat. As I ate this, I thought, "What fine goat meat! In Janjgir we have been getting the driest, gnarled, gristly stuff one could imagine." I asked my host, "Where did you get this fine goat meat?" I did think of the negro preacher who asked his host where he got the fine chicken, but I thought I could risk this man. He leaned over the improvised table, a four-legged stool, and whispered, "That is chetal, spotted deer." "Oh, venison! No wonder it tastes so fine." "I shot him last night in the talab." That explained it. "Sure, I'll take a second helping." It had been grazing in the fresh grass in the midst of the dry hot season by the water's edge. He was within the law.

We visited a family of inquirers, talked and prayed for them. Would that they and all the village might graze in green pastures by Living Waters. I rested, drank boiled cooled water, slept, and conducted worship, and said "Good-bye", that is, Salaam. Back over the long, dusty, rutty, dirty, hot. hard trail of twelve miles to Janjgir. Night had fallen when I reached home. The water lily leaves protruding from the crown had dried and burned as crisp as ashes. I questioned myself, just how much right had I to be out on a trip of this sort, in this heat, approaching the age of fifty, with that sort of a vehicle? Is this the best use of years of study and of scholastic degrees?

At once I drank three cups of salty warm water. After bathing, I sat down to supper. My wife and I reviewed the experiences of the day. She reported that the church in Janjgir was well filled to the doors, that Pandit Walters had preached a good sermon, and that both Junior and Senior Sunday Schools were encouraging. Of the missionaries, she alone had manned the fort that day in Janjgir.

The next day, Monday, as I rested over the high noontide, and read in the May issue of The Readers' Digest how men and women all over Europe count nothing as dear unto themselves, but gladly give ALL to a cause, my questions were answered: Cannot we give our ALL also to a cause, the cause of Him of Whom it is written,

"But none of the ransomed ever knew,
How deep the waters crossed;
Nor how dark was the night that our Lord went through Ere He found His sheep that was lost."

Of Him it is also written,

"Why do the nations rage . . .against Jehovah and His anointed? . . . I have set my king upon my holy hill of Zion . . . Ask of me, and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance, and the uttermost part of the earth for thy possession."

May I plead with you for the cause, His cause in Janjgir. Will you please pray, and pray some more, and continue to pray, that God may work His miracle of grace in Janjgir Tahsile?

Mennonite Home for Convalescent Children

By Jesse W. Hoover

In another article we have described the Argeles Concentration Camp for Refugees. We will not enter into any further discussion of its condition. If you could have been with us when we visited the camp, I am sure there would be no question concerning the sentiments we expressed in relation to it. We felt that we certainly must do something to help. The task seemed so stupendous that we were inclined to feel that the efforts of our groups could scarcely be felt. But always the appalling need continued to haunt us—a need which may truthfully be described as one of the greatest and most horrifying in the present critical situation. And at long last we have found what we believe to be an admirable and significant method for applying our relief efforts to these great, seething cauldrons of human misery. We have found our way to help effectively.

If you have read our descriptions of one of these camps as referred to above you can easily understand that all kinds of diseases are rather prevalent, especially among the children. A hospital is maintained at the camp, but it is inadequate for the total burden devolved upon it. Only the worst cases can be cared for there. And even cases that are taken to the hospital at the camp do not receive sufficient care, as it is often necessary to discharge them to be returned to the camp long before they are fully recovered. This is necessitated by the many more pressing cases waiting for admission, especially cases of sickness that require quarantine. So far as we know this is the first and only project of its kind at present. It was in this connection that we saw what we feel to be a marvelous opportunity for rendering a very valuable and significant service, in a way that is unique. We are establishing a convalescent home nearby, to care for children who are recovering from a siege of sickness, and are ready to be taken from the quarantined hospital, and would ordinarily be returned to the camp, but are not sufficiently strong enough to bear the rigors of such life. In our Mennonite Home for Convalescent Children they can continue a proper recuperation instead of reentering the terrible life-and-death struggle with the odds all against them.

At Canet Plage, just outside the city of Perpignan, along the sandy shore of the beautiful Mediterranean Sea, we found a vacant house large enough to accommodate a maximum of sixty children with the personnel necessary for its management. It is a lovely location in a village that to some of the American delegates is strongly reminiscent of their California homes. Southward in the distance, but plainly visible, are the rugged, snow-capped Pyrenees Mountains that mark the border between France and Spain. Stretching away to the north and west the Orientales Mountains are clearly seen. The triangular valley that lies between is a gorgeous garden spot. It is at the eastern extremity of this valley where it merges with the sea that the picturesque little sea-side village of Canet Plage is located. It is here that we are bringing some of the most unfortunate ones in the great, unfortunate masses of the camps—poor, sick, homeless, and almost hopeless children. Here we shall try to give them a new hope of life, here at the threshold of the valley of palms and evergreens, in the midst of rich vineyards and thriving gardens, with an abundance of healing sunshine and invigorating, pure, fresh air we want to help rebuild strong, healthy bodies. Here in a Home that is founded and directed by those whose hearts have been touched by the compassion of Him Who said, "Suffer the children to come unto Me," we hope to help rebuild stronger, healthier faculties as well. There is a wide sandy beach on which the convalescent children can bask and play in the sun. There is a large courtyard in which, at the time of this writing, a garden is being planted to help in the supplying of fresh wholesome vegetables. There is a large basement under the entire house, ample to accommodate a laundry for the colony, a storage for foodstuffs, fuel and all the necessary supplies for the carrying on of a large household.

There are three floors above the basement, with a total of twenty rooms. It was formerly the home of a physician and is admirably suited to our purposes. We are working hard at present to complete all necessary arrangements for the accommodation of a full colony. A few children have already arrived. It is a joy to see these poor, homeless, half-starved boys and girls respond to the loving Christian influence and atmosphere that we strive to foster there. As Miss Gerber has said, "It is impressing to see these sweet children at table. They must be very, very hungry, as they eat wordless, fast, and with greediness."

We are most happy for this opportunity for service in this way. Although it is in a slightly different way than anything we have done heretofore, yet it is the same work of helping those for whom Christ died. We are seeking to reach them and to awaken their stunned spiritual faculties, by lifting first the load of physical suffering and of mental anguish, at least in part. We are at Canet Plage beginning a new phase of our labors of lifting. We are sure that this particular avenue of service holds promise of great possibilities for good. The ultimate goal of our efforts is the dispelling of spiritual darkness and the salvation of souls. We trust that all of our work, including this newest effort, will have your constant support. One of the most important methods of support which anyone can employ is by way of the throne. We crave your remembrance at the mercy seat. For we have launched in the spirit of Christian compassion, as a cup of cold water in His name.

Yours for the distressed, Jesse W. Hoover

REPORT OF THE 49th SESSION OF THE Northern District Conference

(This report has been waiting for publication for several weeks due to the limited space in the paper because of announcements and other material which claimed priority rights. Ed.)

The Mennonite Church of Butterfield, Minnesota, was host to the 49th session of the Northern District Conference with the neighboring churches assisting. Delegates and guests were extended every courtesy, and one immediately felt at home among these good people.

The Conference had as its motto, "The Holy Spirit", and opened with a "Ministers' Retreat" on Saturday afternoon. Three round table topics were discussed: (1) "The Holy Spirit and the Pastor", P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kans., (2) "The Pastor's Obligation Regarding the Teaching of the Holy Spirit in the Church", Albert Ewert, Frazer, Mont., and (3) "The Contrary Influence to the Evil Spirit that is now Working in the Children of Disobedience", Jac. A. Tieszen, Dalton, S. Dak.

Early on Sunday morning people began to file into the high school auditorium, and when the hour had arrived to open the services, the quiet spacious auditorium was filled and overflowing. Three services were arranged for the morning: (1) A service in the church for children, from the 1st to the 6th grades; (2) a service in the Fire Hall for young people; (3) a service in the high school auditorium for adults.

The host pastor, Rev. Albert Schultz, now gave the address of welcome basing his remarks on Num. 10:29 and Eph. 4:30, followed by two songs, "Near the Cross" and "My Jesus I Love Thee", by the audience. The remainder of the morning was devoted to Missions. Rev. P. H. Unruh, spoke on Home Missions, using as his text, Gen. 37:16. Miss Aganetha Fast, Mountain Lake, Minn., returned missionary from China, spoke on Foreign Missions, choosing for her topic, "The Triumph of the Cross and its Challenge to Us," referring to the crucifixion story as a basis for her remarks. Both messages were Spirit-filled and a real challenge to all Christians "not to faint nor to become weary in bringing the Gospel Message to a needy people in a troubled world."

The afternoon meeting was opened by Beltram Van Tassel, a young man from Minneapolis, Minn., who is preparing for the ministry, who read Rom. 1:1-17, and gave a brief testimony. Next followed a brief message, based on I Thess. 1:1-2, by Rev. D. D. Eitzen of Los Angeles, California, who is a native of Minnesota. Then followed the address by the Conference President, Dr. J. D. Unruh, who chose for his subject, "A Glorious Heritage." II Thess. 2:15, "Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word, or our epistle."

Rev. P. H. Unruh of the Alexanderwohl Church of Goessel, Kansas, who was asked to come to the Northern District Conference to bring a series of messages on the Holy Spirit, was allotted time for one message at each session. Brother Unruh's messages, without exception, were heart-searching, stirring, and thought-provoking. The Holy Spirit and its function has been very vividly portrayed to us in these days.

The Sunday School Convention on Sunday evening drew a large crowd of people. Loud speakers were always used inside the auditorium, but for this occasion and the Christian Endeavor program on Monday evening, speakers were also stationed outside the auditorium to accommodate the overflow of people. Three topics were dealt with at this convention, and each speaker succeeded in impressing upon us the importance of presenting Christ to the child in its early youth. The Sunday School teachers, too, were given very helpful and suggestive illustrations in regard to methods of presenting the lesson.

On Monday morning the conference gathered for the observance of the Lord's Supper which was in charge of the Reverends John Bartell and H. H. Quiring. The Communion Sermon was brought by Rev. I. J. Dick. Text: John 6:48-56 and I Cor. 10:16-26.

It is always a solemn occasion when we approach the Lord's Table, and so again, His Gethsemane and Mount Calvary experience and sacrifice for our atonement and redemption became more real to us. At the conclusion of this impressive service the conference convened for its business session. All the churches of the district were represented—86 delegates represented 157 votes. Five other churches who had made application for membership in our district conference were, upon recommendation of the Evangelization Committee, taken into our conference, so that the Northern District now numbers 29 churches with an approximate church membership of 5,250.

A brief memorial service was conducted under the direction of Jacob A. Tieszen, D. P. Eitzen, and Jacob Stoez, honoring those who have had a special interest in this conference at one time, and during the past year have been called to their eternal home.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Walter H. Dyck, Beatrice, Nebraska

(The Devotional Messages from August 1 to 7 should have appeared in last week's issue. It was not Rev. Dyck's fault that they failed to appear for he had them in on time, so we wish to take this opportunity to apologize to him as well as to you readers for this error on our part. We are sorry it happened —Ed.)

AUGUST 1—"It is good for me to draw near to God." Ps. 73:28a.

Blessed is the man who finds happiness in the nearness of God. He is "nearer to me than breathing, nearer than hands and feet." But my waywardness has again caused me to go astray. God wills to find me. But we must not hide but bare ourselves before Him. We must know what is "good" for us. To be away from God is to be alone. To draw ourselves to Him is to find Him ready to meet our longing soul. James says (4:8), "Draw nigh to God and He will draw nigh to you." "There is a place of quiet rest near to the heart of God. A place where sin cannot molest, near to the heart of God." Do I realize that this is "good for me"?

AUGUST 2—"Greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world." I John 4:4b.

Do I understand that today my body and soul are the battleground between two forces? God is within. The adversary, the devil, is attacking from without. My body is the temple of the Holy Spirit. I have given Him the right to "reign supreme and reign alone." He who referred to this battle as: "Foes without and fears within" truly foresaw the only cause for my defeat. Is the outcome of the conflict in doubt? Certainly not if we believe Jesus' words, "I have overcome the world." He came to destroy the works of the devil. "Greater" is He that is in you. The outcome of the battle has long since been decided, but we must "be sober, be vigilant: because your adversary the devil . . . walketh about seeking whom he may devour." Let us resist steadfastly knowing that God is "greater."

AUGUST 3—"Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves." II Cor. 13:5a.

On this day of rest we withdraw from our labors. It is for the purpose of checking our bearings. "Let him that standeth take heed lest he fall." The admonition reads, "Examine yourselves." Can we say, "Not my brother nor my sister but it's me, O Lord, standing in the need of prayer." It is easier to examine others. But self-examination is more profitable. Our zeal, our willingness, and our work may be more abundant than our faith. We may have built beyond our foundation. "Without faith it is impossible to please Him." Faith means trust in a Person. Trust in Christ Who gave Himself as an offering for sin. Trust in Him Who plans our lives. Let us examine our "faith." Are we helpless without Him. Do we feel it? If so, then "cast all your care upon Him for He careth for you."

AUGUST 4—"We walk bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ." II Cor. 10:3, 5.

He who wrote these words knew what it meant to reflect upon a sinful past. He had been persecutor of Christians. Thoughts might have tortured him had it not been that Christ had forgiven his past. Now, he who calls himself a "bond slave" of Christ also insists that his thought-life be brought into captivity to his Master. St. Paul knew that " as a man thinketh in his heart so is he." So "forgetting those things which are behind" he set to the task of capturing every thought. The thought of anxiety regarding the future was captured. He was only a bond servant. His Master planned it all. The thought of present temptation was downed: "I keep my body under." Lord, also bring my thoughts into the "jail" of your obedience.

AUGUST 5—"Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men." Col. 3:23

Now that we know that we are in the faith and that our thoughts are subject to Christ we are ready to work for Him. There are different degrees of enthusiasm in work . When only men are the masters we often are "men pleasers," work when they observe and shirk when their backs are turned. But Christians always have another Master. He is above all who supervise our work. He is "in every place beholding the evil and the good." So "whatever ye do"—in daily toil, though the day be long and dreary; in spiritual service for the Lord of Life, wherever my station may be—it's the Lord Whom I serve. What! No enthusiasm working for the greatest Employer? No thrill when Jesus says: "I call you not servants . . . I have called you friends." Are you working heartily as unto the Lord?

AUGUST 6—"Wisdom is better than weapons of war: but one sinner destroyeth much good." Eccl. 9:18.

Was I not taught at mother's knee that "the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom? Solomon speaks to our beloved country and our time. The desire to know is God-given. Why is it then, that the grandest of inventions (discoveries of God in nature) are being exploited as "weapons of war?" To know Christ as the God of Love incarnate, to do whatever He has commanded us, to love in the face of hatred—these prove our discovery of Him

Who is "the wisdom of God." Wisdom on one side; misunderstanding on the other. Love on the one; hatred on the other. "One sinner destroyeth much good." How much can millions at each other's throats destroy? One Savior became "sin for us." How much could millions do "who follow in His train?"

AUGUST 7—"Be content with such things as ye have: for he hath said, I will never leave thee." Heb. 13:5

Oh, the multitude of things that we would have to have to begin being content with them! The more we have the more we want. Never do our earthly desires abate. How blessed that spiritual wealth has no respect for the status of material abundance! A rich man may or may not be content. A poor man may or may not be happy. A poor man may be rich. A rich man may be poor. All rich or poor are poor apart from Christ. All rich or poor in Christ are "content with such things as they have." Have we Christ? Then why not be content? "Godliness with contentment is a great gain." Why? "For He has said, 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee.' "

AUGUST 8—"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul." Psalm 19:7a.

We hate to be reminded that there is a law of the Lord. The word torah which is translated law means teaching or instruction. The word converting means restoring. Isn't this a beautiful thought? The Lord's instructions restore us. To what do they restore us? To the blue-prints God holds which describe each of us. I am building day by day. My work yesterday permitted variations from His plan. Now I look into the Word of God and receive instructions whereby my life may be restored to His will. The Psalmist says, "He restoreth my Soul." May we see this pattern clearly today. May it restore to fellowship, peace, and activity for Him.

AUGUST 9—"The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord." Psalm 37:23.

We live only a day at a time. Life is often divided into years, months, or days. It is suggested here that life should be measured by the progress "a good man" makes. A step forward, a cup of cold water given in the name of the Lord, a word of testimony for Him, a word of comfort to the bereaved or discouraged. Jesus came to do the works of the Father. When He said, "It is finished," He referred to work rather than time. Our concern, serving Him, "Who first loved us," will be one of faithfulness with an eye toward accomplishment. Not how long it takes, but that it leads onward and upward. The promise of help is for the present step—the present day. Are my steps ordered by the Lord?

AUGUST 10—"Resist the devil, and he will flee from you." Jas. 4:7b.

The outcome of battles being waged in many places of the world toway are in doubt. We face the reassuring thought that the outcome of the onsloughts of Satan do not stand in doubt, "he will flee from you." But there is one condition which we must be vigilant to observe. Christian non-resistance is often misapplied as it becomes a passiveness toward evil. Love God, friends, and enemies? Yes! Parry with Satan and things of the world? No! We must put up an uncompromising, unrelenting resistance. Jesus says, "Resist not him that is evil." This cannot refer to Satan. If we permit him room in our heart, or love to play on his territory, the outcome is a victory for him. Resist him and he must flee.

AUGUST 11—"The Lord is on my side; I will not fear: what can man do unto me?" Ps. 118:6.

In these days of factions, in these days of conflicting demands in loyalties, in these days of fearfulness, lest another gain an "edge over me", we hear the confident Psalmist draw the line, not between lesser things, but between God and the fears and devices of men. Nations fear and invent weapons to create fear. Men see other men as monsters. They even again resort to making God a tribal deity, one who would be only on one side of murderous hosts. Our text says, "The Lord is on my side: I will not fear." A God who is no larger than any one nation, one who needs the implements of war to sustain him, one who fears and hates and kills is too small for me. I want the One who casts out fear.

ANGUST 12—"Let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath." Jas. 1:19b.

Three pertinent suggestions are found in this text. they each apply to all men. One admonition to be "swift" and two to be "slow." First, "swift to hear." Due to carelessness and self-interest we are slow to respond to the wishes and needs of others. We need interest in the welfare of others rather than in their affairs. To know much about others and to feel keenly with them is at the heart of a Christian's companionship. "Bear ye one another's burdens." Secondly, "slow to speak." That's where the harm often comes in. We gossip and destroy confidence by giving out confidential matters. "Know much but tell little" is a good watchword. Thirdly, be "slow to wrath." The knowing, the quiet, and the calm have a great treasure. Lord help me to keep knowledge, keep my tongue, and keep my temper.

AUGUST 13—"When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him." Prov. 16:7.

With the possible exception of a time of violent persecution, a Christian can determine the attitude of others toward him. The wise man, Solomon, believed that the burden of proof of the effectiveness of a love-life lay with the Christian. If a person hates me, it is for me to prove by my faith and work for God that the enmity will not be fostered from my side. We believe the best way to destroy enemies is to make friends of them. Although acts of kindness win over opposition, we are not to work to gain only the favor of men. Our purpose must be to "please the Lord." Then men will see our "good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven."

AUGUST 14—"Know therefore that God exacteth of thee less than thine iniquity deserveth." Job 11:6.

Here Job, the man of God, again asks us to look sanely at our depravity. The wages of sin is death. There is no basis on which we could work ourselves into a favorable light before God. We cannot lift ourselves by bootstraps. We are down and must admit it. Now, when God appears in His holiness and stern justice we are prone to say, "God, you are not fair to us." But what can we say? What it costs me is always much less than what it costs Him. If He were to present us with the "account in full," we would not be able to pay. "Exacting less" is another expression for grace or mercy. We are saved and kept by grace.

MENNONITE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Civilian Public Service News

Some problems have arisen in our camps in regard to Sunday visits of boys by outside friends. We are glad to have friends visit the boys during the visiting hours on Sunday, 1 to 5 p. m., but obviously visitors should also have due regard for the welfare of the camp. Here are some suggestions which we hope our constituency will be thoughtful enough and courteous enough to respect.

1. Moderation in the frequency of visits. One camp recently was seriously embarrassed by the large number of people which crowded the camp on Sunday.

2. Respect the visiting hours, Sunday, 1 to 5 p. m. By special permission of the camp director, other hours can be arranged also on week days. During the working hours, 7 a. m. to 5 p. m., on work days boys will not be excused because of visitors except for very good reasons.

3. Respect the camp. The camp is the home of the boys. Visitors should respect this home with the same thoughtful courtesy with which they respect the home of their friends or the home of anyone else. People should observe a sensitive regard for the feelings of the boys to whom these quarters are home. There should be no thoughtless prowling around in any of the buildings. If the camp staff gives visitors the liberty of the camp they do so with the confidence that visitors will observe the common courtesy customary among Christian people.

4. Respect the rules of the camp. The boys in consultation and cooperation with their staff have agreed on certain standards and customs as good camp practice. For instance the boys in our camps have generally agreed that the use of tobacco is out of place in the camp. Numbers of boys who were accustomed to using it before, have for the good of the camp discontinued the habit. We hope our visitors in camp will respect standards like these and others.

5. Respect religious services on Sunday. The religious services are conducted regularly Sunday morning and evening. By arrangement with the camp office, visitors are permitted to attend, in fact, are welcome to attend. They should, however, use the same care as in their own churches not to disturb the meetings while in progress.

6. The camp does not provide free board for visitors. Our budget makes no provision for it. If the cooks know of your visit far enough in advance and of your desire to take a meal with them, they can provide for a reasonable number of visitors, but visitors are expected to pay for their meals at 25¢ per person.

The question of week-end leaves and furloughs is one of the first questions that is raised by the boys. It is customary in all C. P. S. camps not to grant week-end leaves or furloughs during the first month in conformity with the practice in military camps. Some exceptions have been made. Complete rules covering leaves and furloughs have as yet not been established but doubtless will soon be set up. A certain number of boys always have to remain in camp and only a certain percentage can have week-end leaves. Obviously boys can only take their just share of week-end leaves.

The spirit of the boys in our camps is excellent. One is delighted to discover with what wholeheartedness our boys have taken over their duties in camp and their part in the work program. One is at times almost amused at the resourcefulness the boys have used in ordering their life in camp and their living arrangements so that it may appear and feel homelike. One is also struck by their efforts to beautify the camp grounds by the planting of flowers or trees or by landscaping activities. Even people in the surrounding communities have in varying degrees taken recognition of the fact that we have a "fine bunch of boys" in camp.

JAMES TEACHES CONSISTENT CHRISTIAN LIVING

James 1:17-22; 2:14-17; 4:13-17; 5:12

Introduction

The Epistle of James was written by the Lord's brother, James. He appears to have remained in Jerusalem after Pentecost and to have risen to an eminent place of leadership in the church of Jerusalem (Gal. 2:9). His epistle is the most Jewish book in the New Testament. Christ is mentioned only twice. There is no mention of the incarnation or of the resurrection, two fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith. This epistle reflects more of the teachings of Jesus than does any other epistle. It consists almost entirely of exhortations concerning practical Christian living.

Hearing and Doing, vs. 17-22

Jesus closed His Sermon on the Mount with some solemn statements concerning hearing and doing. James takes up the same thought. It is the duty of every man to hear the Word and then to obey it. God is the giver of all that is good and perfect. He is always the same. His nature is unchangeable always perfectly good. Christians, by the grace of God, are the product of the gospel, the first-fruits of the harvest among God's creatures. The Christian is to grow in the soil of the Word of God. He is to be ready and eager to hear God's Word. He is to be cautious in speaking (v. 19). Human wrath does not produce righteous conduct. The Christian is to permit the engrafted word to bear fruit in life. The final test is in deeds, the proof of our sincerity.

Believing and Doing, vs. 14-17

Unless a man's actions agree with his words, his profession of faith is vain Faith which is merely belief, cannot save anyone. True faith will issue in good deeds, in loving kindness (v. 15). A faith that does not express itself in deeds is lifeless (v. 17), amounting to nothing in practical living. The Christian expresses his faith in the life he lives.

Planning and Doing, 4:13-17

James is speaking to those who make their plans as though the control of their lives was fully in their hands (v. 13). They do not take God's will into account. We live by the grace and bounty of God. The getting of gain is an uncertain matter and no one is certain of a single day ahead. We should continually recognize in our inmost soul that an overruling God may change our plans and prevent our completing them (v. 15). This is the secret of holy living, of Christian living. This will save us from many follies. Boasting about the future should not enter into the Christian's talk. If we know what is good and refuse to do it, we commit sin (v. 17). If we refuse to follow the light of the truth as God gives it to us, we are guilty before Him. Simple and direct speech is the proper thing for the Christian. He is always trustful in words. His God-given voice is to be used for praising God and should not be used in any unpraiseworthy manner. The life of a Christian should be consistent with his profession.

Just what do you mean by "hearing the Word?"

What is the relation between faith and conduct or deeds?

What harm is done to Christ's cause by the inconsistent church member?

IN MEMORIAM

KATHRYN GRABER, daughter of Peter Jos. and Caroline (Waltner) Graber, was born near Marion, S. D., on July 3, 1902. In her youth she accepted Christ as her personal Savior, was baptized by Rev. Alfred Waltner and united with the Salem Zion Church in 1919. Since June 27, 1926, she had her fellowship with the Salem Church. On August 28, 1924, she was united in marriage to Jonathan F. Graber. To this union two children were born. They shared joys and sorrows for almost seventeen years.

On June 19, when riding on a horse from the field at noon, she got entangled in the harness and was dragged around by the frightened horse. She was picked up unconscious in the barn, and rushed to the Sioux Valley Hospital where everything humanly possible was done for her, including a brain operation. She never regained consciousness and passed into peaceful rest on June 25, at 6:55 p. m. She attained the age of 39 years less 8 days.

Her unexpected death is mourned by her beloved husband; two children, Verda, 15, and Leo, 12; her mother; seven sisters, Mrs. Amelia Juhnke, Mrs. Anna Schwartz, Mrs. Alma Schrag, Mrs. Esther Dalke, Mrs. Helen Miller, Mrs. Alfa Miller, Mrs. Louise Stucky; one brother, Fred; her parents-in-law; and many relatives and friends. Her father and brother, John, preceded her in death. She is missed by her family and friends who valued her patience and kindness. She took pleasure in attending to her duties and the church service.

Y. P. EXHIBIT

An item of unusual interest in the Y. P. display will be a series of posters, containing pictures, facts and projects undertaken by the Eastern District Y. P. Union, one for every year since 1932. Theodore Moyer, Line Lexington, is preparing the work.

DeWitt Temple plans to show the extent of correspondence between young Mennonites in Penna. and those in Canada, on a map of N. A. Perhaps, other districts could prepare the same poster.

LeRoy and Viola Weidener of Allentown, are working on a small scale model of Camp Menno-Lan, (our E. D. C. Retreat Camp) which will be used as a part of the Y. P. Exhibit at Souderton.

John Moser, of the Hereford Church, has charge of all publications such as the Vine Press, Western District Tidings, Workers' Exchange, etc., and is desirous of completing the files before Conference, if possible. This part of the Exhibit should prove interesting to all visitors. —Anna Weiss

A RETREAT EXPERIENCE

The following letter was written to the young people of the Western District by Miss Ella M. Wiebe, Dean of Women at Bethel College and a member of this year's Retreat faculty.

Since returning from our Camp Wood Retreat my thoughts have lingered over those happy days of fellowship together. As this was my first Retreat, I would like for you and your committee to know how much I enjoyed it.

It was a rare privilege to have with us Dr. P. A. Penner, this man of God who is truly as a tree planted by the rivers of water! How I wish that all of our young people might have the opportunity to learn to know him in the casual and leisurely contacts of camp life while he is still young enough to share the joyousness of youth! Camp life is a bit strenuous, but I did enjoy the genuineness and spontaneity in human fellowship when collars and ties are left off, and the curl comes out of the hair, and one is allowed to be freely oneself. The democracy of camp life is best demonstrated at the end of every meal when everyone from seventeen to seventy, the Ph. D. and the high school freshman, pool their zest and energy to get the dishes washed, the tables set, and the floors swept as quickly as possible, and on the last afternoon, to clean up the camp before leaving. This gives even the most timid youth a sense of belongingness, a glimpse of realization that in the Kingdom of God we are all laborers together.

Rev. Arnold Funk deserves commendation for his merry and untiring efforts to keep every phase of camp life under sympathetic and yet firm supervision, and it kept him as bouncing busy as those ping-pong balls which found no rest between 6:00 a. m. and 10:15 p. m., except during class and meal times. Those young people had a good time, and many new friendships were formed. It seems to me this is important. There has been in the past too much inter-marrying among small groups which sometimes resulted in un-Christian "holier-than-thou" attitudes, and in an unfortunate narrowing down of interests in the community. At the College we mix them, as you know, but not nearly all of our young people can go to college, and it seems to me we owe to them this opportunity. As a modern St. Paul might say, "How shall they marry whom they have not met? And how shall they meet, if there be no Retreat?" If we wish to keep our young people from marrying outside the churches, we need earnestly to think about this matter.

Although this was largely a high school group, there were many older, even married, persons attending. One young man said this was his sixth Retreat. This raised the question whether there should not be a Retreat for older young people? In our day, temptation is multiplied for youth, and the church owes to them a greater preparedness. Such experiences as Communion early in the morning by the lake, or evening devotions on the hill as the sun sets beyond the valley before us, can give us a sense of the presence of God which will never be erased.

Yours, for more Retreats and more Retreaters,

Ella M. Wiebe

ANTI-GAMBLING

Program for August 24, 1941

Leading Topic: A Christian Standard against Gambling. Ex. 20:15; Amos 8:4-10.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs from the Mennonite Hymnary: "I Look to Thee in Every Need," No. 244; "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," No. 142; "Take Thou My Hand, O Father," No. 561.
2. Reading of main topic, and Prayer.
3. Roll Call, answered by favorite Bible verses.
4. Offering for Home Mission work.

II. Leader's Introduction

The most surprising aspect of the problem of gambling in America is that many people engage in gambling under church auspices. Christian people, who would not think of entering a gambling establishment or support it on a large scale, do not realize that such things as chances, raffles, door prizes, and gambling games where one expects to obtain a large value for very little money also belong to the class of "gambling". In taking a Christian stand against gambling let young people have a conviction about it and let them work it out in their daily life.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Gambling with Life	Jas. 4:13-15
2. A Gamble with the Soul	Luke 12:16-21
3. Lots Cast for Christ's Cloak	John 19:23,24
4. Safeguard against Sin	Romans 13:11-14
5. Beware of Evil Appearance	I Thess. 5:21,22
6. A Safe Standard	Romans 14:16-22

IV. For Discussion

1. Why do you think that gambling is wrong?
2. What are the dangers that are connected with gambling?
3. What are better ways of making money than gambling devices?

V. Facts for Study

The idea of responsibility needs new and stronger emphasis. The sense of accountableness and of coming reckoning for conduct has widened and deepened in modern times, passing from individuals to groups, and again to larger units. There is a feeling about that we are to be our "brother's keeper" and that whatever affects his welfare and his well-being is our business. We pray, "Lead us not into temptation" and that includes our brother. So we should feel also about creating conditions everywhere which safeguard young people against the evils of gambling.

VI. Illustration

An English aviator was flying across Arabia. Because of motor trouble, he was forced to land in an open field. He repaired the motor and flew again into the air. Soon he heard a grating noise which sounded like the gnawing of an animal. This was very disturbing to him.

Remembering that the lower animals cannot live in a high altitude, the Englishman turned his machine upward into the high pure air. The gnawing ceased. Later when the man landed, he found a huge dead field-rat in the bottom of his plane. The rat could not live in the high altitude.

There are moral pests which threaten the character of men—dishonesty, selfishness, greediness, impurity. These live only in a low atmosphere. If they are gnawing at your life now, you are flying too low.

VII. Food for Thought

"To every soul there openeth
A high way and a low,
And the high soul climbs the high way,
And the low soul gropes the low,
And in between on the misty flats
The rest grope to and fro.—
But the high soul climbs the high way,
And the low soul gropes the low,
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go.

MAKING OUR LIVES BEAUTIFUL

Program for August 24, 1941

Poem: The Mosaic Worker

Patient above his tinted tiles he bent
With certain touch, as if he knew
The meaning in the glinting disarray
Would find at last a pattern true.

And slowly beauty flowered at his will,
Telling the beauty hidden in his thought,
With fragments, broken, shapeless, each in place,
Until the perfect whole he wrought.

So may our days, unmeaning each by each,
Fragmentary, patternless, and dull,
Under the Craftman's sure and knowing hand
Become a life made beautiful.

5. Scripture reading by a Junior boy: James 3:1-12.
6. Solo: "O Worship the King", verses 1 and 2.
7. In unison pray the prayer found in Psalm 19:14 (Seated).
8. Poem by a Junior girl:

The Arrow

I shot an arrow into the air—
It fell to earth— I knew not where,
For so quickly it flew—the sight

Could not follow it in its flight.
"I breathed a song into the air,
It fell to earth— I knew not where
For who has sight, so keen and strong,
That it can follow the flight of song?

"Long, long, afterward, in an oak
I found the arrow still unbroke
And the song from beginning to end
I found again in the heart of a friend."

—Henry W. Longfellow

9. Duet: "Kind Words Can Never Die."

II. Study period

Aim: To help our Juniors to realize that by our words we show that we are Christians. To create in them the desire to be always thoughtful and kind in their speech.

1. Introduction by a Junior girl.

Mr. Hutchison in his book, "The Children's Hour", says: "The word 'apples' (in our verse) means oranges. The finest oranges in the world are the Jaffa oranges that grow in Palestine. By 'pictures of silver'," he says, "Solomon means the orange blossoms. The orange tree is the only tree on which you can see ripe fruit and blossoms at the same time. It is a beautiful sight, the lovely golden oranges and a little wreath of white fragrant blossoms around each orange. Solomon says words that fit are like those lovely orange trees. They are a delight to everyone who comes near."

2. Bible drill: Proverbs 25:11; 8:6,7; 10:11, 10:20; 15:23b; 12:18; 12:22; 21:23; Isa. 50:4; Luke 4:22; Matt. 12:36.

3. Two-minute talks by three Juniors:

a. Words fitly spoken are words that bring courage, cheer, comfort, Proverbs 12:18b.

b. We ought to think of the people to whom we speak and make our words fit. Proverbs 15:23b.

c. Words that fit are well chosen words, not slang, or rough, crude words. Matt. 12:36.

4. Story by a Junior boy.

The Three Sieves

by Ella Lyman Cabot

A little boy came running home from school and shouted to his mother, "Oh, mother, what do you think I heard about Tom Jones?"

"Wait, son," said his mother, "Did you put what you heard about Tom through three sieves before you decided to tell me?"

"Three sieves! Why, what do you mean, mother?"

"The first sieve is called Truth. Is what you heard true?"

"I don't really know, but Bob said, Charlie told him that Tom . . ."

"That's rather round about. And the second sieve is Kindness. Is it kind?"

"No, it isn't kind."

"And the third sieve is Necessity. Is it necessary to tell. Must you tell this?"

"No, I don't need to tell it."

"Well, if it may not be true, if it is not kind, and if it is not necessary for you to tell, let the story die."

—From "The Expositor"

5. Solo: Verse three of "Open My Eyes That I May See".

6. Leader's heart talk: "Christ's gracious words," Luke 4:22; John 4:46.

7. Sentence Prayers (everyone taking part).

Pray that we may use our words for Christ.

III. Mission Minutes

A three minute "Mission sing". Let three Juniors each choose a missionary song. Sing one verse of each song chosen.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Repeat from memory in unison the verse for the month: Proverbs 3:6.
2. Sing together the song for the month: "Here is My Heart".
3. Together pray the prayer for the month: Psalm 51:10,15.
4. Sing softly: "Into My Heart"

CORRESPONDENCE

HUTCHINSON MENNONITE CHURCH

July 14, 1941

Much too often we fail to appreciate fully the unselfish service which is rendered in behalf of our Conference by men and women who are interested in keeping the constituency informed regarding matters pertaining to the life of the churches. We take for granted the appearance of the church papers each week without giving thought to the fact that someone has spent time and energy in compiling the reading matter which we find so interesting and helpful.

We regret very much the loss of Dr. J. R. Thierstein who so nobly filled a responsible position in the Publication Board. May his good influence live on while others continue to render the same unselfish service.

As time passes on, our church here in Hutchinson feels the need of all the help it is possible to obtain in order to keep the coming generation informed regarding the principles for which our denomination stands. The church papers fill a need here for which there is no substitute. The churches in the cities have problems which do not appear in the rural communities. Our church is no exception. Rev. C. H. Dirks and his good wife have worked faithfully in trying to solve some of the difficulties which arise, but the work is becoming harder as the mode of living changes.

The latest reports show an increase in attendance over the past year, for which we thank the Lord. The Vacation Bible School which was held for two weeks during the latter part of June, together with two other smaller churches, was very well attended, there being 145 pupils enrolled. During the summer months the evening meetings are being held in the open, together with the neighboring churches.

On May 15, Brother and Sister C. C. Epp suffered the loss of their oldest son, Abraham, who was laid to rest Sunday, May 18. On the brighter side of life, we can report the golden wedding anniversary of Brother and Sister Andrew Schroeder, which was commemorated by a large circle of friends and relatives on March 2, at the church.

Important, too, are the marriages of Esther Gaede, Lela Matthies, Justina Kroeker, Eva Siebert, and Florene Krehbiel, all of our church group.

As the time for the General Conference session draws nearer, we are again reminded how dependent we have been upon others for the work which has been done here in our city. May we assure you of our deepest appreciation for the interest you have in us, and may you be certain that the work has not been in vain. Many souls have found comfort in the sanctuary which you have provided for those who have no church home.

May the Master reward all of you richly, is the prayer of the membership of the Hutchinson First Mennonite Church.

BERGFELDER CHURCH, DELFT, MINNESOTA

July 14, 1941

Summer is well on its way again, and with it the various churches in this community held their annual Children's Day and Mission festivals. Our church chose July 6 as its "fest" day. Sunday School was omitted from the forenoon, and, instead, the children gave their program. We were blessed through their service. Miss Anna Quiring, returned missionary from Africa, delivered a short message which was enjoyed a great deal, especially by the children. Rev. H. H. Quiring from the Mt. Lake Bergfelder church delivered a German message on home missions during the afternoon sessions, and Dr. P. A. Penner, retired missionary from India, gave a very interesting and inspiring report of his forty years' mission work in India. We felt we had a day of great spiritual blessing.

Sunday, July 13, the ladies' and men's choirs, together with Rev. Bartel, were out early, for they were to be near Doland, S. D., for the morning service. The Lord gave us a cool, cloudy day which made driving very comfortable, and we were all on time after the drive of 210 miles. Rev. J. A. Friesen serves that community and we received a hearty welcome from all. The choirs, together with their pastor, rendered three different programs, morning, afternoon, and evening, and truly felt the presence of the Holy Spirit at each service, for which we were very thankful. The Emanuel Church had prepared a fine supper for the visitors, and they served us before and after the program, in the evening. We had large gatherings at each service, and together we rejoiced in the Lord. All returned the same evening, and we are truly thankful to our heavenly Father who watches over and cares for His own. May the Lord bless and keep the dear people in South Dakota. —Mrs. Abram P. Baerg, Corr.

REPORT OF THE NORTHERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The following were remembered: Rev. P. R. Schroeder, Rev. W. S. Gottshall, Mrs. Rev. D. A. Schultz, Rev. Jacob Shartner, and Rev. Henry Friesen. Ps. 116:15.

The various committee and treasury reports were given and approved without much debate, which may be interpreted to mean that they have done good work.

Dr. H. A. Fast of the M. C. P. C., who with his family was just concluding a brief visit with home folks in Mountain Lake, was called upon for a report of Civilian Camps, and the work as outlined for the conscientious objector. His message was informative, and well received; this information should be carried back to the boys of the various churches by their pastors and delegates.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor program on Monday evening opened with roll call, a delegate from each C. E. responding by giving a suggestion how we can improve our C. E. This would infer that our C. E's need to be improved. Special emphasis was placed in a topic on the standard requirements of C. E. members. We hope that each member will go back to his society and put some of these suggestions into actual practice.

Tuesday morning was devoted to unfinished business, and an inspirational message by Rev. P. H. Unruh. It was voted to accept with thanks the invitation of the Salem Zion Congregation, Freeman, S. Dak., to hold the next conference session there. It will be the Golden Jubilee Anniversary of the Northern District Conference and is to be fittingly observed.

For the afternoon, the Ladies' Missionary Societies had, first their business meeting, then a program of wonderful missionary messages, readings, and music. Miss Anna Quiring, who spent eight years as a missionary in dark Africa, and Miss Aganetha Fast, who spent a good many years as a missionary in China, were the guest speakers. Then, too, there was a message by Mrs. R. E. Casey, commomorating the fortieth anniversary since the beginning of the Women's Missionary Society of the Butterfield Mennonite Church, on May 1, 1901.

Each year finds young people dedicating their lives to some definite Christian service. On Tuesday evening opportunity was given such to give their testimony. Seven young men and three ladies responded with brief messages. An evangelistic message by Rev. J. J. Esau, the blind evangelist, who came as a last day conference guest, was also given.

For the second time in the history of the Northern District Conference, the young people gathered for a young people's day. I believe, there is every evidence that such an arrangement will tend to create an interest in conference work among our young people, and contribute greatly toward maintaining an intimate relation and better understanding between the younger and the older people. A wholesome program consisting of inspirational messages, mass chorus work, lunch, and recreation, are the approximate schedule for their day. They apparently enjoy every phase of it.

The music provided for the conference was excellent and thoroughly appreciated by everyone. There was every evidence of extraordinary talent and training. Music consisted of mixed choruses, a men's chorus, a ladies chorus, quartettes, trios, solos, instrumental, etc.

Minnesota is a land with a profusion of flowers, that remind one of a great Creator. We enjoyed their fragrance, in addition to the hospitality of our generous hosts. The weather was cloudy and rather cool throughout, with some rain the last two days. May we share the rich experiences and blessings of this conference with our fellow-men along life's way.

—Adolph Preheim, Sec'y, N. Dist. Conference

C., they will need $1.00 per church member for the next six months to carry on this needed work. Our churches have not reached their set quota for the first six months, but it is hoped that they will give their share for carrying on our Mennonite peace testimony and send in their contribution soon. Reconsidering Values

In a time like the present, when international relations are strained, when national stability is threatened, when hatred seems to have the upper hand and love appears to be downed, it behooves clear-thinking, Christian individuals to reconsider on what they are placing the most value. What are the things we are striving after and considering of supreme value? Have we misplaced the emphasis when we accorded values to certain things?

Many years ago a story appeared in the Chicago Advance, telling of a discouraged doctor in a large city. When his father from the country visited him and inquired how he was getting along, the disheartened reply was: "I'm not getting along at all. I'm not doing a thing." Naturally the countenance of the father fell, for he had placed much hope upon his son, nevertheless, he tried to encourage him.

Later in the day, he went with his son to the "Free Dispensary" where the young doctor had an unsalaried position, and where he spent an hour or so each day. The father was a silent but intensely interested spectator while twenty-five poor unfortunates received help. The doctor forgot everything, bending his skilled energies to help them. When the last one had left, the father burst forth: "I thought you told me that you weren't doing anything! Why, if I had helped twenty-five people in a month as much as you have in one morning, I would thank God that my life counted for something."

"There isn't any money in it though," explained the son somewhat abashed.

"Money!" the old man shouted. "Money! What is money in comparison with being of use to your fellow men? Never mind about money. . . . I'll go back to the farm and gladly earn money enough to support you as long as I live—yes, and sleep soundly every night with the thought that I have helped you to help your fellow men."

On what are we placing the most value, on transient things or on those things which abide forever? "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

CREATIVE LOVE

By Harriet L. George

The God who makes a seed to hold
Potential life within its heart,
Inspires the potter's hand to mold
Creatively, ceramic art,
Or suits the chilling air of spring
To tender lamb's inherent need,
Whose master-artistry can fling
Bright color on a wayside weed,
Bestows no less of thoughtful care
Upon his own created race;
He waits for mankind everywhere
To turn from self, and seek his face.

When Mennonite Meets His Fellow Christian

"Blue Knob," towering above Blair County's entwining mountains, was casting his evening shadows. Six ministers and their wives were seated at a table in the north wing of the Eldon Hotel, Roaring Spring. The soft furnishings of the room lent a touch of tenderness to the occasion, a farewell dinner by the ministers of the community to Rev. and Mrs. Willard Claassen.

An observer seated at a nearby table could sense the strong, though hidden, emotions of the party who shared the evening meal. The words of appreciation that followed, in their very nature, intensified the emotional tension. It was a painful parting, not enjoyed by any of the group.

Brother Claassen had made his impact upon the community, as well as upon his fellow ministers, in this mountain-encased village. His quiet demeanor had won for him the respect and affection of its inhabitants. His messages in the Union Services were a delight to those who heard them. For two summers he had served as Assistant Dean of its Daily Vacation Bible School. His stay of two years besides Pennsylvania's Historic Spring had been all too brief.

There was something ominous in the silence that fell over the group. When they separated, they would never meet again in like capacity. A mystic circle was about to be broken, but segmented in twelve hearts were memories that re-occuring recollections would heighten and the passing years would not efface.

Without in the deepening twilight, the night hawks were tumbling about in their high, swift dives and giving their soft evening calls. Twelve empty chairs marked the circle that had been. Beyond in the still deeper shadows, the Spring, whose roar intrigued Red-man long before White-man's foot trod westward over the Alleghenies, continued to pour forth its abundant stream. Lutheran, Brethren, Church of God, Methodist, Reformed, and Mennonite had supped together in its environs. Again had been re-enacted the spirit of the group who had so frequently supped together in those brief Discipleship years. In the unseen had stood the Lord Whose words were again embodied in reality, "Where two or three gather in my name, there am I in the midst of them."

May it be ever thus when Mennonite meets with his fellow Christian! July 12, 1941—F.H.S.

Shall We Reverse Our Historic Peace Stand?

By William Juhnke, McPherson, Kansas

The heart of the Mennonite peace tradition lies in "the refusal of all oaths" and "the Christ-taught doctrine of peace and non-resistance." This may be the common knowledge of Mennonite and non-Mennonite alike. Separate statements of doctrine for each of the seventeen Mennonite bodies can be secured from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., by writing for the Census of Religious Bodies, Bulletin No. 17. On the above two points there is nearly complete unanimity of agreement among all Mennonite bodies.

Long before compulsory conscription was enacted peace counsel for Mennonite youth had been prepared. Many young Mennonites have had to face the question, "Does the historic peace tradition of my church force me to a particular stand?" For some of these young Mennonites the answer was relatively simple. They could not reconcile Christ and war in their conscience. They chose to register as conscientious objectors.

Other young Mennonites could not come to this decision. Many of these were intelligent and, in fact, perhaps most of them were in earnest. Some of them admitted that they did not understand just what the Church doctrine really was. Some of them saw their schoolmates go to military camp. They did not want to be dubbed "yellow" so they went with the crowd. There were few, if any, who betrayed their conscience in the hope of later success in industry or the professions as a result of going with the crowd. As a Church we should be deeply concerned with the first and second of these groups—those that were intelligent and in earnest in offering to do military service for defense of this country and those that did not understand our Church doctrine.

If as a Church we are correct in our view on non-resistance we need not be alarmed about those that are intelligent and in earnest for the simple reason that if we furnish them with fair information and with equal sincerity, they will ultimately come around to our point of view. Those that did not know about our Church doctrine needed information.

Use of Force

So we come to the vital question of "forcing" somebody into a particular position. If we need to "force" somebody into a particular peace position, it is asked, are we in line with our historic view? Is not one's peace position a personal and private matter?

At first glance this looks like a very subtle approach and one that is difficult to meet. But the answer is conditioned by our conviction about the central issue of this article: Shall we reverse our historic peace stand? What is our answer to this question? Already 624 young Mennonites have given their answer.* These young men have been assigned to or are already doing work in Civilian Camps. This number is almost three times that of any other of the historic peace churches in the present crisis. Can we answer this question other than in the negative?

So What?

If we accept the goal of maintaining our historic peace stand, our immediate and future course becomes clear.

First of all, we will not need to "force" a peace position on our young people. If we have to "force" a peace position on them now, we can be sure of this one thing, that somebody failed them in the past. Somebody was woefully negligent in explaining the Biblical basis of our peace conviction.

This logically leads to a second step—beginning a dynamic, continuous, and far-reaching Church program of indoctrination of the peace teaching of Christ. This needs to be done in our Sunday Schools, Christian Endeavors, and churches throughout our entire conference and in all its mission activities. The Scriptural basis must be stressed: "Thou shalt not kill," Exod. 20:13, Matt. 19:18; "Render to no man evil for evil but overcome evil with good," Rom. 12:17-21. Also Matt. 5:43, 44; Matt 26:52; I Pet. 2:21, 23.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

Where is the Christian College?

Excerpts from an article by Gould Wickey, General Secretary, Council of Church Boards of Education

The general purpose of the Church in establishing the Christian college is "to help discover and apply truth, and to help develop Christian personality under the best educational standards and procedures."

This institution is saturated with a Christian philosophy of life, which includes the ideas of the presence of a personal God in the universe working for the achievement of a divine plan, the reality of revelation and inspiration, the reality of spirit, and the message of salvation for man. These and other ideas implicit are constructive for the welfare of man and a developing society.

For the transmission of such a philosophy of life, Christian teachers are essential. Such teachers have a Christian consciousness, Christian convictions, and Christian courage. They teach religion all day long in whatever department they may serve. Their example and their varied activities, apart from their teaching, are means to the same end.

A correlated curriculum, in the hands of these Christian teachers, affords the student a comprehensive knowledge of the Bible, an adequate understanding of Christian truth, and right techniques of Christian living.

The activities of the students correspond to the principles of Christian culture and are planned to develop Christian personality in the students.

The policy of this college is Christian in business administration, in academic standards, and in the supervision of student life.

This college exists, but it is not perfect—not in such a world as this. Not until there are perfect individuals shall we have a perfect institution, and such a time will never come. The term "Christian College" is not a misnomer, unless you contend that the adjective "Christian" is applicable only to persons and not to institutions.

FOR SUCH A DAY AS THIS

Education means more than the development of the intellect. Man's whole personality must be included in the educational process. For this reason the Church and its educational program has been interested in the development of the moral and religious nature of youth.

Men grow on what they feed, intellectually and spiritually. On what they feed determines what men believe. What they believe determines what they will do. So what we put into our schools, we put into our homes, our society, and our government. Christian education does make a difference.

The Christian faith has been the nerve center of progress and the citadel of righteousness. Leaders with Christian ideals and principles are the effective agents for maintaining a desirable civilization and for conserving the great values of life. The church-related colleges are sending into all walks of life men and women with Christian ideals, Christian motives, and Christian principles.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

BASNA NEWSETTE

"A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation: I the Lord will hasten it in his time." Isa. 60:22.

In divine arithmetic God shows us how to multiply as well as add. To the missionary on the field there is great comfort in the fact that, although he himself is as nothing against the hosts of darkness, yet, with the Lord in His proper place as Leader and Commander, one shall become a thousand. A short report of the work follows.

HOSPITAL: We have been unusually busy the past months. One of our difficulties is that about half of the hospital work and surgery is done during the months of December to March, inclusive. One reason is that there is little work done in connection with the fields then. Since we are in a rural area this has a definite bearing upon the problem. Another reason is that one does not want to operate or be operated on during the extreme heat of April, May, and June. July to October are not much better.

We are still without an assistant doctor. Funds are being provided but with so many doctors entering the army it is difficult to find a suitable man. Without an assistant it is not only impossible to do credible work but also to get away from the station as one should for conferences, medical meetings, and hill leave. —H.E.D.

CHURCH: For some years a new church has been needed. The old mud-walled church has been a blessing in our midst, but, when it can with difficulty hold only about half of the congregation, a new building is in order. The new church is under construction. We hope to have it finished by the early part of 1942. Some of the labor is being donated by church members. With semi-famine conditions in this area, it is difficult for the working class of people to fill their stomachs, leave alone nourish their bodies and donate toward the building of a church. It is our aim that funds from America provide for the roof and the rest be raised here in India. Our plan is not to build a grand, expensive building but a beautiful well-built church which can readily be enlarged.

Any contribution toward the roof of the church will be gratefully received by the Mission Board. —H.E.D.

BUILDING: The extra work of moving the boy's middle school here has placed quite an added load upon us. The repair work of the station, supervising and planning buildings, digging a well, buying and sawing lumber and the burning of bricks are some of the extras which are thrown in for "good measure, pressed down, shaken together and runnnig over." The new school house is well under way. We are experiencing the difficulty that some of the building material is two and three times as high in price as it was when the building was planned. —H.E.D.

SCHOOL: The past two years, with their extra duties of looking after the 120 boarding children and helping supervise the industrial work, have been a real challenge to me. Ten months of the year these boys are away from their parents and in our charge. Are we making use of our opportunities in exerting the best influence on them? Will they grow up to be God-fearing boys who love their Saviour and will serve Him? There have been many encouraging things about our work. We have noticed spiritual growth and a change for the good in some who at first did not seem too promising. Over fifty boys and a few girls sat for catechetical instruction every Sunday afternoon. With the exception of about six, they have either taken baptism at Christmas time or expressed their desire to do so this summer. Considering the large group and the many different types of homes from which they come, we feel very thankful for the fine spirit, the cooperation and good feeling we have enjoyed.

This year we had the largest primary fourth class we had ever had. Of the twenty-three who attended regularly, twenty passed in the final examination given by the Inspector of Schools. Also in our eighth class only two of the twenty-two enrolled failed to pass. It has been, and increasingly is, a problem how to feed all these children on the allotted amount given as scholarships. Rice is more than double the price it was a year ago. Shall we reduce the number admitted? Shall we give less food or collect more fees? The past year every child in school had to pay a small fee of a few annas monthly. To increase this with the present semi-famine conditions is almost impossible. —H.R.D.

INDUSTRIAL WORK: In the industrial work of the school, weaving plays a big part and, no doubt, many of the ladies at home would be happy to lay in a supply of tablecloths, napkins, pillow tops, towels and even washable rugs. Miss Schmidt has worked out many interesting patterns and both she and Mrs. Dester have been successful in finding markets for the finished articles. Our Christians are weavers by trade but if they cannot find a market then their weaving is not profitable. Men from the district are weaving saries and dhoties for several leper asylums. They have woven 150 or more since Christmas. That means about 800 yards of heavy material, every thread having been put in by a motion of both hands and feet. —C.H.D.

DISTRICT WORK: With Christians scattered in some sixty-five villages, some as far as thirty-five miles away, the district worker has many miles to travel. Five men have the ordination as "Shepherds" and are directly under missionary supervision. These in turn have fifteen or more workers under them who look after groups. Since January, 1941, there have been seventy-one baptisms. The pressure from non-Christian neighbors is sometimes so great that some go back into caste again. The high price of rice has been mentioned before. That is also adding difficulty to the district work.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Walter H. Dyck, Pastor, First Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska

AUGUST 15—"Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." Jas. 5:8.

Patience and steadfastness are two important requisites for Christian living. We learn them by practicing them. Patience is perfected by being patient. Steadfastness is learned by applying diligence toward that end. A person once was asked, "How can I best' learn to teach a Sunday School class?" The answer came, "By teaching." Experience is the best teacher. God sends suffering to teach patience. He permits winds of adversity so that our roots might strike deeper. But there is also a human side as the text suggests. Our responsibility is equally important. Then, the motive is: The coming of the Lord. Nothing will "establish" us more in present troubles than the expectancy that the Lord may make His appearance today.

AUGUST 16—"Is any thing too hard for the Lord?" Gen. 18:14.

How big is God? Is He one in heaven, far away, not much interested in my affairs? Is He as small as one of those which Rachel hid under her saddle? Do we limit our God by having small ideas about Him? Is He the only Supreme Being Who made all things, Who rules all things, Who has definitely pledged Himself in my interest? How often we limit God by our preconceived notions. Our little intellect cannot understand His provident leadings, His orderly ways, or even exceptions He seems to make, which the Bible calls miracles. As soon as we, in our littleness, say that they are impossible, we make Him "little." He then becomes a puppet and not a God. Do we fail to understand Him? Then we must believe and trust. "Is anything too hard for the Lord?" My answer is, NO!

AUGUST 17—"The Almighty shall be thy defence, and thou shalt have plenty." Job 22:25.

Hardly does one read an editorial, hear a speech, see an activity in these days which is not purported to be in the interest of "defense." I, too, believe in it on the basis of this text. The question of purpose and method enters here. The purpose of defense should be the preservation of values without which Christian living would be impossible. We are not thinking of rights we could demand, but of freedoms that pertain to worship according to the dictates of conscience. We are not thinking of forms of government. Christianity has flourished under the most tyrannical forms. The method, however, settles our course of conduct. Weapons of war have never created but always destroyed. Why do we grasp for carnal weapons? What kind of God is He Who rules in peace but fails when misunderstanding arises? If the Almighty is my "defence" then "all these things will be added" unto me.

AUGUST 18—"This people honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me." Mark 7:6.

Our meditation today strikes at the heart of Christian profession of faith as compared with its expression in life. Jesus laments the professed interest of thousands who followed Him. When it came to the test there were only a few secret believers. Once, when they showed interest, He attributed it to the fact that they had seen miracles and had eaten of the bread He had provided. Lord, take from us the entertaining and the food providing factors of our association with Thee and then see whether we still stand true to Thee. It is a long way from the lips to the heart. The heart controls the lips, but not vice versa. Give unto the Lord honor of heart, honor of lips and then honor of life.

AUGUST 19—"Wait on the Lord: be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart." Ps. 27:14.

In the study of Scripture it is remarkable how often God commands inactivity. Imagine a man trying to accomplish a given delicate task. Imagine also a multitude of blundering youngsters rushing ahead, misinterpreting his plans, before the instructions have been sufficiently explained. God finds Himself in a similar predicament. As zeros find their increasing value as they arrange themselves behind the figure one, so we find our place and help the One, if we do not rush ahead of Him. Courage for waiting leads to waiting for more courage. Israel's most blessed periods of history were those when they "waited on the Lord." Shall we permit history to repeat itself?

AUGUST 20—"Blessed is the man that heareth, watching daily at my gates." Prov. 8:34.

Meditation is an art which bears cultivation. Happy is the person who arranges a period in the day when, excluding for the moment all thoughts of care, he adores God in His grandeur. Prayer is often not the greatest benefit. It may be the "being quiet" before Him and just listening. "Blessed is the man that heareth me." But added to this promise is a condition, that is, we must do it regularly. A day (the Lord's Day) spent in meditation has its God-appointed place. But it is not sufficient. We are to "watch daily" at His gates. So "let us come boldly to the throne of grace to find help in time of need." Shall we do it "daily"?

AUGUST 21—"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts." Ps. 139:23.

A person has gone a long way in understanding himself, his weaknesses, and his wilfulness when he makes the above request. The Creator has been deprived of possession of His creation by sin. When a soul returns and is accepted and forgiven it becomes the privilege of the creature to ask the Creator to supervise the "clean up." Satan has polluted the heart and thoughts. They need renewal. God help me to cleanse Thy renewed abode. I don't see what seems dirty to Thee. Lay those things bare which dishonor Thy temple. Throw the spotlight of Thy searching eyes into the hidden corners of my heart; test my thoughts. I can use a more rigid discipline if Thou dost grant the strength to "clean up and keep clean." "See if there be any wicked way in me and lead me in the way everlasting."

AUGUST 22—"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." Isa. 26:3.

"Peace, perfect peace, in this dark world of sin? The blood of Jesus whispers peace within. Peace perfect peace, with sorrows surging round? On Jesus' bosom naught but calm is found. Peace, perfect peace, our future all unknown? Jesus we know, and He is on the throne. Peace, perfect peace, death shadowing us and ours? Jesus has vanquished death and all its powers. It is enough: earth's struggles soon shall cease, and Jesus calls to heaven's perfect Peace."

AUGUST 23—"The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life; and he that winneth souls is wise." Prov. 11:30.

So often attempts are made to differentiate between the characteristics of the Christian, and their relative importance. Jesus speaks of bringing forth "fruit," a well-developed product, well ripened by the warmth of the Sun of Righteousness, wholesome and nourishing. The "fruit of the Spirit" has various aspects, as the apple may be rosy, tasty, well developed, and sweet. One aspect of the fruit of the Christian life is its life-giving function. It is called soul winning—a yearning, a praying for, a pleading with those who are outside of Christ. This aspect shows forth wisdom. "He that winneth souls is wise." Jesus came that they might have life. It was the passion of His life. Wisdom directs that our desires be identical. May we not be ashamed of Him and His mission.

PETER ENCOURAGES SUFFERING CHRISTIANS

I Peter 4:12-19; 5:6-11

Introduction

Peter wrote this account shortly before the second terrible persecution of the Christians under Nero. His chief purpose is to encourage the suffering Christians. Evidently those to whom he writes had suffered some persecution on account of their religion. This was social in nature rather than sanctioned by Roman authority. What Peter says here is applicable in any age, wherever there are godly people who suffer, and especially where people suffer for the sake of Christ.

Comfort Amid Trials, vs. 12-19

The Christians whom Peter addressed were persecuted by Gentiles and by unbelieving fellow Jews, and their trials were indeed "fiery." Peter does not minimize the severity of their trials, but he points out that Christ suffered as they are suffering, and that they should feel joyful in suffering for His sake (v. 13). Such suffering will receive an eternal reward. Christians cannot escape times of trial in the world of today. Our Christian convictions will be opposed by many. To be able to rejoice amidst opposition and persecution is truly a mark of distinction. An appreciation of what Christ suffered for us should make us willing to endure whatever is needful for His sake. Peter has in view the future reward when Christ's glory shall be revealed at His coming again. They who are willing to suffer for their faith and convictions count them worth suffering for.

Peter cautions that there is no merit in suffering that which one brings on himself by wrongdoing (v. 15). This is simply the inevitable price of our own folly. Such suffering is a disgrace to anyone bearing the name "Christian." This distinction in suffering needs to be made today. To endure suffering and persecution because one is a Christian, because one truly follows Christ, is an honor, a strong testimony for one's faith. The difficulties and temptations are many and only in the strength of Christ can we win the victory. The way of the believer is difficult, how much more hopeless is the condition of the openly wicked (v. 18). All must pass under the judgment of God. Faith in God, in His goodness, has always given men courage in times of trial.

The Christian's Walk with God, 5:6-11

God can do much for the humble minded who endure trials. Such an one He will exalt "in due time." If we truly believe this, we can well labor on and wait. God does not forget. Peter exhorts us to commit our souls, our all, into God's care and keeping (v. 7). He knows and understands all our circumstances. We do not really permit God to help us until we cease to fret and worry, until we fully trust Him. Many trials are prolonged by a lack of faith. The right to commit ourselves into our Father's care is indeed a great privilege. Learn to live in Christ's way of life and trust Him fully. This demands sober and vigilant living for we need to guard against the source of many of our troubles (v. 8). Fellow Christians the world over are enduring trials of their faith. These trials are temporary—the glory is eternal. We shall never succumb to that which we resist by the conviction of faith. When we feel that our lives are in God's hands, there is repose of soul amid trials.

What suffering should Christians expect to endure in America today?

Why do evil men persecute the godly?

Why do trials so readily discourage many Christians?

CORRESPONDENCE

ZION MENNONITE CHURCH, ELBING, KANS.

July 21, 1941

Although it has been some time since The Mennonite has carried any news from our church, it does not mean that nothing of interest ever happens here. As has been customary for a number of years this church again conducted a Vacation Bible School. It opened a week after the close of the public schools with two teachers. This year it was taught at two different places as one unit, thereby enabling more children to attend. The closing exercises were given together in the well-filled church auditorium. Many children of non-Mennonite parents attend and parents who otherwise seldom attend church are willing to send their children and come to the closing exercises.

On Father's Day we observed children's consecration. This had been planned for Pentecost, later for Children's Day, and finally on Father's Day five couples brought their little babies to be consecrated to the Lord. This is always very impressive. Last year, after the baptism of a mother, the happy parents brought their two children to be consecrated. A brother and sister, although not members of our conference, also brought their infant son forward at the same time.

In the afternoon of Father's Day, our Sunday School held its annual picnic in a wooded plot nearby. All this together with the Communion services twice a year, help to draw us closer together as a church. On Sunday, July 13, our church had a reception for the returned missionaries, Rev. and Mrs. Paul Kuhlman. In the morning, Rev. Kuhlman brought us a very clear message from II Cor. 1. He also stated that they left the mission field in China, not because of religious persecution, but because political issues were involved. At six o'clock a fellowship luncheon was served at which time various gifts were brought for the Kuhlmans who will live near Elbing for the time. At 8:15 Rev. Kuhlman showed pictures of the Kuhlman mission.

The Ladies Sewing Society, the Christian Endeavor, and the Choir all help to build the Kingdom of God. So far none of the young men of our group have had to leave for camp. We all hope and pray that this terrible conflict may soon cease. In all departments of the church, we aim to preach Christ and Him crucified.

Our pastor, Rev. H. J. Dyck, remarked in his sermon that it was but natural for the minister to bear the burden and the well-being of his church and its members, but should not the members in return help the pastor bear this burden in prayer and fellowship? In unity there is strength.

—Oswald Klassen, Corr.

SWISS MENNONITE CHURCH, ALSEN, N. D.

Since we have last written we have had many and varied experiences. Most of our aged members whose health was rather poor during the winter are improved so that they are able to attend services quite regularly. Brother John S. Schmidt departed to be with the Lord on April 24, 1941. He had been ill about one year. Rev. John Guenther and Rev. E. Duerksen spoke words of comfort.

We are very thankful that the Lord spared the lives of two of our younger brethren who were very ill. First Peter F. Loewen had an attack of appendicitis and when he was a little better his brother, Henry F. Loewen, took sick, also with appendicitis. He suffered very much since another ailment set in after the operation. Both are able to come to church again.

On June 21, Rev. Schmidt of the M. B. Mission of Minneapolis, Minn., showed pictures of the Mission and spoke of their work. Their visit was enjoyed very much. On June 22, we were all greatly blessed by having the opportunity of hearing a Spirit-filled message by Bro. H. Fadenrecht, from the M. B. church. He spoke on the vision of Christ, cleansing by Christ, and being called by Christ, according to Isaiah 6:1-13. The main thoughts were that we should see God's greatness, our own sinfulness, be cleansed by God, and then let God use us.

Sunday and Monday, July 27 and 28, we were thankful to have with us our new pastor, Brother John H. Epp, Mingo, Kansas, who served us with three sermons, and who led Bible study Monday afternoon. We were indeed greatly blessed at these services and are longing for the time when Brother and Sister Epp shall be at home here with us. There have been different hindrances which have kept them from moving here sooner, but we pray that God may lead so that they will be able to come in the very near future. The members of the congregation have been busy cleaning the parsonage and grounds. —Correspondent

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, REEDLEY, CALIF.

During the past two years that father and I were privileged to attend the Reedley Church, we have received many blessings that God has given in innumerable ways. The church is growing continually which was shown on baptismal Sunday when nineteen candidates were received through baptism; besides a number of others, including father and myself, who joined at different times, making a total increase of thirty-eight members. A reception was arranged for this group by the Church Council. Following the delicious meal, a number of welcome talks were given by members of the council.

From May 2 to 4, the California Annual Christian Endeavor and Sunday School Convention took place in our church. The convention theme was "The Sufficiency of Christ," II Cor. 12:9. Justina Schmidt showed pictures of the work in Africa, Sunday evening, a very fitting program for the close of the convention.

June 9 to 27 was set aside for Daily Vacation Bible School, supervised by Rev. Edgar Toews. The weather was exceptionally cool this season in comparison to that in past years, so that the attendance of about seventy-five was kept up very well, and the response by the children was very favorable. A picnic was arranged for at the city park by the Sunday School at the close of school for all the children who attended regularly.

We enjoy having Mr. Arthur Wenger in our midst for three months as a ministerial interne. He is the nephew of Rev. Edgar Toews who has served us so well during more than a year, first as a substitute and later as assistant pastor. Once a month the churches of Reedley join in a program of singing (Singspiration) after the evening services, or from 9 to 10 o'clock, meeting at various churches from month to month.

The young people will have another opportunity of attending the Annual Retreat of the California Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Conference at Lake Sequoia. Many of our young people were planning to go since Rev. Edgar Toews would be there. He has made many lasting friends during his stay here in Reedley. —Helen E. Penner, Corr.

BETHEL MENN. CHURCH, FORTUNA, MO.

Brother Leonard Metzger from Roaring Springs, Penn., who recently graduated from Bluffton College, has consented to serve our church as pastor for one year. We pray the Lord's blessing upon our work together, that it may be a spiritual benefit to both pastor and congregation. Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Unruh who had served our church for about four years left in January to serve the church at Kingman, Kans.

On the morning of July 4, closing day exercises of the Daily Vacation Bible School were held at the church, followed by a picnic basket dinner in the woods belonging to Oliver Baumgartner.

People are about through with their threshing. Grain is turning out fairly well and pastures and corn are looking good, due to the abundant rainfall this year. Mr. W. H. Lehman has been in poor health all year, being bedfast most of the time. We are looking forward to having the A Cappella Choir of Bethel College with us on August 27.

BETHEL MENN. CH., LANGDON, N. DAKOTA

A large crowd of friends gathered at the church, June 17, for the farewell held for the Rev. Edward Duerksen family, to show their appreciation for all the love, prayers, and service they had so generously bestowed upon them all. A very sad but blessed time was spent together. Many testified to the blessings obtained from their stay in our community. Rev. Ortman from the Salem Church at Munich, Rev. Hy. Larson from the Pentecostal Church at Wallhalla, and Rev. Dallenberg from South Dakota were the guest speakers.

We all have so much to be thankful for, not only for the length of time God saw fit to have the Duerksens in our midst but also for the privilege of getting so well acquainted with them that we know that their prayers will continue for us. They didn't leave us alone but found Rev. Dallenberg to take over this charge. Only God can reciprocate such love. —Mrs. Joe Albrecht, Corr.

News from Marietta Camp

"'Peaceful Soldiers' are encamped near Marietta on the crest of a hill overlooking the Ohio River." So writes a correspondent from Southern Ohio to The Christian Century (July 9, 1941 issue). The Civilian Public Service Camp located at Marietta, Ohio, is a cooperative camp between the Mennonite and Brethren churches. The camp itself, however, does not have only Mennonite and Brethren boys, but has boys from fifteen denominations and two who have no church affiliation but are religious objectors. From the first assignment, we received twenty-nine boys who came to camp on June 2. On June 23 we received fifteen more and two more a few days later. This brings our present camp strength up to forty-six.

Our project is that of raising seedlings in the Ohio State Forest Nursery. Our work consists of preparation of seed beds, sowing the seed in the beds, transplanting, soil improvement, shipping trees, and other types of work required in the kinds of work mentioned, particularly that of keeping the nursery clean which requires much hand labor. Much of the work so far has been that of hand weeding. During the past month (June) the boys worked 408 man days, at the field project. This does not include the work of eight men who work in camp doing the cooking, office work, laundry, and other special details.

Our daily schedule is the same as that of other camps. The day begins at 5:30 when the camp is awakened by the night watchman. Breakfast is at 6:00, followed by a brief religious service. The men are in the fields from 7:00 till 4:00 with an hour for the noon meal. After working hours there is time for rest and recreation or special duties. The evenings are devoted to Bible study, worship service sometimes conducted by ministers from Marietta, special interest study groups, etc. On Sundays we conduct our own services, but also take the boys to church in town to permit them to worship in churches and to make contacts with the people in Marietta.

Our reception in the community has been very good. All our business contacts have been pleasant. This does not mean that everyone accepts us without criticism, some of which we do not hear, but on the whole our reception here has been very favorable. A Scripps-Howard staff writer who was here on the day the camp opened had the following to say: "These men are not panty-waists. They're he-men, husky, clear-skinned, clear-eyed, hardworking, soft-spoken. There are no wild-flowing whiskers, no red-rolling eyes, no shouting agitators, no soap-box crusaders."

"God's Minute Men"

By Karl Baehr

Do you believe in prayer? Do you pray?

I wish you could have been a spirit last Saturday night at nine o'clock. A spirit, so you could have seen into all the homes and haunts of a certain city. You would have seen some very strange sights. You would have heard some beautiful prayers. Here are but a few of the pictures you would have seen:

In a crane, seated above and to the side of a belching Bessemer furnace, was a large, muscular man. He was watching the bubbling steel and waiting for the second to pour it into molds. Suddenly he cast a hurried glance at his watch. It was just nine o'clock. He couldn't bow his head, for his eyes had an important job to fulfill. Still he prayed. He didn't formulate the words. He simply called before his spiritual eye the suffering of the world and, with a pleading frown on his face, implored the benediction and mercy of God to rest upon them. Perhaps it was due to the presence of the fierce heat of the molten steel that the first picture that flashed across his mind was one of belching cannons and bursting bombs. He uttered a sigh for both the bombed and those that were doing the bombing. (He couldn't distinguish, even by examining their faces, which side was piloting the bombers and which nation was the victim. But that didn't matter—both needed the grace of God.) And they both need relief from suffering! With a flash he decided to send some money for relief work. Then the shout of the foreman called his prayer to an abrupt halt.

Then in a dark little bedroom—it had no windows—a mother was tucking the covers around her child. She bowed her head while the child folded its hands and prayed:

Now I lay me down to sleep.
I pray thee, Lord, my soul to keep.
Thy love go with me all the night,
And wake me with the morning light.
Amen.

As the mother left the room the clock struck nine. Under her breath she thanked God for her healthy child and prayed that she might, through her love and devotion—by living the Christian life in the home—dedicate her child to God. It didn't matter what occupation it would enter so long as that occupation was one that would serve and glorify God. Then she prayed for all in trouble. Among them she saw a neighbor boy. He had been caught stealing. "God, give him another chance," she said, "he's not really bad." Then she found herself dedicating a portion of her time and resourcefulness to keep that child from falling into that trap again. She would be kind to him and give him some odd jobs when she had them.

In a little apartment not far from a small stone church sat a small figure huddled over a book—the Bible. Almost accidentally he glanced at the large clock on the wall. It was nine o'clock. He bowed his head. Then the silence of the room was punctured with a soft voice—with a prayer. It, too, was short—but one minute—yet very meaningful. He prayed with the hope in his heart that the great majority of his "God's Minute Men" had seen that it was nine o'clock and were now in communion with God. Then he thanked God that the universe was an ordered universe, that the wages of sin were death and the wages of righteousness were eternal life. The world was in the pangs of death because it had sinned. It could not reap goodness and peace when it had sowed avariciousness and greed. When he had finished he felt calmed. Somehow he felt that even now he was sharing in God's eternal life.

Prayer—do you believe in prayer? Do you pray? A group in this congregation did. They had found it difficult to hold prayer meetings—few could come. Therefore, they decided that every Saturday night at nine o'clock they would, wherever they might be, pray for one minute. They would be "God's Minute Men."

CAMPFIRE WORSHIP

Program for August 31, 1941

Leading Topic: A Campfire Service of Worship, Psalm 27:1-6.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Fairest Lord Jesus," No. 97; "For the Beauty of the Earth," No. 51; "Still, still with Thee," No. 23.
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Reports from the Retreat.
4. Offering for Peace Work.

II. Leader's Introduction

God has revealed Himself to man in many ways. The Bible tells us of Him, Christ made Him known to men. He speaks to us through the lives of consecrated men and women of today, through the events of history, and through the voice of nature. Morning sun and evening sky, the song of the lark in the morning, the hum of the bee at noon, the contented lowing of the cattle at eventide, the unceasing rushing of the waters in the canyons, the hush and quiet of the moonlight night. Who is there with eyes so blind, or ears so deaf, that he does not sense the presence of God? How beautiful to meet God at the call of His voice through nature in the morning, how heartening to feel His presence brooding over the city and country in the noontide heat, how comforting when evening comes to go out and walk and talk with Him in His grand out-of-doors.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Admonition to Worship	I Chron. 16:18-33
2. Invitation to Worship	Ps. 95:1-7a
3. A Great Worship Service	I Kings 8:54-61
4. Prayer in Worship	Matt. 6:5-8
5. Spirit of Worship	John 4:20-24

IV. For Discussion

1. Should each church sponsor a three-day retreat for its own young people in its own community?
2. Should we have more open-air services on Sundays or week evenings?

V. Facts for Study

The scientists and the naturalists who search out God's truth in nature, and the humble day laborer who enjoys the breeze as it cools him, share the joy of knowing God's manifold ways of manifesting Himself through nature. No one has yet fathomed all the wonders that can be known in nature. The microscope and the telescope aid in revealing this miraculous world of ours. We may well pray, "Open mine eyes that I may see."

VI. Two Selections of Poetry

The Country Faith

by Norman Gale

"Here in the country's heart
Where the grass is green,
Life is the same sweet life
As it e'er hath been.

"Trust in a God still lives
And the bell at morn
Floats with a thought of God
O'er the rising corn.

"God comes down in the rain,
And the crop grows tall—
This is the country faith,
And best of all!"

Music

by Ralph W. Emerson

"Let me go where I will
I hear a sky-born music still:
It sounds from all things old
It sounds from all things young,
From all that's fair, from all that's foul,
Peals out a cheerful song.

"'Tis not in the high stars above,
Nor in the cup of budding flowers,
Nor in the red-breasts mellow tone,
Nor in the bow that smiles in showers,
But in the mud and scum of things,
There alway, alway something sings."

VII. Food for Thought

"I need not shout my faith. Thrice eloquent
Are quiet trees and the green listening sod;
Hushed are the stars, whose power is never spent,
The hills are mute: yet how they speak of God."
—Charles Hanson Towne

A CAMPFIRE SERVICE OF WORSHIP

Program for August 31, 1941

Advertisement: Pass out small replicas of the Camp Fire Fagots with the programs announced on the back.

Be sure that persons are appointed to take care of every portion of the service so that it will go smoothly.

Suggestions: Have this meeting outdoors on the church lawn. Make a real campfire or an artificial one out of sticks. If an artificial one, place a flashlight wrapped in red paper among the sticks to represent the flame. Seat the young people in a circle around the fire.

Announce that at the close of the meeting the group will leave quietly, without speaking after the response, "Let the Beauty of Jesus be Seen in Me."

Song: "This is my Father's World."

Scripture Reading: Psalm 27:1-6 and Psalm 24.

Prayer Song: "My God, I Thank Thee."

Sentence Prayers.

Vocal Solo: "His Eye Is on the Sparrow."

Talks:

1. Sun and Rain

"God is not partial to any one. He sends His rain to bless all people. The Bible says, 'He sendeth his rain upon the just and the unjust.' And again, 'Jehovah will open unto thee his good treasure, the heavens, to give the rain of the land in its season and to bless the work of thy hands.' The warm rays of the sun and the showers remind us that God has promised to care for His children, and that He is working with us, to provide the physical necessities of life."

2. The Rainbow, Gen. 9:13-17.

3. Birds

"The birds remind us of God's care. Jesus said, 'Are not five sparrows sold for a penny? And not one is forgotten in the sight of God. But the very hairs of your head are numbered. Fear ye not: ye are of more value than many sparrows.' Every sparrow which falls to the ground is noticed by the Heavenly Father, so we know He cares and watches over us."

4. Flowers, Matt. 6:28-31.

"The beauty of the flowers speaks to us of God's love for beauty. And as the flowers, which He has made are perfect, so God is perfect. We will never be sinless ourselves, but Jehovah has given perfection in nature and in His own being, so that we might have a perfect pattern by which to mold our lives."

5. Sunsets

"Some people think that the day of miracles is past and wish that they could have been with Jesus to witness some of His great works. However, every evening a miracle takes place in the western sky, if we will but take the trouble and time to look. For thousands of years God has been painting these pictures and every day they are different. Such delicate tints and hues, combinations of light and shadows, are only the work of a divine artist."

Quartet: "Day Is Dying in the West."

6. Mountains

" 'For the mountains may depart and the hills be removed; but my lovingkindness shall not depart from thee.' Since none of us has ever seen a mountain change its place, we think of it as something unchanging. So when we look at the mountains we can remember that even after such permanent objects as mountains disappear, God will still be caring for us."

7. Shadows

"Shadows bring us rest. Night itself is a shadow. It is only when we have darkness that we know perfect rest. Death is described as a shadow also. If we do not fear the shadow of night, we should not fear the shadow of death, for Christ will go with us if we are His followers."

8. Spring

"Spring brings us the greatest lesson of all—the story of the resurrection. The trees and herbs which have been dead all winter blossom forth with new life and beauty. If God can put new life into the grass and the flowers, He can raise us from the sleep of death in the springtime of the resurrection."

Song: "God is Goodness, God is Love."

Prayer.

Response: "Let the Beauty of Jesus Be Seen in Me."

Innocence and Guilt

Once upon a time a great painter wanted to paint a picture of Innocence, so he had a beautiful little boy brought to him. The child had a lovely face, rosy cheeks, beautiful blue eyes, and golden curls. The great painter told the child to kneel and put up his little clasped hands toward heaven to pray. The picture was soon finished, a lovely picture of Innocence.

Many years later the same painter wanted to paint a picture of Guilt. He went to the prison and asked for the greatest criminal there. He was shown a man, not yet old, who had a hard, cruel, ugly face. A man whose eyes showed hate and fear and wretchedness. He sat down and painted. Having finished he hung the pictures side by side. Sweet Innocence—Ugly Guilt. The painter learned later that the same person posed for both pictures. Innocence showed the boy, with a soft, tender heart; Guilt, the man, still young, whose heart had been hardened, whose heart was black with sin. If the lad had "kept his heart with diligence," if he had let Jesus come into his heart, he would never have been painted as guilt.

—Retold from The Expositor's Treasury.

8. Pianist plays very softly the melody of "Since Jesus Came into My Heart."

5. Sing softly, "Into My Heart."

REPORT OF THE FIRST SASKATCHEWAN MENNONITE RETREAT

June 13-15, 1941

The invitation for the Retreat, extended to the Mennonite churches of Saskatchewan, met with great applause. Never before, in the history of the Canadian Mennonites, had a gathering of the young people for a similar purpose taken place. They gathered from all parts of the province—from Herschel to Drake even up north to Meadow Lake. We were favored with delightful weather conditions. So, upon the appointed hour, at 5 o'clock, p. m., June 13, a number beyond all expectations assembled at the Experimental Farm, located about one mile south of Rosthern.

We, as participants of the Retreat, extend our heartiest thanks to the staff, due to whose efforts and the grace of God, we have lived through a season of rich blessings. We were thankful that He led Rev. W. C. Voth, missionary on furlough from China, into our midst, who left his itinerary in Manitoba to be with us. In his discusion on "Missions," he pointed out what is the need for missions. Saturday night we were led by thought and sight to China, thanks to Rev. Voth's mission pictures.

Rev. J. G. Rempel, principal of Rosthern Bible School, encouraged us in his talk on Mennonite Principles, as young people to remain true to our convictions in our daily walk before God and man.

Due to the serious illness of Mrs. Toevs, who is suffering in a Saskatoon hospital, Bishop David Toevs, was unable to present us with his address. Mr. K. G. Toevs, principal of the Rosthern Academy, was placed in charge of recreation, for which the afternoon hours of Saturday, the second day, were set aside.

Mr. J. C. Schmidt, president of the Youth Committee of Canada, gave us an inspirational talk on consecration for service, using for a foundation Rom. 12:1-8. Rev. Isaac Epp, secretary of the Youth Committee, enlightened us on "Spiritual Life" under three points: (1) What is spiritual life? (2) How may spiritual life be attained? and (3) Why is there so little spiritual life? In another lecture

Rev. Epp acquainted us with the project of a Youth Organization in Canada, one similar to that of the United States Mennonites. The organization is to be considered at the annual session of the Conference of Mennonites of Canada in Laird, Sask. Mr. Henry Friesen, member of the Youth Committee, was the business manager. It was he who prayed and worked the Retreat into existence.

Miss Bertha Schmidt, assisted by Mrs. I. Epp, Mrs. J. C. Schmidt, and several others, was in charge of the cooking. A large quantity of supplies were brought in from the farms. To cover the cost of the Retreat a registration fee of 50 cents was paid by each.

The arrangement of the farm was particularly adapted to meet with our requirements. Three of the houses served as dormitories. Tables were set up under the trees where we assembled for the meals. A shed was cleaned out and provided with an organ, an emergency platform, and benches for the audience.

After the official welcome by the three members of the Y. C., we all gathered around the campfire. Some splendid testimonies were given as well as two special numbers rendered by the male quartet of the Rosthern Academy. Each morning we were divided into five different groups, each leader taking his group to some secluded spot to worship God in morning devotions. Sunday we attended the service in the Mennonite church at Rosthern.

The crowning point of the Retreat was the Song Festival on Sunday afternoon. Seven choirs participated in the singing; two songs were rendered by a massed choir of approximately 160 voices, "Send Out Thy Light" and "Day is Dying in the West." Rev. W. C. Voth, missionary, gave an interesting talk, "Music and Singing in China." A short dialog was brought, "Tue recht und scheue niemand." It was a special pleasure to have a male quartet from the Swift Current Bible School in our midst.

Our special thanks are due to Mr. John Friesen of Rosthern who kindly let us make use of the farm for Retreat grounds. We feel confident that the Lord will bless the work of the young people in Canada, and we hope it will be possible to arrange for a longer time of fellowship next year.

As each one has again returned to his own environment, we sincerely hope and pray that every one may be a willing instrument of the Lord, to serve Him with more zeal and diligence at home, in church and community, in accordance with the theme of the Retreat, "All for Jesus", and the theme song:

"All for Jesus, all for Jesus,
All my being's ransomed pow'rs,
All my thoughts and words and doings,
All my days and all my hours."

—Marie Klaassen

ANNOUNCEMENT

Many of our Mennonite people, and especially young people, are going to Wichita where they find work. Unless we do something for them they will be lost to our Conference. Our church in Wichita, The Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church, is very conscious of this and tries to do what it can to solve the problem. However, the church is much too small, and there is an increasing need for a new and larger building.

In a joint meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Western District Conference, the Committee on Home Missions of the same conference, and representatives of The Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church, this whole matter was thoroughly discussed. The representatives of the church in Wichita explained the need and expressed their willingness to visit churches of the Western District Conference and present the matter to them. The Conference Board and Committee saw the need clearly, and they feel that something should be done about it.

One element that enters into the matter is the fact that the conference still has quite a debt on the Home Mission church which it built in Enid, Okla. We are glad for that church and for the fine work that is being done there. But offerings should continue to flow into the Church Building Fund to liquidate this indebtedness. At the 1939 session of the Western District Conference a resolution was passed recommending that the churches send in substantial annual contributions to the Church Building treasury. This should not be overlooked, even if, under our sanction, our church in Wichita proceeds to make an effort to raise funds for a new church building.

Since the need in Wichita is so great the Board of Trustees and the Committee on Home Missions are convinced that we should encourage our church in Wichita to proceed with the plan as stated above. We, therefore, recommend to our churches that they open their doors to representatives from the Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church and give them an opportunity to present this cause of a new church building, and that they do what they can to foster this cause financially. The individual church shall designate whether all of the offering shall go to the Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church or part to the Church Building Fund of the Western District Conference. All the offerings should go through the treasury of the Western District Conference, Paul Bartsch, Treasurer, Newton, Kansas,

Signed,

John E. Kaufman, Sec. of the Home Mission Com.
D. J. Goering, Sec. of the Board of Trustees

IN MEMORIAM

BARBARA AMSTUTZ, age 78, died at the Bluffton hospital on June 27, 1941, after a five-week's illness from influenza. She and her brother, Adam, moved to Bluffton two years ago. She was an active member of various organizations and activities of the Ebenezer Church, such as the missionary society, the ladies' chorus, and having been Sunday School teacher for fifty years. Her friendly hospitality was greatly appreciated by the many guests received into her home during conferences, etc.

Her enjoyment of nature was expressed through her care for, and love of, flowers. She was always sharing of her abundance with her many relatives and friends. She is survived by five brothers, C. D., Adam, Eph., and Dave all of Bluffton, Ohio, and U. S. of Wisner, Nebraska.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. C. Schultz, from the Ebenezer Church on June 30.

JACOB L. JANTZ, son of Henry and Anna Base Jantz, was born January 1, 1878, near Moundridge, McPherson County, Kansas, and died June 10, 1941, at 3:25 a. m. He reached the age of 63 years, 5 months, and 10 days. His parents, one sister, and two brothers preceded him in death.

At the age of 22 years, he was baptized by Elder John Gerbrandt and received into the Friedenstal Church. He was united in marriage to Lena Unruh, Oct. 14, 1900. To this union eight children were born. One, Artho, preceded him in death at the age of 24. Those who remain to mourn his departure are his devoted companion; four sons, Arnold, Edwin, Harvey, and Adam; three daughters, Elda, Linda, and Elma; three sons-in-law, Carl Decker, Pete Richert, and Edwin Funk; four daughters-in-law; 11 grandchildren; four brothers; seven sisters; many nieces and nephews; and a host of friends and neighbors.

He was ill for many years and severely ill the last three years, suffering intensely the last two months. During the last year twelve doctors were consulted who pronounced his illness incurable. During his illness he became concerned about his relationship with God which had been sorely neglected. He began to seek that he might find peace and assurance for his soul. He grasped the truth on Feb. 9, 1941, and believed God's Word and came into possession of an experience of personal salvation. He was so anxious to do all the will of the Lord, Whom he had learned to love, but his temptations were very hard during his suffering.

In the last days of his life he again took a new hold on God, confessing that he had often failed but definitely stating that all of his sins were forgiven. He suggested that the family should hold together in upholding mother in prayer and to strive that all should follow him into the great beyond. This has been a great comfort to the family. During the last days in his intense suffering he often prayed and expressed a great desire to be relieved.

He spent most of his life on a farm four miles east of Roxbury, Kansas. He was a kind husband and father, a good neighbor, much devoted to his home and the welfare of his family. Services were conducted by Rev. J. J. Ratzlaff of Newton, Kansas, who spoke in German, and Rev. C. H. Dirks of Hutchinson, Kansas, in English.

MRS. BINE JOTTER, born at Trenton, Ohio, in 1855, died at the home of her sister, Miss Bertha Ehresman, Tuesday morning, July 15, 1941. She was a lifelong member of the Mennonite Church, taking part and interested in all of its organizations.

Mrs. Jotter is survived by her son, Ernest, of Dayton, Ohio, and four grand-children; her sister, Bertha, with whom she made her home for the past twenty years; and a sister, Mrs. Hebel, of Chicago, Ill.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz conducted the services at the residence Thursday afternoon, July 17, and burial was in Mound Cemetery, Monroe, Ohio.

PERCY GEORGE KROHN, son of Mr. Jake and Mary Spenst Krohn, was born April 5, 1927, and died July 16, 1941, at his home, at 11:30 p. m. He was suffering of Bright's Disease for a period of five months and sixteen days. He reached the age of fourteen years, three months, and eleven days. He was in the seventh grade at the Waterloo schools.

His case was considered incurable from the beginning, little hope for recovery was given at any time. He spent some time at the Langdon Mercy Hospital and some time at a hospital at Winkler, Manitoba, Canada. He was a very contented patient and his prayer was that God should make him well if it were His will. He found salvation at a revival meeting two years ago, and since had full assurance of salvation. Just before he died, his mother asked whether he was going home to Jesus, and he answered, "Yes, but I don't know just how soon."

Rev. H. F. Ortman from Munich, N. D., conducted funeral services on July 18, at the Bethel Church as well as at the home. Several numbers of special music were rendered by some of his uncles and aunts. He leaves to mourn, his parents, seven brothers, two sisters, two brothers-in-law, one sister-in-law, two grandparents, and many friends.

SHALL WE REVERSE OUR HISTORIC PEACE STAND?

We cannot leave this basic principle of our Church up to chance. As a Church we cannot be neutral on that. If the Church is going to take an increasingly more active part in indoctrinating its peace doctrine, certain reorganization of conference machinery may be necessary. Certain of our leaders have been advocating this. The suggestion has been made to merge peace and relief. Mennonite lay people need to get information about these things and support the ministers in bringing about these reforms. Certain difficulties are in the way of merging peace and relief. For example, the peace work is done under the Peace Committee; relief work is done by a board. The two are of a different status. Recently the Peace Committee has been cooperating with the National Service Board for Religious Objectors. So the Peace Committee has secured much prestige. The Relief Board has extended its activities also. Yet it is commonly recognized that peace and relief are in reality one and the same thing. Why have two groups?

Another example of proposed reorganization is the merging of the Board of Education and the Board of Publication. It is admitted that publication is essentially a mechanical task; and education, an editorial task; but why should not the two function as one. From the point of view expressed, that type of conference organization is needed which will promote the goals of the Mennonite Church. Our goal is to indoctrinate the peace teaching of Christ.

Another suggestion in reaching this goal must include ways to finance literature projects, civilian camps, and other educational projects that lead in this direction. Now we are trying to make periodic appeals to help finance the work of district and conference peace committees. A voluntary payment of fifty cents per church member toward civilian camp support is being used now. Dare we look to the time when the conference will make an assessment compulsory? If we mean business with our historic peace stand, why not authorize our conference through congregation elected delegates to levy a tax per head to finance our civilian service camp program?

What arrangements are made for C. O. camp volunteers? Would the government accept volunteers here? Is the conference prepared to finance them? I admit the answer is not clear.

There are, of course, several types of opposition to such implementing of our historic peace stand. Perhaps some opposition even favors its reversal. Then there is the person who takes pride in labeling himself a "fundamentalist" and who opposes group peace efforts. Just how can he be a "fundamentalist" and at the same time reject the way of the Cross as applied to peace—turning the other cheek, returning evil with good, and going the second mile? If he sincerely accepts the latter, how can he consistently oppose group peace action?

Then there is the "pragmatist" or the modernist who denies God's Word as final authority. So, it seems to the writer that the Mennonite who accepts military service or condones it, is in fact (though perhaps unknowingly) on the side of the pragmatist who claims that there is something worse than war. He fails to realize that this "something worse"—supposedly slavery or some other form of cruelty or suppression—has been caused by war maybe twenty years before.

So if we take seriously the charge presented to us through our fathers—the charge called our historic peace position—we need as a Church to put over or indoctrinate the teachings of Christ, we need to reorganize ourselves to do it in the most efficient and harmonious way, and as a result the future can be faced with confidence.

To the question, "Should we continue our historic peace stand?" my answer is a resounding "Yea!" I believe that this calls for particular means; not that the end justifies the means herein suggested. But the end conditions means which point into the direction in which we are going. It should be clear that certain means and policies go in an opposite direction.

Our Peace Committee and conference officers have done remarkably well with the meager support and organizational difficulties that they have had. Let Mennonite laymen and clergymen go FORWARD!

—AN INVITATION: We extend to our many friends and all Mennonites attending the General Conference this summer a genuine invitation to stop in at Merom, Indiana, to visit the home of Merom Institute, a rural center serving part of Indiana, Illinois, and Ohio. Also located at Merom are a Civilian Public Service Camp and the Rural Headquarters of the Fellowship of Reconciliation. Our house is big; and if that overflows, you can be housed more than reasonably at the institute dormitories. So stop in and pay us a visit.

Merom is located on state routes 54 and 63. Coming from the west on Route 50, turn north on Route 1 in Illinois, and go to Palestine, Ill., and inquire for Merom Ferry. On Route 40, turn east at Effingham, Ill., to Palestine, and inquire for Merom Ferry. —Carl J. Landes, Merom, Ind.

—From the Bulletin of the Eighth Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana, we notice that they are having a "One Day's Work for My Church" campaign, whereby the members who sign the pledge card pledge to give one day's income to the church. Could other churches use this method to raise necessary funds?

Moved With Compassion

Frequently in the gospel story we read that Jesus was moved with compassion. He was moved with compassion when He looked over the multitude, for they were "as sheep having no shepherd."

A poor, helpless man, afflicted with the palsy, was brought to Him one day, and, looking deep into the heart of the man, Jesus was moved with campassion, not only because of the physical suffering, but even more because of the need of the soul which He saw. He brought healing to both.

Passing by the Pool of Bethesda one day, He found an impotent man whose desperate efforts to attain health were all in vain. The crowd passed heedlessly by, no one offered to help him into the pool, and he despondently voiced his feeling when he said, "I have no man . . . to put me into the pool." Jesus saw the need and raised him from his pallet of suffering to send him home well and happy.

A leper crossed Jesus' path one day, and when he saw Him he cried out for mercy. As all lepers, he was an outcast from society, the lowliest of the lowly, having to find shelter in caves and among rocks, having to see the people whom he met draw their skirts tightly around themselves as they passed so that his shadow might not fall on them and defile them, having always to utter that cry which sent horrors into the hearts of those who heard it, "Unclean! Unclean!" He met Jesus, and Jesus put forth His hand and "touched him." Oh, what the touch of that hand must have meant to him who had not felt the touch of a human hand since this plague came upon him, who had been scorned and avoided!

An unfortunate woman who had fallen into degradation and sin was brought to Jesus by harsh, cruel, condemning Pharisees. Jesus should pronounce the sentence upon her. Rebuking the accusers for their inconsistent living by telling them that whoever among them was without sin should cast the first stone, He stooped down and wrote in the sand until all of them had fled. Then, filled with compassion, He turned to the woman who awaited His decision and said, "Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more."

There is so much sin and suffering, trouble and misery, in this world that we are often in danger of becoming calloused. We need the spirit of compassion which filled our Master's loving heart. Our lives should radiate such sympathy and compassion that men everywhere may come to a knowledge of His love through the compassion they find in us who are called His children. —mb

I Have Learned

That it is not always best for me to have my own way.
That I can sometimes be mistaken and others right.
That other people can disagree with my views and opinion, and still be right with the Lord.
That I am not the only one who is right with God and who preaches the truth.
That it is far better to live higher than I preach than to preach higher than I live.
That the goodness of a truly good man will stand on its own merit and needs no bolstering.
That God requires me to love even those who do not love me.
That a friendship which has to be sought and held with repeated favors will sell to the highest bidder.
That those accommodated most are often the least appreciative of your favors.
That it is profitable for me to be more exact with myself than with others.
That God carried His work alone before we arrived and that He might be able to continue when we pass on.
That I have little difficulty in persuading myself to believe that what I want to do is what the Lord wants me to do.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

A LETTER FROM MISSIONARY ALBERT JANTZENS

School of Chinese Studies, Baguoi, Philippine Islands, June, 1941

Dear Friends in the Homeland:

We had planned to write to you long ago, in fact we wanted to write to you soon after Christmas in order to acknowledge your kind remembrances. Now it is June and many of you have not heard from us this year. But there were reasons for this delay.

First of all there was the problem of evacuating—who, when, and to what place. After much prayer and discussion about the matter a decision was finally reached during the last week of January at a special conference of the missionaries. Then came the definite planning and preparing for leaving. Those were busy days and the task was not a joyous one. To leave the land and people to which we have been called caused much heartache. The middle of March found most of our missionaries in Peking headed for Shanghai from where some were scheduled to leave for America on April 8, and some to leave for the Philippines on April 9, while those who had escorted their families thus far were to return to the field. The preparation for leaving China, the travel, and the getting settled here kept us from writing to many of you. We have thought of you often and wish to make this a personal letter to each one of you.

By the time this letter reaches you, you will have read in our church papers of the changes that have taken place in our China missionary staff. It was with aching hearts that all of us who had to leave, left the shores of China. It was not until a few weeks before we left China that it was decided that we should come here. We had planned to go to India, but while we were making preparations for leaving, I took a severe cold which ended in a lung abscess, as the doctor termed it. After spending three weeks in a hospital in Peking, the doctor ordered that I take several months of complete rest in a warm, clean atmosphere, suggesting this place as one of the possibilities. Since this place offered us the splendid opportunity of continuing the study of the Chinese language and did not take us too far away from either China or India, we decided to come here. However, our hope is that we may soon be able to return to Kai Chow.

Before we left the field the missionaries who were in full-time work were shouldering more responsibilities than they should have, and now, since quite a number had to leave, those who remain are carrying even more of the work than before. We are wondering how long they will be able to bear such a strain. We feel that we must go back. Even though we cannot carry full responsibilities as the older ones do, we can at least relieve them to some extent.

Quite a number of missionaries from China have evacuated to these islands. Most of the students from the Peking Language School and some of the Chinese teachers, as well as a number of missionaries who came to China when we did, are here also. Several of the latter met us at the station when we arrived here and soon made us feel right at home.

In spite of the fact that this is not the land of our choice, we are enjoying ourselves here very much. With the rest of our coworkers so far away, some in America and some still on the field, we feel quite far removed from the "family." We are living together with the Wuthrichs who are attending the language school. Living expenses are quite high, so we try to keep them down by sharing household expenses. This is a mountain resort and most of the people who come here for their vacations are quite wealthy, so of course prices are quite high too. As soon as it will be possible we shall be glad to leave again.

Grace Joan, six, enjoys the forenoons at the kindergarten. Since the school for American children is quite a ways out of town, she will probably continue in kindergarten if we stay here. A British lady from Hongkong teaches the seven children, three British and four American. The rainy season has started, so she spends her afternoons indoors coloring and pasting and entertaining little brother.

Lyman, ten months, weighs 23½ pounds. He is always happy and greets everyone with a smile. He has learned that his feet are made to stand on, and thinks he has outgrown the sitting stage. He and Grace Joan are great pals. They have both kept well, for which we praise the Lord.

This climate is most invigorating. Summer is past and the rainy season is just beginning. Schools are just opening after several months of vacation during the hot months. The children's sunsuits are all lying in the trunks, and even some of our cooler clothes won't be unpacked this summer. It seems strange since we are so much nearer the equator, but we are up in the mountains at an elevation of 5,000 feet. In the lowlands it is quite hot.

A few highlights of the journey. To begin with, I was in the hospital at Peking leaving Wilma alone with all the packing and making arrangements to leave Kai Chow. That was not easy for both of us. From Kai Chow to Peking Wilma traveled with the Ewerts, Dirks, and Miss Davis, and so had the men to help with the baggage. About a week was spent in Peking and three days at Tientsin making the final preparations and arrangements for the journey. From Tientsin to Shanghai we traveled on a British steamer on which all windows were painted black, and for the first time we experienced what a blackout and the possibility of being bombed at sea meant. At Shanghai we had to wait a week for the next boat. This gave us time to get somewhat acquainted with this great, quite modern metropolis of the Orient. From Shanghai we traveled on the S. S. President Coolidge, one of the finest of the "President" boats. Here we again noticed three distinct American traits which we had not found anywhere else since we left America, namely American luxury, efficiency, and waste. The journey was most pleasant mainly because the sea was very smooth all the way. We docked at Hongkong for a day and thus had the privilege of seeing one of the most beautiful harbors of the world. It reminded us of the pictures that we had seen of the beautiful fjords of the Alaskan coast with its steep green mountains rising right out of the sea. Manila was quite hot, but not unbearable. But when we were traveling to this place and got about halfway up the mountain, we entered a different, most pleasant atmosphere. And that's where we are now.

This town is a beautiful spot about 150 miles north of Manila and only about ten miles or less from the ocean. All around us are pine-covered mountain peaks. From the top of some of these nearby peaks, we can see the ocean to the west. Flowers are blooming everywhere. Vegetables of all sorts, as well as tropical fruits, are raised in the narrow valleys.

From the viewpoint of a missionary we see rank heathendom all about us. The majority of the people are "without Christ and without hope." There are many missionaries here who spread the gospel, but since the Catholics dominate the masses here it is very hard to win many to Christ. There are plenty of opportunities for mission work right here. One good factor here is that one does not necessarily need to learn a new language, for the Filipinos who attend public schools all learn the English language. Of course, many of the mountain folk never attend school and so can speak only their native dialect. Many dialects are spoken by these natives, and in most cases one group cannot understand the dialect of another group. Those who do mission work among these people must, of course, first learn their language.

In closing may we ask you to unite with us in praise to God Who is guiding and so richly blessing us. And further, will you please pray with us for a speedy, complete recovery of my health, and that it may soon be possible for us to go to the place of service which the Lord has for us. Pray for all who are continuing the study of the Chinese language here, and especially also for those who are continuing the work on the field.

May God richly bless each one of you. With sincere greetings,

Albert and Wilma Jantzen and children

Values of a Conference

By J. H. Langenwalter, Reedley, California

After times of activity, there need to be periods of rest. This is God's orderly way for mankind. One can learn how normal this is when one observes children. No one ought to lose this valuable arrangement for his good when he grows up.

After Jesus had sent out His disciples two by two for their first experience in practical work in the Kingdom of God, He said to them: "Come ye yourselves apart into a quiet place and rest a while." That was at a moment when all of them were ready and anxious to talk. They had much to tell. The Master knew better. They needed quiet and rest!

Christian conferences have values which are best understood when the orderly arrangement of God and the request of Jesus to His disciples are given a real chance. These values blend into each other. They are deeply related. However, we can state a few of them and thus get a better picture of their true worth.

A. Common Interests. These are the reasons for having a conference at all. Getting together gives people a chance to rethink their common interests. It also helps people to adjust themselves more helpfully to those common interests. Furthermore, it helps them to grow in the direction indicated by those common interests.

B. Friendships. To meet old friends and to learn to know new ones is a most helpful experience at any time. It becomes doubly inspiring when they are met in the atmosphere of some common interest. The words of Jesus in His great heart-to-heart talk to His disciples take on new meaning at such times. He said: "No longer do I call you bondservants; for the bondservant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends!" The discovery of friendship is a climax in the experiences of human beings. This is not so much a matter of ecstasy as it is the deepening of a true relationship with other human beings and especially with God.

C. Sharing of Experiences. The purpose of this is helpfulness rather than self-satisfaction. The honor of God needs to stand above any tendency toward self-glorification. What is needful must be given more attention than what any one or all present have learned to like. The word conference means to carry together. When each brings something worth while, in the spirit of sharing, all are benefited.

D. Time for Sober Thought. That includes petition, thankfulness, and prayer. It calls for cool heads and warm hearts. It means operating with more light than heat. It demands taking time to digest whatever information may be presented.

E. Opportunities for Rest from the Year's Work. This calls for relaxation and brings refreshment. It helps one reach an attitude of quiet waiting and of deepening meditation. All this prepares one for the needed perseverance and for the ability to stand fast in the light of what will face one in the future.

REPORT OF THE SUMMER BIBLE SCHOOL OF THE FIRST MENN. CHURCH, LIMA, OHIO

One of the most important phases of the work at the Lima Mission is its work with the children. Every year since the founding of the church its leaders have conducted a Summer Bible School. The opening day of the school this year brought eighty-five children. During the first week the attendance increased so that the average for the week was one hundred ten. Contrary to previous experience, the attendance for the second week continued to grow, reaching one hundred forty-five on the final day. The average for the two-week period was one hundred twenty.

The first part of each day's session was spent with the teachers in the graded groups. Bible stories, Scripture memory work, and handicraft were directed by teachers and assistants. Following a brief recreation period the group assembled for worship and Gospel singing, led by the pastor. Object-lesson sermonettes were given by several of the teachers.

At the close of the school the Sunday evening service was presented by the children for parents and friends. Bible stories were reviewed by the Kindergarten group. The Primary children repeated Matt. 5:2-14, and gave the names of the books of the New Testament. The Junior classes had arranged notebooks with questions and answers concerning the Bible. Many answers were verses or portions of Scripture. The boys' group gave Psalm I from memory and the girls' group Psalm 67. The boys also displayed tie racks and holders for pot-lifters which they had made for their parents.

The Intermediate pupils, although more difficult from the discipline point, took an active interest. Their memory work and study centered around the first five books of Moses. Soap carving and a bit of weaving was quite interesting to them.

Classes and instructors were: Intermediate—Cora Habegger of Berne, and Mrs. Helen Danner; Junior Girls—Marcella Steiner of Bluffton, and Mary Hennon; Junior Boys—Mrs. Ethel Day and Phillis Evans; Primary—Marie Lichty of Berne, and Kathryn Ramseyer; Kindergarten—Devona Welker.

The school was under the direction of the pastor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Dick.

Respectfully submitted, Devona Welker,

God at My Door

*By John Benjamin Magee

"When he entered the tent the column of cloud used to come down and stand at the entrance of the tent, when the Eternal was speaking to Moses..... The Eternal would speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his friend," Exodus 33:9, 11. (Moffatt Translation).

Men all over the world, working in all walks of life and living under varying conditions, are becoming God-conscious. It is not so much a sense of being pursued by the God-idea, as it is reaching out after it themselves.

There is no need to prove His existence. God is the circle, as Empedocles said, "whose center is everywhere and its circumference nowhere." And to this fact of God we may couple the instinctive need of God which finds expression today in so many ways. From human hearts everywhere comes the earnest cry of the great Browning in Paracelsus, "I need thee, I feel thee, I love thee!"

George Stewart, an Englishman, has written a book called God in Our Street. Yet God might be in our street, and not elsewhere. Let it be God at my door, your door, the door of the man who is in immediate need of Him. This view of God makes Him available. I plead for the everydayness, the everywhereness, the everybodyness of God.

Someone asked Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian poet and playwright, whether the philosophy of The Blue Bird will work when a man has lost everything. The well-seasoned auther replied: "Man must bring to the words of Christ the same perfect simplicity of acceptance and faith that the Christians of the first century had." Then he went on to say: "The thing they seek will be found on their own window sill and at their own door." That is where I wish to look for God just now.

Let us go back into the Old Testament for a needed picture. In Exodus 33 the camp of Israel is shown with the trysting-tent, as Moffatt calls it, set up apart and alone some distance from the other tents, and yet near enough to be seen by all. Moses had the habit of going there alone, and when he did every man stood in the door of his own tent and watched the leader enter the trysting-tent. And in the eleventh verse there is a lovely portrait of God at man's very door.

I find three colors in this picture. And the first is the unusualness of the usual.

Everything in life should be related to the life of

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Walter H. Dyck, Pastor, First Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska

AUGUST 25—"How much then is a man of more value than a sheep!" Matthew 12:12.

In the realm of material things, men attach a scale of relative values. A good business man plans purchases and sales in commonly accepted ways. One who does not readily recognize values is a poor business man. In the spiritual realm, Jesus teaches us the basis of "good business." Note the explanation of the text. What! Should a man ever be thought to be of as little vaule as he is appraised in this day? The gain of the world isn't worth the loss of a man. Yet, today, millions are being massacred. We are paying too much for the result we expect. Life cannot be valued in terms of sheep. Lives should not be the price paid for selfish gain. What shall it profit a man if he destroy a soul in order to gain a sheep?

AUGUST 26—"Surely the Lord is in this place; and I knew it not." Gen. 28:16.

As you read these words, you are asked to look about you. What kind of a place is it? Is it one in which you might expect the Lord to be present? Jacob had an experience which plagued him later whenever he left the ways of the Lord. Having deceived his brother, he had to flee. Away from his home, he thought, he would also be free from the reminder of his guilt. The night had passed. A vision had come. God had been there to show him that any place may be a reminder of His presence. Can we say this of the place of our work? When we work or rest or play, can we say, "Surely the Lord is in this place"? May He sanctify every place by His presence.

AUGUST 27—"Ointment and perfume rejoice the heart: so doth the sweetness of a man's friend by hearty counsel," Proverbs 27:9.

It is a Biblical expression to call a well-tempered person "sweet." His or her influence sweetens the bitter, the harsh, the criticizing attitudes which persist in cropping out daily.

Here's a bit of advice regarding sweetness in the home. Just try it for today and you will be "sold" on it. "Amid the duties of today, in all I think or do or say, Lord, keep me sweet at home. When household duties claim my care, and I seem needed everywhere, then time my heart to praise and prayer and keep me sweet at home. No matter what the day may bring, or night—I pray in everything my life may glorify my King, especially at home."

AUGUST 28—"Wherefore I put thee in remembrance, that thou stir up the gift of God, which is in thee," II Tim. 1:6.

In writing to Timothy, the Apostle Paul asks him to rally or stir himself. Take the picture of the fireplace. Its glowing warmth subsides. Only a gleam of light remains. A chill creeps upon those who before enjoyed its cheering comfort. Then an inspiring gust of air fans the embers into a lusty flame. Timothy's mother and grandmother possessed an unfeigned faith. Their son accepted and glowed in this heritage. Coolness may have crept in. So, dear Timothy, today you need a stirring up, a rekindling, a reviving of the glowing spark. Whether our gift be large or small, it should never be regarded as burning too brightly. Stir it up. Let it shine.

AUGUST 29—"Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself," I John 3:3a.

In heathen darkness men live their natural lives without knowledge that hygienic conditions among civilized peoples can help to sustain and save life. When they turn to the Christian faith, they soon see the value of soap as a cleansing medium. But until this hope of cleaner conditions comes to them they are satisfied in their filth. So, in a spiritual sense, Christians do not realize the possibility of being cleansed by the Word of God until they entertain the "hope of perfection." The Christian hope is that of being like Christ, when they see Him face to face. The blessed hope spurns men on to purity. The Corinthians had the faith, but they were not being purified. John says "every man" should "purify himself." May the blessed hope work that within me.

AUGUST 30—"The Lord said unto me, Behold, I have begun to give . . . ; begin to possess," Deut. 2:31.

When we look over the work which the Lord permitted us to do in the last three years, we, as members of the General Conference, are happy that the Lord has begun to give. But as God gave to Israel, He expected them to possess their possessions. As we think of our fields of missions, relief, peace, and education, and see their possibilities, we see an inkling of what could be ours. But it's not ours until we possess it. God said to Israel, "Every place that the sole of your feet shall tread upon that have I given unto you." The field is white unto harvest. But the grain of reward is not ours till the harvest is gathered in. Lord, help us claim that which is ours. Help us possess our possessions.

AUGUST 31—"Let us not be weary in well doing," Gal. 6:9a.

As a closing encouragement for the month, we are asked not to be tired. It has been a hot month. Physically our energy has become depleted. Spiritual declension often accompanies a faintness of body.

The word weary, as used here, means "becoming despondent." Calls for aid will be many. Famine offers opportunity for relief. Soul hunger bids us supply the Bread of Life. Ignorance challenges education. Hatred and opposition bids men prove the worth of positive goodwill, tolerance, and non-violent resistance to evil! For the days, months, and years, as God gives them, let us not be greatly harassed by the vastness of the need, but let us be happy and blest in our mission of well-doing.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

THE WRITER OF HEBREWS EXPLAINS THE NEW COVENANT

Hebrews 9:11-22

Introduction

The authorship of the epistle to the Hebrews cannot be definitely determined, and it really matters little. The author was an outstanding leader of the early Church. Some believe that Paul wrote it. It bears the marks of inspiration and was written to a particular church consisting largely of Jewish Christians. It was written to check a tendency to revert to Judaism. The author declares at some length that Christianity is superior to Judaism. The types and shadows of Old Testament Judaism are fulfilled in Christ and in the more spiritual order which He came to establish. Through Him a whole new covenant was established.

The Cleansing Blood of Christ, vs. 11-14

In this lesson, Christ is seen as a High Priest of whom Aaron was but a type. The gospel blessings to be received through Christ are better than those offered in the Old Testament. He ministers in the heavenly tabernacle (v. 11) of which the Old Testament tabernacle and the temple were only types. God Himself made this true tabernacle. The sacrifices were types of the blood of Christ. They had no real cleansing power in themselves. Christ offered Himself, the true and perfect sacrifice. Through His own blood shed upon the cross, He entered into the heavenly, holy place, once for all. The redemption obtained by Him is final and complete and eternal. The sacrifices of the Old Testament had to do with external, ceremonial defilements, and were cleansed merely ceremoniously. By the sprinkling of the blood of Christ, the morally defiled are made morally clean. The atoning blood of Christ cleanses the heart. It purges, cleanses the conscience, the inner life, which needs to be purified before we may enter into fellowship with Christ. Only then can one serve God acceptably. We are cleansed unto service not by our service.

The New and Eternal Covenant, vs. 15-22

In these verses the writer is explaining that the gospel is the new and last testament of Christ. Testament means the same as covenant. Christ's voluntary death on the cross makes this covenant valid and effectual. In His death, He made a new covenant the purpose of which is to redeem people from their transgressions. It enables all who accept its provisions to inherit eternal life. This is a covenant of grace and not of law. This covenant could become effective only through Christ's death, even as a man's "last will" becomes effective only after his death. Christ has laid down His life, and all believers receive the eternal inheritance. Moses ratified the Old Testament covenant with the blood of bulls and goats. The new covenant of Christ was ratified with His own blood. There is no remission of sin without the shedding of His blood. God took the initiative in establishing the covenant with Israel. Moses was the mediator between God and Israel. God promised to protect, provide, and care for Israel. They promised to be faithful to Him, separated from heathen defilements and set apart for the service of God, worshipping Him only.

Israel wilfully and presistently violated her part of this covenant, and, therefore, could no longer claim God's favor. The Old Testament covenant rites and sacrifices were but types of Christ. A new one was needed. This new one is final, perfect, nothing will ever supersede it. Every spiritual need of man is met in it. Through Christ's death a more spiritual religious order was established. The work of redemption was completed.

How was the covenant with Israel kept?
Why is worship so necessary in Christianity?
How well do I keep my covenant with God?

CORRESPONDENCE

EDEN MENN. CHURCH, MOUNDRIDGE, KAN.

The passing of another harvest season draws our attention to the fact that the harvest in the spiritual realm may soon be over. Are we bringing in the sheaves with as much care there as here?

During the last few months, we have welcomed several guest pastors. On May 25, Rev. Gustav Enns, formerly of the Hopefield Church, brought an inspiring message on "The Nation's Only Way to Peace." He based his sermon on II Chronicles 15. On June 8, Rev. J. F. Moyer, from Bethel College, delivered a sermon on "The Unpardonable Sin." On July 2, Missionary Alfred Habegger, from Busby, Montana, brought messages and showed pictures of their work among the Indians.

On June 1, we had an impressive baptismal service in which over thirty candidates were baptized.

Our pastor, Rev. Walter Gering, used a very impressive text as an admonition for all of us, namely, "What do ye more than others?" He said to be a Christian is a challenge to live above the world. We observed Communion services the next morning. Five weddings have taken place since our last report.

On June 4, the first two of our boys left for the C. O. camp. On July 13, our pastor gave a very favorable report of the work that is being done there as he had observed it during the previous week. He encouraged us to support and pray for the boys and their leaders. —Richard Schrag, Corr.

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, HILLSBORO, KAN.

On June 15, five young men were received into our church through the rite of baptism, administered by Rev. J. M. Regier. The Lord's Supper was observed on June 29. Rev. J. E. Entz, Newton, Kan., brought the preparatory message the previous Sunday and also officiated on Communian Sunday. We are happy so many attended. Wesley Ewert, student at Bethel College, will supply the pulpit during the month of July.

Our sewing circles are participating in relief work. Rev. D. W. Bittinger, McPherson, Kansas, opened our union meetings on Monday evening, July 6, with a message of great value. On the following Sunday, the Juniors of the participating churches (Johannesthal, Bruderthal, Evangelical, and First Mennonite) will present a program. These meetings take place on our church lawn. On July 20, Rev. C. L. Sorg, of Newton, will speak. These meetings are well attended. —Correspondent

BERGTHAL CHURCH, CORN, OKLAHOMA

August 1, 1941

Since our last report, Rev. Henry Hege and family have made two trips to Kansas, one to Pawnee Rock where Rev. Hege officiated at the wedding of Waldo Brandt of Gotebo, Okla., and Avis Unruh of Pawnee Rock, and also at the funeral of Mrs. P. A. R. Unruh; and the second trip was to the Retreat at Camp Wood. During the latter time, Mrs. Hege and children visited home folks at Goessel and Newton.

Last week, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ediger returned from Turpin, Texas, where they visited their son who was hurt some time ago when a large iron weight fell on his head while working on a combine.

In his absence, Rev. Hege has a very able helper in Brother Henry Franzen who brought the message last Sunday morning. In the evening, Rev. J. R. Barkman, Bible instructor at the Oklahoma Bible Academy at Meno, spoke and gave a special invitation to the young folks to attend the school this winter.

A number from here expect to attend the Western District C. E. Convention at the Grace Mennonite Church in Enid, Sunday, August 3. This will be in the past when this appears in the paper.

Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Bergen and daughter, Elizabeth, are at present making their home with Rev. John Bergen at Villa Park, near Chicago, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Bergen are visiting their children here in Oklahoma. At present they are staying at the Harry Hiebert home in Cordell. They intend to go back to the Home of the Aged at Newton for the winter. Mrs. J. A. Ratzlaff's condition has not improved. Mrs. Walter Harms underwent an operation for appendicitis Sunday. She is improving very satisfactorily. A baby came to their home two weeks previously.

The weather has been fairly hot the past weeks and moisture can always be used. Local showers have been fairly well distributed and sufficient so that practically all wheat land has been turned. The penalty for over-sown acreage and the further reduction of wheat allotment for the coming years has caused some discontentment among farmers.

—H. A. Unger, Corr

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, BEATRICE, NEB.

On July 13, our pastor, Rev. W. H. Dyck, was again in our midst after taking a short vacation, during which time he visited with relatives and friends in Kansas and at the Civilian Camp at Colorado Springs, Colo.

We enjoyed unusually cool weather during the time when most farmers were threshing. Although the yield per acre was not as high as last year, we have much to be thankful for. Pastures and forage crops are good on account of frequent rains.

Our elder, Rev. Franz Albrecht, emeritus, is again able to attend church services after a lingering illness. On August 3, while our pastor attended the Western District Christian Endeavor Convention at Enid, Okla., we had the joy and privilege of having Rev. Karl Friesen and family, Newton, Kansas, in our midst. Rev. Friesen conducted the morning services. In spite of the heat, the church was well filled.

Four members of our church have recently been called to answer the last summons. This raises the question: Are we ready to meet our Lord?

The Bethel College A Cappella Choir will be in our midst the week-end of August 8. Delegates from our church are making plans to attend the General Conference. Let us all be much in prayer for the Holy Spirit to guide and direct our efforts in these critical times. —Emily Tiahrt, Corr.

John Decides For God

*By Jessie Kimble

John was willing to do God's will but wondered where he could find out just what God wanted him to do.

His friend said, "John, if you read your Bible and try to understand it, I believe you would know what God wants you to do." John thanked his friend, and that same day he started to read his Bible.

Time passed quickly. The next year John chanced to meet his friend again. John seemed such a different person from what he was a year ago.

"What happened?" asked his friend.

"When I started to read my Bible, I began to see things in a new light. Second Corinthians, chapter 5, verse 17 says, 'Old things are passed away; behold all things are become new.' I guess that's the way it was with me."

John was a changed boy, but it had come about only through difficulty and temptation.

Before John had changed he went with a group of young people. These later did not seem to be what he had once thought they were. Several times a week this group, including John, went to some place where they could have a good time.

Once when the group suggested a certain roadhouse, John objected. "I don't think we should go there," he said. But when they jeered him he said he would go. Then everything was all right.

On the way John was having a battle within himself. "I wonder if I should have come. O well, what's the difference! This is just the first time we've been here and it will probably be the last. There wouldn't be any harm in it." With this John tried to dismiss the matter from his mind. But somehow the thought stayed.

Just the other day he had read the book of Acts. "We ought to obey God rather than men," Peter had said. Hadn't he obeyed men just now instead of God? He had done the wrong thing. He hoped God would forgive him.

Upon arriving at the roadhouse, John said, "Fellows, I was right in the first place. I don't want to go in there. I'm going back to town."

John drove away with the shoutings of the group in his ears. "Sissy!" "Mamma's little boy!" "Joy-killer!" They didn't sound very nice and John surely did not like to be called such names.

On the way home John prayed. He knew God had forgiven him. Didn't the Lord Jesus say of such as he, "Blessed," in Matthew 5:11? There were people in Russia and other parts of Europe, in fact, all over the world who were tortured and even killed because they believed in God. But, whatever the trial, it was worth more to stand up for God than to stand up for man.

It soon got around about "nice Johnny." Those who he had once thought were his friends, now made fun of him. He didn't care about them or their ways any more. They held no attraction for him as they once had. His joy was in knowing he had done God's will, and he would do it forever.

After his change, John met new friends whom he really liked.

There was one thing John remembered about Jesus Christ which was his mainstay: Jesus did the will of God. His will and the will of the Father were so identical that He could say, "He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father." Christ's spirit was deeply revealed in the Gethsemane prayer, "Not my will but thine be done." John clung to this. He wanted to say to God always, "Not my will but thine be done."

"What worth has the 'simple life' for young people today?"

By C. H. A. van der Smissen

This question may appear out of date today, for where is the "simple life" of our forefathers? Many of our earnest members are very sorry that so many of our young people follow the ways of the world so much.

The older people remember well and gladly how formerly our young people dressed so neatly and simply. They wore no uniform, and they did present a pretty appearance. My dear wife's principle was: "I am no slave of Venus (the Greek goddess of beauty and immorality) but of my Lord Jesus Christ; when the fashion is reasonable and decent, I am fashionable. But I will never dress so that I would be ashamed to appear before my Saviour in His presence." Christians ought always to do and to dress so as to honor and please their Lord and Master.

* A high school student, Lima, Ohio

When someone in Holland wanted simple, but extra fine goods, he or she would ask for Menniste fine goods.

Whenever Christian young ladies obey the devil or the heathen goddess, Venus, we are sorry. It is too bad when girls imitate the immoral, fashion-making women of Paris and appear with bare legs. They should mind the earnest appeal of Christian doctors like Dr. Wilson of Kansas City. Recently in our church he warned the young ladies and said that since women appear in bare legs, there are 50% more illegal children in a certain Kansas City hospital than there were formerly. Simple life in dress and in the home is attractive and it affords a saving; it is pleasing to God and to all earnest Christians.

God bless our dear young people and teach them the beauty and reasonableness of the "simple life" as our forefathers practiced it!

BLESSINGS OF WORK

Program for September 7, 1941

Leading Topic: Work and Its Blessings, I Cor. 3:11-14; Eph. 4:28.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Lead On, O King Eternal," No. 399; "Father in Heav'n, Who Lovest All," No. 401, "Soldiers of Christ, Arise," No. 198.
2. Reading of main topic, and Prayer.
3. Special Music: "Are Ye Able, Said the Master," No. 392.
4. Offering for Peace Work.

II. Leader's Introduction

Sometimes work is drudgery, sometimes it is even considered a curse. And again, that same work, done with a different attitude of mind, will be a blessing. Instead of work becoming drudgery in crowded, trying days, it gives occasion to prove the truth of God's promise, "As thy days so shall thy strength be." Instead of work becoming a curse, there is an opportunity to grow in grace, in patience, in strength of character. Often, however, work is definitely a joy and a chance for self-expression. It is a privilege to be "up and doing," to sing a song, to build a home, to teach in a schoolroom filled with developing youngsters, to plow straight deep furrows in God's good earth, to feel the thrill of driving a car efficiently, to meet people as a clerk, in short, to get the feel of doing something useful and doing it well.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Indefatigable Workers	Neh. 2:17-20
2. Labor with a Purpose	John 6:26-29
3. Labor under Difficulties	I Cor. 4:10-13
4. Steadiness in Labor	I Thess. 4:9-12
5. Reckoning for Labor	Luke 19:15-24
6. Wages for all Workers	John 4:35-38

IV. For Discussion

1. What makes work a blessing?
2. What are the blessings of work?
3. Is some physical work necessary for the development of an all-around personality?

V. Facts for Study

There is a peculiar truth in the fact that long strenuous hours of patient toil seem to be necessary for the accomplishment of most of the things that are of real value in this world. Edison experienced this, so did Lincoln and St. Paul and Jesus. It is said of Jesus that sometimes His days were so crowded that He and His disciples did not find time to eat. He got so tired that a storm at sea did not awake Him. But these men put these hours of toil in for a purpose. Let us beware lest we lead a hectic life, being busy and accomplishing next to nothing.

VI. Illustration

One day the Master told His disciples the story of a sower who had scattered his seed faithfully and well, but found that portions of it met varying fates. Some perished for lack of depth of earth. Some was choked out by thorns.

But this did not account for it all. Some of the seed fell on good ground, found nourishment, took root, and grew. This again met varying results. Some of it brought forth more and some less of a yield, but in every case the yield was enough to be worth while.

The garnered crop was ample fruitage to repay for all the toil and hope and love that had gone into the work of sowing.

VII. Food for Thought

Whatsoever you do, do it carefully and wholeheartedly.

WORK MAKES LIFE WORTH WHILE

Program for September 7, 1941

Poem: What Did You Do?

"I worked for men," my Lord will say,
When we meet at the end of the King's highway;
"I walked with the beggar along the road,
I kissed the bondsman stung by the goad,
I bore my half of the porter's load,

"And what did you do?" my Lord will say,
As I travel along the King's highway.
"I eased the sister's troubled mind,
I helped the blighted to be resigned,
I showed the sky to souls grown blind."
"And what did you do?" my Lord will say,
When we meet at the end of the King's highway.
—Robert Davis, Int. Ex. Services.

Hymn: "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

Scripture Reading: Prov. 6:6-11.

Poem: A Little Song of Work

Elijah's mantle fell upon
Elisha plowing sod;
And Gideon was threshing wheat
When he was called of God.

To Moses and to David came
The call when shepherding;
For labor so befits a man
And dignifies a king.

One day the Holy Ghost, elect
Of God triune to choose
Ambassadors, poured holy oil
On Moody—selling shoes!

The Saviour was a carpenter;
The Roman's nails crashed through
Fine, manly hands that callouses
Of homely labor knew.

And Paul, apostle, like his Lord,
Had learned a trade and stands
An honor to the working man
Who serves with honest hands.

And so, with greater gifts of grace,
O Soul, name thou to bless
The gift of work; its fellowship
And rugged fruitfulness.
—Sarah E. Sprouse, F. H. Revell Co.

Song: "Work For the Night is Coming."

Quotations:

A Christian's spirituality will depend as much upon his work as his work upon his spirituality. —Chalmers.

We enjoy ourselves only in our work—in our doing; and our best doing is our enjoyment.—Jacobi.

St. Edmund of Canterbury was right when he said to somebody, "Work as though you would live forever; but live as though you would die today."

All men, if they work not as in the great taskmaster's eye, will work wrong, work unhappily for themselves and you. —Carlyle.

Discussion: Do you agree that work makes life worth while?

2. Call to Worship: "The Lord is in His holy temple, let all the earth keep silence before Him. Amen."
3. Leader's Opening Prayer.
4. Sing in unison, verses, 1, 2, and 4 of the above song.

6. Solo with violin obligato: "Great is Thy Faithfulness."
7. Memory verses on Trust, by five Junior girls: Ps. 25:2; Ps. 56:3,4; Ps. 118:8,9; Nah. 1:7; I Tim. 4:10b.
8. Song by these same five girls, " 'Tis so Sweet to Trust in Jesus," Service Hymnal No. 221.

II. Study Period

Aim: To strengthen our Juniors in their trust and confidence in our Lord and His goodness. To help them to live a life of trust.

1. Introduction by a Junior girl:

Our pearl from the Proverbs tells us to trust in the Lord. It seeems almost unnecessary to tell anyone to trust in Him because He is good. He loves us. He will never let anything happen to His children except that which is the very best for them. Sometimes we say that we trust in the Lord, but in our actions we show that we really do not. We must always pray for strength to live a life of trust.

2. Discussion (all Juniors taking part):
   a) What do we mean by trust?
   b) How can we trust with all our hearts?
3. Song in unison: "Trust and Obey."
4. Minute talks by five Juniors:
   a) Whom shall we trust? Prov. 3:5a, Ps. 62:1,2, 5, and 6.
   b) When shall we trust? Ps. 62:8, Isaiah 26:4, Job 13:15b.
   c) How shall we trust? Prov. 3:5a.
   d) Who should trust? Ps. 25:2a, Ps. 55:23c, Ps. 143:8b, Ps. 115:9-11.
   e) What happens when we trust? Prov. 3:6, Prov. 16:20b, Ps. 37:3, Ps. 5:11.
5. Duet: "God Will Take Care of You."
6. Leader's heart talk.

III. Mission Minutes

1. A report on Missionary S. J. Moyer's letter in The Mennonite, Aug. 5, 1941.
2. Silent prayer for the work at Janjgir.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Give from memory the verse of the month.
2. Sing from memory the song of the month.
3. Pray in unison the prayer of the month.
4. Sing softly, "Into My Heart."

Plans for September, 1941.

THE CHURCH SERVICE

September 7—Music in the Church Service. "Serve the Lord with gladness: Come before His presence with singing," Psalm 100:2.

September 14—Prayers in the Church Service. "Mine house shall be called an house of prayer for all people," Isaiah 56:7b.

September 21—The Sermon, the Heart of the Church Service. "How shall they believe in Him of Whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?" Romans 10:14b.

September 28—The Offering in the Church Service. "God loveth a cheerful giver," II Cor. 9:7b.

Verse of the month: Psalm 27:4, "One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to enquire in His temple."

Prayer of the month: Psalm 19:14, "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditations of my heart be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my Strength and my Redeemer."

Song of the month: "The Church's One Foundation."

To the leaders: Our Juniors are back from vacations and broken routines. Life for them is again more ordered and regular. Let us help them to a regular and ordered church attendance by making every phase of the church program meaningful to them. We as Junior leaders have a great responsibility. We have the joy of building up in them an appreciation for the various parts of the service, in creating in them a desire to take an intelligent part in the worship of the church, and in fostering in them a deep loyalty and love for their very own church.

In this month's study, then, let us strive to help them to realize that Sunday School and Junior Christian Endeavor are not enough. A Christian delights also to worship God in the church service.

MUSIC IN THE CHURCH SERVICE

Program for September 7, 1941

"Serve the Lord with gladness, come before His presence with singing," Psalm 100:2.

Worship Center: A large copy of "The Angelus" and before it lying on a velvet cloth a golden trumpet, beside which one large lighted taper is placed.

I. Worship Service

1. Prelude: "Largo," by piano with violin.
2. Call to Worship: "O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness; fear before Him all the earth," Psalm 96:9.
3. Song: "The Church's One Foundation," vs. 1, 2, 4, 5.
4. Leader's Opening Prayer.
5. Responsive Reading: Psalm 96.
6. Pianist plays the melody of "The Church's One Foundation" very softly while the Junior leader explains difficult phrases.
7. Juniors choose a favorite verse of the same song and sing it.
8. In unison repeat Psalm 100.

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors to an appreciation of the music of the church service, and to lead them to take a definite part in it.

1. Introduction by the church pianist or choir leader.
2. List the music of the church service on the blackboard.

a) Prelude c) Hymns
b) Anthem d) Doxology

3. The Prelude, by a Junior girl:

We come to church to worship, not to visit. When we enter the church we should be reverent and quiet. We should think of our Lord. The Prelude helps us to take our minds off other things and prepares us for the prayers and sermon that will follow. We should spend the time while the prelude is played in reverent, holy, silent meditation.

4. Church pianist plays a Prelude.
5. Invite the choir member who has been in the choir the longest time to tell the Juniors about the Anthem.
6. Discuss the Anthem of the morning's service.
7. The Hymns, by a Junior boy:

Hymns are the songs in which everyone in the church service can and should take an active part. In the hymns that we sing we worship God, we praise Him and we pray to Him, telling Him of the longings of our hearts.

8. Singing of Hymns by all the Juniors:

a) Hymn of worship: "O Worship the King," vs. 1, 2.

b) Hymn of praise: "We Praise Thee, O God," vs. 1, 3.

c) Hymn of prayer: "Abide with Me," vs. 1, 4, and 5.

d) Hymns telling of the longings of our hearts:
"Jesus Savior, Pilot Me," v. 1;
"I Need Thee Every Hour," v. 3;
"My Jesus, I Love Thee," vs. 1, 2;
"We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," vs. 1, 4.

9. The Doxology, by a Junior boy:

The Doxology expresses praise to God. Read the Doxology noting the praise it contains.

10. All sing the Doxology.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Review again our missionary fields, pointing them out on the globe or map.
2. Pray for each field silently, then Juniors who have been asked previously each pray for a certain field.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Sing two verses of the song of the month.
2. Memorize the verse of the month.
3. Learn the prayer of the month.
4. Sing the Doxology.

GOD AT MY DOOR

faith, but so touched by the wonders of faith that the usual becomes truly unusual. The bush Moses saw was like a thousand other bushes until he found it burning and discovered God there. Sinai was like a dozen other mountains until God spoke to Moses there and revealed to him the fundamentals of the law.

Where any man meets God may be a usual place—the hot street of the city as it was with Carlyle; the office, the living room, the old barn, any old place as it has been with most of us; that place where a new life began within you. Isaiah had worshiped in the temple many times; but on the particular day that King Uzziah died he saw the Lord, and the temple took on a new glory.

The second element in this picture of God at my door is the pitching of the tent in the right place. Moses knew just where to set it up. He might have pitched it among the other tents in a too-crowded relationship, showing God no respect or honor. He may have tried various spots until he found just the right one. Apart and yet at hand; far and yet near; among them and yet away from them! That was the place, and there God came to talk with Moses.

This same thought was once put in another way when someone asked Abraham Lincoln if he thought God was on his side. We all remember the answer, "I am not so concerned about whether God is on our side, but whether we are on God's side." It is not whether God comes to the right place; it is whether we pitch our tent or build our house or plant our lives in the right place.

But there is one thing more of which I would speak. We must revere that spot above all spots. We must treat that trysting-tent, or the place where God comes to us, as the very gate of heaven itself. Like the Children of Israel standing in awe of that tent, so must we revere and set apart as something different the place where we meet God.

It is a Protestant failing that we treat the church like a common hall. And although our eternal and invisible and omnipresent God is not to be identified merely with some building or place, unless we learn to reverence Him somewhere we will at last reverence Him nowhere.

If God comes to my door in what form may I expect Him? Shall I look for some magic to be performed? Will He come in a cloud, or upon the wings of light, or like the elaborate visions of John upon Patmos? I fear that many have looked for Him to come in some such way.

We would all agree that we see God every day smiling at us through the violet or daffodil or rose which grows beside our cottage door. He comes with every beam of light and note of music and color of the rainbow and smile of a loved one.

But the average man wants this God Whom we seek to show Himself in a manner that is conclusive, one which makes a man face these tragic days with greater hope, and which helps him to live more fearlessly.

Daphne DuMaurier, in her little book, Come Wind, Come Weather, so beautifully describes how He is coming to the stricken people in England. He changes the heart, He makes people who are at their wit's end able to stand a great deal more than they thought they could stand. He makes irritable and irritating people different. . . .

A young man told me a short time ago how he and a group of students were rising early each morning and going out alone to read the Scriptures and meditate upon great truths, in preparation for the day's work. That is a picture of youth at its best. Then these selfsame young men, filled with the Spirit, find living quarters in the slums of a great city, where they can live like and be like the people who can live nowhere else. And there they are sharing what they have with the underfed and the underdressed. That is idealism raised to a sublime realism.

On Palm Sunday, 1900 years ago, God, in the form of a youthful prophet called Jesus, came to man's door. He came to the great city. He came to the door of Jerusalem. He came to the door of the Temple, the place of worship. He came to the door of the schoolroom where He taught. He came to the door of the governor, the political representative of the people. . . . At night He came to the humble door of a friend in Bethany where He stayed for the night. But few people knew who He was—and finally they killed Him. If He came to our city and church and school and forum and home today—what would we do with Him?

IN MEMORIAM

CORNELIUS KOEHN, son of Ernest and Lena Koehn, was born July 17, 1854, in Polish Russia. In 1874, he immigrated to Kansas. He was baptized in 1876. In 1879 he was united in marriage to Miss Katherine Ratzlaff, in the present Immanuel Church, McPherson County, Kansas. To this union fifteen children were born, nine daughters and six sons, three of which preceded him in death, two in infancy and Abraham at the age of 52 years.

In 1901 he moved to Oklahoma where he settled on a farm two miles east of Goltry, which remained his home until his death. He, together with two others, organized the Mennonite Church at Goltry thirty-three years ago.

He was in fair health until July 3, 1941, when he took sick. He was taken to the General Hospital at Enid on July 9, where he passed away July 15, 1941, at 7:40 p. m., at the age of 87 years and 8 days.

He leaves to mourn his children, Mrs. Susie Unruh of Meno, Barney of Goltry, Isaac of Menno, Mrs. Lizzie Becker of Meno, John and Frank of Carnegie, Mrs. Anna Smith of Fort Cobb, Mrs. Carrie Pekrul of Aline, Mrs. Lena Jantz of Meno, Mrs. Marie Piesky of Goltry, Jula of the home, and Mrs. Ida Unruh of Meno; 47 grandchildren; 28 great grandchildren; one brother, Benjamin, of Taloga; and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Decker, from Kansas.

His wife preceded him in death in 1917. Two brothers, Andrew and Henry, and two sisters, Mrs. Eva Ridegar and Mrs. Anna Nightengale, also preceded him.

WILLIE B. WIEBE, son of Henry M. and Margaretha Regier Wiebe, was born November 29, 1899, near Whitewater, Kansas. He received his elementary education in the grades and the Vacation Bible schools. Later, he graduated from the Hillsboro Bible Academy. On May 19, 1918, he was baptized upon the confession of his faith by Elder Gustav Harder and received into the Emmaus Mennonite Church, which he faithfully attended until his early death.

Among other activities, he proved his faithfulness to his church by his regular attendance. He was united in marriage to Esther M. Claassen on August 10, 1927. This union was blessed with four children, two sons and two daughters. They made their home four miles north of Brainerd. He was a thrifty farmer and stock raiser.

About four weeks before his death, he had an attack of the so-called summer flu. Two weeks later, he was taken to the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas, to be under efficient medical care. He developed a severe case of pneumonia, and, on the evening of July 24, a heart failure ended his earthly life.

He leaves to mourn his departure his deeply bereaved wife, four children, his aged mother, one sister, three brothers, a large number of relatives and friends. He reached the age of 41 years, 7 months, and 25 days. Funeral services were held in the home with Rev. B. W. Harder in charge, and at the Emmaus Church with his pastor, Rev. J. C. Kaufman, officiating.

"For I know the thoughts that I think towards you, saith the Lord, thoughts of peace and not evil, to give you an expected end," Jer. 29:11.

GERHARD D. EWERT, son of Gerhard and Anna Duerksen Ewert, was born November 15, 1861, in Rosenort, South Russia. He came to America with his parents in 1876, when they located near Hillsboro, Kansas. He became a member of the Brudertal Church when baptized by Rev. Wilhelm Ewert, Sr., in 1881. He was united in marriage to Anna Penner, daughter of Rev. J. W. Penner, in 1885. This union was broken after twenty-eight years, when Mrs. Ewert was called to her reward. In 1913, he married Helena Peters, of Mountain Lake, Minn.

In December, 1922, he became seriously ill with appendicitis. Following an operation, he recovered only partially. This left him an invalid the remaining nineteen years of his life. Those years were hard, but with a strong hold on his Saviour and the devoted support of his wife, he came through victoriously. Twelve days before his passing, he suffered a light stroke. On July 22, after enjoying supper and preparing for the night, his Saviour and Friend, for Whom he longed, quietly came and took him home.

His life, while in health, was one of intense activity. He served his church, home, and community cheerfully. He leaves to mourn his passing, his devoted wife; four sons and seven daughters: Henry and George of Drake, Sask.; Jake and David of Hillsboro, Kansas.; Anna, Mrs. V. A. Bartel, of Drake, Sask.; Elizabeth, Mrs. J. A. Wollman, Freeman, S. D.; Sarah, Mrs. Herman Plenert; Marie, Mrs. J. L. W. Regier; Martha, Mrs. Ted Hodel, all of Hillsboro; Hazel, Mrs. Harold Schmidt, of Walton, Kan.; and Ethel of the home; six sons-in-law; four daughters-in-law; 24 living grandchildren; and three great grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted from the Hillsboro Mennonite Church, Saturday, July 26. Rev. A. E. Funk, nephew of the deceased, and Rev. J. M. Regier spoke words of comfort. Interment was made in the Brudertal Church cemetery.

Holding Our Peace

In II Kings 7, we find the story of the siege of Samaria by the Syrian host. This siege lasted so long that there was a great famine in the city. So great was the famine that mothers in their desperation resorted to the slaughtering of their own children to satisfy their hunger. Seemingly there was nothing that could put an end to the siege, nothing—but, had they reckoned with God?

Four lepers who had to live outside the city were just as desperate for want of food as the inhabitants of the city. So they reasoned among themselves as to what the best course of action would be. "If we say, We will enter into the city, then the famine is in the city, and we shall die there: and if we sit still here, we die also. Now therefore come, let us fall unto the host of the Syrians: if they save us alive, we shall live; and if they kill us, we shall but die." They go into the camp of the Syrians and "behold, there was no man there." They had all fled when the Lord caused them to hear the noise of a great host.

The four lepers go into one tent after the other, eating and drinking and carrying out the treasures which the Syrians had left behind. They have found enough and more than they can use and they are satisfied.

But in the midst of their plundering of the camp, they come to an abrupt halt. What has happened? They remember the people of Samaria who are still ignorant of this wonderful delivery, and they say to each other: "We do not well: this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace: if we tarry till the morning light, some mischief will come upon us: now therefore come, that we may go and tell the king's household."

This, too, is a day of good tidings, and do we hold our peace? As we live in comfort and ease, enjoying the assurance of full salvation through Christ Jesus, do we remember those who are still ignorant of this wonderful delivery, and do we also come to the realization that we do not well that we hold our peace? If we tarry, "some mischief will come upon us," for ours is the responsibility of sharing these good tidings with those who are still living in this time of grace. —mb

"What is That in Thine Hand?"

On these words, taken from Exodus 4:2, Oscar J. Finch has the following meditation:

"Moses had come to the cross-roads of life. God was now offering him the privilege of being useful, of rendering sacrificial service, of being remembered for having done something worth while. In response to Moses' statement regarding his inability, God demonstrated that he could do wonders with his shepherd's staff.

"God chose Moses, as he was, to be the leader of Israel. Moses objected because he did not consider himself equal to the task. It was true that Moses would ever be unable to do the work to which he was being called. But it was also true that, by the help of the Lord, he would ever be able to accomplish his task. For God had not asked Moses to do that which was beyond his strength. He had asked him to become the instrument through which He might work.

"Moses' rod was the emblem—the tool—of his daily task. He cast it down and then took it. The significance was that of consecrating it to God. It was his crooked stick, Shamgar's ox-goad, Gideon and his 300 with their lamps, horns and pitchers, David's sling-shot and stone, and the lad's five loaves and two fishes consecrated to God and used by Him that enabled these men to be enrolled on the scroll of the great. 'What is that in thine hand?' Whether it be a babe, a broom, a hammer, a pen, or a farm, consecrate it to God. Be good stewards and allow Him to use you and that which you have."

—Come Ye Apart

Not always OUT of our troublous times,
And the struggles fierce and grim,
BUT IN—deeper IN— to our one sure rest,
The place of our peace, in Him.

—Annie Johnson Flint

The greatest things ever done on earth have been done by little and little—little agents, little persons, little things, by everyone doing his own work, filling his own sphere, holding his own post, and saying, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" —Guthrie

OUR WORK IN JANJGIR

By S. F. Moyer

Returing to India, we arrived in Bombay on August 17, 1939, in the midst of the rainy season. Through mud and rain we came to Janjgir, C. P. Whatever may have been our premonitions, we were not fully aware how deeply our roots had gone into the work and geography of the Basna Mission Station Area. Have you ever tried to go through mud and water to establish your home in a new place, with the clouds hanging low, and the sun not shining for days and weeks? Our roots were in Basna. We felt like cabbages with the roots cut off. Yet God's possible plans could not be disregarded. Someone has said, "Life is not a picnic. It is a series of experiences whereby we learn to know ourselves, and others, and God."

What was the background of this work here, on the hard murrom soil of Janjgir Tahsile, to which we had been stationed? Nearly forty years previously, our pioneer Missionaries, Kroeker and Penner, came here. They lay down on the hard marrom soil on the very spot where the Mission Station now stands, and thus slept through the night. Camp cots they had none. Wells were unknown. The landscape was absolutely bare of trees, shrubbery, flowering plants and vegetable gardens. Half a million population could not boast of a single Christian. The murrom soil was hard and gritty and almost sterile. And the soul soil of the untouchables, living in a nearby suburb of Janjgir, seemed just as void of possibilities for the glory of God.

Nearly forty years later we arrived. During this our first year it has often seemed that the soul soil is just as hard and void of love and the gentle mercies of God as the murrom soil. From the surrounding villages sin and the terrible things of life have wrenched our heart strings. We have declared that if we were God, we could not stand to know all He knows, and still love. But yet, here we are. Due to the valiant efforts of our predecessors, wells now give abundant supplies of water, though it is not as readily accessible as at Basna. Trees, abundant shade, flowers and shrubbery, a good garden and buildings make up the Mission Compound. There is a Christian Community here which is as verile as any, perhaps, of our entire Mission, excepting the churches of the Basna Area. For this, too, we can thank our predecessors. While we have this one Christian Church in this village of Janjgir, we have 358 other villages and towns in which there is no church established, and perhaps all of 350 villages where there are no indiginous Christian believers.

In a score of ways, the things with which we tussle every day wear and tear us. The foreign mission field is no bed of roses. It is an experience of fire for the soul. If one gets through on God's strength, his soul is refined as by fire. If not, if he leans on his own strength alone, his soul becomes seared by this fire.

To create is easier than to recreate. When God created the world, He used the power of His Word. But when He wanted to recreate, He had to give His own life on Calvary. Recently this statement was read in a devotional book, "He took the Cross, the emblem of evil, and made of it the emblem of eternal love. Cannot He help you too?" As we apply ourselves to our task, we crave your prayers, interest, and support, that in God's strength beautiful gardens of God may be planted here, and that beautiful flowers may blossom forth and bear fruit for the King of Kings, before this term of service is over. Our Saviour's will is not that this desert in human souls should exist when the waters of life flow so freely.

Looking Unto God

How many things we have for which to be grateful! God has been very rich unto us in sparing us from any major physical disabilities, and great medical or hospital expenses. He has been rich unto us in giving you all as our friends. Prov. 27:6, 9, 17. He has been rich unto us in permitting us to return to India just before the war broke out. He has been rich unto us in permitting us to be in India in the most formative of India's history. He has been rich to us in giving us parental homes in the U. S. A. He has been rich unto us in giving us His Abiding Son, Who is the Captain of our Enterprise, the great Shepherd of our Pathways.

As we unitedly face the New Year, let us consider these great words of promise and assurance from II Cor. 9:8, "God is able to make all Grace abound, that ye, having all sufficiency in everything may abound unto every good Work."

AN INVITATION

God willing, we will give Sister Justina Schmidt, R. N., a farewell at our church, the Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas, Sunday, August 31, 1941, at 2:00 p. m. Sister Schmidt is returning to the "Sudan Interior Mission," Kano N. Niagara, West Africa. She and other outside speakers will appear on the program. Everybody is heartily welcome.

GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH

"The Friendly Church on the Corner"

1114 Santian Rd., Albany, Oregon, June 11, 1941
Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa.
Dear Brother:

Leaving Bluffton on April 14, we first went to visit our children, Rev. and Mrs. R. F. Larson, working among the Kentucky mountain people. Then back to Bluffton, picking up our trailor, and on to Wheaten, Ill., where our youngest son is a senior in Wheaton College. At the same time we visited our youngest daughter, Elizabeth, and her husband, Dr. C. E. Kielsmeier. From there we went on to Bloomfield, Mont., where I spoke twice in the church where Rev. Herbert Widmer is pastor. The last stop on the way to Oregon was at Joliet, Montana, with our eldest daughter and her family. Her husband Rev. Wm. Templin is pastor of the Church of Christ in that place. Arriving in Dallas, Oregon, we stayed the first night with my oldest brother, F. F. Kliewer, on May 9. The 10th we took the trailor to Albany, coming back to Dallas, being overnight with Mrs. Kliewer's sister, Mrs. Earl Smith. Sunday, May 11, we went to Albany for the farewell service of Rev. and Mrs. Franz and for the reception of Mrs. Kliewer and myself. Preached my first sermon on that Sunday morning. We went back to Dallas for the evening; heard Miss Davis from China.

Monday we went back to Albany, looking around for places to buy household goods. On May 15 we were again in Dallas for the P. D. Conference. Had blessed days. Enjoyed the fellowship of the brethren very much. Met many old friends in Dallas. On the following Monday we went back to Albany and into the harness. Have made many visits looking up the members of the church and canvassing this community. Many new houses are going up in this part of the city. We are praying that as, Paul in Rom. 1:13, we may have some fruit here in this community—fruit of precious souls for the Lord.

In John 4, Jesus winning the Samaritan woman, sees a rich harvest of hungry souls coming as the result of this woman returning home and telling her people what the Lord had done for her. Jesus says: "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." In John 4:37-38: "Herein is that saying true, One soweth, and another reapeth, I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labour: other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours." Paul says: "I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase." I Cor. 3:6-10. 6-10.

Rev. and Mrs. Harley King, Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Augsburger, and Rev. and Mrs. Franz have been sowing the Word of God. They have sown and planted. We see and fully realize this, and thank God for their labours, faithfully sowing the Seed.

Our prayer is, that with His help, we may faithfully and uncompromisingly sow the incorruptable seed, the Word of God. The Lord then will give the increase in precious souls saved by faith in the Atoning Blood of Jesus Christ, and will add to the church daily such as should be saved. We ask your prayers for us and the preaching of His Word. We believe that here is a large field and precious souls will be saved.

Yours in the Saviour's Service,

—Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Kliewer

Oklahoma Bible Academy

July 30, 1941

The school season of 1941-42 is approaching with a greater challenge than ever before. Every young man and woman should realize that the time demands the very best preparation, especially in spiritual training. We are glad to inform you that the Oklahoma Bible Academy is preparing to do a greater work with an increased staff and greater possibilities. We are looking forward for a greater student body.

Time is very precious. While the world is mobilizing at an enormous cost, let us not play away our opportunities but be men and women of the hour for Christ. O. B. A. is prepared to offer the usual high school course which is accredited in every state. Every student is taking some Bible. With an extra Bible teacher this year we are prepared to offer the three-year Bible course to high school graduates.

You are not only responsible for yourself, but you should be concerned that others might come for a definite course in Bible training, especially urging all the young men to come. Tomorrow the government may need and call them. Will you neglect and miss this great opportunity of a thorough Bible training?

May we call your attention once more to the fact that O. B. A. tuition, board, and room rent is less than at any of our other institutions. School opens on September 8.

If you are having financial difficulties, write immediately. It is our desire to help. We will appreciate getting names of prospective students.

Yours for a better Bible training,

The Oklahoma Bible Academy

Except Ye Believe

John Wesley, toward the close of his life, once said, "Thank God, our people die well." He had preached a gospel through many years which declared that the Christian has no reason for fearing death, and in the crisis of dying that gospel had worked! But his gospel also declared that Christians have no reason for fearing life, and in the process of living that gospel also works!

Bishop John Gowdy, nearly half a century in China, tells the story of a humble Chinese servant who went to the market to purchase supplies for the family for whom he worked. In the midst of his errand the air-raid siren sounded. According to the law the store was immediately closed, and no one was allowed out on the street. As the roar of the planes sounded clearer and clearer, the old servant busied himself about the store laughing and visiting with the terrified customers, showing not one trace of fear.

"Are you not afraid?" asked one frightened Chinese. "Don't you know that all of us may be killed in two minutes?"

"No," the old servant replied, with a smile. "Why should I be afraid? I'm a Christian, and God will take care of me."

"But they may drop a bomb on us, and you will be killed."

"In that case I will go to heaven, and that will be even better than being here," the old man said.

The average Christian has lost all too much of his confidence in the watchword of his Heavenly Father, and he gives all too little thought to the question of God's provisions for him here and hereafter. If our faith means anything, it means that our entire life—now, and after death—is in God's keeping. To any man whose confidence in this great truth is secure, even death becomes an incident, and all of life can be made to pay its dividend of joy.

The world may do without its Niagara, whose thundering roar and majestic rush excites the highest amazement of mankind (but it cannot spare the thousand rivulets that glide unseen and unheard every moment through the earth, imparting life, and verdure, and beauty wherever they go. And so the Church may do without its men of splendid abilities, but it cannot do without its men of tender, loving, forbearing souls. —David Thomas

The Hymn Tune - The Gospel Song

*By George S. Schuler

The hymn tune and gospel song are considered by many as one and the same—a religious text set to music. In this respect they are identical, with a decidedly marked difference in two lines of approach.

As to the music of the hymn tune, it is written with simple chord progressions, with four-part harmonies (soprano, alto, tenor, bass), without piano accompaniments, and with no chorus or refrain section. The music of the gospel song is written with chords, harmonies, and rhythm more or less ornate and intricate; often with individual piano accompaniments; with elaborate and involved chorus or refrain; with solo and unison sections.

As to the text, the burden of the hymn tune poetry is that of worship, praise, and adoration to the members of the Godhead, many hymns being born out of a nearness to God, in obeisance to Him. On the other hand, the gospel song text speaks sparklingly of religious experiences, declares the way of salvation, and extends an invitation to the unsaved.

Both types of religious musical expression have their place of importance. While there is a line of demarcation in their respective objectives—one addressing God, the other addressing man—yet few give consideration to this difference when selecting music for the various services of the church. The danger is that choice is made in the light of the music's popularity rather than of the text.

While every service should conclude with some kind of an appeal or invitation to the unsaved, the underlying, primary purpose of every religious service should be the worship of God. Alas, it is too often the worship of man! While we are admonished to go into all the world and preach the gospel, this is secondary to the all-important truth as expressed in the catechism, "The chief end of man is to glorify God." We cannot glorify God by obeying His command to "go" or to "do" and at the same time displease Him by neglecting worship of and adoration to Him. There are numerous examples in Holy Scripture which set forth this deplorable condition.

Need we wonder that so many of our services, in which the unadulterated gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ is preached, are as "sounding brass and tinkling cymbal"? Why? We may be missing the all-important truth of worship of the Father, praise to the Son, recognition of and obedience to the Holy Spirit. For example, the Scripture read may be that of Paul shipwrecked, of Peter imprisoned, of Philip and the eunuch, or the story of Philemon. The songs

By W. F. Unruh, Pastor, Mennonite Church, Pulaski, Iowa

SEPTEMBER 1—"But we have this treasure in earthen vessels," II Cor. 4:7a.

"We have this treasure in earthen vessels." God has a very strange way of keeping His treasures. When we have a great treasure to keep, we keep it in silk purses, in concrete vaults, locked behind steel doors. God keeps His treasures in earthen vessels. The vessel of which the Apostle Paul writes here is our frail body of clay and dust, and the treasure is none other than the indwelling Christ, Who is the light of the face of God. If we believe in Christ and let Him dwell in our hearts by faith, we may say to our hearts, "Now, heart o'mine, you hold God's greatest treasure, even His only begotten Son. Let Him have complete possession and complete control of His vessel. May every beat you beat during the day be in true love and loyalty to Him."

SEPTEMBER 2—" . . . For when I am weak, then am I strong." II Cor. 12:10b.

This statement appears as a paradox, but it is not a paradox. It is truth and checks with experience. A Christian's strength does not lie in robust health or physical prowess. His strength lies in his faith in God. He becomes strong for God through a contagious faith in God. His faith in God may inspire other people to trust in God and as they trust in Christ they come to salvation and eternal life in Him. This power to influence others to trust in God through our own faith is not one which is deminished by physical weakness. It is actually often augmented by weakness. A missionary in South India contracted leprosy while on furlough. After a deep struggle of Spirit he saw through the gloom of it. He found God's purpose in allowing it to happen. Friends came to him in his isolation and pitied him. He said to them, "You are feeling sorry for me, and you must not do it. I have never known deeper joy in my life. These walls are radient with the love of God." His physical weakness brought out his spiritual strength. The strength of a Christian lies in his love to God and in his trust in God.

SEPTEMBER 3—"We reckon therefore that a man is justified by faith apart from the works of the law," Rom. 3:28.

Our position with God does not rest upon works. There are some people who say that they hope to stand justified on the Judgement Day on the basis of the Golden Rule. They say that if they will do good, God will reward them with good. This would be all right for perfect beings. but how can we sinners hope to be saved on that basis? If God is to reward us according to the way we have treated Him, we will fare badly. But Christ has made a sacrifice by which we may be saved freely through faith. God accepts us as justified in Christ when we believe in Christ to the extent that we hold whatever Jesus says as trustworthy, when we act on what He says as certain fact. Will you this day and every day take some saying of Jesus and act upon it as wholly trustworthy? That sort of faith God counts unto us for righteousness.

SEPTEMBER 4—"To him bear all the prophets witness that through his name every one that believeth on him shall receive remission of sins," Acts 10:43.

Forgiveness of sins is a gift of God granted freely to all who truly believe in Christ Jesus. It is ready for every truly penitent believer. It must be accepted by faith to become a reality, otherwise there is no pardon. During President Jackson's presidency the President granted a pardon which was refused. Embarrassed by the criminal's refusal to accept the pardon, the President gave the case to the Supreme Court to decide, and the Chief Justice gave down the decision that pardon is a matter of relationship, and if it is not accepted it cannot stand. The prisoner was hanged. How sad! Infinitely more sad it is when people reject the pardon of God and go into eteranl punishment. How gracious and merciful of God to grant full pardon through repentant and obedient faith in Christ!

SEPTEMBER 5—" . . . For the Lord hath a controversy with his people," Micah 6:2b.

When people disobey God, His Spirit at once convicts their hearts and strives with them to submit to His Will. As long as people refuse to submit to God there will be this controversy. The Holy Spirit is very loving but very persistent. Usually the Spirit will hold us to one thing, in regard to which we are made to feel very strongly that we should submit to God. Our controversy with God usually centers around one point of obedience. It may be that the Spirit will persist that there is a wrong to confess, a restitution to be made, a command of Jesus to be obeyed, or some other thing to do which involves submission to God. Whatever that one thing may be to which the Spirit of God holds our consciences, in that matter let us submit to God. For if we will submit to God on that contended point, it will become easy for us to align the rest of our life with the Will of God. Unless we will do this the controversy with God will continue indefinitely, and we will miss the peace of God.

SEPTEMBER 6—"Count it all joy, my brethren, when ye fall into manifold temptations," James 1:2.

To appreciate this truth we need but to ask ourselves a few questions like these. When I was last tempted to falsify the truth and I refused to stoop, but held myself strictly to the truth, has that experience not helped me to feel that I am more in favor with God and man? When I was last tempted to run away from an unpleasant duty but determined to do my duty and be true to God, has that not made a better and stronger person of me? When I see that every time I remain true to my Lord in trials, I grow, surely, the testings have been good and wholesome for me. Then let us rejoice and thank God for the victories He has already given us.

SEPTEMBER 7—"But if any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him," James 1:5.

Wisdom is the choice of an end which pleases God and the adoption of the most appropriate means to the accomplishment of that end. The Holy Book promises that God will help us find the end and the appropriate means for its accomplishment. God gives gladly and liberally He will not force wisdom upon us. It must be sought. And the way to seek it in each circumstance which confronts us is prayerfully to seek for light from God's Word on what God's will is. When God's will is known, we must continue to search the Scriptures for light on what is the best means to the realization of that Will. When we seek faithfully and in the spirit of submission, God gives us His guidance and help.

JOHN URGES CHRISTIAN LOVE

I John 3:13-18; 4:7-21

Introduction

The first epistle of John is a treatise on love. He uses the word thirty times in our lesson and in contrast he mentions hate only three times. Hatred is a characteristic of the world, of unregenerated persons. John says much about love as a characteristic of God and of His children. Love has various shades of meaning. God loves men even when they are in sin. His heart goes out in pity and compassion toward them. He has a spirit of good will toward all persons. Our lesson makes clear the particular love for the "brethren" which God's children have for one another.

Love, a Test of a Christian, vs. 13-18

To become like Christ is the chief purpose of the Christian's life on earth. John tells us plainly how we may be assured that we are truly God's children (v. 14). When we love our fellow-Christians we have passed from the death of selfishness and sin, by the divine grace, into a spiritual life which is characterized by love. The lack of this love excludes a man from God's kingdom. God's love for man is revealed supremely in Christ's death for us (vs. 16 and 4:9, 10). This is the one manifestation of God's love which required a sacrifice in the Godhead. We then ought to love one another, even in a self-sacrificing way, if necessary (v. 16). Few of us will be called upon to make so supreme a sacrifice. There are many opportunities to show love by helping some one in need. As faith without works is dead, so also love without works is dead. True love expresses itself in acts which correspond to the profession of love.

The Spirit of Christian Love, vs. 7-16

John mentions seven things about love in this passage. (1) "Love is of God," of divine origin, is out of God. All real love comes from God. He who has received this love from Him is therefore born of God (v. 7). (2) "God is love" (vs. 8, 16), it is the very essence of His character. This is the great central truth around which the whole system of Bible truth revolves. (3) God manifested His love in sending His Son so that we might have eternal life. He sent Him to be the propitiation for our sins. (4) "God loved us, we ought to love one another." This needs much exemplification in our daily lives. How wrong is our selfishness. How mistaken it appears. (5) "He that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God and God in him" (vs. 12, 16). Wonderful thought that this is our standing if we love others. This is heaven on earth, a life of love which expresses our love for God. (6) "There is no fear in love, but perfect love casteth out fear." When we learn to love God, we will be freed from all dread of God. We will reverence and worship Him with a childlike trust. We will lose all fear of the coming judgment day. John is describing a condition which we can attain in this life, in this world (v. 17). (7) "We love Him, because He first loved us." God's love in our hearts enables us to love Him with perfect love. Our love to God must also include our fellow-man.

A true Christian has love like unto that which characterizes God. The test of our Christianity is action. Every opportunity to show love is a call to manifest love.

In what sense does God love all persons?

In what ways do Christians manifest their love for others?

What is the distinction between giving charity and showing love?

CORRESPONDENCE

DEEP RUN MENN. CH., DOYELSTOWN, PENN.

August 15, 1941

We are glad to report that eighteen or nineteen of our young people and three adults attended the 14th annual Retreat at Menno-lan (our new retreat grounds) Finland, Penn. All received spiritual blessings and are already anticipating going back next year.

Fourteen of our members took part in Prof. Lantz's chorus which rendered Gaul's oratorio, The Holy City, on Sunday, July 17, in the Souderton High School auditorium.

We welcome the General Conference of the Mennonite Churches of North America being held at Souderton, Penn., this year, and know that all who avail themselves of the opportunity of attending these meetings will be greatly blest.

Last Sunday evening we enjoyed a play on the life of Paul, given by the East Swamp young people. May the Lord bless them in their efforts to bring honor and glory to His Name. —Corr.

BETHEL MENN. CHURCH, WINTON, CALIF.

August 12, 1941

Greetings from the Bethel Mennonite Church, Winton, California. Our new church body (which was organized over a year ago and joined the Pacific District Conference last May at the Conference in Dallas, Oregon,) is progressing very nicely, under the leadership of Rev. J. P. Glanzer. Three were added to the membership role by baptism, and seven by hand of fellowship Sunday evening, July 27; also communion was held and the bond of fellowship strengthened.

Our Christian Endeavor, with increasing attendance, meets every two weeks and is very inspiring. Even the Sunday School in the height of the busy season is making record attendance.

Three years ago some of our church members organized a "Womens Better Home Making Club"; officers consisting of a President, Vice-President, Study Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer. It proves to be a very beneficial factor between the church people and the non-church people. Women from different churches and groups are invited to meet once a month. The afternoons are spent in studying subjects that go for better home making. The money that is raised is used for good deeds in the community, and to give a fellowship dinner to the husbands of the club members once or twice a year, where we disregard creed and nationality, and thus make friends among different classes of people, and build up an atmosphere that goes for better church making, and for breaking down some of the partitions that are existing between the churches. The question might arise, "Why start another church?" The answer is, there are so many that don't go to church. Evidently there is work for another church. Winton with Idolism within its walls, (works of men) and modernism without its walls, needs very much to be evangelized.

Now if the General Conference Denomination may claim the verdict given to the church of Philadelphia, Rev. 3:7-13, (and I believe she may), "Thou hast a little strength." She then may be able to break down these walls, should they be whited walls, they shall surely be smitten, (Acts 23:3). May Jerusalem be builded as a city that is compact together, and peace be within its walls, (Psalms 122).

ST. JOHN'S MENN. CHURCH, PANDORA, OHIO

What a contrast! Sunday after Sunday, and often during the week, we gather joyfully in our place of worship, while much of the world is in throes of misery, pain, and sorrow. Standing there with its face to the rising sun, guarding as it were, the family throughout the week as they go about their work in the beautiful farming area, the red brick church extends a beckoning welcome to us on Sunday morning. Significantly the old church building stands as a type of the body of Christ, the true Church, who with her face constantly turned to the Lord and looking for His coming, keeps herself busy serving, seeking to bring others into her sheltering fold.

Regardless of the heat of the past weeks, the attendance at the Sunday service has been good; the evening services bringing out a goodly number. The Thursday evening Bible study and prayer hour are times of real blessing, for the Lord is present. The number in attendance is not as large as one might wish, but is accounted for in part in the fact that the young people have their own prayer and Bible study period on Tuesday evenings. The two missionary societies, Women's and Girls', are very much alive, and the monthly meetings are well attended. The Young People's Bible Class has sponsored some work in the form of services conducted at the Lima Rescue Mission every two weeks. Sunday School classes and other church organizations are taking turns in conducting monthly services at the Hancock and Putnam County Homes for the Aged and Infirm. Two of our number have been occupants at the Hancock Home for some time. The two Basinger sisters, Fannie and Caroline, as well as the sister, Elma, here in Pandora, have been a blessing to many who have called on them, as they manifest a joy and trust in the Lord, which years of severe suffering could not dampen.

A number of deaths have occurred within recent months. Two families were bereft of their fathers in the early summer, when John Burkholder and Samuel Welty met sudden death due to heart failure, only a few days apart. The aged Emmanuel Kohli was called Home recently, leaving a great vacancy, both in the home and in the church. There have been joyous family occasions also. During the latter part of May a beautiful church wedding took place at which Lenna Augsburger of this church and Landoline Amstutz of the Ebenezer church were united in holy matrimony. After the wedding trip the couple returned to Chicago where they are further preparing themselves for Christian service. A few days later Hazel Lehman and Maynard Steiner joined hands in holy wedlock at the parsonage. May these unions be richly blessed of the Lord.

We have had several seasons of spiritual refreshing. Earlier in the year the pastor conducted a twelve days' series of meetings. He was very ably assisted by the mixed chorus and the Gospel Team Quartet from Bluffton College. Later the Young People's Bible Class sponsored a weeks' meetings with Dr. Dan Gilbert, youthful secretary of the World's Fundamentals Association, as guest speaker. Much interest was shown in that the meetings were largely attended. He ably treated on subjects relating to situations in the world and the church, in the light of the Bible.

Pastor Boehr is following a plan of giving Sunday morning messages in the form of character studies of persons of note in the Bible that are proving both instructive and inspiring. Recently the four Mennonite churches in the community had a "Pastor Exchange" Sunday morning. In view of the fact that three of the pastors are new in their respective churches, it was a good way of having the congregations and new men in the community learn to know each other, and was a means of promoting unity. On the same Sunday, in the evening, the choirs of these churches joined in giving a very inspiring song festival in the First Mennonite Church in Bluffton. Many turned out though the weather was warm. How we need to show forth constantly the spirit of praise. The child of God has much reason for singing and rejoicing when to others things do look dark and hopeless, for he finds even when outwardly things look dark that "In thy presence is fullness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore." —Mrs. P. J. Boehr, Corr.

IMMANUEL MENN. CH., LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

"My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from Him," Psa. 62:5.

We want to praise the Lord for His goodness to us. We have been permitted to continue all the services of the church and auxiliaries in a helpful and fruitful way. From May 25 to June 8, Rev. Charles Ashman of the Brethren Church, Whittier, Calif., led us in evangelistic meetings every evening. There were many who reconsecrated themselves to a closer walk with the Lord, and some who received Him as Saviour. On the last day of the meetings, opportunity was given the Sunday School pupils to confess Christ as Saviour. Forty-two came forward, some of whom had received Christ previously but had never confessed Him publicly. The pastor and a group of teachers talked with each of these, explaining carefully the step they had taken and trying to help them in their new life.

We have been greatly blessed in the fellowship we have had with some of our missionaries this spring. Rev. and Mrs. John Thiessen and two daughters, stopped with us on their way to San Francisco to embark for India in March; Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker, her two sons and little daughter, stayed with us a few days in April just after they arrived from China; and Dr. and Mrs. P. A. Penner landed at our Los Angeles harbor, at the end of their fifty-three days' voyage from India, on June 7. All these dear workers brought us heart-warming reports of the wonderful progress of the work in our two foreign fields, India and China, and of the growth of the native churches and the splendid native Christian leadership. May we be more diligent than ever before in our support of the foreign mission work, both by prayer and gifts.

On July 13, six young people received baptism and joined the church. Four others were received by reaffirmation of faith or transfer of membership.

A Daily Vacation Bible School was conducted in our church for three weeks in July. We had the best attendance of any year, the average being 167, and the highest 189. There were nine teachers and the grades ranged from kindergarten to Junior High.

Two young men of our membership, Orlando Schroeder and Irvin Richert, have been called to S.P.C.Camp. As their camp is at San Dimas, not very far from Los Angeles, they are able to come and worship with us from time to time. —Anna G. Stauffer, Corr.

NOT BY WORKS

"I handled a queer five-dollar bill the other day. It had done a heap of good—paid the widow's rent, bought food for the hungry, squared up three or four accounts, made a church treasurer happy when he found it on the plate, and made the sexton happier when his back salary was paid by it; but in due course of time it came back to the bank whose name it bore, and lo! the teller threw it out. 'What's wrong?' asked the depositor. 'Counterfit,' said the teller. All its good deeds had not made it pass the bank where its real character had been discovered."—Baptist Record, quoted in the Herald of Holiness.

WORTH OF THE SIMPLE LIFE

By Karl Baehr

Jesus was the greatest exponent of the simple life the world has known. He devoted all to the service of God. So complete was that devotion that Jesus could say. "The son of man hath no where to lay his head."

Jesus did not deny Himself the things and the pleasures of this world in order to be simple. He wasn't "simple-minded." He lived simple in order that He might live abundantly—that He might devote all His energies, resources and gifts, unencumbered, to the work of the Kingdom.

Therefore, we as followers of Jesus should also devote ourselves to a simple life. That simple life should not be an end in itself. It should by the means whereby more than a tenth of our energies and material resources are devoted to the "things that are eternal." Missions, relief of the suffering in war-torn areas, support of our Civilian Camps, and building up of our colleges for Christian education are but a few of the causes that can be nourished by a people who are devoted to the Kingdom of God, first and the kingdom of "material prosperity," second!

Let us live the simple life with heroic devotion, for we know not what "trials of fire" lie ahead! The torch of Christianity is carried by those who have dedicated their lives and their goods to the service of God—by those who live the simple life in order to further the Kingdom of God!

FROM A LE TOURNEAU WORKER

(This is the conclusion of an article which appeared in The Mennonite Youth pages on July 15)

Georgia belongs to the South, and surely we must not fail to mention the southern lingo. It is very amusing and interesting to the "d—— Yankee," a title conferred on such outlaws as happen to think of their home as being north of the Mason and Dixon line. When Frieda joined me in September, she was often amused at popular local expressions that I had unconsciously adopted.

The home of the ordinary southerner is much inferior to the average home of the middle west. It is not difficult for the average southerner to purchase the necessary implements. A small mule and some sort of plow is about all that he needs. Perhaps he may also acquire an old spring buggy. On Sunday mornings many people can be seen walking along the road to some small, homely, country church.

All in all, it makes one wish that the question concerning slavery could have been settled outside of the war system, for "One is your teacher and all ye are brethren."

We receive The Mennonite regularly and enjoy the news about the various churches and friends. We also receive the Missionary News and Notes. We also received the Mennonite Year Book. These various publication make us to feel that we are still a part of the big family.

MY DEVOTIONAL LIFE

By Betty Horsch, Aberdeen, Idaho

It is daybreak. The glorious sun, rising slowly above the horizon, ushers in a new day. We do not know what joys, disappointments, and heartaches lie before us in this day, but we know that we have not sufficient strength to face it alone. We look forward, and as the dawn of a new day, so dawns in our hearts a deepening faith in Him Who said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." We whisper in our souls, "Good morning, Lord Jesus, here is another new day. Take it and us and use it for Thy glory." And then we take His Word, praying that we might let the manna from heaven nourish us and feed our lives for the day we face. How sweet it is to realize that the Bible is God's Word; that in and through Jesus Christ, the "well-beloved," we can call God, our Father. It is this very fact that has given me courage and faith to present to Him my trivial problems and my greater problems. He knows; He loves; He cares.

Has He spoken to us as we read His Word? Oh yes, He always does open ready hearts. It is then, "Still, still with Thee," as we kneel before Him, praising Him and bringing to Him our petitions. He strengthens us, draws us close. And when we get up from this time with God, we are ready to face the new day.

WE RECOMMEND

I. Worhip Service

1. Songs: "Master, Speak! Thy Servant Heareth," No. 219; "Go Labor on; Spend and be Spent," No. 231; "Teach me, my God and King," No. 226.
2. Reading of leading Topic, and Prayer.
3. Group singing, songs chosen from "Mennonite Hymnary."
4. Offering for Relief Work.

II. Leader's Introduction

One measure of a man is the way he handles the routine, everyday assignments of life. Greatness comes not by spectacular action alone though that may be a part of it, but most of all by painstakng attention to everyday duties, whatever they may be. Looking at the commonplace tasks in the light gives one a true sense of their importance and saves one from being bored by them.

Jesus recognized and emphasized the importance of the commonplace. In several of His parables He glorified the routine responsibilities of living. Moreover, He refrained from doing the spectacular and sensational thing, even when it would have made Him popular.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Warning against Slothfulness	Prov. 6:9-11
2. Blessedness in Daily Needs	Luke 6:20-23
3. Perseverance in Watchfulness	Matt. 24:42-47
4. Faithfulness in Little Things	Luke 16:9-13
5. Victorious Living	Rom. 12:9-14
6. Conquering Care	Phil. 4:10-13

IV. For Discussion

1. What men were called by Jesus to be His followers while they were busy with everyday tasks?
2. What is more important in any one's life, the way he meets special events or the way he meets everday tasks?

V. Facts for Study

There is a saying that if you want a job done, ask the man who is busy—busy with common ordinary tasks. Life often seems humdrum to us because it seems to consist of routine duties which seem small and unimportant. Life seems to consist of shuttling back and fro between the home where you eat and sleep, and the place where you do your job which is seemingly the same from day to day. Yet, out of such things as the everyday tasks which are your lot you are to make not only a living but a life. How can this be done? Only as you relate them to God and eternal verities. We are to see in them not endless little incidents, but the material out of which we build character for eternity.

VI. Illustration

The following poem may be suggestive of the meaning and value of everyday tasks well done.

"One stitch dropped as the weaver drove
His nimble shuttle to and fro,
In and out, beneath, above,
Till the pattern seemed to bud and grow
As if the fairies had helping been.
One small stitch that could scarce be seen,
But the one stitch dropped drew the next one out
And a weak place grew in the fabric stout,
And the perfect pattern was marred for aye
By the one small stitch that was dropped that day.

One small life in God's great plan,
How futile it seems, as the ages roll!
Do what it may, or strive how it can
To alter the sweep of the infinite whole—
A single stitch in an endless web,
A drop in the ocean's flow and ebb—
But the pattern is rent where the stitch is lost,
And each life that fails of its true intent
Mars the perfect plan its Maker meant."

VII. Food for Thought

"With every returning morning,
I cast old things away.
Life's journey lies before me—
My prayer is for today."

7. Poem: Praying

"To say my prayer is not to pray
Unless I mean the words I say.
Unless I think to Whom I speak
And with my heart His blessings seek.
Then let me, when I come to pray,
Not only heed the words I say;
But let me seek with earnest care
To have my thoughts go with my prayer."

—Selected.

8. Solo: "Prayer is the Soul's Sincere Desire," The Mennonite Hymnary, No. 184.

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Junior to know and understand the various prayers of the church service, so that he may take an intelligent part in them. To help him to feel the presence of God in God's house.

1. Introduction by a Junior: "We come to the church to praise and worship God, to talk with Him, and to learn more about Him. We must not only be listeners in church but must take an active part in all of the service. We must think as we read or sing or listen. Each part of the church service has a special function or need to fill. Today we will study the prayers in the church service.

2. A Junior may list the prayers on the blackboard:

   a) Prayer Greeting
   b) Invocation
   c) Pastoral Prayer
   d) Offertory Prayer
   e) Closing Prayer
   f) Benediction

3. Reading of the Prayer Greeting, Phil.1:2—by a Junior girl.

4. Discussion of The Invocation—by a Junior boy.

The prayer of invocation is a prayer that takes us into the very presence of God. In it the minister praises and adores the Lord, and prays for God's presence in the service. (Recall phrases from the pastor's morning invocation, all Juniors taking part.)

5. Discussion of The Pastoral Prayer—by a Junior girl.

This is the longest prayer in the church service. To some it is the most important and solemn part of the service. In it the minister stands between God and the congregation. He tries to lead them to God. He speaks for them in thanksgiving to God for His many blessings. He confesses with them their sins and asks God's forgiveness. He prays with them for their needs. He prays for those who are sick or in trouble. He prays for the country and its rulers. And he prays for the coming of the Kingdom of God.

6. Question: What is our part in this prayer?

7. Discussion of The Offertory Prayer—by a Junior boy, who also gives an offertory prayer.

8. Discussion of The Benediction—by a Junior boy.

This comes at the end of the church service. Sometimes we say, "the minister pronounces the blessing." The one used most is the one that Aaron, the High Priest, was commanded to pronounce over the children of Israel as they were journeying in the wilderness. It is a threefold blessing. (Read Num. 6:24-26.)

Three times the name of Jehovah was put upon the children of Israel:

a) God, the Father, Who keeps
b) God, the Son, Who is gracious
c) God, the Holy Spirit, Who gives peace.

The Mizpah benediction is often used at the close of a C. E. program (Read Gen. 31:49).

9. Four Juniors may read the New Testament Benedictions, II Cor. 13:14; Eph. 3:20,21; Jude 24:25; Phil. 4:7.

10. Sing softly one verse of "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

11. Short talk by the leader.

III. Mission Minutes

1. A report on the prayers of the heathen.
2. We should tell them of the true God to Whom to pray.
3. Pray for those who do not know our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

IV. Closing Moments

1. In unison give the verse of the month.
2. Memorize verse 2 of the song of the month.
3. Pray the prayer of the month.
4. Leader's closing prayer.
5. Sing softly, "Into My Heart."

may be "Why Not Tonight?" "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," "Whosoever Will," "Heartaches," "Make Me a Blessing." The prayers may be imploring God to visit in power to the conviction of sinners, and yet the service may be displeasing to God because He has not been honored first by worship. Our God is a jealous God! Has the point been made clear?

If the unsaved could see and hear us worship and adore God, instead of hearing our arguments, debatings, and pleadings to "come to Jesus," the Holy Spirit might have more impressionable hearts to work upon, and this would result in personal conversions, which are more desirable than the results of mass evangelism.

The hymn tune, like a well-groomed gentleman, creates a spirit of reverence and solemnity. The gospel song may be likened (not all of them to be sure) to the fashion-plate man (with all the newest effects, clever treatments, fancy accompaniments, etc.), engendering a degree of lightness, laughter, lack of seriousness, and even a slight movement of the foot.

I shall never forget a kindly, unintended rebuke given by a woman some forty years my senior. While in her presence I took exception to the expenditure of so much money, time and effort in the erection of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in Morningside Park, New York. As a recent and energetic convert, I was given to criticizing everything religious which was not evangelistic. The saint of God answered me, "Nothing is too expensive when it is for the glorification of God. No time or energy is ill-spent when His honor is at stake." And to think, this lady was not a theologian!

Yes, indeed, we have many places of worship which have a form of godliness, but deny the power thereof, but we also have too many places of worship where the paramount objective of the service is to win souls to Christ at the cost of depriving Him of our adoration, in which He takes great delight.

To overenthusiastic evangelists, a word of caution! Honor God with unhurried worship and adoration in every service; give a deaf ear to criticism for using a certain number of hymn tunes as against the popular trend of gospel songs and choruses. It may please God to honor your evangelistic endeavor with special enduement of the Holy Spirit, if worship occupies first place. The revivals of the past came as a result of worship which paved the way for God's blessing in evangelism, and we have no reason to believe those of the future will be otherwise.

For the purpose of making clear the difference between the two types of music, compare such evangelistic gospel songs as "Bringing in the Sheaves," "Work for the Night Is Coming," and "Jesus Is calling," with such hymn tunes as "Holy, Holy, Holy" (to the Father), "Let Me Come Closer to Thee, Jesus" (to the Son), "Enkindling Flame" (to the Holy Spirit).

WHEN THE TAG IS LOST

Neglecting the Bible in early years prepares men to reject it later when they hear it assailed and ridiculed. So men become infidels or agnostics, not knowing whence they came or whither they go. They have blown out their light and are groping in the darkness. They are without God and without hope; they do not know and will not be taught.

"Where is he going?" said someone to a perplexed express messenger who had charge of a puppy. I don't know, and he don't know, nobody don't know; and he's been and chewed up his tag!"

A man who does not know where he is going needs direction. The Word of God would guide him, but he rejects it. He destroys his "tag" and is a lost wanderer in a wilderness world!

—Heart to Heart Talk

In the highest class of God's school of suffering we learn not resignation nor patience, but rejoicing in tribulation. —Vincent

How often do we attempt work for God to the limit of our incompetence rather than to the limit of God's omnipotency? —Hudson Taylor

IN MEMORIAM

FRANZ QUIRING, was born the 14th of May, 1856, in Kleefeld, a village of South Russia. In early childhood he was bereaved of his parents. He received his education in the village school. On June 5, 1878, he was baptized by his pastor, Jacob Buller. In the year 1875 he came to America. On December 17, 1878, he united in marriage with Susanna Unruh. They made their home on a farm three miles east of Goessel. Here they labored together till they retired, and then moved to Goessel in 1919. When in 1920 the Goessel Mennonite Church was organized they transferred their membership from the Alexanderwohl Church to said congregation, of which they remained faithful members until their departure from this life.

He became father of ten children, six sons and four daughters. Three sons and one daughter preceded him in death; the sons in infancy and the daughter, Mrs. Katherine Franzen, on February 4, 1937. He became grandfather of thirty-one children (of which five departed in infancy), and great-grandfather of four children. On December 29, 1928, they celebrated their golden wedding with all their children present.

After Mrs. Quiring's departure on July 26, 1936, he was rather lonely and his desire to follow her to the home above grew stronger with the passing years, especially since he began to ail soon after her departure. In 1938 he underwent an operation which benefited him greatly. A kidney trouble which already was present increased and finally brought his death.

Since October of last year he was in the Home for the Aged in Goessel, where he received loving care.

He was greatly concerned about the welfare of his children and grandchildren. He assured them even on his deathbed that he had daily prayed for everyone of them. He prayed especially much in his last days. During the last two nights we repeated Bible verses and sang songs to him. The 23 Psalm and his favorite songs comforted and quieted him again and again.

He was bedfast in the Bethesda Hospital, Goessel, Kansas, eleven days, but had no special pain. He was conscious to the very last, when the Lord took him to his reward on Friday morning at 7:30, August 1, 1941. He reached the age of 85 years, two months, and 17 days.

The children mourning his departure are: Mr. and Mrs. John Duerksen, Bessie, Okla.; Mr. Jacob H. Franzen, Hillsboro, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. Adolf H. Buhler, Medford, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Quiring, Goessel, Kans.; Mrs. Mary Graves, Newton, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Quiring, Newton, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. John Quiring, Newton, Kans.

JACOB BERNHARD CLAASSEN, son of Jacob and Agatha Janzen Claassen, was born near Beatrice, Nebraska, on November 23, 1887. His early educational opportunities included attendance at the Parochial School. He graduated from the Preparatory School, at Hillsboro, Kansas. He also attended the Beatrice Business College. He was baptized on the confession of his faith in Jesus Christ and received into the Mennonite Church on June 5, 1906. For about fifteen years he farmed near Blue Springs. He also spent some time in the Western States and Canada. In 1933, he moved to the place where he has since resided.

On February 8, 1934, he was married to Katherine E. Wiebe. This union was blessed with two children. He was an active member of the church, serving as a member of the Building Committee and as a teacher of a Men's Bible Class. He enjoyed reading extensively, spending much of his spare time in preparation for his class. Last Sunday morning, July 20, commenting on the application of the lesson text, he emphasized and lamented the fact that the church members generally are not living examples of the Christ-life.

Having completed his threshing Thursday evening, July 24, he was assisting a neighbor in moving the equipment across the highway. Here he was fatally injured in an auto-tractor collision. He was taken to the hospital where he died at 3:45, Friday morning, July 25. Mourning his seemingly early departure are his wife, Mrs. Katherine Claassen; two children, Mary Katherine and James Henry, of the home; his mother; four sisters; five brothers; his father-in-law; sisters-in-law; brothers-in-law; and many relatives and friends. As a parting message he leaves us a testimony in the words of the poet:

"I will love Thee in life, I will love Thee in death,
And praise Thee as long as Thou lendest me breath;
And say when the death dew lies cold on my brow,
If ever I loved thee, my Jesus, 'tis now.

"In mansions of glory and endless delight;
I'll ever adore Thee in heaven so bright;
I'll sing with the glittering crown on my brow,
If ever I loved Thee, my Jesus, 'tis now."

Funeral services were held at the Harman Johnson Funeral Home on Monday, July 28, 9:30 a. m., and at 10:30 a. m., at the First Mennonite Church, the Reverends W. H. Dyck, Reynold Weinbrenner, and C. Penner officiating. Interement was made in the church cemetery.

* * * * *

ALBERT PENNER, son of Henry and Maria Penner, was born on September 17, 1875, in Warnau, near Marienburg, West Prussia. He attended the local elementary school. In December, 1890, his father died. In August 1891, with his mother, brothers and sisters, he migrated to America. On May 22, 1893, he was baptized on the confession of his faith in Jesus Christ by Elder Gerhard Penner and received into the fellowship of the Mennonite church. Until 1901, when he rented a farm for himself, he made his home with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Penner. For thirty-four years he farmed together with his brother, William, until the latter was forced to retire due to ill health.

About three years ago his health began to fail. It improved for a while; however, on May 30, it became necessary for him to be under a doctor's care. On June 7, he was brought to the Mennonite Hospital. Here he received what help could be given. On June 13, at 11:00 p. m., he passed away quietly, to awake, as we confidently hope, in the blessedness of an eternity. His age was 65 years, 8 months, and 27 days. Mourning his departure are two sisters, six brothers, one sister-in-law, and many relatives and friends.

"There's a land that is fairer than day,
And by faith we can see it afar;
For the Father waits over the way,
To prepare us a dwelling place there.
In the sweet by and by,
We shall meet on that beautiful shore."

Funeral services were conducted at the First Mennonite Church, Rev. C. Penner and Rev. W. H. Dyck officiating. A mixed quartet sang. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

MARIE WIEBE, daughter of J. G. and Lisette Wiebe, was born October 26, 1867, in Danzig, Germany. She attended a private school conducted by the Mannhardt sisters. In August, 1876, she came to America with her parents, brothers, and sisters. During the first six months, they lived in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, from where they moved to Beatrice, Nebraska, their permanent home.

In Beatrice, she attended the public school. Her religious instruction, outside of her parental home, she received in the Sunday School held by her uncle, Rev. Henry Zimmermann, in his home. In 1883, she was baptized by Elder Gerhard Penner on confession of her faith and received into the Mennonite church at Beatrice, Nebraska. She remained a faithful member until her end.

In 1887, she married Henry J. Wiebe. To this marriage eight children were born. In 1912, by the Lord's good grace, they celebrated their silver wedding; and in 1937, their golden wedding. She passed away suddenly at 2:00 a. m., July 3, 1941, seemingly in ordinary health the day before. She leaves to mourn, her bereaved husband, eight children, one son-in-law, two grandchildren, two sisters, and many relatives and friends. Funeral services were held from the home and the First Mennonite Church, in charge of Rev. C. Penner and Rev. R. Weinbrenner. A mixed quartet sang. Burial was made in the church cemetery.

EMANUEL D. KOHLI, son of John and Barbara (Hilty) Kohli was born October 18, 1860, on a farm in Richmond township, Allen county, two miles northwest of Bluffton, Ohio. When only a boy of five years he sustained a keen loss when his mother passed away and at the age of twelve years he was deprived of the care of his father, who also passed away. From that time on, he spent his boyhood among his older brothers and sisters.

At the age of sixteen years he went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hilty, near Pandora, O., where he remained until he reached the age of twenty-two years. As a young man he was baptized upon the confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and became a member of the Swiss Mennonite Church, of which he remained a devout and consistent worker until the close of his life.

On December 7, 1882, he was united in marriage to Sarah P., daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Peter Schumacher. Soon afterward they located on the farm east of Pandora, Ohio, where they together shared the joys and sorrows of life.

This union was blessed with six sons and four daughters, all of whom survive: Aldine, of Bluffton, Ohio; Peter, of Ottawa, Ohio; Elizabeth Green, of Marion, Indiana; Edward, of Findlay, Ohio; Homer, of Chatham, Ohio; Hiram, at home; Susie Boaz, near Pandora, Ohio; Orlin, of Wheaton, Illinois; Martha Schmunk, of Toronto, Ontario, Canada, and Odula Yoder, of Bellevue, Ohio.

On December 7, 1932, they had the privilege of celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. On May 20, 1936, this union was severed when death called the mother to her eternal reward. Since the death of his life companion he has often expressed his longing for the time when they would meet again.

Until several years ago he enjoyed good health. Last December he became ill, and for much of the time since, he has been bedfast, but was tenderly cared for by his son, Hiram and family, with whom he lived.

Although he suffered for months, he bore his affliction with much patience and always expressed a great appreciation to those who visited him and ministered unto him.

Death called him to his eternal reward on Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the age of eighty years, eight months and fifteen days.

Through his entire life, he always showed a great devotion to his family and to his many relatives and friends.

His death marks a separation that will be keenly and deeply felt by the family as well as those who intimately knew him. He leaves to mourn his departure all of the ten children, sixteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, besides one sister, Sarah Steiner, of Burlingame, California.

His funeral was well attended Sunday afternoon at the St. John's Mennonite Church. Rev. P. J. Boehr was the officiating minister. Burial took place in the church cemetery.

JACOB H. BULLER, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buller, was born March 2, 1878, in McPherson County, Kansas. On June 1, 1903, upon the confession of his faith, he was baptized by Rev. Ratzlaff and received as a member of the Hoffnungsau Church. Later together with his wife he transferred his membership to the Buhler Mennonite Church. He was married to Lena Regier, May 20, 1912. To this union one daughter was born.

For ten long years he suffered from bronchitis; and during the last few years, from diabetes. On July 27, at 11:30 p. m., he was released from his suffering at the age of 63 years, 4 months, and 26 days. He leaves to mourn his departure, his wife, and his daughter, one brother, one sister, and many relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at the Buhler Mennonite Church, July 30, 1941, at 2:30 p. m., with Rev. John F. Schmidt, his pastor, officiating. Rev. J. P. Balzer assisted.

MY ALL IN ALL

A song is ringing in my soul,
For love divine hath made me whole;
Christ's death redeemed me from my sin,
And now His Spirit dwells within.
He is a constant guide and true,
Whose presence doth my strength renew;
Nor need I fear what may befall,
For Jesus is my all in all.

With such a faithful Friend as He,
Why should I ever fearful be?
Though clouds at times may hide His face,
I still can trust His wondrous grace.
If there be days of toil and stress,
And hours when ills my soul oppress,
I need not fear what may befall,
For Jesus is my all in all.

Thus shall my strength be as my day,
With Christ, the Lord, as staff and stay;
And I can sing, content to know
All needed grace He will bestow.
With such a Comrade by my side,
My path to guard, my steps to guide,
I need not fear what may befall,
For Jesus is my all in all.

The Lord Hath Need

Christ sent His disciples into the village telling them they would find a "colt tied, whereon never man sat; loose him, and bring him." Certain ones asked the disciples, "What do ye, loosing the colt?" There answer was, "The Lord hath need of him." It is worthwhile to note that the Lord of heaven and earth who could say, "The cattle on a thousand hills are mine," chose the humblest beast of burden. So does he need the life of every man and woman. Society, wealth, ambitions are calling, but there comes a voice softly floating down through the centuries which whispers to every child of God—"the Lord hath need of thee."

We should not only sing, but at all times realize, I Need Thee every Hour—for light, victory, power. Yes we need Him every moment of our existence, but that He needs us, how blessed!

Just as the branches wither and can not exist without the vine, even so the vine needs the branches, for do not the branches bear the fruit? He stands no more in street and in synagogue to tell the good news but He would do it through us.

He chose the most insignificant beast of burden, not for lack of something better, but He chose it. Just so, "God hath chosen the foolish things.... the weak things....and the base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen," (I Cor. 1:27-8). Those who are nothing are his choice! He chooses the wise and the noble only when they are willing to become as nothing.

The Devoted Heart

"For I determined not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified." (1 Cor. 2:2).

With the apostle, we too, may have the same determination. Paul, as was his Master, was devoted with unswerving determination to the task of building the kingdom. With unflinching, undeviating constancy, the soul must pursue its primary objective, until like Jesus it can say, "It is finished," or like Paul, "I have finished my course and kept the faith." Thus every real Christian life will demonstrate this devotedness to God. With the psalmist he will say, "I have set the Lord always before me." To a feeble degree and in a less measure but with the same lofty purpose, we will write this motto of eternal devotion on our hearts, and observe it function in our homes. It will regulate our conduct; quicken our hopes; direct and energize our whole being and will subordinate all the affections of our nature to their God-directed destiny.

You will be as devoted to the Lord and His work as He was as a child when He responded to His frantic parents who had lost Him as they journeyed home, "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" All of your employments and enjoyments; your thoughts and your deeds, will be superscribed with the words, "Whose I am and whom I serve." Each one of us has some work to perform. So love that those around you will see there is some reality in walking with God and being devoted to God—Come Ye Apart

TOWARDS A MORE ABUNDANT LIFE IN CHINESE VILLAGE CHURCHES

Marie J. Regeir

The local church at Tamingfu spent a whole week carrying out the Home Week program. I was so impressed that I suggested to our women's team that we carry some of this material into the village churches. Our team consists of two Bible women, Mrs. Wu and Mrs. Shang, Miss Kuyf and myself.

I. The Visit in the Homes.

The seven churches among which we make our rounds are from six to thirty miles away. We eventually worked out our plan of attack in this way. Wednesday or Thursday the four of us started out on our bicycles for one of these places. By splitting into twos after we got there we were able to visit all the church members, both those who live in town and those who live in the surrounding villages. We had two aims in view: first to visit the church members and second to speak to the non-Christian neighbors who usually gather to see or hear anything new. We invited the Christians to be sure to come to church on Sunday for the regular church service and for an all day "Home Program" on Monday. Also, which incidentally is another attraction, we announced that there would be clinical attention on that day; boils taken care of, skin diseases treated and medicine sold, not only to Christians but non-Christians as well.

The result was invariably an increase in attendance on Sunday and a large representation Monday morning with a gradual decrease in the afternoon.

Having made our announcements and having inquired into the physical and spiritual welfare of the church members, we turned our attention to the assembled neighbors. My companion, Mrs. Wu, who remembers her own days of idol worship, is very keen in exposing its loop holes. In a rather charming manner she dramatizes the annual performance before the kitchen god; how he is swept with a broom; how a paste of sugar is smeared over his lips and how he is then entreated not to say anything bad about them but only good. In the next instance he is sent up to heaven in a blaze of fire. "Is that the way you do it?" she turns to the crowd with a mischievous smile. Every one laughs in acknowledgment. "But I ask you" she continues, "if you paste up a god's lips, can he say anything at all either good or bad?"

The people squirm, partly in admiration of her clear logic, and partly for fear of "losing face" in the community if they should dispense with the kitchen god. This applies particularly to the women. The majority of the men, especially if they can read, do not put much stock in the gods anyway. Mrs Wu now assumes a more serious mood as she tries to convince her audience that the real God is the only God and it is He alone who lets the sun shine over good and bad alike. She admits that their intentions are good but they use the wrong methods. "I tell you what to do," she says, "if you really want to do good. Use the amount of money which ordinarily you spend for incense and gods and give it to a poor man as capital for starting a small business." If the group seems interested she tells more of God who loves us to the extent that He sacrificed His Son upon the Cross.

Then it is my turn. I seek a point of contact. Their interest seems to be my white skin, my extreme height, my big feet. But after I have admitted these differences I try to bring out the fact that after all we are very much alike, that we live on the same earth, are warmed by the same sun—yes—and loved by the same God. I have come a long way to tell them of the love of God. But if they hear it only once or twice they still do not understand our doctrine very well; therefore I invite them to come to church where some of their own people will tell them more about it.

The other two of our team have similar experiences and give the same invitations in the homes where they visit.

II. The HOME DAY PROGRAM.

A. In order to make our program vital, we try to emphasize the subjects which mean most to the young Christian community at its present stage. That means at times omitting things which would seems important to us and on the other hand taking time for things which in an older Christian community would be of little value. Thus our first discussion centers about the Christian in a non-Christian home or a non-Christian Community, taking in such subjects as church attendance, ancestor worship, funeral services and marriage of children into non-Christian homes.

It is sometimes a new idea to a young woman, that, if her mother-in-law or her husband insist that she worship idols, there are more than two alternatives which she can follow. Very often she either acquisces or defies her relatives. Now she is told that she may in all gentleness explain to her relatives her reason for a different faith and that she may yet care for he mother-in-law with real filial obedience. "You don't want to wait until the New Year comes around before you tell her that you cannot join in the worship service." Mrs Wu counsels, "If you have loved your mother-in-law all the rest of the year, and have taken good care of her, do you think she will beat you if only once you disobey her? And if she does, she won't have the heart to beat you very hard."

The discussion also brings out the fact that the difficulty of one member should become the burden of the group. The church should pray for him, and representatives should visit the home and try to bring about satisfactory relations.

Mrs. Wu turns to another problem: "What about ancestor worship?" The response is unanimous, "You should not worship them." "Should you remember them?" She inquires further. There seems to be a difference of opinion. Some are doubtful, but finally a goodly number believe that they should. "Of course you should remember them," Mrs. Wu says. "It's no wonder non-Christians say that we have no father and no mother. Many of them think that Christianity is a good thing, but they cannot understand our unfilial attitude. However, what can we do?"

It is interesting to note that at almost every place someone makes a new suggestion. All feel that it is well to take pictures as a constant reminder both to children and grandchildren. May Christians weep at funerals? It is decided that as long as the weeping comes from genuine sorrow it is only natural, but the wailing for effect should be discarded. Someone suggests that the regular memorial feast may be held, but that relatives be notified ahead of time not to bring incense or other objects of superstition. If they feel that they must bring something they may bring bread, meat or money. A religious service may be held in which non-Christians have the opportunity to hear the gospel. Another one suggests that it is not wrong to erect a monument in honor of the dead. The grave may be kept in repair, and evergreen trees may be planted.

At pagan funerals there is usually a band which plays, as each relative brings his offering. One church member thought it would be a good thing for the church to have its own band which would play hymn tunes to announce the funeral to the neighbors.

One man, a fairly well-to-do apothecary, remembered his mother by dispensing eye medicine free of charge on the anniversary of her death.

One problem of grave importance is that of marrying children of Christians into non-Christian homes. The custom of parents taking the responsibility for the marriage of their children is still practiced in the interior. Old customs die hard. While practically everyone agrees that Christian children should not be married into non-Christian homes it is still done to a large extent. Not only lay members are guilty but many evangelists as well. The case is not quite so acute if the young man marries a non-Christian girl, because he stays within the Christian group and the young wife can often be influenced to become a Christian. In the ease of a girl marrying into a non-Christian home the matter is much more serious because she is alone at the mercy of the whole family into which she has been married. The problem, however, is how to arrange for marriages between Christians? It may be that there is no eligible person to be found in the neighborhood. Invariably someone suggests that evangelists and church members should take the responsibility of acting as a go-between. Satisfaction was always expressed when Mrs. Wu suggested that each church have a committee to which parents with marriageable children could come. This committee could get in touch with committees of other churches if partners are lacking in one community.

Then Mrs. Wu says: "Now that is all very well when you have a son, but in the case of a daughter wouldn't it be embarrassing to ask?" Most of this discussion has been accompanied by somewhat self-conscious laughter. But someone is sure to be brave enough to say, "Among Christians we need not be afraid." Mrs. Wu adds, "Exactly, we Christians don't fear scorn." The audience agrees more or less unanimously. But Mrs. Wu will be progressive! Her next question is, "Should the children know about their engagements?" A few still feel that that isn't necessary, but the majority say firmly, "yes, the young folk ought to know about it." Still Mrs. Wu isn't satisfied: "Ought they to see each other before marriage?" she asks. There is silence, but one or two courageous souls venture to admit that they ought to. But how? Without fail someone conceives the idea that the parents of both children should decide upon a certain day when they will take their children to the same church. No one else need know about it, except the respective young people who wil be on the lookout, and will manage to get a glimpse of each other. This suggestion meets with such unanimous approval as being the most that can be done, so that we make no further suggestions. Allowance is made, however, in the case of children who go away to school where they themselves have a chance to see members of the opposite sex. It seems to be understood that in such a situation the children, themselves, may express their desires to their parents.

Mennonite Central Committee Relief Notes

Birmingham, England—August 22, 1941

Brother Peter Dyck, recently appointed Relief worker, has arrived in England, and writes as follows in his first letter sent July 25:

"I am, indeed, happy and fortunate to be able to confirm Brother Coffman's report of NO. 33 of having had an uneventful and safe voyage. After twenty-seven days of sea air, good food, and plenty of sunshine on board the stout ship, Hektoria, a Norwegian whaling factory, I am physically well equipped to cope with any situation that may confront me. Knowing that He who gives us strength of body will not withhold from his children the power of a guiding Spirit, I look expectantly into the future, trusting to become daily a more useful tool in God's one great workshop.

"We are able to report the gradual shaping of a new project here. Although only visible in broad outline as yet, we trust that if it is God's will that we undertake this work He will also pave the way to its function. I am referring to a country place called Woodlands, at present used as a school, some thirteen miles from Birmingham. This place may successfully be turned into a home for older infirmed but not bedridden invalids. The opportunity of this work has been brought to our attention by the Friends War Victim Committee. The approximate housing capacity is from thirty to forty people. There will be ample opportunity for personal work on our part at Woodlands if the above plan can be carried out.

"In view of the fact that we wish to support a relief program of a truly Christian nature, regardless of its popularity among other relief agencies, we thought that perhaps at Woodlands one such opportunity for a true testimony of Christian love and charity had presented itself in such a way as to make it presentable to our people.

"'Tis strange that merely by going from one country to another, right suddenly becomes left, and left becomes right. For this reason I am taking a few driving lessons so that by the time our utility van is ready for us, I shall be able to take my rightful place in the stream with the least amount of bumping into others."

Berlin, Germany

The M. C. C. representative in Germany, Brother M. C. Lehman, reports in his recent letters and cables that cordial relationships exist between our work and the German government. He has been carrying on some relief work in Warsaw under special permit, and is making effort to help the Mennonite people in Alsace-Lorraine. He writes as follows in his letter of July third:

"I am continuing well. Will keep you informed as things develop. The future is uncertain. I encounter no hostility whatever. I'm treated splendidly. Am learning many things. The question with me is whether I am justified in staying here in case the freezing of relief funds makes actual relief operations impossible for some time. I am persuaded by now that the M. C. C. will have work on a large scale in the way of relief and in Mennonite resettlement after this war is over. The German Mennonites are now also of this opinion. It is desirable that someone be in close touch with the whole set of affairs now coming to shape in Europe. The strict non-political nature of the M. C. C. is known and makes it trusted."

Marseilles, France

The following are excerpts from Brother Jesse Hoover's letter of July 10:

"Last week I returned from the South, after a visit to the various points there, consuling in all ten days. I am more enthusiastic about our work in the Pyrenees Orientales every time I visit it. It certainly is lovely down there along the Cote Vermeille now, and that alone would be enough to endear it to my heart. The rugged beauty of mountains merging with the sea, combined with the exquisite brightness of the atmosphere above it and the incomparable blue af the Mediterranean never ceases to have a peculiar charm for me.

"But by far the most important part of the beautiful atmosphere that endears the place to me is the lovely spirit of sacrificing service which is evident on every hand when one has the opportunity to pause at these places of "rest upon the way." Indeed, I sincerely feel that the personnel in our services at the various points have caught a little of the Mennonite spirit even though the large majority are not Mennonites. This is a most encouraging reflection, for is not this our ultimate objective in all of our efforts? Is it not our goal to impress these sufferers from the holocaust of war with the unique spirit that Jesus manifested, and which we Mennonites believe He meant for his fellow followers to manifest as well in all of the affairs of our work-a-day lives? I believe that to be our lodestar.

"And when I see the fruitation in the present of some of our dreams for the future, it gives a great impulse for renewed efforts.

"I had the privilege also of spending a few days once more at the new Mennonite Convalescent Home for refugee children who come from the concentration camps, who have been ill and are in need of an atmosphere more conductive to health than is found in the camps. The colony is going nicely under the direction of Miss Gerber. I want to take this opportunity for a word of further appreciation of her, our Swiss Mennonite delegate. She has given herself so unselfishly and whole-heartedly to the work that it has often been an inspiration and impetus to the American delegates. I am certain this period of working together in France will be the forgoing of one more link in the chain of enduring unity between the Mennonites of Europe and the Mennonites of America."

Akron, Pennsylvania

"Brother Ted Claassen, who has been waiting for over six months for a passage from England to America, arrived in New York on July 21. He has been the director of the Mennonite relief work in England for the past fifteen months.

Akron, Pennsylvania

On August 2, Brother Henry Wiens arrived in New York on board the S. S. West Point. He has completed his appointed year of relief service in France, and is returning to take up his work as a

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By W. F. Unruh, Pastor, Men nonite Church, Pulaski, Iowa

SEPTEMBER 8—"Nevertheless for all these things will I be inquired of by the house of Israel to do it for them," Ezek. 36:37.

In the 36th chapter of Ezekiel, the prophet gives us a marvelous description of the gifts of salvation which Christ brings to people. He speaks of the New Birth, the forgiveness of sins, the infilling of the Holy Spirit, and the victorious life through the Spirit. All this the Lord desires to give to His people. Yet He will not do so, the Word of God says, unless His people will ask for it. Are we possibly holding back God's salvation for people because we do not ask for it? Someone has said that three-fourths of the miracles which Jesus performed were not done upon the request of those who were helped, but upon the request of other people. Is it possible that someone may be lost because you have not asked for him?

SEPTEMBER 9—"Ask and it shall be given you," Matt. 7:7a.

Why should God make the gifts which He is anxious to give, dependent upon our prayers? Certainly not because He is not desirous to bestow them. God's gifts of salvation are very precious. They have been bought with blood. God's temporal gifts of rain and sunshine, crops and harvests have not cost the blood of Christ; those He bestows on both the just and the unjust. But not so with spiritual gifts. They must be asked for. When we pray aright our minds are in a state which makes it proper and safe for God to give spiritual blessings. Often He lets us pray a long while to make sure we will be safe recipients of His blood-bought gifts in Christ. Are we sure it would be safe for God to give us the gifts we ask for? If He should give them, would we put them to a use which would please Him? From God's viewpoint would it be wise to give us what we ask?

SEPTEMBER 10—"Jesus leadeth them up into a high mountain apart by themselves," Mark 9:2.

Jesus led His disciples to the mountain top to witness His transfiguration and glory. This experience was given to the disciples to strengthen them for service among the demon-possessed people in the valley. In later life they looked back to this experience as one of the greatest in life. We, too, look back with deep feelings to some of our past religious experiences. We think of them as mountain-top experiences with God. Those hours when we felt God so near were meant to prepare us to go down into the valley of daily living and there to help lift people who are in the grip of evil. To look back to these great experiences with a longing desire to live them over speaks of spiritual selfishness. God wants us to help lift people to a higher life in the valley of daily living, and not to live in ease and ecstasy aloof from human need. Let us remember our past great religious experiences with a deep sense of love and gratitiue and draw from them inspiration and strength to give our best help to suffering humanity.

SEPTEMBER 11—"Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jonah: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven," Matt. 16:17.

These words were spoken by Jesus when Peter had confessed, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Revelations are truths made vital to the heart by God to the extent that our daily living is altered by them. There is much truth which people only know with their heads. This does not determine conduct. Most of us can look back to a time when we knew a truth which did not influence us at all until somehow God made it vital to our hearts. And then we marveled at the revelation of the truth. For such revelations we must wait upon God, for they come from Him. We should pray for such revelations, wait for them, expect them, and, when they are given, accept them and gratefully walk in the light of them. Jesus says, "No one cometh to me except the Father draw him." How needful it is that we pray for the Spirit's revealing and drawing power in our own hearts and in the hearts of those whom we wish to be saved.

SEPTEMBER 12—"Thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build my church. . . . But he turned and said unto Peter: Get thee behind me, Satan, thou art a stumbling block unto me," Matt. 16:18, 23.

Peter had just confessed Jesus to be the Christ, the Son of the living God. There upon Jesus broke the strange news to the disciples that He must suffer and be killed; Peter took Jesus aside and told Him that this must never be allowed to happen. This brought Jesus into temptation and so He said to Peter: "Get thee behind me, Satan, for thou are a stumbling block to me." Peter, the rock, becomes a block—a stumbling block. Think of it! How did this happen? It appears that Peter felt himself qualified to speak to Jesus and advise Him. Had Jesus not just told him that God had revealed the truth about His Messiahship to him, and had Jesus not said that He would give him the keys of heaven? Peter became a stumbling block when he relied upon his own thinking and did not look to God for revelation of truth regarding this new light about Jesus. When our life is not guided by God's truth it is liable to cause others to stumble.

SEPTEMBER 13—"The eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to show him- self in behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him," II Chron. 16:9.

The Lord is anxious to show Himself strong in behalf of every one of us, provided our hearts are perfect toward Him. God waits for an opportunity to show His saving power in our lives. Think of it, God is waiting for us! The Lord can show Himself strong in our lives only when our hearts are perfect toward Him. What else is this perfection which is required but the perfection of love? Believers are called to be perfect and without blemish before Him in love, (Eph. 1:4) not perfect in words or knowledge, but in love. Can you love Him wholeheartedly? Will you love Him with all your heart? Do it, and God's glory will soon become a power through your life.

SEPTEMBER 14—"But go to my brethern and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father, and to my God, and your God," John 20:17b.

In these words to Mary Magdalene, the risen Saviour reveals His oneness with believers. No one of us need feel insignificant and small, as we so often find ourselves doing. If we are followers of Jesus, He counts us His brethren, with, the same kind of possibilities of relationship to God which He had. Christ's filial relationship to the Father is also our privilege. The guidance Jesus received from the Father we may have. The kind of suffering He had to bear we are called upon to bear. And so in many ways through Christ we have come into the same kind of relationship with the Father which Jesus enjoyed. We cannot attain unto the fulness of that relationship as Jesus did for we are sinners, but nevertheless our relationship to God is of the same kind which Jesus enjoyed. As we go through the day let us think of how fully we avail ourselves of our privileges as brethren of Jesus.

SEPTEMBER 15—"Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, bo all to the glory of God," I Cor. 10:31.

Charles Finney once said, "The appetite for food is frequently, and perhaps more frequently than any other, the occasion for back-sliding. Few Christians, I fear, apprehend any danger in this direction. God's injunction is 'whether ye eat or drink, or whatever ye do, do all to the glory of God.' Christians forget this and eat and drink to please themselves—consult their appetites instead of the law of life and health. More persons are ensnared by their tables than the church is aware of. A great many people who avoid alcoholic drinks altogether will indulge in tea and coffee, and even tobacco, and in food, both in quantity and quality, that violates every law of health. They seem to have no other law than that of appetite, and this they so deprave by abuse that, to indulge it, is to ruin body and soul together." Do we eat and drink to the glory of God?

Revelation: A Message to Persecuted Churches

Rev. 2:1-11. Read Chaps. 1-3

Topic: CHRISTIAN CHURCHES IN A TIME OF PERSECUTION

Introduction

The letters to the seven churches in Asia Minor, (chaps. 2, 3) were given to John by our Lord and have much significance. They deal with conditions in the localities addressed, as they then existed. They are admonitory in seeking to correct evil conditions. They address themselves to individuals as well as to churches. They contain words of warning, of encouragement, and of instruction that are needed by our churches of today. Much in Revelations is difficult to understand, but the messages to these churches are clear and should be taken to heart. They make plain the fact that we stand before God as individuals.

Ephesus, a Defective Church. vs. 1-7

Each letter is addressed to the angel of the church. The title angel means messenger. The head of the church is the messenger of God. The mother church in Ephesus was a famous church. It was founded by Paul himself (Acts 19). Timothy was the pastor of it for a time. Later it became the home of John and he attended this church and possibly ministered there for a time. For many years this was a thriving and influential church.

John is using symbolic language (v. 1). The seven stars may be likened to the church leaders, the pastors. These are in the Lord's hands. The candlesticks represent the churches. These are made to shed the light of truth and goodness. The churches are to be lights. Christ is present in His light-bearing Church (Matt. 5:14-16). Churches are established for the glory of Christ and for His gospel of light and life. Christ says some very commendable things about the Ephesus church (vs. 2, 3). It was orthodox in belief, the members had labored earnestly for Christ's cause, and had upheld the gospel standard of teachings. In many ways she was worthy of emulation. Christ's church is established to reproduce in human lives the holy works our Lord wishes to have done. Our Lord knows the record of our churches. Can He heartily approve of it?

In spite of her religious activity, the Ephesus church had fallen and needed to repent and do again the "fine works" (vs. 4, 5). The spirit of brotherly love, the former spiritual ardor was lost. Their spirituality was lost and Christ could no longer regard them as a true church. She could no longer let her light shine before men. The good part of a church is not enough to guarantee her standing before God. Back-sliding Christians must repent just as unsaved sinners. God graciously promises food from the tree of life to the faithful ones. If religion is anything to us, it is everything, and should have the supreme place in our lives.

Smyrna, a Faithful Church vs. 8-11.

This church had suffered persecutions, and more severe trials appeared to be awaiting her (v. 10). This church did not have earthly prestige, nor possess riches, yet she was rich in spite of her people's poverty (v. 9). It is far more important far a church or a person to be rich in grace than to be rich in earthly possessions. True riches are not measured by the world's standards. Tribulations shall come to this faithful church, but it will not continue long—"ten days." Faithfulness will merit the reward of the crown of life. True faith has always flourished in the face of persecution.

How well is our church fitted today to undure persecution?

How can we maintain our first love?

What is Christ saying to us? to our Church?

GLEANINGS

"On one occasion I asked Dr. F. N. Peloubet, the great lesson-help writer, how we could get boys into the Sunday School. His answer was, "Have a good meal ready when you ring the bell."

—Marion Lawrence

"Our Sunday School must glow grow and go, and I will help to make it so. Enthusiasm for God is the true elixir of life."—Selected

"Seize the moment of excited curiosity to fix the truth."—Selected

"The face is a public sign-board, the playground of all the imps or angels who dwell inside. It is an index of one's real self. As children, we used to read in our picture books, 'My face is my fortune.' This is absolutely true in Sunday School teaching. People run from a storm but love to dwell in the sunshine. Thunder-clouds mean defeat. Pupils read our faces as we read a book. Our faces were made to reflect the spirit of our inner life. Old Chrysostom said of Bishop Flavian, 'The contenances of holy men are full of spiritual power.'" —Selected

"Prayer and pains, through faith in Jesus Christ, will do anything."—John Eliot

"The bigger the work, the greater the joy in doing it."—Henry M. Stanley

"The teacher should prepare himself. No lesson will be a really helpful lesson to the class that has not been a helpful lesson to the teacher. The application of the lesson should be backward, toward the teacher, before it will go forward, toward the class. 'What has this lesson taught me?' is a good question for the teacher to ask. 'How has it helped me?' 'Am I better qualified for my work, after studying this lesson, than I was before?' 'Am I an exemplification of the truth I am trying to give the scholars?' 'I am trying to teach them to be patient; am I patient?' 'I am trying to teach them to be studious; am I studious?' 'I am trying to teach them to have a real purpose in their lives; do I have that?' This is the crucial part of a teacher's preparation."—Marion Lawrence

"The teacher's life is the life of his teaching."

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHESDA CHURCH, MARION, S. DAKOTA

Baptismal services were held here on Sunday, Auguse 10, with a large congregation attending. Eleven were baptized and eleven more were received into the membership of this church. We are happy to have some of the members of the Schartner Church come and join us. Their leader, Rev. Jacob Schartner passed away last winter, and we pray that their membership in our church may be accompanied with rich blessings.

Rev. A. P. Waltner has officiated at four weddings in this church. Those who were married are: Elmer Tiahrt and Hulda Gortmaker on June 22; Henry Deckert and Esther Nickel on July 20; Arnold Beckman and Wilma Deckert on July 27; and Merle Shay and Edna Schmidt on August 10.

EMMANUEL MENN. CHURCH, GALVA, KANSAS

Greetings to the readers of The Mennonite with Isaiah 40:31: "But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint."

Church services and Sunday School are still being conducted in the Lone Tree schoolhouse with good attendance. Every fourth Sunday, we have Christian Endeavor, while on the other Sunday evenings during the summer months, Rev. G. A. Linscheid is conducting a Bible study hour followed by a season of prayer. (He is using the epistle to the Hebrews at present.)

It may be of interest to the readers to know how the work on the new church is progressing. Before harvest about thirty men came together one day to shingle the roof. It was nearly completed that day. Now that the 1941 wheat crop is gathered in and the plowing done for the next year's crop, work is being resumed on the interior. Within a few days, the cementing of the basement floor will be done, the Lord willing. The siding will be the next project.

With eager anticipation we are looking forward to the time of the completion of our church and its dedication in early fall. Plans for the dedication are being made. Full details in regard to the dedication will be published later. —Corr.

ZION MENNONITE CHURCH, KINGMAN, KAN.

We have received so many blessings both in a material and spiritual way this summer that we are very thankful to our Heavenly Father. In our community the harvest was quite good and the vegetable gardens were very good.

Good Friday we were priveleged to have a group of young people from the "Midwest Bible and Missionary Institute" of Salina, who gave a very interesting program of music and testimonies. Two members of the group were girls from our congregation. The program was an example of what fine work the Bible Institute is doing in training young people for Christian work. Easter Sunday morning we celebrated the Lord's Supper. In the evening the choir gave a short contata entitled The First Easter. Mother's Day, Rev. Unruh gave a special message for mothers. In the evening we were again privileged to have a group of young people with us, this time from Bethel College. Their program consisted of music, a chalk talk, and a short address. It was very interesting and made one feel glad that in times like the present we still have some Christian Colleges who will stand firm for the "Faith of Our Fathers."

On Father's Day, Rev. Unruh gave a special message for fathers. Then one Sunday in June, Elizabeth Boggs, a former student of the "Midwest Bible and Misionary Institute," was here with some pictures from the mission field in the Kentucky mountains. The pictures showed the great need for missionary work in our home land. Miss Boggs is a missionary working under the American Inland Mountain Mission.

August 3 a class of six young people were baptized. The same day we celebrated the Lord's Supper. At noon a basket dinner was enjoyed by all. Aug. 4 Rev. and Mrs. Unruh left for Pennsylvania, where they intend to visit relatives and also attend the General Conference. During their absence we have had the following student pastors, who have attended the "Moody Bible Institute." Aug 10—Waldo Kaufman, Pretty Prairie; Aug. 17—John Graber, Pretty Prairie; Aug. 24—Waldo Flickinger, Pretty Prairie. Aug. 31 Rev. Noah Unruh of Newton will be here.

Civilian Service Camp News

By R. L. Hartzler

The following articles are taken from "Peace Sentinel," the publication of the C. O. camp at Bluffton, Indiana.

Who Shall Pay the Way?

As is generally known, the church is now providing the entire operating expense of the Civilian Camp project. With no government funds from which such expenses could properly be drawn, the church assumed responsibility to initiate and carry the program as far, or as long as it might find itself able to do so. The period (Jan. to July) was set as an experimental period in which the church's ability to do this, was to be tested out. Since the program did not get under way until the last quarter of that period, the time was extended to Sept. 15. Thus the next few weeks are highly important in the history of the camp project.

Whether the church continues to carry the program alone or accepts government subsidy, is indeed a significant question in relation to the fundamental purpose of the camp project as seen by the church. This fact may be more apparent to those who are able to see it from the inside, than to those who view it more or less from without. As one of the former, it is my definite conviction that the values which we seek most to thus conserve in the boys and the church will be modified or even jeopardized, if the church fails to rise to the need by continuing to pay the way.

Holding Weekly Prayer Meetings

A weekly prayer meeting is held Wednesday evenings in the chapel. This meeting is also assigned to a Sunday School class which is held responsible for one evening. A member of the class is chosen to lead the meeting and someone else conducts the song service. One of the boys reads a Scripture passage after which prayers are offered voluntarily by any one attending the meeting. This meeting has become very much a part of all our lives.

Camp Quartet Sings at Conference

The camp quartet took a two-day furlough making it possible for them to sing at the Middle District Conference held at the Ebenezer Church near, Bluffton, O., and then going on to Kidron where they sang at the Ohio Mennonite Sunday School Conference. They found deeply interested audiences at both places with more than 2,000 attending the meeting at Kidron.

Last Sunday evening the quartette, together with Phil Frey and Carl Lehman, went to Topeka, Ind. and gave a program at the Maple Grove Church.

A HERO OF VALLEY FORGE

It was winter at Valley Forge. Indeed, it was that famous and dreadful winter when Washington and his little army of patriots were encamped there. Half-clad, half-fed, chilled by the raw, cold winds, is it not any wonder that these brave men did not lose all hopes and disperse to their homes? Every one of them performed a golden deed when he kept up his courage and stuck to his post and thus did his part towards keeping the American army together. But the hero of whom I shall tell you was not a soldier; he did not even believe it right to fight.

One day a Tory, who was well known in the neighborhood, was captured and brought into the camp. His name was Michael Wittman, and he was accused of having carried aid and information to the British in Philadelphia. He was taken to West Chester and there tried by court-martial. It was proved that he was a very dangerous man and that he had more than once attempted to do great harm to the American army. He was pronounced guilty of being a spy and sentenced to be hanged.

On the evening preceding the day set for the execution, a strange old man appeared in Valley Forge. He was a small man with long, snow-white hair falling over his shoulders. His face, although full of kindliness, was sad-looking and thoughtful. His eyes, which were bright and sharp, were upon the ground and were lifted only when he was speaking.

Many of the soldiers seemed to know him, for they greeted him kindly as he passed.

"Who is that fellow?" asked a young sergeant from Virginia.

"Why, he is one of our best friends," was the answer. "He lives at the Dunker settlement, over near Lancaster, and many are the wounded soldiers that he has nursed and brought to life. He has a hospital there of his own, and if I were hurt or sick I shouldn't want any better place to go. He doesn't believe in fighting, but he surely believes in helping the fighters."

"Yes," said another soldier, "but the worst of it is that he would just as soon nurse a sick Britisher as a sick American. All are the same to him."

Then, one after another, the soldiers began to give the old man's history.

His name was Peter Miller.

He was the finest scholar in the thirteen colonies. He had translated the Declaration of Independence into seven European languages, and the Continental Congress had sent copies of these translations into every country where they could be read.

He had charge of a printing press in the Dunker settlement.

He had translated into English a wonderful German book and had printed it upon his own press. The book was a huge thing, so large and heavy that a man would not wish to carry more than one volume at a time. And what do you think it was about?

It was entitled The Martyrs' Mirror and was mostly about the cruelties of war. Its object was to show that all fightings are wrong and unnecessary.

To translate it and print it was the work of three years, and, it is said, that during all that time Peter Miller never slept more than four hours a night.

"I think I have seen that wonderful book," said a soldier. "I think I rammed a part of it down my musket when I loaded it yesterday."

"That is very likely," said another. "About a week ago, six of us drove over to the settlement in wagons, and brought back all the Martyrs' Mirrors we could find. The paper makes fine wads for the muskets, and you know that we have almost nothing else that can be used."

In the meanwhile, Peter Miller, with bowed head, had made his way to the door of Washington's headquarters.

His name was announced.

"Peter Miller?" said Washington. "Certainly. Show him in, at once."

The old man went in, searchingly raising his eyes to meet the welcoming and inquiring look of the general.

"General Washington, I have come to ask a great favor of you," he said, in his usual kindly tones.

"I shall be glad to grant you almost anything," said Washington, "for we are indebted to you for many favors. Tell me what it is."

"I hear," said Peter, "that Michael Whittman has been found guilty of treason and that he is to be hanged at Turk's Head tomorrow. I have come to ask you to pardon him."

Washington started back, and a cloud come over his face. "That is impossible," he said. "Wittman is a bad man. He has done all in his power to betray us. He has even offered to join the British and aid them in destroying us. In these times we dare not be lenient with traitors; and, for that reason, I am sorry that I cannot pardon your friend."

"Friend!" cried Peter. "Why, he is no friend of mine. He is my bitterest enemy. He has persecuted me for years. He has even beaten me and spit in my face, knowing full well that I would not strike back. Michael Wittman is no friend of mine."

Washington was puzzled. "And still you wish me to pardon him?" he asked.

"I do," answered Peter. "I ask it of you as a great personal favor."

"Tell me," said Washington, with hesitating voice, "why is it that you thus ask the pardon of your worst enemy?"

"I ask it because Jesus did as much for me," was the old man's brief answer.

Washington turned away and went into another room. Soon he returned with a paper on which was written the pardon of Michael Wittman.

"My dear friend," he said, as he placed it in the old man's hands, "I thank you for this example of Christian charity."

It was a matter of fifteen miles, by the shortest road, from Valley Forge to West Chester which was then known as Turk's Head; and the road at that time was almost impassable. The evening was already far gone, and Michael Wittman was to be hanged at sunrise in the morning. How was the pardon to reach him in time to save his life?

The matter was so important that Peter would not entrust its management to any other person. With the pardon safely folded in his pocket, he set out on foot for Turk's Head. All night long, through snow and slush, and along unbeaten paths, he toiled. In the darkness he lost his way, and wandered far from the road. When day broke, he was not yet at the end of his journey.

Old and feeble though he was, he began to run. From the top of a little hill a welcome sight appeared. The straggling village of Turk's Head was just before him, and the sun had not yet risen. He saw a commotion in the street; men were hurrying toward the village green; a body of soldiers was already there, drawn up in order beneath a tree.

Summoning all his strength, Peter ran on and soon entered the village. Close to the tree stood Michael Wittman with his hands tied behind him. A strong rope was dangling from one of the branches.

In another minute the sun would begin to peep over the snow-clad hills. An officer had already given orders to place the rope around the traitor's neck. Peter Miller, still running, shouted with all his might.

The officer heard and paused. The crowd looked around and wondered. Panting and out of breath, Peter came up, waving the paper in his hand.

"A pardon! a pardon!" he cried, "A pardon from General Washington!"

The officer took the paper and read it aloud.

"Unbind the prisoner and let him go," he commanded.

Pete Miller had saved the life of his enemy, perhaps of his only enemy. Michal Whittman, with his head bowed upon his breast, went forth a free man and a changed man. The power of Christian charity had rescued him from a shameful death, and the cause of patriotism need have no further fears of being harmed by him.—From An American Book of Golden Deeds by James Baldwin. EDUCATION IN A DEMOCRACY

Leading Topic: The Place of Education in a Democracy, Prov. 16:16; Eccl. 2:26; Eccl. 7:11-12; I Kings 3:7,9; I Kings 4:29,30.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "O Jesus, Thou Art Standing," No. 144; "Come, Let Us All Unite to Sing," No. 439; "Christ for the World We Sing," No. 327.
2. Reading of leading topic, and prayer.
3. Talk: "The True Aims of Education."
4. Offering of Mission Project.

II. Leader's Introduction

The meaning of the root word of education is "to lead out." Leading out implies the developing of something that is there. It also means to enlist the co-operation of the ones who are being led. Leading is not driving or forcing, it implies voluntary following. "Leading out" does not mean leading aimlessly, but rather striving toward a definite goal. Education in a democracy is not an enterprise in which the group is interested; it is their concern, their desire and will which desides what things are to be of vital importance in the lives of those who grow up and develop under their care and leadership.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Children to be taught	Deut. 6:4-9
2. Instructions of a father	Prov. 4:1-10
3. Education in God's statutes	Psalm 119:33-36
4. An ancient code	Exod. 20:1-17
5. A Christian code	Matt. 5:17-26
6. Avoid perverse teaching	I Tim. 6:1-5

IV. For Discussion

1. Should Education prepare for making a living? How?
2. Should Education prepare for making a life? How?
3. Who is fit to be an educator? What qualities should he possess?

V. Facts for Study

Many changes have taken place since the days of the "Little Red Schoolhouse" in the everyday life of the average man and woman. Life has become more complicated, different problems have to be met. But the basic truths which deal with life in all its phases still hold—God's word is still the best guide and will "lead out" and educate for the many problems of life in the deepest and truest sense of the word.

We should all learn to make the most of life by utilizing the lessons which our daily experiences teach us. Perhaps one of the best aims of education is to "learn to do good."

VI. A Suggestive Bit of Poetry

Listen to the water mill,
Through the livelong day,
How the clanking of the wheel
Wears the hours away.
Languidly the Autumn wind
Stirs the greenwood leaves;
From the fields the reapers sing,
Binding up the sheaves;
And a proverb haunts my mind,
As a spell is cast:
"The mill will never grind
With the water that has passed."

Take the lesson to thyself,
Loving hearts and true;
Golden years are fleeting by,
Youth is passing, too;
Learn to make the most of life,
Lose no happy day;
Time will never bring thee back
Chances swept away.
Leave no tender word unsaid,
Love while life shall last—
"The mill will never grind
With the water that has passed."

Work while yet the daylight shines,
Man of strength and will;
Never does the streamlet glide
Useless by the mill.
Wait not untill tomorrow's sun
Beams upon the way;
All that thou canst call thine own
Lies in thy today;
Power, intellect and health
May not, cannot last;
"The mill will never grind
With the water that has passed."

Oh, the wasted hours of life
That have drifted by;
Oh, the good we might have done,
Lost without a sigh;
Love that we might once have saved
By a single word;
Thoughts conceived, but never penned,
Perishing unheard.
Take the proverb to thine heart,
Take! Oh, hold it fast—
"The mill will never never grind
With the water that has passed."

Group two	Psalm 84:3-4.
Group one	Psalm 84:10.

Group one	Psalm 84:12.
Group two	Psalm 122:1.
In unison	Psalm 27:4.

6. Trio: "Break Thou the Bread if Life."
7. A short talk by a Junior boy:

Being Reverant in God's House

In some churches there is a custom that the members bow in silent prayer as they take their seats. The story is told of a man who for many years came to the church half an hour before the opening of the service. He would sit in silent meditation and prayer. Even when the others began to gather for the service he continued in his meditation.

In the Friends church there are often long periods of quiet. The story is told of a little seven-year-old boy who said he "always had such a nice time in meeting."

"What does thee do?" he was asked.

"Oh I talk with God. I tell Him what I have been doing all week. Then we plan together what we are going to do next week. I can listen for God so much better when I am there with all the people."

8. Sing softly in unison "The Lord is in His Holy Temple."

II. Study Period.

Aim: To help our Juniors to an appreciation of the sermon. To help them to "listen for God" during the sermon hour. To bring our Juniors into a closer relation with Jesus Christ, our Saviour.

1. Introduction by a Junior boy:

In every town that Jesus visited He went to the synagogue or temple to worship God. The sermon is the most important part of the church service, for the preacher is giving God's message. Perhaps we cannot understand all of it, but if we listen we can understand much of the sermon.

2. We can think of three parts connected with the sermon.
   a) Scripture reading.
   b) The text.
   c) The sermon itself.
3. Why does the minister read a portion of Scripture? by a Junior boy.

"The hearing of the word of God is one of the most important parts of the church service, for in it God speaks to us. The scripture that is read is usually a background for the sermon.

4. Recall the Scripture lesson of the morning.
5. Why does the minister choose a text? by a Junior girl.

The text gives the minister the thought of the sermon. It is always taken from the Bible.

6. Recall the text of the morning's sermon.
7. The Sermon: a short talk by the pastor.
8. Sing softly verse one of "I Love to Tell the Story."

III. Mission Minutes

1. Name all of the workers in India.
2. Pray for them by name, each Junior naming one missionary.
3. Read a letter from a missionary in India.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Memorize the remaining verses, 4 and 5, of the song of the month: "The Churches One Foundation."
2. In unison repeat the verse of the month: Ps.27:4.
3. In unison pray the prayer of the month: Psalm 19:14.
4. Sing softly: "Into My Heart."

BOLDNESS BEFORE RULERS

One of Frederick the Great's best generals was Hans Joachim von Zieten. He was never ashamed of his faith. Once he declined an invitation to come to his royal master's table, because on that day he wished to present himself at the table of His Lord and Master Jesus Christ. It was sacrament day. The next time he appeared at the palace, the king, whose infidel tendencies were well known, made use of some profane expressions about the Holy Communion of the Lord's Supper; and the other guests laughed at the remarks made on the occasion. Zieten shook his gray head solemnly, stood up, saluted the king. and then said, with a firm voice: "Your Majesty knows well that in war I have never feared any danger and everywhere have boldly risked my life for you and my country. But there is One above us Who is greater than you or I—greater than all men; He is the Saviour and Redeemer, Who has died for your Majesty, and has dearly bought us all with His own Blood. This Holy One I can never allow to be mocked or insulted; for in Him repose my faith, my comfort, and my hope in life and death. In the power of this faith, your brave army has courageously fought and conquered. If your Majesty undermines this faith, you undermine at the same time the welfare of your State. I salute your Majesty."

This open confession of his Saviour by Zieten made a powerful impression on the king. He felt he had been wrong in his attack on the faith of his general, and he was not ashamed to acknowledge it. He gave his hand to Zieten, his right hand, placing the left on the old man's shoulder, and said with emotion: "O, happy Zieten! How I wish I could also believe it! I have the greatest respect for you. This shall never happen again." The king then rose from the table, dismissed the other guests, but said to Zieten, "Come with me into my cabinet." What passed in that conference, with closed doors, between the great king and his greatest general, no one has ever learned; but this we know, that the Lord's own words are now verified to Zieten: "Whosoever shall confess me before men, him will I confess before my Father which is in heaven."

Brother Orie Miller arrived at his home on August 11, after completing a two months investigation and Goodwill trip to the Mennonite Colonies in Paraguay. While in South America he also contacted our missionaries in Argentina, and visited several other countries in the interest of the Mennonite Central Committee's work in that part of the world.

Largeness of Heart

By Archer Wallace

It has now become customery to refer to some people as big without the term necessarily having any reference to physical size. It is decidedly complimentary and when we hear someone say, "He is such a big man," we know they are thinking with much appreciation of some man whom they greatly admire. For bigness has come to mean generosity of spirit and true magnanimity of soul.

In the First Book of Kings there is mention made of the gifts which God bestowed upon young Solomon when he come to the throne, and among these gifts was this one: "And God gave Solomon . . . largeness of heart." It is a quality much needed by one who was to be ruler of a great nation, but we know that the things for which it stands—breadth of mind, sympathy, courage, and sweetness—are needed by all who would be happy and who wish to make their lives a blessing to others.

True religion makes people big, gives them largeness of heart. They have no place in their hearts for malice, for bitterness and spite. The biographer of the poet Heine says that he kept a black list with the names of all upon it who had ever done him an injury. Nothing could be further removed from the spirit of true religion. In the old civilizations of Greece and Rome men did not regard it as a virtue to forgive one's enemies; rather that man considered himself fortunate who, on his deathbed, could declare he had rewarded both friends and enemies in their own coin. He had done good to his friends and wrought mischief on his enemies.

Whenever one carries with him a spirit of bitterness and hate, we know that man is so much smaller because of that attitude. He may have other good qualities, such as honesty, tenacity of purpose and loyalty to conviction, but life will be poisoned at the springs and neither happiness nor usefulness can mark such a life.

One of the bitterest enemies that Abraham Lincoln had was Edwin M. Stanton. Stanton exhausted every device he could think of to humiliate and ridicule Lincoln. He called him a "low cunning clown," and protested that there was no need for officials of the zoo to go as far as Africa in search of a gorilla, because they could find one in Lincoln's home at Springfield, Illinois. Lincoln knew all this, yet when he needed a man for the responsible position of Secretary of War, he appointed Stanton because he believed he was the most efficient man for the place. Lincoln's heart was big—as big as the world—but there was no room in it for hate or even for the memory of a wrong.

When General Gordon was in Egypt he was often misunderstood by suspicious natures although he was one of the most transparently honest men who ever lived. The correspondent of the London Times wrote back to England: "Gordon has the most lovable disposition of any man I have ever known. He trusts men whom others would imprison. He marches right into the midst of armed foes and manages them as he wills. He does this not by diplomacy or duplicity, but by being straightforward, kind, and true. He draws out in men—even his enemies—a living warm response of goodwill."

It is easy, we might almost say it is natural, to utter hard things about those whom we dislike or who have been unfair to us. We can always justify, to ourselves at least, such conduct. We can even make a virtue out of it and pride ourselves upon being frank, outspoken, honest. But there is no way in which we portray our own inner selves more than when we seek to portray the character of others. What a tender and beautiful thing it was that Ananias the Christian did at Damascus when he was called in to visit Saul, up to that time the arch-enemy and bitter persecutor of Christians. "Ananias entered into the house, and putting his hands on him said, Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me."

One imagines that throughout the remainder of his streneous life the apostle never forgot those two words and all they implied: "Brother Saul." How his heart would leap at the friendly greeting! There are few people who do not respond to encouragement and become capable of doing things which, in a less friendly atmosphere, would be impossible.

From the love letters of an anonymous writer we select this sentence: "I love you, not only for what you are, but also what I am when I am with you." How true it is that the presence of some awakens within us what might slumber, or seem dead, were it not for them. That is the truth expressed in these lines by Katherine Edelman:

I shall not fail if you believe in me,
Though life may lead the way across a sea
Of billowing waves, of wild and fierce intent,
Of hard, steep paths that leave me brused and spent.

I shall surmount all doubt and craven fear,
With added courage face each coming year—
No goal too great—no crest too high shall be
If only you keep faith and trust in me.

A man was being shown through a public school in England when the teacher, speaking of a boy, said: "He is the stupidest boy in the school, I can't drive anything into his head. He is awkward, slow, self-conscious." Before he left the school he sought occasion to speak to the boy. "Don't be discouraged," he said, "do your best and you may become a great scholar some day." That boy was Adam Clark, and he lived to become one of the greatest Bible scholars of all time, but up to the last day of his life he never forgot how his heart thrilled at those encouraging words.

It is sometimes harder to share people's joys than their sorrows. When a woman was asked to join a gathering where a friend was to be congratulated over some achievement, she refused to go. "If she were in trouble I would be glad to help her all I could but she doesn't need me just now." It was a mistake. We must rejoice with them that do rejoice as well as weep with them that weep. We should search our own hearts to see if there is not some slumbering resentment at anothers's happiness and if that is true we are hurting ourselves, as well as failing to increase another's joy.

We heard of a man who had been unjustly vilified. When the words of his critics were quoted to him, he said, "I want to be fair to these men. They believe these things of me, and if I were half as hard as they think I am they have every right to be indignant." It increases one's faith in humanity to know that there are such men in the world.

Editorial

When we think of possibly staying in camp for two and one half years it seems like a long, long time. It means making many adjustments in our relations to the outside world so as to best fit into our environment. We are not so much concerned about our ability to make these adjustments as we are about the futility of that which makes it necessary. In other words we boys here at the Bluffton camp feel that we will be able to make good use of our time so far as our own individual lives are concerned. We will learn many things. We will learn to work together and appreciate one another. We will learn practical things—how to do our work better—how to do some things we could not do before. Above all we expect to learn to know the Word of God better and His will in our lives.

Yet in a larger sense the futility of that which makes it necessary for us to be here weighs us down. It is hard for us to get that real feeling of accomplishment so important as a stimulant to greater achievment and greater satisfaction.

It is only as we turn to our faith in the Almighty that He still reigns supreme, that we gain new courage and confidence. We know that whatever both the immediate and distant future may hold for us, that still, as Paul wrote to the Romans, "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord." With this faith and knowledge we press on. —CML

Forestry Project

A trip through the wells County State Forest at this season of the year reveals a growing interest in the importance of soil drainage and fertility. The last two weeks the boys have been making a drainage system between the roads and the tree seed beds. An empty sodded waterway must be maintained for the overflow of the main tile so that the surface water will not wash off the cover of the main ditch.

Two dump trucks and hand tools such as hoes, mattocks and shovels are used for landscaping. Work of this kind is being done along the roadways leading to the park and in the park itself.

Nine of the boys working under Christ Raber are screening sand for the seedbeds. The sand helps hold moisture in the soil and in that way improves tree growth. These boys do their duty well and feel they are more useful in this work than anywhere else.

Some of the boys were put to work counting the seedling trees. According to actual count there are 15,987 White Walnut or Butternut, 63,768 Black Walnut, 1,011,328 Black Locust, and 1,200 Honey Locust. The count is not complete for all trees.

A few poles supporting the pipe water lines used in the sprinkling system had to be replaced recently. The water in the system is kept under a 65 pound pressure and is pumped by electric motors.

The boys have been eager to work and always ready to do their part to see that the work requested by the forestry officials is done promptly and well.

Woodworking Shop Popular

While going through our woodworking shop and seeing our tools and some of the things the boys have been making during their spare time, Mrs. Ralph McClain, a recent visitor, made this statement. "Men need their little shop and tools just as women need their sewing baskets to express their creative ingenuity and get that satisfaction of accomplishment that the majority of people crave."

One need only see the eagerness and enthusiastic effort and concentration of thought with which the boys apply themselves while making various items of their own choosing from old scrap wood, to fully realize the truth of the above statement. With but a limited amount of equipment, including only four power machines—a small bench saw, a 10-inch band saw, a small lathe with emery wheel attached, and a jointer—together with a few hand tools, the boys are making articles that one, not knowing their origin, could well believe them to have been purchased in a furniture store.

The most necessary and useable pieces of furniture were sawed, planed, and assembled first, including such items as small tables and chairs for their own personal use in their own little nooks beside their beds. Going through the dormitories one can see as much variety in style and color of furniture as there are individuals who made them. A number of the boys have made small radio shelves that swing in and out of closets. What-not shelves, book shelves and clock shelves are other small items that have been made from waste wood.

Several of the boys have attempted larger pieces of furniture such as lounging chairs, lawn chairs, waste boxes, kitchen cabinets, magazine racks, baseball bats, etc. One man has succeeded in making a very comfortable rocker with a unique patent which allows him to lean forward to tie his shoes without having the rocker swing forward and spilling him.

Some of the more experienced cabinet makers have made items of lasting pride. One of them is a typing desk finished in oak and a chair, also made of oak to match the desk. The fact that these articles are sawed out of old, warped, apparently useless lumber adds an extra touch of pride to the boy's accomplishments that is well deserved.

It is interesting to note that a completed article by one of the boys is an inspiration to the others to attempt something of their own design just like a piece of needle work, artistically done by one woman, spurs the next on to attempt an equally difficult task for herself, thereby gaining valuable skill and experience in their particular field of interest.

IN MEMORIAM

MARTHA A. HUXMAN, daughter of Henry A. and Mary Dester Huxman, was born at Arnold, Ness County, Kans., August 16, 1890, and passed away July 30, 1941, at her home in Moundridge at the age of 50 years 11 months and 14 days. She moved with her parents to a place near Moundridge in 1893, where she made her home until 1929 when she moved to Moundridge. There she spent the remainder of her life.

On June 3, 1906, she was baptized upon confession of her faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, uniting with the West Zion Mennonite church, where she remained a faithful member until her departure. Sorrow entered Martha's life at an early age, by the death of her mother. Although in poor health all her life, she willingly and cheerfully accepted the responsibility of caring for her younger brothers and sisters. The last four years Martha was a shut-in; always bearing her suffering patiently and cheerfully even though the pain became increasingly severe.

She leaves to mourn her departure, 3 brothers, R. R. and D. J. of Moundridge, and H. E. of Walton; 2 sisters, Mrs. Frieda Schneider of Moundridge and Mary, at home, who faithfully cared for her to the end. She was preceded in death by her parents, 2 sisters and 3 brothers.

Funeral services were held at the West Zion Mennonite Church on Friday, Aug. 1, with Rev. Walter Gering officiating. Internment was in the church cemetery one mile west of Moundridge.

MARRIED

Reuben Friesen, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Friesen, Henderson, Nebraska, and Esther Claassen, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Claassen, Freeman, South Dakota, were married Thursday afternoon, August 7, at 3:30, in the Salem Zion church, Marion, South Dakota.

CONFERENCE NEWS

On Sunday afternoon, August 17, the twenty-ninth session of the General Conference got under way when the combined chorus of the Eastern District Conference, under the direction of Prof. Russel A. Lantz, rendered Gual's oratorio, The Holy City. The report has it that the Souderton High School auditorium housed a record attendance of 1631 people. The police estimate was that 550 automibles brought conference guests to this meetings.

Delegates and guests to the conference deeply appreciated the hearty reception and entertainment which the Mennonites of the Eastern District and especially the people of Souderton, Mennonite and non-Mennonite, had planned. That the conference was a great success is, to a large extent, due to their efforts. Thank you.

The Conference praises the Lord for His grace in permitting its two oldest ministers to again attend the sessions. The oldest one, the Rev. C. H. A. von der Smissen of Newton, Kansas, who is 89 years of age, made the trip by automobile with his son and family. The other is the Rev. Allen Fretz, pastor emeritus of the Deep Run Church of Pennsylvania, who is 88 years of age. Both have a long record of active service. It is our prayer that the Lord may continue to grant them health and strength so that our Conference may continue to be blessed through these men of God.

A number of Conference guests visited the Skippack cemetery where the monument erected to the memory of Christopher Dock is located. The church at Skippack is the second oldest Mennonite church in America. Other historical places visited were the first church at Germantown, the Franconia settlement, etc.

The Perkiomen Library graciously loaned to the Conference their priceless oil painting representing the death of Christopher Dock while on his knees at his teacher's.—The presence of this painting lent inspiration and a sense of reverence to the atmosphere in the assembly room. This, too, was greatly appreciated.

The name "The General Conference of the Mennonite church of North America" took on real significance when the Conference adopted the Hoffnungsau church of Old Mexico into its membership. Thus far only Canada and the United States were represented.

Approximately 390 delegates and guests from outside the Eastern District Conference were registered at the General Conference.

Rev. Franz Albrecht, Beatrice, Nebraska, has returned to his home after a few weeks stay at the hospital but is still bedfast. May the Lord restore health and strength to him if it be His will. Rev. A. Albrecht, Hanston, Kansas, his brother, went to Beatrice to visit him. Rev. A. Albrecht had part in the morning services in the First Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebr., August 24.

CENTRAL COMMITTEE EXPRESSES INTENTIONS

The Mennonite Central Committee has expressed its intention of sending Mrs. M. C. Lehman to central Europe to join her husband. They also plan to send Helen A. Penner, Beatrice, Nebraska, who has been attending Bethel College during the past year and Lois Gunden of Goshen College, to France. It was also thought necessary to send a man worker but the committee has not yet made a definite decision. The Lord willing they will sail sometime in September.

Grace Before Meals

In a news release received from The Ladies' Home Journal, the subject of "Grace before meals" is commented upon, urging American families to revive this custom which, in so many homes, and it is feared even in some Mennonite homes, has been sorely neglected in recent years. In their observations along this line they mention that, "some of the finest traditions of American family life have been discarded—and one of these is the custom of 'Grace before meals.' One reason for the abandonment of this has been the hit-or-miss meal habits of modern families." It is regretted that the dining room which should be the room dedicated to the ritual and dignity of family meals is so seldom used and in some homes is even lacking. The best place for a child to learn his first lessons in reverence and respect and good manners and consideration for others is in the close family circle.

The Journal is launching a series of editorials on this subject, emphasizing that never before have Americans had more cause to come together and to thank their Creator for the blessing of good food eaten in tranquility. Today when so many homes are shattered, America is acutely hungry for the reassurance and consolation of deeper family relationships.

Their first editorial along this line appeared in the September issue, and since this custom is of vital importance and is often thoughtlessly neglected, most of this editorial, "For This We Give Thanks," is reprinted in this isue. It is hoped that if there are such among the readers who have neglected this simple rite of grace before meals that they will realize the importance of reviving this custom in their homes, giving thanks for all things to the Father Who is the giver of every good and every perfect gift. —mb

My Impression of the Conference

Did you attend the General Conference at Souderton, Pennsylvania? Those of you who did, will you not, if you feel so led, whether you attended as a delegate, guest, or committee member, share your impression of the Conference with those who could not be there by writing out a short statement of not more than one hundred words and sending it to The Mennonite, North Newton, Kansas?

It may be your impression of the Conference as a whole or of one specific phase of it. A series of short testimonies under the above title will be published in the next issue of this paper. So, please, sit down and write your impression and mail it immediately so that it will reach the editor in time.

It Was Good For Us To Be There

As the twenty-ninth session of the General Conference came to its close, most of those in attendance probably felt like saying in the words of Peter, "Lord, it is good for us to be here." For, gathering from expressions made by various delegates and guests from the East and the West, the North and the South, and judging from the looks of satisfaction on their faces, it had been a very good conference, the impressions of which would go with them to their home churches and work themselves out in greater consecration and more devoted service for Christ and His Church.

No doubt many attended a General Conference session for the first time. In looking forward to the Conference, possibly many of them, especially some of the young folks, felt that the Conference was a mere incident which had to be borne in order to have an excuse for a trip to the East. I must admit that I was inclined to feel that way. However, I experienced a great disillusionment, for, looking back upon the events of the past few weeks with the experiences of seeing Niagara Falls, visiting the nation's capitol and various historic spots, spending a short time in New York City, etc., the one incident which towers above all others as the highlight of the whole trip is the General Conference.

In reviewing the days at the Conference, I believe I can truthfully say, with no reservations whatsoever, that all of the Conference delegates and guests feel that they owe a great debt of gratitude. First of all, gratitude should be expressed to God, our heavenly Father, Who so graciously granted His guidance throughout the session as well as His protection over the many who traveled to and from Souderton. The favorable weather also was a gift from God for which we are grateful.

The local committee, headed by Mr. Walter H. Temple, deserves a special word of thanks. Their efficient service beginning long before the date of the Conference and especially manifest during the Conference week was greatly appreciated. They seemed to be anticipating any trouble that might occur, for, to all appearances, they were prepared to cope with any emergency that might arise and to do it efficiently and without undue delay.

The services rendered by the Boy Scouts in directing traffic, paging, etc., was of inestimable value. Special mention should be made of Ray Schrauger who, through the faithfulness with which he occupied his post at the sounding board in the orchestra pit, was indeed an inspiration to those who knew of his efforts. The chairman, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, a number of times called the attention of the assembly to this service.

In our desire to acknowledge our gratitude to the people of Souderton and community, we cannot overlook the many friends who so kindly opened their homes to the many delegates and visitors from a distance. Like Mr. J. H. Wisler, burgess of Souderton, figuratively handed over the keys to the city in his address of welcome on the opening day, so, many of our hosts literally handed over the keys to their homes to their guests. Such hospitality endeared the people of the community to us.

Those who were responsible for the meals served at the cafeteria three times a day also deserve particular mention, for there, too, much painstaking care and efficiency was displayed. It is no easy task to prepare a meal to feed 400 people at one time, but these representatives of the various neighboring churches were always on the job, and such generour servings as they gave!

And last, but certainly not least, the presiding officer, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, should receive commendation for the smooth and gracious way in which he directed the business sessions, always ready with an appropriate remark or humorous observation to smooth over the rough places, and very wisely directing, so that those places remained at a minimum. He displayed the wisdom and grace bestowed by God and won through much prayer concerning the Conference.

Many other gratifying services could be commented upon, such as the encouraging reports from various officers, institutions, and organizations; the fervor and sincerity of the devotional messages at the evening meetings; the well-rendered numbers of special music; etc., all combining to make the Conference a source of inspiration and spiritual uplift, and to present a challenge to serve Christ and His Church more devotedly. Let us meet this challenge.

One of the Eastern District ministers mentioned to his congregation on the first Sunday of the Conference that the folks from the East were usually considered as being cold and aloof by those from the West. The Conference, however, proved the contrary, for their friendliness and hospitality was not a dress donned for this special occasion, but its very spontaneity proved that the attitude of the heart prompted their every action. —mb

For This We Give Thanks

A distinguished middle-aged man we know recently returned after some months' absence to the home of his boyhood. As he sat down to lunch with his parents—alone, for all the other children were of course now grown and gone—his mother reminded him gently:

"You know, son, we give thanks in this house."

As the simple, familiar words were spoken, words so familiar that he had almost ceased, as a child, to hear them, this man tells us he felt in a clear flash of emotion all the significance those grave words had had in forming his life. The stability and security of a family gathered together three times a day. The simple gratitude of his parents in giving thanks. . . . All these things, this grown man now felt, had so contributed to the forming of his character that he could not imagine what he would have been without them.

For the family dining table is the true heart of the home. There the children's talk is spontaneous, yet under parental ear and guidance. There is the best place for children's social training . . . , for much of their cultural training. And, above all, for that gentle, imperceptible guidance by the mother (with father . . . . at the head of the table) in shaping attitudes, point of view, beliefs and principles which add up in the long run to character.

So strongly did he feel this, he tells us, that he questioned whether he was doing the right thing in bringing up his own children without some similar brief ceremony of gratitude and thanksgiving at the family table . . . . He has decided, now, that his dining table should be something his children, too, should remember—that the talk there, the attitudes expressed, the moral tone, the good feeling should in later years be unconsciously remembered by his children as a center of family goodness and stability.

When Mission Friends Fellowship Together

In a little room shut away from the busy hustle and bustle of Conference activities, a group of about twenty individuals are sitting around the supper table. It is a varied group, varied as far as personalities and experience go. It is a united group, united as far as the one dominating motive of their lives is concerned, that of making Christ known to the uttermost parts of the earth. A group of missionaries from China, India, and America, together with those working from the home base, the Foreign Mission Board and their wives, have gathered to partake of the evening repast together.

It is Tuesday evening, August 19. The Conference discussion during the day has centered around the subject of missions and the perplexing problems confronting the Foreign Mission Board and the Conference as a whole as a result of the terrible holocaust prevailing in so many parts of the world.

Throughout the discussion the presence of the Holy Spirit has been felt hovering over the assembly, and, through the manifestation of His leading and guidance, hearts that were burdened and perplexed could feel the burdens lifted.

Now, at the close of the deliberations, this group has come apart to hold sweet fellowship together. A varied group, yet united. United in the One Who is in their midst, unseen yet present, their Unseen Guest. It is a time of fellowship where pioneer missionary and missionary embryo, misionary on furlough and evacuated missionary, mission board member and missionary from the field, missionary from India, China, and America, all feel the oneness, the common bond which exists between them, for theirs is a common task, the task of carrying out the great command of the greatest of all masters, "Go ye." Theirs is a common motive rooted and grounded in no lesser motive than the constraining love of Jesus Christ, their Lord and Saviour.

The meal is finished, the table is cleared, but the group still lingers. After all, it is not the fellowship at the meal alone, but the sharing of experiences and of convictions, the testimonies to the power of Christ in their lives, which strengthens the bonds of Christian fellowship among them.

The pioneer missionaries thrill the hearts of all present by recounting the marvelous grace of God in their lives in India so that for forty years they could begin and carry on the work of Him Who sent them. The laborers, who have passed and are still passing through great tests and trials of their faith in connection with their evacuation of China, touch the hearts of their fellow laborers by the simple, childlike faith that Christ's cause will be furthered even through these seemingly hindering conditions, and that His will is being done even though it is so hard to see it now. They live out their belief in the promise that "all things work together for good to them that love God," for their complete trust and faith in this promise finds expression, not only in their words, but in their calm, yes joyous, demeanor, which is a source of marvel and surprise to those who come in contact with them. There is true victory!

Another spiritual battlefront is represented by some of the faithful laborers among the Cheyenne Indians of Montana. Their testimony also bespeaks the fact that the grace of God is sufficient for every need and that the love of Christ is the constraining force which motivates their every endeavor. For, if any work requires courage and the sustaining grace of God it is that work which appears to be done on barren soil with little visible fruit.

In all humility of heart the members of the Mission Board also express their gratitude to God for the work which He has so mightily accomplished through the feeble efforts put forth by them and by their co-laborers in the various fields.

Every heart is filled to overflowing so that the thought in every mind, though unexpressed, can be nothing else but "What hath God wrought!" and the natural consequence is to raise the hearts with one accord in praise and gratitude, as well as in humble petition, to the One Who has wrought these things, Who is in their midst, unseen yet felt.

The time has come to part. Never again will this same group meet in the same way. Never again will this same group hold happy communion one with another and all with their Lord in the same manner. Never again—yet, time and again, each one of them can relive these moments, the impress of which is indelibly written in blessed memory upon the inner sanctuary of their hearts, for the Presence does not remain behind, but has His dwelling place within that inner sanctuary of every life, an ever-abiding Presence, unseen yet felt. —mb

A DEAD CHURCH NEEDS NO MONEY

According to Bruce S. Wright, approximately every United States dollar is divided as follows:

24 cents is spent for living costs.
21 cents for luxuries.
12 cents for waste.
11 cents for miscellaneous.
10 cents for investment.
10 cents for government.
9 cents for crime.
2 cents for education.
1 cent for church.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Mission Friends will be interested to hear about the latest developments of our work in China. We received a cablegram saying that those missionaries whose families are already in America will come home as soon as passage can be secured, namely, the two Pannabecker brothers and Ewert. The others have decided to stay on, namely Brother and Sister H. J. Brown, and the Sisters Goertz, Kuyf, and Regier.

The six newer missionaries who are still studying language are in the Philippines awaiting developments while they continue to study there. Whether any of them will go to India still remains to be decided.

Brother Dirks writes under date of July 23:

Baguio, Mt. Province, Philippine Islands

Dear Friends:

No doubt many of you will be surprised to hear from us from the Philippine Islands instead of from Taming, Hopei, China. We regret very much that we, with many other missionaries, have had to leave our place of work because of conditions beyond our control.

After the birth of our little daughter, Carole Kay, on June 4, we decided to join the Jantzens and Wuthrichs here in the newly organized Chinese Language School. Here at Baguio, high in the mountains of Mountain Province, Luzon Island, we can continue our study of Chinese; and our children will be safe from possible internment, which in China would have been, to say the least, a possible outcome of a war between Japan and the U. S. We realize that there may not be war between the two countries mentioned, and because of that possibility we are indeed sorry to have had to give up our work in China so soon. Our great hope is that this fearful and destructive war may soon come to an end, that the work of bringing the Chinese into the fold of Christ may be continued with vigor.

It will indeed be a great blessing in disguise for the Chinese church, and for many of the Chinese Christians that they are at present forced to rely less on foreign help and more on God and on their own initiative. And some are saying that the time has come for missionaries to withdraw entirely. But, let us not deceive ourselves. There are also a great many dangers surrounding the handfuls of believers only too recently come out of heathendom with all its superstitious beliefs and practices. Many phases of the work would no doubt be continued, but other very important ones would be neglected and perhaps largely discontinued. The preparation of native workers and leaders would possibly be one of the latter group; and the importance of this phase of our work in China cannot be easily overestimated. After all, there are only about a score of organized churches in a district with a population as large as that of the state of Kansas. And, until recently only a few of these same churches were self-supporting. Thus, even though the established churches become entirely self-supporting, hundreds of workers are still needed to reach the other thousands of unevangelized villages.

While waiting to return to China, we are attempting to get a good command of the language that later we may do the most effective work.

Sincerely,

Marvin J. Dirks

TOWARDS A MORE ABUNDANT LIFE IN CHINESE VILLAGE CHURCHES

B. The Lecture on Hygiene with a number of posters to illustrate comes next. We feel that in general this is merely an introduction to the subject because so much of it is still so far out of the range of thought of the average villager that we cannot expect results just yet. But the high point in this lecture is reached when Miss Kuyf calls upon Mrs. Shang to demonstrate the use of "Ch'i tai" medicine. So many children die of tetanus infection four to seven days after birth., Some time ago Mrs. Voth, one of our missionaries now on furlough, prepared a packet of sanitary dressings for the umbilical cord. These packets are sold at about .25 Chinese money. In over five hundred cases whenever the directions have been followed the child has lived.

The moment Mrs. Shang begins to explain, the audience becomes electrified. Again a very vital spot has been touched. I saw one old woman sitting all slumped together, paying no attention at all to what was going on. The only reason she was there was because her husband had insisted that she come to the meeting lest he do what another zealous Christian had done, namely carry her on his back. But now she began to straighten up and finally she even sat on one foot in order to see better. Men and women both are at the meeting, the men being just as anxious to learn as the women.

C. In the afternoon I give a talk on Principles of Child Training. My question as to what is the difference between children in a Christian home and a non-Christian home is invariably answered by: Christian children do not learn to curse. The next answers are: They learn to sing, pray and read the Bible. That still leaves a great deal of opportunity for expansion on the subject. I try to emphasize the great responsibility of a mother. So often the women seem to feel that having children is a hindrance in their work for the Lord. Other times they want to hand them over to us and let

By W. F. Unruh, Pastor, Mennonite Church, Pulaski, Iowa

SEPTEMBER 16—"But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

When a person accepts Christ he is converted and saved. This is the beginning of a new life of growth. We do not grow in purity in the sense that we become purer and purer. That comes through forgiveness and by the washing of the blood of Christ, by heart cleansing. But we grow in grace, which means that we increase in the esteem and favor of the Lord. As we follow and obey Christ He will be increasingly pleased with us. Paul says, "Lead a life that is worthy of the Lord and give Him entire satisfaction" (Col. 1:10, Moffat). As we grow in obedience we will grow in the grace and esteem of our Master, for He will see His own life take form in us. Let us this day live so that at eventide we may have grown in the esteem of the Lord.

SEPTEMBER 17—"The world has been crucified to me and I unto the world," Gal. 6:14.

Paul means to say that because Christ died for him on the cross to save him, he is no more to be had for the world. Does the love of Christ on the cross impress us so deeply that we can no longer be had for the world? A student became very loose in his religious life and soon became notorious for his wickedness. One day his pastor spoke to him. The young man in reckless levity mentioned the various evils he indulged in and after each said, "But I don't care." The pastor saw that the young man was in no state of mind to be talked to, and so he asked him to promise one thing. "I promise," he said, "what is it?" "Every night for one week bow down and say, 'O Jesus Christ, Thou hast died for my sins, but I don't care for that." That night the young man tried to say it, but he could not say the last part of that sentence. On the fourth night he went to the pastor with a pale face and said, "I could not say it." To keep the cross in mind is the way to keep oneself crucified to the world.

SEPTEMBER 18—"See therefore, and take knowledge of all the lurking places where he hideth himself," I Sam. 23:23a.

Many people try to hide themselves behind weak Christians. There are some who will tell us that they have no inclination to become Christians as long as they see Christian people and members of the church live in sin. Unfortunately, it is true that many church members live in sin. But let no one deceive himself with the thought that he will be able to hide himself in his own sins behind the sins of church members on the day of judgment. On that day all sin will be burned up, including the sin of professing Christians. Whoever attempts to hide himself behind the sins of other people will surely come to ruin. Let each one come to the Redeemer for his own personal forgiveness and salvation. And when he has found grace let him seek to help others to find the Lord, both those in the church and those outside the church who have not yet come into the full possession of our privileges in Christ Jesus.

SEPTEMBER 19—"But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father in heaven," Matt. 10:33.

Many people do not have the courage to confess Jesus openly. The secret believer may be a sincere believer, but his lack of courage keeps him from making that contribution to the Kingdom of God which his Redeemer wants him to make. A Christian's power lies largely in the contagion of his love and devotion to the Lord. If this love is hid under a bushel of secret discipleship, how can it influence other people for God? There are some people who say they do not want to be Christians because they see so much sin in the church that they have no desire to belong to it. To them we should like to say, "If you are sincere and truly zealous for righteousness in the church, come and join our church and help us strive for a higher life." A disciple of Christ can always make his greatest contribution for God when he works together with the other children of God. By inspiring weak Christians to live closer to the Lord a person doubles and redoubles his influence for righteousness.

SEPTEMBER 20—"But they held their peace: for they had disputed one with another on the way, who was the greatest," Mark 9:34.

All of us want our lives to count for something. We have a desire to be great. We might as well acknowledge it. This is not to be altogether despised. There is a deep urge in the human heart, and that is the urge to be important. We are born that way. This urge we must place on the altar of God to let Him sanctify it. If this is not done the urge will make us selfish and ruin us. Whenever we find ourselves desirous to be great and important, let us say to God, "Lord God, I find in me a desire to be important. I do not want to be great for my own glory and fame. I desire to be useful and great for Thee and for Thy glory; and that according to Thy definition of greatness. Sanctify and accept this urge I find in me. I am grateful that Thou hast need of persons like me, and now I offer my best talent to Thee to be used in Thy service." Only when we will thus offer ourselves to Christ will this urge to be important be subdued and hallowed by our love to Christ.

SEPTEMBER 21—"He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth," Matt. 12:30.

In these words the Lord Jesus gives us light on how we influence each other for Him or against Him. There is no such thing as being neutral toward Christ. If we are not outspokenly for Him and for His way of life, we are against Him. By taking a noncommittal attitude towards Christ and Christianity a person definitely influences others against Christ. By such an attitude a person gives people to feel that as far as he is concerned Jesus does not make any difference in life. A tragic thing in America is that we have so many school teachers who stay aloof from the church and religion and by so doing influence our children against Christ. Does your attitude towards Christ give people to feel that you are all for Him? If not, you scatter and are against Him.

Church Membership

By Rev. Edgar Toews

It is well for us to ask ourselves the following question: What does being a church member mean to me, and what does my being a church member mean to the church?

This question suggests privilege and obligation. Every person becoming a member of a church is entitled to certain privileges which he does not otherwise possess. It will not affect his being able to worship since the worship service is for all, members and non-members alike. It will not necessarily mean that he or she will be a better Christian by becoming a member of the church. We want people who are not members to receive the same cordial greeting that those who are members receive.

What then are some privileges of being a member of a church . . . ?

First of all, I would say that being a member of a church, located in the community in which you live, affords opportunity to be in vital touch with its work and its interests. You are a vital part of that church. Your vote counts as much as that of any other member. You may have the satisfaction of knowing that you are having a share in every worthy enterprise in which your church is helping to further the building of God's Kingdom.

Furthermore, it is a privilege to be a member of the church, in that you thus establish your identity with a group of people in whose fellowship you feel at home. A church home is of vital importance. It is also important that a family home should not have a divided church home.

Being a guest in a home does not entitle one to the full privileges that the members of that home enjoy. In like manner, in our church work we feel that by becoming a member we avail ourselves of every privilege that is provided for all who are in the church.

But what about the obligation? Every thoughtful person who becomes a member of a church will realize that there are some obligations involved. Is it asking too much when we expect that this church shall be stronger in the future than heretofore, because new members have entered its ranks in the past year?

As a church member, I feel that I am responsible for the good name of my church in the community. A church is judged by its members. No chain is stronger than its weakest link. My life, then, is definitely affected by my church membership.

Also, there are material obligations. . . . In order that the burden of maintaining the church does not rest on a few, every one is given the opportunity to share in the material phase of the work.

Every church covets the moral and spiritual support of its members. It is a wonderful enterprise in which the spirit of co-operation and good will will find ample opportunity for expression.

"If every member were just like me,
What kind of a church would my church be?"

THE ETERNAL GOD, THE SOURCE OF HELP

Revelation 7:9-17

Introduction

Chapter 7 of the book of Revelation begins (vs. 1-8) with a vision of much comfort and hope to God's children. In the day of God's judgments, the righteous may well feel quite secure. Before any judgments are meted out they are marked by the seal of God. It is a comforting thought that God knows His own. We do not literally need to have seals or marks on our foreheads to help God identify us, for He unerringly knows those who trust in Him. He sees them and will deliver them "from every evil work" (II Tim. 4:1-18).

Throng of Redeemed in Heaven, vs. 9-10

John sees a great multitude "which no man could number," before God's throne, praising Him for the salvation given to them through Christ, the Lamb of God. These are from all nations and peoples. God's people are not limited to one land, nation, or race. These have immediate access to God and to Christ. Their white robes are symbolic of their purity of character bestowed on those who surrender to Christ. The palms are a symbol of their victory over the enemies of their souls. They sing an anthem of praise ascribing all the honor for their salvation to God. Praise is eminently fitting from the lips of the child of God in this life and it is one leading occupation in heaven.

Host of Worshiping Angels, vs. 11-12

These sing another anthem of praise and worship. These stand round about the throne and cry, "Amen" (v. 12), to the loud acclamations of the great throng. These angels who live in the very presence of God and minister unto Him can appreciate His wisdom and power and might. They bow before Him in adoration and worship. He alone is the source of hope and help for our needy world.

The Elder's Explanation, vs. 13-14

God explains through "one of the elders" of whom this great multitude is composed. These have passed through great tribulation during their lifetime. God's children do not escape all trouble and trials while on earth. These, through repentance and faith, have been cleansed in heart and have received a new life through Christ's atoning sacrifice. Our lesson would teach us to see the source of all help in God. This great ransomed throng has come out of great tribulation by the grace and help of God.

The Reward of the Redeemed, vs. 15-17

Because these have received heart cleansing through Christ, the Lord God has given to them the place of honor and blessing before His throne (v. 15). They are in the immediate presence of God and continually render unto Him religious homage in His temple. God will overshadow these and give all needed protection and care. All suffering and privations experienced on earth are forever past. Hunger and thirst and the sun's oppressive heat, they know no more (v. 16). God and Christ will provide completely for all our needs in the heavenly state (v. 17). Christ Himself shall dwell in the midst of them and there will be no sorrow nor tears of sadness. The glories of heaven are for all who are faithful to God. He promises His companionship to all believing hearts. He will lead and guide unfailingly.

What place does prayer have in heaven's worship?

In what sense are the robes made white in the blood of the Lamb?

What is the effect of persecution upon Christian character?

A STATEMENT OF THE POSITION OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

On Peace, War, Military Service and Patriotism adopted by the General Conference at Souderton, Pa., August 17-22, 1941

INTRODUCTION

In view of the present troubled state of world affairs, and the present European conflict which threatens the peace of the world, we as representatives of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America, desire to set forth in the following statement our faith and convictions concerning participation in war, military service, and our concept of patriotism.

In stating our convictions we establish no new doctrine among us, but merely an age-old faith of the church which has been held precious by our forefathers from the time that the church was founded in Reformation times in Switzerland (1525) and in Holland (1533), and which we have set forth on a number of former occasions since our settlement in America.

Our Position on Peace and War

1. Our peace principles are rooted in Christ and His Word, and in His strength alone do we hope to live a life of peace and love toward all men.

2. As followers of Christ, the Prince of peace, we believe His gospel to be a gospel of peace, requiring us as His disciples to be at peace with all men, to live lives of love and good will even toward our enemies, and to renounce the use of force and violence in settling our problems as contrary to the spirit of our Saviour and Master. These principles we derive from such Scripture teachings as: "Love your enemies"; "Do good to them that hate you"; "Resist not evil"; "My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight"; "Put up thy sword into its place; for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword"; "Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves"; "If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head"; "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good"; "The servant of the Lord must not strive; but be gentle to all men"; "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal"; "Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps. Who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth; who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not"; "Not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing; but contrariwise blessing"; "If a man say I love God and hateth his brother, he is a liar. . . And this commandment have we from him, That he who loveth God love his brother also"; and other similar passages, as well as from the whole tenor of the gospel.

3. Peace within the heart as well as toward others is a fruit of the gospel. Therefore, he who professes peace must at all times and in all relations with his fellow men live a life that is in harmony with the gospel.

4. We believe that war is altogether contrary to the teaching and spirit of Christ and the gospel, that therefore war is sin, as is all manner of carnal strife; that it is wrong in spirit and method as well as in purpose, and destructive in its results. Therefore, if we profess the principle of peace and nevertheless engage in warfare and strife we as Christians become guilty of sin and fall under the condemnation of Christ, the righteous Judge.

Our Concept of Patriotism

As members of a historic peace church we love our country and sincerely work for its highest welfare. True love for our country does not mean hatred of others. It is our conviction that only the application of the principles of peace, love, justice, liberty, and international good will make for the highest welfare of our country; and the highest welfare of our country must harmonize with the highest welfare of humanity everywhere. Our faith is in security through love, protection through good will; and for such we are willing to make the necessary sacrifice. We are opposed to war as a method of settling disputes because it is un-Christian, destructive of our highest values, and it sows the seed of future wars. We feel that we are true patriots because we build upon the eternal principles of right which are the only foundation of stable government in our world community.

Our Position on Military Service

In the light of the above principles of Scripture we are constrained as followers of Christ to abstain from all military service and all direct means of supporting war. Specifically, our position entails the following commitments:

1. We can have no part in carnal warfare or conflict between nations, nor in strife between classes, groups, or individuals. We believe that this means that we cannot bear arms personally nor directly aid those who do so, and that, as a consequence, we cannot accept service under the military arm of the government, whether it be combatant or noncombatant, which ultimately causes us to be responsible for the destruction of life, health, and property of our fellow men. This applies to all wars whether they be designated defensive or offensive.

2. On the same grounds consistency requires that we do not serve during war time under civil organizations temporarily allied with the military in the prosecution of the war which, under military orders, becomes a part of the war system in effect, even in method and spirit, however beneficial their peacetime activities may be.

3. We feel that we cannot consistently take part in the financing of war operations through the purchase of war bonds, and we are very sensitive to making voluntary contributions to organizations or activities which may indirectly make us supporters of war and the military program.

Instead, we urge that we make our contributions to civilian and church organizations which are directly engaged in administering relief work to those in distress or to other constructive causes.

4. We cannot knowingly sanction the participation in the manufacture of munitions and weapons of war whether in peace time or in war time.

5. We can have no part in military training in schools and colleges or in any other form of peacetime preparation for service as part of the war system.

6. We ought carefully to abstain from any agitation, propaganda, or activity that tends to promote ill-will or hatred among nations which leads to war, but rather endeavor to foster good will and respect for all nations, peoples, and races, being careful to observe a spirit of sincere neutrality when cases of war and conflict arise.

7. We ought not to seek to make a profit of war and war-time inflation, which would mean profiting from the shedding of the blood of our fellow men. If, however, during war time, excess profits do come into our hands, such profits should be conscientiously devoted to charitable purposes, such as the bringing of relief to the needy or the spreading of the gospel of peace and love, and should not be applied to our own material benefit.

Our Substitution for War

In so far as our convictions are based on religious principles, in which we hold that war is contrary to the spirit, life, and teachings of Christ, Who renounced the weapons of worldly passion and used methods of love and sacrifice in their place, and that as substitute for carnal warfare we therefore express our willingness at all times to aid in the relief of those who are in need, distress, or suffering, regardless of the danger in which we may be placed in bringing such relief, or of the cost which may be involved in the same. We are also willing to render such service as housing, road making, farming, forestry, hospitalization, and recreational work during time of peace as well as during time of war. Whenever we render such service it shall always be our purpose to spread the gospel of Christ by word as well as deed.

An Expression of Appreciation

We want to express our appreciation to the governments of the United States and Canada to which we are deeply grateful in that they have recognized our desire to exercise the full freedom of our conscience in not bearing arms or taking any part of service in the military machine, and that in lieu of such service we render service of national importance to our country and relief to those who are in need, distress, or suffering at home or abroad in the war zones. We also pray that the blessing and guidance of our beneficent God may continue to rest upon these nations, their institutions, and their people.

Integration Needed

We as Christians are engaged in manifold activities. All of these need to center in and around Christ. If you as a Christian are a member of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America and a student in school, you need to center all of your living in and around Christ, if you would be a genuine Christian and church member.

Many of the youthful readers of these pages will soon be writing theme papers for English and, perhaps, some for history and Bible classes. What will you write about? Will you seek to integrate your membership in your church and conference? Or are you going to write about many, many things and not about that part which your church and conference are seeking to fulfill (fill full) in God's Kingdom?

English papers can tell about cats and dogs, fairs and automobile races; or they can describe the benefits of observing the Quiet Hour, explain the nature and purpose of C. E. work, list the reasons for reading our church papers, tell a story of missions or of Civilian Public Service Camps. The possibilities in the latter line are unbounded.

In the same way, history papers can be centered around those events and movements which have influenced our denomination. Some, for instance, can be made to reveal the necessity for, and the sensibleness of, our peace stand.

Bible papers can so be written that they can be used in Christian Endeavor or that they will illuminate some of the work that we as a conference are seeking to do.

Last year Lillie Krehbiel of Bethel College wrote an "Investigation Theme" for English. She chose as her subject, "The Christian Endeavor." It was good work for English and a valuable contribution to those interested in Christian Endeavor.

Try this approach to greater integration. He who is creative can find high adventure in such schoolwork. You can be excellent in your studies and learn more about our conference at the same time. You can produce valuable short articles, stories and papers, which can be printed in our church papers for the edification of others. Please, send to the editor of these pages any good material produced by you or by someone else.—W.

NEW OFFICERS

The new Y. P. Union officers that were elected at the session of the recent General Conference are:

President—Ted Claassen, Newton, Kansas.
Vice President—Arthur Wenger, Reedley, Calif.
Sec'y.-Treas.—Dorothy Dietz, R.F.D. 2, Quakertown, Pa.

These officers face grave tasks in such a time as this. Let us support them through prayer, by carefully informing ourselves of the work that we as "A United Mennonite Youth in Christ" are striving to do, and by loyally carrying out the resolutions that were adopted.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE WESTERN DISTRICT C. E. CONVENTION

The Christian Endeavor Societies of the Western District held their forty-ninth annual convention in the Grace Mennonite Church, of Enid, Oklahoma, August 2 and 3, 1941, and adopted the following resolutions:

Missions: We pledge ourselves in this time of crisis in world missions to a renewed dedication to the task of bringing Christ to the nations. We resolve therefore:

1. That we as a convention encourage the societies of our district to contribute at least ten cents (10¢) per member toward the sending of Mary Becker and Alida Schrag to the foreign field.
2. That we as a convention encourage each society to contribute at least one dollar toward the support of Ernst Harder.
3. In view of the evident success of the peace rallies, that efforts be made to have similar mission rallies sponsored by individual societies or groups of societies. Amendment: The executive committee is to appoint a mission secretary who will be held responsible for mission rallies.

Peace: Recognizing the need of a clear testimony of peace and good will in these days of strife and warfare, we resolve:

1. That we re-emphasize the need, and strive for, the peace of Christ in the heart and soul of Mennonite youth.

2. That we instruct the convention secretary to write a letter of appreciation to the Mennonite Central Committee for its work which is proving a testimony for the way of Christ in a world at war.
3. That we instruct our convention secretary to write a letter of encouragement to the staff and C. O. draftees at Colorado Springs, Colo., expressing our appreciation for their sacrificial stand.
4. That we urge the continuance of the peace rallies and local study groups, encouraging those in charge to continue in their efforts to secure consecrated leadership.
5. That we adopt the peace budget as proposed by the executive committee (¼ Civilian Service, ¼ Relief, ¼ Work Camps such as the Bethel College Work Camp, ¼ incidental such as speakers for peace rallies, mileage, postage, etc.).
6. That we encourage all C. E. societies to use The Mennonite in keeping themselves informed about the Civilian Service Camps as well as other efforts to maintain our peace testimony.
7. That we as a convention instruct our secretary to send a word of appreciation and encouragement to Dr. Harshbarger in this hour of his illness, this letter to be accompanied by a gift of $10.00 as a token of our appreciation for his valuable services for the cause of peace.
8. Amendment. That we again hold a competitive oratory or essay contest with attendance at Retreat as a reward for the winner. The peace secretary with the advice of the executive committee should determine the type of contest. All entrants must deposit a nominal sum of fifty cents (50¢) which will be forfeited if they drop out and returned to them if they compete.

District and Conference Work:

1. Resolved that we adopt the goal of at least $0.50 per year for district work (C. E.) and $1.00 for General Conference Y. P. Union work per society.

Standards, Prayer Calendar, and Follow-up:

1. Resolved that we urge those societies which have not applied the Young People's Standards, the Y. P. Prayer Calendar, or the Follow-up system for the improvement of their work to investigate this possibility.

Tidings:

1. Resolved that we go on record as favoring the quarterly issue of the Tidings.
2. Resolved that each society be asked to designate a reporter to the Tidings.
3. Resolved that we urge all societies to make more efficient use of this publication.

Youth Paper:

1. Resolved that we go on record as favoring the suggested changes presented to the convention.

(These suggested changes are as follows:

1. That at present we do not seek to publish a separate Mennonite Youth paper.
2. That we seek to expand and improve the Mennonite Youth section in The Mennonite by adopting the following suggestions:
   a. That we omit the C. E. material from the youth pages and publish it separately, making room for 16 pages of youth material a month, whereas we now have 6.
   b. That we secure editors from each district who will make regular contributions to the Mennonite Youth pages.
   c. That each C. E. society keep up a vital contact with the editor of the Mennonite Youth pages.
   d. That pastors, C. E. leaders, and the district representative stimulate young people to read the Mennonite Youth pages.
   e. That every Mennonite family in which there are young people subscribe to The Mennonite, so that all Mennonite young people may know what we as "A United Mennonite Youth in Christ" are trying to do.)

RELIGION IN DEMOCRACY

Program for September 28, 1941

Leading Topic: The Place of Religion in a Democracy. Psalm 144:9-15.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Take my Life and Let it Be," "Take Time to be Holy," "Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me."
2. Reading of main topic, and Prayer.
3. Roll Call answered by favorite Bible verses.
4. Offering for Home Mission work.

II. Leader's Introduction

Democracy affirms the right of men to worship God as they see fit. Separation of church and state is a foundational principle of American democracy. This right of every man to live according to his religious convictions is being tested in our day. Our government has made room for Mennonites, Friends, Brethren, and others to do constructive work for the state in the Civilian Public Service Camps and to prove their desire to live lives of service and love and good will to their fellow men. The churches are free to provide religious instruction and education for their children and young people. They may nurture religion in the hearts of their members and in the community. No democracy will live long or do well without religious principles to back it up.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A Wise Decision. Josh. 24:14-18
2. A Righteous Nation Exalted. Prov. 14:33-35
3. Knowledge of God Essential. Jer. 31:31-34
4. Fruit-bearing, a Test. Matt. 7:15-20
5. Unrighteousness Predicted. II Tim. 3:1-5
6. A Purified, Peculiar People. Titus 2:11-14

IV. For Discussion

1. What religious principles are also basic for a democracy?

2. What advantages does a democracy offer for the growth and development of religion?

V. Facts for Study

Jesus emphasized a life of love, service, and sacrifice. Things will go well in a democracy if people will be willing to love their neighbors as they love themselves. The helping hand is still essential to successful community life. Respect for the rights of others, giving them a fair chance, providing opportunities for the exercise of their talents, that is the business of a democracy. That will be natural and possible if Christ lives in the hearts of men.

VI. A Suggestive Bit of Poetry

"Chisel in hand stood a sculptor boy
With his marble block before him,
And his face lit up with a smile of joy
As an angel dream passed o'er him.
He carved that dream on that shapeless stone,
With many a sharp incision;
With heaven's own beauty the sculpture shone,
He had caught the angel vision.

"Sculptors of life are we as we stand
With our lives uncarved before us,
Waiting the hour when at God's command
Our life dream shall pass o'er us.
If we carve it then on the yielding stone
With many a sharp incision,
Its heavenly beauty shall be our own,
Our lives, that angel vision."
—George Washington Doane

Is it possible for religion to carve its dream of a Christlike community into a democracy?

THE OFFERING IN THE CHURCH SERVICE

3. Sing in unison, "The Church's One Foundation."

4. Leader's prayer.

Are You Giving or Receiving?

By Rev. J. D. Kempster

"It is more blessed to give than to receive."
There are few people who truly believe
It's more blessed to give than it is to receive.

But since I have endeavored to follow the plan
I surely am feeling a happier man.

This get all you can, and keep all you get,
Is the motto of worldlings, and bringeth regret;
For the man who is happy and filled with delight,
Is the fellow that's giving from morning till night.

Since nothing is proven until it is tried,
Just give it a test, and it won't be denied,
This Scriptural maxim is evermore right,
'Tis giving, not getting, that bringeth delight.

8. Sing in unison, "Take My Life," verses 1, 4, 6.

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors to understand that the offering is a very definite part of the church service. To create in them the desire to give to the Lord.

1. Introduction by a Junior girl.

We have been studying about the church service and have found there are various ways of worshiping God. We can and should worship God with our offerings. If we really love the Lord and love the church we will feel the need of giving gifts to the church, for the offering is an expression of our gratitude and faith.

2. Bible Drill: Exodus 25:2; 35:5; 35:22a; 36:3b; I Chron. 29:12; Neh. 10:39; I Tim. 6:7; I Tim. 6:10; II Cor. 9:7.

3. Study Hour:
   a) Tell the story found in Mark 12:41-44.
   b) Tell the story found in Matt. 19:16-26.

4. Scripture reading, Luke 12:22-34.

5. Talk, "Christian Work Costs Money," by an older person.

6. Song, "Give of Your Best to the Master."

III. Mission Minutes

Discuss: What gifts (offerings) do missionaries give?

IV. Closing Moments

1. In unison repeat the verse of the month.
2. Then pray together the prayer of the month.
3. Sing from memory the song of the month.
4. Leader's closing prayer.

us care for them. In one talk it is impossible to go much into detail, so I emphasize only a few important principles, such as to be absolutely honest with the child; to treat him as a child and not a grown-up by giving him small responsibilities with much opportunity for play; to punish him only when it is for his own good and not in order to relieve the parent's feelings; to make each child an object of specific prayer; to teach co-operation in the home; and most important of all to imbue the home with a spirit of love, truth and justice so that the child will absorb it unconsciously.

D. Mrs. Shang concludes the discussion periods with a talk on the family altars and makes suggestions for reading materials. As an illustration of how simple a child's prayer may be she quotes the neighbor child who says: "Thank you, Lord, for giving me dumplings to eat. Amen." She usually repeats some of the points I have given but that is all right. Often we foreigners are not understood anyway. If the people did understand repetition won't hurt. We are used to having our speech repeated. Even our prayers are sometimes translated to the Lord by the person following us in prayer.

E. Between and after meetings Miss Kuyf usually has a clinic at which much eye medicine is sold, also salve, aspirin and sodamin besides various other medicines. At this time of the year many children are vaccinated. But it takes a lot of explanation that just one vaccination is quite sufficient instead of six as is the old Chinese way of doing it. They also have to be reassured that it makes no difference what they eat afterwards. The clinic is always very popular, not only with those who are treated, but also with those who look on.

III. The Evenings.

Usually a group of people gathers at each place in the evenings. If there is a group of children, one or two of us take care of them, sing with them and tell them Bible stories. If there are non-Christians coming, they too listen in. But there are invariably also a few Christians who can read. With these we have a Bible class. Illiterate Christians sometimes sit at the edges and listen in or they attend the children's class. We have studied prayer in these Bible classes which includes praying for one's enemies. I asked whether that meant also praying for the Japanese. One young man without a moment's hesitation replied, "Ask God to send them home."

IV. Our Plans for the Future

We passed through a village in Japanese occupied territory which has this inscription on the wall, "Wu Hua Ying," the Model Village. It occurred to me that every village in which there are Christians ought to become a model village. As we make our rounds again we must re-emphasize what has been emphasized last time, going into more detail and enlarging on various phases. For instance, we expect to demonstrate more hygienic clothes and the making of stuffed toys for children. There are other subjects which we want to discuss such as the subject of giving, of cleanliness, of the best way of spending Sunday, amusements, etc. With each round that we make we become conscious of the need for a deeper consecration and more enlightenment on the subject of an all-around Christian life.

Someone made a little ditty to this effect: "The Jesus church fools people. They do not work; just sit and listen to the doctrine." Sometimes there is more truth in this than we would like to admit. The Chinese Christians have the best opportunities to win souls for Christ because they are in constant contact with their non-Christian neighbors. It is our hope, therefore, that we may help them to radiate an intelligent Christianity which will make them truly the salt of the earth and the light of the world.

At 4:15 p. m., following the regular afternoon conference session, the women gathered for their annual business session under the guidance of the president, Mrs. N. N. Soldner. During the devotional period Mrs. William Penner read the Scripture and led in prayer. The group was honored by the presence of Mrs P. A. Penner from India, and Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker from China, and these two missionaries were introduced and greeted by the president, in hehalf of the organization.

Reports were read and accepted. Mrs. J. S. Schultz reported on the work of the Literature Committee and pointed out its enlarged field of usefulness and the expansion of the work in the last few years. There is a sincere desire on the part of the committee to be of the utmost help to all the societies and to furnish them with such materials as will be of most value to them. Some of the handicaps under which they labor were stressed and a plea was made for contributions for this work. A motion was passed that every member of each society again be assessed five cents for the work of the Literature Committee as in the past year, which had netted $60.10, with all except two societies responding.

A motion was passed authorizing the Executive Committee to appoint a committee of two ladies to be known as a Project Committee. The purpose of this committee is to become more intimately acquainted with the needs of Bluffton College, through a plan suggested by the Board of Trustees, and determine in what way our organization might cooperate most effectively in meeting these needs. In addition, this committee is to be prepared to report at the next conference session any other worthy project the organization might undertake.

Mrs. P. J. Boehr and Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker gave very short expressions of appreciation for blessings received in attendance at the School of Missions at Winona Lake in June.

A nominating committee composed of Mrs. D. W. Bixler, Mrs. N. G. Fankhouser, and Mrs. C. H. Smith had charge of an election which resulted in the election of Mrs. A. S. Rosenberger, Dalton, Ohio, as president and Mrs. Harvey Lutz, Chicago, as vice president. The business meeting closed with prayer by the president.

A public program was arranged for the evening meeting, which was carried out as follows:

IN MEMORIAM

OLGA ELLEN FAST NACHTIGAL, youngest daughter of H. J. and Aganetha Becker Fast, was born January 12, 1904, at the home of her parents on a farm located in Mountain Lake Township, Minn. Here she grew up to young womanhood. Her early education she received in the country school near her home, and later she finished her high school education in Mountain Lake. Subsequently she attended Bethel College, graduating with the B. A. degree in 1932. The following year she taught in Tabor College, Hillsboro, Kansas.

On October 19, 1933, she was married to Abraham A. Nachtigal. They established their home in Winnepeg, Manitoba. Here they were privileged to live in happy fellowship for seven and a half years. Two boys were born to them, Donald Abraham, six years old, and Harold David, four years old.

She became ill with Aplastic Anemia one and a half years ago. For several months she was cared for in a hospital in Winnepeg without, however, improving. About ten months ago it was considered best to bring her to Mountain Lake to the home of her parents to receive further care and medical attention. But all the efforts of her physicians, together with the care in the parental home and for short periods in the Bethel Hospital in Mountain Lake, Minn., succeeded only in giving her temporary improvement and relief. During her prolonged illness she received about seventy blood transfusions and three bone-marrow transfusions. She succumbed to her long illness on Sunday, August 10, at 4:20 P. M., and entered peacefully into her heavenly rest. She reached the age of thirty-six years, seven months, and eighteen days.

Her patience under suffering with never a word of complaint, her never failing cheerfulness and hopefulness, as well as her amazing will to live in order to fulfill her function as wife and mother were an inspiration to all who visited her and cared for her during her prolonged illness. Her whole life was consecrated to God from the time she first gave her heart to the Lord and was baptized upon her desire by her pastor, Rev. H. H. Regier, and received into the membership of the Bethel Church. Now her faith has received its reward and she has received eternal restoration of health. Her body was laid to rest in the local cemetery, Wednesday, Aug. 13, awaiting the great resurrection day.

Her husband and her two boys; her parents; her parents-in-law; her two brothers, John B. Fast and H. A. Fast, Newton, Kansas; her three sisters, Aganetha Fast from China, Mrs. H. W. Wall, Dallas, Oregon, Marie Kay Fast, Detroit, Michigan; her sisters-in-law and brothers-in-law; her relatives and her many friends are sorrowing because of her early passing.

We would like to take this opportunity to express our deep appreciation to those who so generously donated their blood in the effort to restore health and strength to the departed one. We would likewise wish to express our sincere thanks to all our relatives and friends who, by their visits, their letters, their gifts of flowers, their songs, and other services of love, so often brought cheer and encouragement to her during her long illness. God bless you for all these thoughtful and unselfish expressions of your concern. —The Family

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, BURRTON, KAN.

"It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord and to sing praises unto thy name, O most High," Psalm 92:1. It is not only a good thing to give thanks but it is also a privilege which is taken away from some of our fellow men today.

We thank the Lord for the fine program that was rendered to us by the Pretty Prairie Christian Endeavor Society. Toward the end of the spring twelve new members were received into our church, five through baptism and seven by letter. We feel grateful unto the Lord for this addition.

Vacation Bible School was held this year again with twenty-nine pupils attending. It closed with a very well presented program given by the children on June 6. The new choruses they learned were especially inspiring.

On July 4 we had the privilege of having the Envoys Male Quartet from the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, California, in our church. This program was greatly enjoyed by our congregation. Since it was impossible for any of our young people to attend the Retreat at Camp Wood for the whole period, our pastor, Rev. J. J. Regier, took six of them to attend one afternoon and evening. We received a blessing from Rev. P. A. Penner's message. We only wish that more of our people might have been able to go for the one day.

Another great blessing to our community were the Trumpeters of the Westmont College of Los Angeles. We shall look forward to the time when we may have them again. Since the month of September has come we will again begin our weekly prayer meetings, the first meeting to be Wednesday, September 3. The Lord willing, we shall begin the first chapter of Ephesians. May the Lord richly bless these meetings, for a church without prayer cannot stand. —Ella Enns, Corr.

JOHANNESTAL CHURCH, HILLSBORO, KAN.

September 4, 1941

On the evening of August 13 we were glad to have with us the two brethren Rev. Homer Leisy and Arnold Regier. They each brought an inspiring message and told of their work. We again saw the great need of Home Mission work.

During the absence of our pastor, Rev. J. M. Regier, on August 17 and 24, Professor Wall of Tabor College and Rev. J. A. Ewert filled the pulpit. God kept His protecting hand over our delegates to the Conference and they arrived home safely. Those who attended the Conference were Rev. and Mrs. Regier and family, Mr. Albert Plenert, one of our deacons, and one of our young men who is a member of the Bethel College A Cappella Choir.

Sunday Rev. Regier gave a report of the Conference, and Mrs. Regier reported very interestingly at our monthly mission meeting. Since our last report two more of our young men have been called to camp bringing the number to four of our members in civilian service camps.

On August 31 the union meetings of this summer came to a close with a musical program rendered by the choirs of the four participating churches, the First Mennonite, on whose lawn the meetings were held, the Evangelical, Brudertal, and Johannestal.

TABOR CHURCH, NEWTON, KANSAS

August 28, 1941

The hot and dry summer days are over since a number of rains have come. There is plenty of moisture for the seed bed. Harvest yields were about average, some receiving less and others more. We owe thanks to God that we can still live in a land of freedom and be permitted to work for His kingdom. There are signs that the night will soon come.

The following events took place in our church: On May 18, the closing program of the Vacation Bible School. On May 28, the funeral of Henry Thiesen. On Memorial Day we gathered at the cemetery as is customary. Rev. Karl Friesen delivered a short sermon. On Pentecost Sunday thirteen souls were baptized and received into the church. On Pentecost Monday Rev. S. J. Goering of Bethel College preached. On June 8 the annual Sunday School picnic was held. On the evening of the same day a windstorm did considerable damage at the church and in the community. West of the church the damage was greater than east.

On June 28 Brother H. B. Schmidt was ordained as an evangelist. Rev. C. C. Wedel read the story of the eunuch of Ethiopia making fitting remarks and leading in prayer. Rev. Richert's text was Acts 8:40 in German and II Tim. 4:5 in English. Rev. Richert performed the ordination ceremony. Brother Schmidt based his remarks on Psalm 121:2,3. On July 27 Brother Schmidt served for the first time, and during the two successive Sundays when Rev. Richert had gone to the General Conference he also served. On Mother's Day we had children's consecration as customary. The Lord's Supper was observed on July 13. Dr. and Mrs. P. A. Penner visited with us one Sunday morning.

Our church has not been spared sickness. Brother G. R. Funk who was seriously ill has recovered. H. J. S. Schmidt, deacon emeritus, had a setback in July but recovered sufficiently so that he need not be bedfast. On August 2 twenty-nine neighbors and friends plowed all of the land for a brother who can do no physical labor. That is mission work. Another brother and sister must be remembered in prayer.

Best wishes with Ezekiel 16:60.

MENNONITE CHURCH, WAYLAND, IOWA

September 3, 1941

We are happy to report that fifteen new members were added to our membership role on June 29. On the following Sunday Holy Communion was observed. On July 26 and 27 the Young People's Retreat of the four Iowa General Conference churches was held in our church. The speaker was Prof. Bennie Bargen, of Bethel College. His talks were inspiring and uplifting. The sessions were well attended, although the weather was very warm. The Retreat closed by observing Holy Communion in a union service. Rev. Shook of the local Methodist Episcopal church officiated, assisted by Rev. Nunemaker, Rev. Welty, Rev. Penner, and our deacons. The wonderful message by Professor Bargen and the beautiful candlelight service will long be remembered.

On August 7 the Dorcas members and several invited guests enjoyed a nice breakfast in our park, honoring Mrs. Selma C. Sommer. A program was given and a warm fellowship was enjoyed by the fifty ladies who were present.

On August 3 Miss Marie Penner, R. N., Beatrice, Nebraska, sister of Rev. Penner, worshiped with us. She spent some time with the Penner family, visiting a brother in Berea, Ohio, and attending the Middle District and the General Conference, also visiting in New England.

On August 24 Rev. Penner preached at Taftsville, Conn., his former charge. On August 17 Rev. Willard Leichty of the Sugar Creek Mennonite Church filled our pulpit, and on August 24, Rev. Welty brought the message. We appreciate their services and friendly cooperation.

On August 10 the Wayland and Noble churches enjoyed a splendid program given by the A Cappella Choir of Bethel College. We are looking forward to September 8 when Rev. J. N. Smucker, of North Newton, Kansas, will be with us for one week of special meetings. May we all be richly blessed.

—The marriage of Elnora Regier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Regier, and Harold Schrag, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schrag, of Burrton, took place August 15, in the Burrton Mennonite Church.

We were very happy to have our pastor's brother and family, Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Regier and son Richard, of Los Angeles, California, with us on Sunday, August 31. —Ella Enns, Corr., Burrton Ch.

—The M. M. Horsch family wish to take this opportunity of expressing their thanks for the many expressions of sympathy which they received in connection with the last sickness and death of their husband and father, Rev. M. M. Horsch.

—Rev. Erland Waltner, pastor of the Second Mennonite church of Philadelphia, Pa., has accepted the call as minister to the Bethel Mennonite church at Mountain Lake, Minn. The date for the beginning of his ministry has been set tentatively at December 15 of the current year, until which date our beloved Dr. P. A. Penner has consented to serve.

—Mrs. D. H. Fast, Corr.

—Rev. Isaac Epp writes that he has changed his address from Box 116, Rosthern, Sashatchewan, Canada, to 922, Avenue D North, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada. "I will be attending the Provincial Normal School in preparation for the teaching profession. Kindly note this change and also insert it in your paper for friends and acquaintences to take notice of."

—The Lord willing, the next triennial session of the General Conference will be held at Newton, Kansas. Only two invitations had come in, the other one being from Mountain Lake, Minn. The vote which was taken by ballot was as follows: 407 for Mountain Lake, 460 for Newton, a comparatively slight difference.

—The delegates from Newton, Kansas, who were in a party with Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Entz, while enroute home from the Conference visited the Civilian Public Service Camp at Grottoes, Virginia. It was heartening to note the joy with which the boys in the camp perform their service, bearing their testimony to the traditional peace stand of the church. If everyone could have the opportunity of visiting one of these camps all doubt as to the value of such an experience on the part of the boys would disappear.

—A word of gratitude is due Miss Lenora Friesen of North Newton, Kansas, who so kindly edited The Mennonite, during the last two weeks. Miss Friesen is enrolling as a senior at Bethel College for this coming school year.

Schools are again opening their doors to receive the millions of children and young people who come to them in their quest for knowledge. The administrators and teachers of these schools are shouldering a grave responsibility in endeavoring to teach these minds which are so easily molded, but for Christian teachers this is at the same time a glorious opportunity for theirs is the privilege of directing these yielding minds in a Christian way, to serve Christ as they teach.

* * * * *

Many a young man or young woman is going away to college. Here many temptations will beset them. Many, in choosing their college, have chosen one which is not under church control, is not a Christian institution. Some of necessity had to choose such a school. As they go forth may it be our prayer and their concern that they may constantly strive to keep their testimony for Christ and their church true.

Our human nature is inclined to be affected by the atmosphere in which we live if we are not careful. Sylvester T. Ludwig, in the meditation for May 24 in "Come Ye Apart," gives the following illustration. "I remember when I was first introduced to a laboratory course in chemistry. The chemical odors in that room were terrific. But it was not long until I could work an entire afternoon in the same environment and scarcely notice the odors at all. The olfactory nerves had become accustomed to the bombardment of the chemicals and were no longer sensitive to them."

* * * * *

It takes constant vigilance on the part of the Christian not to let the earthliness of the atmosphere in which he finds himself affect the spiritual senses so that he becomes dull to the sensitiveness of the Spirit's guidance. A Christian student should ever keep sight of the eternal values as he prepares to live this life here and now, for "life is too valuable to waste, therefore, I must invest it where it will count for the most." —mb

My Impression of the Conference

The oldest delegate at the General Conference, Rev. C. H. van der Smissen, age 89, of Newton, Kansas, gives his impressions as follows:

One and perhaps the first impression was to make a comparison of this Conference with the first General Conference I attended in Wadsworth, Ohio, in 1878. Then there were only very few delegates and about as many visitors, the newly immigrated brethren from Prussia and Russia now from Kansas, who joined the Conference at the next session in Halstead, in 1881. Now there were hundreds of delegates and visitors, and among them many ladies and young people, which was different then.

Another impression was the almost exclusive use of the English language. At the Conference in Hereford (Bally), Pennsylvania, in 1899, the language was German. Some brethren from Beatrice, Nebraska, remarked that the Pennsylvanians had so many English words in their language. Old father Cornelius Penner said, "Remember that the Pennsylvanians have been in this country two hundred years. You will in two generations not be as German anymore as the Pennsylvanians are now."

One glad impression was the kindness, the brotherliness, the loving intercourse between the delegates and in the meetings. Another impression was that God gave such grace to our dear Brother C. E. Krehbiel, that he could strictly but wisely lead the meeting, even when it was difficult to do so, when very important and difficult subjects were to be considered.

Another impression was the unusually good singing of the large Eastern choir singing "The Holy City," and of the three a cappella choirs from Bethel, Bluffton, and Freeman, the solos, quartets, and the fine music, as well as the kind reception from all sides.

God surely blessed us in a special way, and we cannot be thankful enough to our dear heavenly Father.

The second oldest member of the General Conference, Rev. Allen M. Fretz, 88 years of age, of Perkasie, Pa., writes thus:

Others have written their impressions so the thought entered my mind that one who, beginning with the seventh session held at West Swamp in November of 1875, and who may have attended more General Conference sessions than anyone else attending the twenty-ninth session, may, too, participate in writing his impressions.

My impressions may be summed up in the expression: "A great Conference"—great in numbers, great in spirit, great in its work, great in its progressive movements, and, I believe, will be great in its results.

If there was one matter that impressed me more than any other, though that might be a question, it was the discussion and action on our publications, especially on this paper, The Mennonite, which is now in its fifty-sixth year. A little of this paper's history may be of interest and worthy of record, especially since the writer is the only one left who had an interest in it from its birth to its present age.

A meeting of four ministers, A. B. Shelly, N. B. Grubb, Carl van der Smissen, and A. M. Fretz, in the summer of 1885, which had been called to discuss the needs of an English church paper, concluded that it was not advisable since it would hurt our German paper, the Bundesbote. A few weeks later Brother Grubb called me to his study for the purpose of finally planning for the issuing of an English paper. It was then, between the two of us, decided to issue an initial number by October 1, and present it at our Eastern Conference which was to convene at Bowmansville, October 6.

As to the question of the name for the paper, various names were suggested but none seemed to fit. I said, "Since it is to be a church paper let us give it the name of our church—The Mennonite. This was adopted then.

Brother Grubb was to furnish the main matter for its pages, and I was to write the introductory editorial, as well as furnish the material for a mission and a Sunday School department and write notes on the monthly lessons. (I was glad to know that someone was thoughtful enough to have a bound volume containing the initial number for exhibit at the Conference.) Having decided we went to work and brought out Volume I, No. I.

In the second number, the November issue, appeared the minutes of the said Conference with the following item on our venture: "Conference recognizes the need of an English church paper through which our younger members, and our young people in general, and all such as do not read our German papers may be made acquainted with our church affairs. It, therefore, greets with pleasure the prospectus of an English paper, The Mennonite, as published and laid before the Conference by a few of our brethren. Conference undertakes the publication of this paper by electing a committee of three brethren whose duty it shall be to edit same, to have it published, etc."

The committee elected consisted of the brethren N. B. Grubb, A. B. Shelly, and A. M. Fretz. Brother Grubb was to be editor-in-chief, I was to have charge of the Young People's and the Sunday School departments, write notes on the lessons, and book reviews. This arrangement continued until 1892 when Brother A. G. Shelly's name was substituted for Brother Grubb's on the committee. In October, 1896, Brother S. M. Rosenberger's name was substituted for mine.

Various and frequent changes have been the experience of The Mennonite in its fifty-six years of existence: monthly to weekly, several changes in form and size, change from the state of singleness to one of coalescence and back again to singleness, changes in personnel of editorship, but still The Mennonite lives and is more alive today than ever, thanks to our editors and the prayers and support of its readers.

Rev. J. H. Janzen of Waterloo, Ontario, has given some very interesting impressions which he received at the General Conference in his article, " A Unique Conference Session," which appears on page 7 of this issue.

ANNOUNCEMENT

A Western District Young People's Peace Rally will be held in the Bruderthal Church, Hillsboro, Kan., on Sunday evening, September 28, at 7:30.

Speakers for the rally will be Mr. Ted Claassen, Mennonite relief worker who has recently returned from war-torn Europe, and Prof. Lester Hostetler, editor of the Bethel College Bulletin. Mr. Claassen has been so much in demand since his return that he has had to decline invitations to speak before various groups. At this meeting he will speak on his personal experiences in England and report on conditions in Europe. Professor Hostetler will speak on the topic, "Noncombatant Service and Relief."

Everyone is invited to attend this important meeting. An offering will be received for the Civilian Service Camps, Mennonite Work Camps, and the work of the Young People's Peace Committee.

LETTER FROM ARON JANTZENS

Korba, via Katghora, C. P., India
June 14, 1941

Dear Friends, Readers of The Mennonite,

During a recent trip to our most southern mission station, Basna, it was our privilege to be there on Pentecost Sunday, and to take a small part in the activities of that day. The following report will give you a glimpse of the Basna work, and what we saw that day. (We drove down to Basna in our Chevrolet car at the end of the hot season. It is a distance of 120 miles by motor.)

At eight o'clock Pentecost morning, the people were seated in the small Basna church ready for the service. There were so many who wanted to worship that morning that the church was crowded with people. The children were all assembled in a classroom of the middle school, for the little church was too small to house everyone. Because of this factor, Mrs. J. R. Duerksen has organized a junior church for the little folks, and each Sunday one hundred and twenty or more crowd into this children's service, while their parents worship in the church. These kiddies can really sing, as we discovered that Sunday. In Mrs. Duerksen's absence, due to illness, Mrs. H. E. Dester was conducting the junior church, so she asked Kathryn to help that morning. There were 125 present at the opening exercises, but those below six years of age were taken aside by an Indian worker during the story hour, so it was easier to talk. The little folks listened well to the story of Michael, the lame boy, who won others to Christ through his ingenious cards with Scripture verses on them. As they visualized the scene of Michael dealing with Yacub, the bully, perhaps their hearts were stirred with the desire to become witnesses for the Lord Jesus too.

At the church service that morning Rev. P. A. Wenger brought the message after which the pastor of the church, Rev. J. R. Duerksen, administered the rite of baptism. The candidates had all received special instruction during the preceding weeks, so they came to the service reverently and with a clear knowledge of the significance of this step. Of the eight who were baptized that morning, six came from Christian homes and two, a man and his wife, from Hindu homes. After the service as we shook hands with these two, we noted the inner joy written on their faces. They had forsaken the darkness of Hinduism for the light of the gospel, and their faces betrayed an inner peace which those who have the Lord Jesus as Saviour alone know. Could we trace the influences which led to their decision for Christ back through the years, we would see the patient labor of those not now at that station. This Raut (cowherd) bore witness to the gentle influence of those who had loaned him special Christian literature and books in days gone by, when he was but a lad. The verse: "I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase" (I Cor. 3:6), and, "And let us not be weary of well doing for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not" (Gal. 6:9), had proven themselves once again.

This was to be a busy day, so we ate a hasty breakfast and then set out in the car for Dhavakar. There were five of us, Rev. Duerksen, Rev. Wenger, Rev. John Thiessen (just back from furlough), and we. The jungle road twisted and turned through the forest. Sometimes we had to creep along, the path was so full of "chuck holes" and deep ruts in the wrong places. Rounding a curve in the road, Mr. Wenger exclaimed, "Here is the place where we met the tiger that night in the dark!" Such a desolate spot it was that we had no desire to duplicate the experience. Finally we reached our destination and found a courtyard full of people awaiting our arrival. We drove up in front of a brush-fenced yard, where stood the clean mud church. It was not a beautiful structure designed after Western style, but it looked very attractive to us with its smack of native design and construction. This is one of the oldest Christian congregations in the Basna field.

The people crowded into the little "chapel," they sitting on rugs or mats and we on chairs. However, it was soon evident that there was not sufficient room for all those who wished to attend the service and partake of the Lord's Supper, so we all filed out into the sunny courtyard. It was a warm day and the sun was high overhead. Some shade was found under a tree to one side and our chairs were placed there. The congregation sat where they could find space in the courtyard, the men in one group and the women in a separate group. Space does not permit a description of these very interesting people, attired in their "Sunday best." (The OOriya women's dress is somewhat different from the saris worn by the women in our church, and in some ways is prettier. The hairdress is different too. Among these women we saw both styles of dress. Note the picture on page 94 in Twenty-five Years with God in India for an idea of this mud church.)

If you could have seen the "pulpit" placed on a rope bed, you might have smiled. The pulpit was only a low box on which a yellow embroidered voile scarf had been spread, probably some woman's bit of finery. Over this was laid a snowy white linen

MENNONITE BIBLE MISSION

Chicago, Illinois, September 1, 1941

"Then said the Lord (unto Jonah), Thou hast had pity on the gourd, for the which thou hast not labored, neither madest it grow; which came up in a night, and perished in a night: and should not I spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than sixscore thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand; and also much cattle?"

Jonah had had enough experience with the Lord to know something of His great love, and yet his own heart did not follow God in this. He still loved material things more than human souls.

The great industrial district surrounding the Chicago stock yards and packing plants is known as the Stock Yard District. It extends from State Street to Kedzie Avenue, east and west; and from 26th Street to 55th Street, north and south. This is about four miles square. In this district are located not only the stock yards and packing plants, but also large steel mills, International Harvester Company Tractor works, and many other factories.

The people of this district number over 200,000 and come from all parts of the world. Many of them are foreign born and have come here to escape the troubles of Central Europe. One of them said some time ago: "I would never have believed that it was possible for people of different nationalities to live together in one part of a city as they do here. In Europe we were taught from childhood on to hate each other." Today they go to the same schools, work in the same factories, and in many cases go to the same church.

This district has at the present time twenty Protestant, eight Lutheran, and about thirty Catholic churches. But the sad thing is that about twenty Protestant churches have moved out or closed their doors in the last few decades, perhaps even more of which we have no record. These have had to close their doors because the Christian Church did not feel as concerned as did God over Nineveh.

Four of the Protestant churches around or in the Stock Yard District are Mennonite churches. These have come in, in some cases, after others have given up the field. All have held the field in spite of the changing population and the influx of a poorer people. For this reason they have not showed the progress toward self-support that could be expected. They have, however, not been without fruit. As the influence of this industrial community is worldwide, so is also the influence of the church. From these Mennonite churches have come men and women who today are serving as missionaries, ministers, Sunday School workers, and Christian business men and women, some in Mennonite fields and others in other churches. From these churches has also come a good amount of money for foreign missions, due partly to the fact that missionaries coming through the city usually stop and also speak in the churches. Because of the fact that we are dealing with a moving population, we come in contact with larger numbers. It is safe to say that any one of these Mennonite churches has brought the gospel message to several thousand people. The Sunday School enrollment of our mission showed one thousand names in twenty years. Many Christian people have also come here and received added inspiration for their lives. Many who are now in mission fields have at one time or another, while at school here, helped as Sunday School workers in these Mennonite churches. Quite a few of them have preached their first sermons here and have been able to begin their Christian work with the aid of the prayers and helping influence of the local workers. Many also will be among those who never had their names on church records but who will in eternity praise God for an opportunity to hear the gospel from a Mennonite minister or worker, on their death beds.

Jesus said, "For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world but that the world through Him might be saved." If there ever was a community that could lay claim to be part of this world of which Jesus speaks here I think this Stock Yard District of Chicago with its many nationalities can lay claim to it; and so we bring to these people the gospel of Jesus Christ as Saviour of the world. We need your support in every way in this matter.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By W. F. Unruh, Pastor, Mennonite Church, Pulaski, Iowa

SEPTEMBER 22—". . . And we beheld his glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth," John 1:14b.

When John, the apostle, in his old age thought back of their days together with Jesus, he remembered how they had come to realize His divinity. It was the truth and grace of Jesus which made them feel that He was of God. As in the life of Christ so also in our lives do grace and truth speak of God in us. Jesus says that the glory which He had received of the Father He gave to His disciples (John 17:22). This glory will manifest itself in grace and truth. To be truly gracious and graciously truthful is of the Spirit of God. Often when we are truthful, we are not graciously so. We speak the truth in a way which hurts. Often when we seek to be gracious it is with a tinge of untruth. "We are so pleased to have you as our guest," we say when inwardly we wish they would not have come just at this time. To be always gracious and truthful is the life of Christ taking form in us.

SEPTEMBER 23—"I came not to send peace but a sword," Matt. 10:34.

This word of Jesus is often misunderstood and misused. Jesus has sent us the peace of God. At the same time a certain kind of peace is not possible in a world such as this. Instead of peace there is persecution. Christ brings peace with God and peace with other believers, but hatred and persecution from non-believers. Our friend Bala of Janjgir, C. P., India, felt the edge of this sword of which Jesus speaks here. When he accepted Christ as his Lord and Saviour, his wife cursed him with foul curses, spat on him, and ran away from him. Whenever we suffer because we are true to Christ we feel the edge of the sword to which Jesus refers here. Have you any wounds or scars which tell that you have suffered for Christ's sake?

SEPTEMBER 24—"Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you," John 14:27a.

One of the greatest gifts of salvation is peace, peace with God and peace with the Lord Jesus Christ. In regard to our sin and guilt we have come to peace with God through Jesus Christ. Through surrender to God we have come to deliverance from conflicting loyalties. Our soul is at peace and rest because of our eternal security in Christ to Whom we cling as our Good Shepherd Who gives us eternal life and from Whose hand no one shall snatch us, if we will not of our own accord wander away from Him. We have peace from worry because we know ourselves in the hands and in the care of a loving Father. Let us ever rejoice in the peace of God which Christ gives us.

SEPTEMBER 25—"And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus," Phil. 4:7.

The peace of God is a very precious guide in life. Human conscience may be misguided and perverted and is not always a safe guide to follow. But the peace of God is a safe and reliable guide in the conduct of life. Whatever disturbs this profound rest of the soul in God should be scrupulously avoided. Whatever mars this inner repose is detrimental to spiritual life. A man who is exploring an old well lowers a candle before him, knowing that where the candle burns it is safe for him to go. If the light goes out, he knows that is is not safe to go farther. The peace of God is our test-flame. When our peace with God is given first consideration in every situation of life, it will keep our minds and thoughts true to Christ, and our life will shine forth the peace and love of God. Let the peace of God guide you in all your choices.

SEPTEMBER 26—"And the Lord said, If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed ye would say unto this sycamore tree, Be thou rooted up, and be planted in the sea; and it would obey you," Luke 17:6.

Mustard seed gives us the classic example of growth. To have faith like a mustard seed refers to a growing faith. When faith is kept growing it becomes mighty, able to do the seemingly impossible. Faith needs to be nurtured so that it will grow. Faith is that confidence and trust in Christ that whatever He says is true and can be acted upon. When a person acts on the words of Jesus as trustworthy, his faith grows. Acting every hour on the words of Jesus as reliable and trustworthy is the way to come to a mighty faith, a faith which can do the seemingly impossible. Will you this day take a word of Christ and definitely act upon it? Do so and your faith will grow.

SEPTEMBER 27—"Agree with thine adversary quickly, whiles thou art in the way with him, lest at any time the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison. Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing," Matt. 5:25-26.

The point which Jesus makes in this comparison is that it is very dangerous to postpone making wrongs right. If we know that we have a wrong to correct, the quicker we do it the easier it will be.

If we let the matter drag on we will find it increasingly difficult. Wrong has a treacherous way of entrenching itself if given time to do so. The solemn warning of Jesus here is that if we let wrong persist too long it will bring us to a condition of heart when it will become impossible to be saved. May God grant us grace to deal promptly with evil whenever it creeps into our lives, lest we should "by no means come out thence."

SEPTEMBER 28—". . . That the life of Jesus might be made manifest in our body," II Cor. 4:10b.

The indwelling Christ must be the power in our lives. We are to express the life of Christ in our bodies. This requires discipline because we are creatures of habit. In our love to Christ we have to hold ourselves consciously to doing His will in everyday life until we form habits which express the Christian way of life. When there is the desire and enthusiasm to make life count for the glory of the indwelling Christ, the disagreeable and burdensome can be faced and brought into submission to His will. Will you this day consciously do what you know the Saviour wills, and keep on doing it until it becomes a part of your life? That is the way to let "Christ be formed" in us (Gal. 4:19).

SEPTEMBER 29—"And he opened his mouth and taught them saying, Blessed are the poor in spirit for theirs is the kingdom of heaven," Matt. 5:2-3.

The Sermon on the Mount is the most profound statement of Christian living that the world possesses. It is not to be understood as a set of rules. It is rather a statement of what will happen in my life when Jesus dwells in my heart by faith and I will give Him the throne of my life. Jesus Christ is the only one Who can fulfill the Sermon on the Mount. Only He can do it through us. It cannot be lived out by sheer force of the will. When our hearts are filled with the love of Christ, we will spontaneously act in life as the Sermon on the Mount teaches. If we find ourselves not living this way of life, it is not because we do not want to act like that, but because we do not fully love Christ. We do not permit the love of Christ to express itself through us. Let God fill your heart with love to Christ and it will be natural to live this Sermon. You will find it an impossibility unless God has done a supernatural work in you.

SEPTEMBER 30—"Be ye therefore perfect even as your Father in heaven is perfect," Matt. 5:48.

These words were spoken by our Lord Jesus after He had described what our relationship to enemies must be. Jesus plainly insists that we shall love our enemies and seek their good. We all have natural affinities. Some people we like and others we do not like. We must not let such likes and dislikes rule our lives. We are to seek the good of every person, whether we like him or not, just as our perfect Father in heaven seeks the best of every person.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

September 21, 1941

OVERCOMING THE ADVERSARY

Rev. 12:7-12, 15:2-4.

Introduction

Our lesson today includes three chapters, Rev. 12 to 15:4, all of which should be read. John, the seer, pictures in our printed text the overthrow of evil in heaven. He makes extensive use of imagery and symbolic language. To understand it aright we must consider the conditions which gave rise to the book. Revelation was written when severe persecutions had been endured at the hands of the Romans and when more were expected. Dr. A. J. Robertson says, "John is picturing the titanic struggle between the kingdom of Christ and the world power of Rome. Under different forms throughout the ages this world power is repeated."

The Adversary Defeated, vss. 7-12

The usual view of the war described here is that it is a picture of what occurred when Satan was cast out of heaven before man's creation, and that it is here introduced to explain his constant enmity against Christ and His followers. The central truth to be noted is that Satan was defeated in his last great struggle to be supreme in heaven. He and his followers were driven out of heaven (vs. 8). They rebelled against God and fell from their former high state.

The forces of evil are powerfully present with us, but by the help of Christ we can overcome them. Our lesson passage fully assured the Christians of that day that the powers of the Evil One who so severely persecuted them were broken. This lesson answers the question which many people ask, "Why does not God destroy Satan, the evil-minded genius?" His hour is coming. He was allowed to take refuge on earth where so many willingly coöperate with him. Here he is working for the time being. However, his definite defeat in heaven is a guarantee of his final defeat in any contest with Christ. He is the enemy of man, the adversary of all that is good, but Christ is greater than Satan, and He is man's best friend.

John heard the great triumph song of rejoicing (vs. 10). With a "loud voice" the certainty of victory through Christ is proclaimed. He can give

A Unique Conference Session

By J. H. Janzen, Waterloo, Ontario, Canada

Such was the 29th session of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America, held at Souderton, Pa., August 17-22, 1941.

It was unique, to begin with, in that it ran on schedule, every subject being dealt with, and disposed of, in the time set for it by the program. This, to a great extent, was due to the seriousness of present conditions. We all realized that this was not the time for palaver but for action, and that we had to stand unitedly, and to act unanimously, against the evil forces which now try to tear the world to pieces.

But it must be said also that this Conference session was under the very able leadership of Brother C. E. Krehbiel, president, who knew how to keep us in hand, and to make us talk to the point and not in all possible directions away from it.

And while Brother C. E. Krehbiel, the father, led the discussions of the Conference, Rev. Olin Krehbiel, his son, presided over the deliberations of the young people's meetings. As far as I know this, too, does not happen every day. The Conference was almost a sort of father-and-son affair. We saw Rev. H. J. Dyck of Elbing, Kansas, work along with his son, Rev. Walter Dyck of Beatrice, Nebraska, in diverse Conference committees. The treasurer of the Conference, Mr. Karl Richert, could not be present, but his son, Robert, whose young face contrasted strangely with the deep basso of his voice, gave his father's report very ably and answered the questions which were asked in connection with it.

I met a certain grand old man, Unruh, who told me that he was over fifty years of age all right, which I believe since I know his son, Henry, to be a granddaddy of well over 50. Mr. Unruh's two sons, Henry and Dan, were among the delegates and officers of the Conference.

The two oldest members of the Conference, Rev. Carl van der Smissen and Rev. Allen Fretz, were present. Just in front of them, the young boys of the Boy Scout organization were working for us controlling the amplifyer. We could clearly see that young people and old people can work together harmoniously and effectively if they want to; and many an old man's heart rejoiced to see that there were young forces present to fill the positions which of necessity will soon be vacated by retiring old men. The presence of so many young people, showing such a keen interest in our Conference work, is the guaranty that the Conference will still subsist even after we are gone.

It is not my intention to encroach upon the forthcoming publication of the minutes of the Conference which will tell in detail what has been acted upon and how the diverse problems have been solved. I am primarily interested to see in what condition the Conference is to fulfill its calling. And I am greatly pleased to note that it, human as it is, still keeps in close unity with Christ on Whom it draws for guidance and power to perform the task.

We are going to have a seminary of our own. There will be teachers who, being honest scholars, will present scientific facts as they find them; and, at the same time, will not pretend to have found the origin of everything in matter alone, thus dragging their students down into the dust; but who will proclaim the living God as the eternal source of life, and Jesus Christ as the revealed higher life of God, and thus lift their students up into the clear and clean air of the spiritual.

Our Conference still moves between its poles, the super-anxious and the super-conceited. Whether these poles are just imaginary or real is still a question to me. But there are some who are afraid of each and every science as if it of necessity must be leading our youth away from God. And, if not in our midst, there are many, far too many, in this world who actually believe their minds are the measure of all things, and that those things which they cannot all needed salvation and strength to suffering saints on earth. This passage gives us much hope and assurance. Many early-day Christians suffered for their faith even unto death, not denying their Lord. His sacrificial spirit enabled them to make sacrifices. Christ's cause is assured of victory so long as His followers are willing to surrender all to Him. Satan is intensely active on earth for he knows his time is limited (vs. 12). No one, not even he, knows the day nor the hour of the final judgment. He does know that his power must come to an end (Matt. 8:29). Herein lies our unfailing hope. Wrong will not always triumph.

The Song of Moses and the Lamb, vss. 2-4

The sea of glass mingled with fire is a symbol of the purity, justice, and severity of God's judgments upon the wicked. John is thinking of the faithful victors in the Roman persecutions (vs. 2). These with "harps of God"—symbols of perfect harmony—sing the hymn of praise (vss. 3, 4). These singers are the redeemed of earth. John's picture is meant to impress on us the fact that the supreme power is on the side of those who belong to God. He will give men spiritual victory over every opposing force.

How does Christ help us to overcome?

In what form does Satan appear to people?

Why should trustful Christians feel alarmed about the present-day evidences of Satan's power and influence in the world?

comprehend simply do not exist.

But, whether real or imaginary, our Conference must move between these poles. Many are afraid that the super-conceited type will sneak into our educational institutions and spoil them; therefore some of them, not very many, would rather follow the advice of Julian, the apostate, who told the Christians of his time to be contented with their faith and to keep their ignorance. Thus Satan, disguised as an angel of light, seeks to prevent us from obeying the first command given by God, namely, to replenish the earth and subdue it, and to have dominion over it. God wants us to do this by wisdom, not by violence, and to acquire wisdom we must learn. To learn we must have schools, and we have them and are going to have more of them.

Since there is a corrupt science in existence which opposes God and life, we shall have our own schools under our own control, and entrust the education of our children and young people to men who will lead them from faith to knowledge, from believing to seeing, and open wider and wider realms of faith for them to explore, to comprehend, and to appreciate. Professors and students will be led by that Spirit who searches all things, yea, the deep things of God.

We have an English Mennonite Hymnary, and we had an opportunity at the Conference to see its advantages, when Brother L. Hostetler led in a short season of song in which samples of almost all parts of the Hymnary were tried and found to be excellent. Our Hymnary exalts God and will unify us and make us grow. We owe the editors and our Board of Publication more than just our "deepest gratitude."

* * * * *

And now something of the reverse side of the page.

We appreciate good music and good singing, but, alas, we do not appreciate all Mennonite art fully, as could be seen at the Conference.

In the room of Bluffton College were exhibited some wonderful articles of art; but very few, if any, have bought them. Most of the people probably were scared away by the seemingly high prices of the articles. Some even may have thought similar porcelain trinkets can be bought at any dime store for ten cents or less a piece; why then should these ceramics cost two dollars a piece and more? We have not yet learned to tell real articles of art from cheap trinkets.

Some of the ceramics later were taken to Philadelphia, and there non-Mennonites were willing to accept them at considerably higher prices than the artist asked for them. People are coming from all directions to feast at the table of Mennonite art, while the Mennonites themselves satisfy their nobler desires in dime stores! This is depressing, but there is still hope that not always will Mennonites scare their own artists away by their want of comprehension.

Did you not only see but study the relief, "And They Shall Beat Their Swords Into Plowshares"? This masterpiece was for sale at the price of $100.00, but its real value is far more than $1000.00. No Mennonite money was available to buy that plaque. It is not altogether impossible though, that some time some non-Mennonite C. O. will buy it as the noblest expression of his thoughts, convictions, and feelings.

The first great Mennonite artist writer, Jost van den Vondel, had to leave Mennonitism and join the Roman Catholic church because this church of dogmas appreciated his art more than the free, spiritual Mennonite church. Why must this be so? We justly rejoice in the faith of our fathers. But our heritage is not given us by God to mummify it, but to develop it unto perfection. Our fathers had their merits and their faults. Why can we not be redeemed from the vain manner of life handed down from our fathers?

* * * * *

But let us leave that sad point.

We still have grown in many respects and are glad and thankful for it. Our new German "Gesangbuch" is forthcoming, and like the Hymnary it will do much for those who will use it. It will be a missionary among us, disunited lot, and bring us closer together.

At the Conference we had an opportunity to see what missions do to heathen people, how the power of Christ redeems them from their spiritual and bodily peril. Our missions in India are prospering, but the China missions may have to be closed altogether in the near future. That seems to be discouraging. But the bright spot about it is that our missionaries have worked faithfully, and if they should have to leave the field the China church will continue independently and self-supporting. Our faithful workers have carried life into China which cannot be extinguished, and it even seems as if the Christians of the heathen nations are more united than we are. Maybe some time they will send their missionaries to us here to teach us that Truth and Love still are alive.

Home Missions are doing their bit, and, although the Conference estimates them just half as much as Foreign Missions, as was shown by the distribution of the money raised by the collection at the missionary festival, the workers are faithfully canvassing the highways and byways of our home field to gather those in who are left by the roadside, and who themselves are hiding from God behind the hedges, and to constrain them to come to the wedding feast of our great King. Thousands could be reached and brought back, and churches have sprung up where there were

CIVILIAN CAMP PICTURES AVAILABLE

Not everyone can visit one of our Civilian Public Service camps. Neither should too many go. But you can see a reel of camp pictures in your own church. These pictures, shown at the General Conference, covering a day's activity at the Colorado Springs camp, may be procured by writing for a reservation of date. Anyone owning an 8mm projector is urged to help in making these arrangements. You owe it to your church group. We need a still wider interest and sacrifice for this service of good will. This film is property of the Western District Peace Committee. There is no charge for this service. Make arrangements with Walter H. Dyck, 1408 North 9th St., Beatrice, Nebraska.

Peace Caravan

By H. Don Kirschner

(The author is a young man who is studying for the ministry. He is not a member of a historic peace church. Practically none of the members of his home church, including his parents, share his convictions. A peace-study group, composed of Mennonites and Brethren, which meets weekly in the Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska, drew this young man into its fellowship and aided him financially. Hence this report. May it be an inspiration for other Mennonites to extend a helping hand to those whose stand for peace is a lonesome one. —W)

With but a few days of the summer remaining, I find myself looking back over the various experiences of the summer and trying to evaluate our work as a Peace Caravan.

Peace Caravan? Yes, for the Student Peace Service of the American Friends' Service Committee. Each year about 150 students from universities and colleges all over the United States are chosen from volunteers who wish to give their summer doing some constructive work for peace. The volunteers chosen gather for a ten-day Institute of International Relations, which helps to prepare them further for the work that is ahead.

Communities invite Peace Caravans; sponsoring committees and other arrangements, such as housing and working quarters, and transportation, are worked out in advance. Caravaners pay all their own expenses and live on a limited budget, cooking their own meals.

A Peace Caravan for the United States usually consists of four individuals, and each unit is sent to a community to work and live for seven weeks. I happened to be one of the Caravaners chosen to work in North Jackson, Ohio, a small village near Youngstown, Ohio, a large industrial steel center.

Our Caravan consists of two girls and two fellows. We cook our meals and have our headquarters in the Parish house of the local Federated Church. Sleeping accomodations had been arranged for us at two homes in the village.

Caravaners do constructive work for the community as well as educate for peace. We met with our sponsoring committee and decided to help with the community survey which the community council had been contemplating, to help in the daily Vacation Bible School of the Federated Church, and to help with some of the camps sponsored by the church.

Outside of our time spent on community service

RETREAT ECHO MEETING

On Labor Day, the young people of the Eastern District Conference gathered at the Bowmansville Mennonite Church and held a very inspiring Retreat Echo meeting.

Mr. LeRoy Weidner, who is president of the Young People's Union of this district, had charge of the meetings. Rev. Harold Burkholder of Quakertown, Pa., who was chairman of this year's Retreat, spoke at the morning service. This was followed by a testimony meeting at which time various retreaters expressed themselves concerning our new camp and what Retreat meant to them.

A program of games and contests was held in the afternoon in charge of Miss Anna Weiss of Milford Square.

A vesper service was held at sunset at which time an illustrated talk on the Retreat theme, "The Abundant Christian Life," was given by Miss Grace Moyer of Allentown. Both of these services were truly uplifting, and everyone felt blessed of the Lord for having been present.

* * * * *

We feel that we have made many friends in our travels and work this summer. Our message of peace and good will has had a courteous and encouraging reception wherever we have been. The people want peace, but they are dubious as to how to attain it, and they are unwilling to make the sacrifices necessary for its attainment.

All four of us being religious pacifists, our message always carries or is carried by an emphasis on the nature of the message of Jesus and God's redemptive love. Our daily corporate meditations have been of great significance and much help in carrying on our work. I, for one, feel that I am on the verge of leaving an experience or episode in my life which has given me new hope and faith in the future of mankind—through the coöperation of God. Creative, constructive good will, love, reconciliation, have all taken on a new meaning and life for me this summer.

I am indeed grateful to all those organizations and individuals who made it possible for me to have this experience in creative Christian living which I never will forget.

A SEVEN-DAY CHRISTIAN

Program for October 5, 1941

Leading Topic: A Seven-Day Christian, Prov. 21:3; Hosea 6:6; Mark 12:28-34.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Me," "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling," "Jesus, I My Cross have Taken."
2. Reading of Leading Topic, and Prayer.
3. Solo: "This Is My Task."
4. Offering for Peace Work.

II. Leader's Introduction

One of the finest things about a Christian is that his life is sincere and genuine. He does not wear two faces, one for Sundays and one for week days. He is to your face what he is behind your back. His words and his deeds are motivated by a heart filled with love to God and his fellow men. You can depend on him at all times to be true-hearted, whole-hearted, sympathetic, willing to serve. He combines the Mary and Martha qualities—he loves to sit at the Master's feet, learning of Him, and he enjoys using his talents to serve Him.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Lip Service Insufficient	Matt. 7:21-23
2. An Ideal Situation	Acts 2:42-47
3. Fulfilling the Law in Love	Rom. 13:8-14
4. Live Without Blame	II Pet. 3:14
5. True Religion Described	James 1:26-27

IV. For Discussion

1. What place does Sunday hold in the life of a Christian?

2. Why do Christians take everyday living so seriously?

3. Does outward life always express inward attitude?

V. Facts for Study

The work of missionaries is helped or hindered by the life and work of the Christians at home. Somehow the world has become very small, and what Christians do at home is, in a measure at least, known the world over. Our own influence within the community where we live is determined by the vitality of our Christian life. Depth of character is formed by everyday living, and the standing of the Church is the estimate put upon the life of its members in their daily relation to their fellow men.

VI. Illustrative Material

LIVE A DAY AT A TIME

Each day is like a fresh young life,
As though it stands alone,
Its minutes as if hours to use,
Its hours as years to own.

Each is a day "The Lord hath made,"
A life that He has given,
To spend for Him in service blest,
A foretaste of His Heaven.

One day, one life, oh, who shall say
What harvest is above,
Of words you speak in tenderness,
Of deeds you do in love?

A prayer sincere, a hymn of praise,
A smile, a look, a tear;
May move a soul to seek its God,
May still an anxious fear.

Then live each little life to Him,
To Whom you now belong;
He'll make each day an anthem sweet,
Each little life a song.

HISTORY OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

The General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America has passed another milestone in its history. It met for the twenty-ninth time since its inception, from August 17-22, 1941, in Souderton, Pennsylvania. Since the setting was in a section of country which is steeped with history, early pioneer history as well as early Mennonite history, the course of one's mind naturally turned to history in a desire to know more about the various historic spots as well as about the history of the Conference as such.

As fate (?) would have it, Dr. C. Henry Smith's book, The Story of the Mennonites, had just made its appearance. (A very opportune time if the minds of others took the same turn mine did. I purchased one there, considering this book of history to be the best souvenir to take home from a conference held in such a historic setting as Pennsylvania presented.) In Chapter XIV Dr. Smith gives an account of the origin and growth of the General Conference. It is extremely interesting to note that from the very small beginning in 1860, with only two congregations from Lee County, Iowa, a minister from a near-by settlement, and two representatives from Pennsylvania, present at the first meeting, it has grown until at present it is comprised of about 180 congregations with a membership of over 36,000.

Possibly very few who are now members of the General Conference realize for what purpose the organization was effected. According to Dr. Smith, on page 676 of his book: "The General Conference originally was not a separate branch of the denomination, but was a unification movement aiming at a union of all Mennonites in America."

The resolutions which were drawn up by the first General Conference assembly are as follows (pages 680, 681):

1. That all branches of the Mennonite denomination in North America regardless of minor differences, should extend to each other the hand of fellowship.

2. That fraternal relations shall be severed only when a person or church abandons the fundamental doctrines of the denomination; namely, those concerning baptism, the oath, etc., as indeed all the principles of the faith which we with Menno base solely upon the gospel as received from Jesus Christ and His apostles.

3. That no brother shall be found guilty of heresy unless his error can be established on unequivocal Scriptural evidence.

4. That the General Conference shall consider no excommunication as Scripturally valid unless a real transgression or neglect conflicting with the demands of Scripture exists.

5. That every church or district shall be entitled to continue without molestation or hindrance and amenable only to their own conscience any rules or regulations they may have adopted for their own government; provided they do not conflict with the tenets of our general confession.

6. That if a member of a church, because of existing customs or ordinances in his church, shall desire to sever his connection and unite with some other church of the General Conference such action shall not be interfered with.

(Note the change of emphasis by comparing these resolutions with the ones adopted at the 1941 session. These will be printed in the near future.)

It is also of great significance that even at this early stage, two of the subjects discussed being deemed of vital importance to the church and Conference, were "the establishing of a publishing house and an institution for theological training." Both of these phases, publication and education, still are two of the major activities carried on by the General Conference. These, of course, have been supplemented by others, namely, Foreign and Home Missions, Relief, and Peace work.

One of these, Home Mission work, was begun by act of the second Conference in 1861 in session at Wadsworth, Ohio. After this second session the Conference was really a fact and, by the grace of God, has continued a marvelous fact, enjoying the favor and the blessing of God in its eighty years of existence.

There are many interesting observations and a large store of valuable material in Dr. C. Henry Smith's book, The Story of the Mennonites, not only about the Mennonites of the General Conference but about all of the other branches as well, that it deserves wide circulation and should be found in every Mennonite home. This book of 824 pages can be ordered from the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana, for the price of $2.50, postpaid.

none before, and where there was no hope of building any at all.

Much could be said about the efforts of the Conference and its officers and employees, the Publication, Emergency Relief, Substitute Service, and many other undertakings, but my article is too long already and I shall close. I have enlarged on those things which have impressed themselves upon me so strongly that they come to my mind daily without consulting my notes taken at the session.

Forgive me for being critical regarding our want of comprehension of art. I mean what I have said.

And remember that I too am trying to bring those from the roadside and from the hedges into the house of our King by my "Letters to Our People." I am in the hole for about $60.00. Would you not do a little to help me out of it?

MIDDLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The fifty-third session of the Middle District Conference met at the Ebenezer Mennonite Church, near Bluffton, Ohio, August 12-14. Leaders of the Conference included, Dr. C. E. Krehbiel, president of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America; the Rev. P. P. Wedel chairman of the Foreign Mission Board; Dr. P. A. Penner, returned missionary from India; the Rev. R. L. Hartzler, director of the Civilian Service Camp at Bluffton, Indiana; and the Rev. J. M. Regier, chairman of the Home Mission Board.

The Rev. Erwin Albrecht, pastor of the Mennonite Mission in Chicago, had charge of the worship services. A fine devotional spirit prevailed throughout the Conference because of these periods of meditation and prayer.

The Wednesday evening program was given by the Women's Missionary Societies with Mrs. N. N. Soldner presiding. Devotionals were given by Mrs. A. C. Schultz. Two missionary addresses were presented by Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker and Mrs. P. A. Penner. The Berne Ladies Choir and a Combined Ladies Choir from Bluffton and Pandora sang several numbers of music.

The young people had charge of the Thursday evening program which proved to be one of the high points of the Conference. The closing consecration service with lighted candles, symbolized the whole purpose of the Conference in a very beautiful manner. Christians are the "light of the world" only as they secure their understanding from Christ. In this dark era we are to let our lights shine.

All sessions of the Conference were well attended. Dinners were served in the basement of the church by the ladies of the Ebenezer Church. The church also provided over-night lodging for the delegates. A resolution of appreciation for this generous hospitality was passed at the Conference.

The delegates manifested their approval of the Peace Program of the Mennonite Central Committee. The work of the Civilian Public Service camps was described by the Rev. Hartzler and several of the young men from the Bluffton camp. This effort toward peace in a time of war received hearty approval, and ways and means of supporting these camps were discussed.

It was suggested by the Educational Committee that the Conference take a more active part in the program of the young people's "Retreats." A resolution was passed that one member of the Educatianal Committee act on the Young People's Committee in arranging the program for these retreats.

Rev. William Penner, of Wayland, Iowa, was elected president; Rev. A. C. Schultz, pastor of the Ebenezer Church and professor at Bluffton College, was chosen as vice president; Rev. G. T. Soldner, of Bluffton, Ohio, was re-elected secretary. Other officers include: Rev. Forrest Musser to the Educational Committee; N. N. Soldner and A. S. Hilty, trustees; Rev. C. H. Suckau and D. W. Bixler, Home Missions Committee; Dr. C. Henry Smith, Rev. E. F. Mullet, and Wilmer S. Shelly, Peace Committee; E. W. Baumgartner, Board of Trustees for Bluffton College; Edison Sprunger, Program Committee; Marguerite Sprunger, Young People's Field Secretary.

cloth supplied by the missionary. A native plate with unleavened Indian bread, and a tumbler of brass filled with indigenous "wine" made from the juice or roselle and raisins graced the Lord's Table. Some might have said, "How primitive!" but to us, the very simplicity of it all made the Communion service more vital and real.

The service opened with the singing of a hymn. We noticed as the service progressed that sometimes the OOriya language was used, and at other times, the Hindu. Both languages are current there in that area. In the atmosphere of such a meeting worship took on a new significance for us who are yet so new in the land. We thrilled to the music of the OOriya tongue, as the evangelist "palak" read the Scripture lesson for the morning. It was a joy indeed to find enough similarity in the two languages to be able to follow the reading from our Hindi testaments. (With the language barrier greatly reduced after these two and one-half years out here, it is a keen pleasure for us to visit our different stations and see how the Lord is working in the hearts of men.)

The singing of the beautiful Indian hymns brought an indescribable glow to our hearts, and somehow it did not seem strange to be lifting our voices in praise with our Indian brothers and sisters in that holy hour. One had such an "at home" feeling, a sense of a oneness about it all. Our long years spent in preparation for the mission field had but one purpose, that we might know our Lord better, and "make Him known." Now we were entering into the labors of our fellow workers, and the experience was bracing, for in the next few months we shall be cut off from the outside world by "the rains," which swell the rivers and streams and make escape from Korba almost impossible.

A brief, simple message was delivered by Rev. Thiessen on the meaning of the Lord's Supper, after which the elements were distributed by Rev. Duerksen and the local palak. As these two moved quietly among the people, passages describing our Lord's passion were read in OOriya by the deacon of the congregation. There were no glass or metal communion cups, the wine was simply poured into the upturned palm and drunk. The Lord's hallowed presence was felt as we partook of the bread and wine and meditated upon the great sacrifice of our Lord upon the cross for our sins. The service came to an end as we rose to receive the benediction. Smiles which spoke volumes greeted us as we set out in the car once more bound for the mission station. After a brief rest we were to start out again in another direction to administer baptism to nine candidates, and Communion to a group of believers.

Time does not permit a description of this latter trip, since the mail must go now if it is to catch the mail boat this month. We trust that through reading this brief letter you will have a clearer picture of the work in the Basna area and will undertake the burden of prayer more earnestly for our copartners who labor in this field. Already this year there have been one hundred and one baptisms in that area, so you can appreciate the great responsibility which rests on the missionaries who work there.

Thanking those of you who have sent us personal letters, gifts, and greetings in the past months; and committing you to the Lord, we are,

Yours that Christ may be known,

Kathryn & Aron E. Jantzen

MARRIED

Wilma Elaine Krebill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Krebill of Donnellson, Iowa, to W. Ernest Bryant of Des Moines, Iowa, in the Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa, August 31, 1941. Their address is 2819 East 14th Street, Des Moines, Iowa.

—Rev. Phil. A. Wedel, Aberdeen, Idaho, writes: "We are glad to be back home again after such a long trip. May the Lord bless graciously all the efforts of the last Conference. May He bring peace into the world. It was my privilege to see the important places in Chicago, Niagara Falls, New York, Philadelphia, and also Washington, D. C. It certainly is a great blessing that no accident occurred to any of our constituency who traveled these thousands of miles to and from the Conference. May the Lord be prasied."

—In connection with the above we might say that we are grateful that no serious accident happened, since several of the delegates to the Conference and visitors had minor accidents. Rev. J. H. Langenwalter and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Ed. Langenwalter, had an accident in Peoria, Ill. They could continue their journey homeward without much delay, however. Rev. H. T. Unruh and family, on their way from Pennsylvania to Kansas where their daughter, Mildred, attends Bethel College, had an accident which delayed them for three days. Fortunately, however, no one was seriously injured. Rev. J. R. Barkman from Meno, Oklahoma, had an accident in Chicago on the way to the Conference. The Bethel College A Cappella Choir had the misfortune that the bus in which they were traveling upset while they were on their way to St. Louis, Missouri. No one was seriously injured. We can see the protecting hand of our Lord in all these cases as well as over the many who met with no mishap whatever, for which we are grateful.

—The Bethel Deaconess Hospital and Home for the Aged observed its annual gift day, Thursday, September 4. Rev. John F. Schmidt, pastor of the First Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas, was the speaker at the afternoon program. A band concert was given by the Newton City Band at the evening's program.

—A very interesting and stimulating paper called Pike View Peace News made its first appearance under date of September 6. It is the publication put out by the boys at the Civilian Public Service Camp at Colorado Springs, Colo. Among various reports of camp activities, a camp directory, tabulated distribution by denominations and by education, etc., it contains a forum on "What do you consider to be the greatest challenge to a person in a C. O. camp?" The testimonies of these boys certainly should encourage all members of the historic peace churches, the parents of the boys, and especially those who have so ardently worked to make these camps a reality.

—Would you like to get the Pike View Peace News regularly? "We would like to make our paper available to as many people as possible. To cover the cost of printing and mailing we are charging a subscription rate of 50 cents per year for 26 issues. If you would like to show your interest in our camp and give us the privilege of serving you, send your name and address and 50 cents to Arlo Sonnenberg, Box 1576, Colorado Springs, Colo." Other camps publish camp papers too. Show your interest by subscribing.

—Rev. G. A. Linscheid, of Newton, Kansas, while leading the Bible Study Hour at the First Mennonite Church Thursday evening, Sept. 11, became ill and was taken to the Bethel Hospital. He was threatened with a stroke. Reports are that he is improving. May the Lord grant him complete and quick recovery.

—Rev. J. B. Epp wishes to inform the readers that he has moved and that his new address is 415 East Sixth Street, Newton, Kansas.

V—VICTORY

Wherever we turn we see the letter "V"—symbol of victory. Stores arrange their window displays in a V-shape to draw the attention of their customers as well as to show their patriotism; here and there a billboard stares at the passer-by with a huge "V" painted on its face; trucks and vans move along the highways turning the thoughts of other travelers to victory by the enormous "V's" on the back or sides; magazines come to our mailboxes with "V's" worked into the design of the cover page. In short, the shout of the world is for victory.

The Christian is interested in victory too, nay rather, he is rejoicing in his victory. He can exclaim with the apostles: "Thanks be to God which giveth us the Victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (I Cor. 15:57); "In all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us" (Rom. 8:38); "For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this is the Victory that overcometh the world, even our faith" (I John 5:4).

Permit us reprint the following quotation which naturally comes to mind when speaking of victory.

"VICTORY"

When you are forgotten or neglected or purposely set at naught and you smile inwardly, glorying in the insult or the oversight—THAT IS VICTORY.

When your good is evil spoken of, when your wishes are crossed, your tastes offended, your advice disregarded, your opinions ridiculed, and you take it all in patient, loving silence—THAT IS VICTORY.

When you are content with any food, any raiment, any climate, any society, any solitude, any interruption—THAT IS VICTORY.

When you can bear any discord, any annoyance, any irregularity, any unpunctuality (of which you are not the cause)—THAT IS VICTORY.

When you can stand face to face with folly, extravagance, spiritual insensibility, contradiction of sinners, persecution, and endure it all as Jesus endured it—THAT IS VICTORY.

When you never care to refer to yourself in conversation nor to record your good works nor to seek after commendation, when you can truly "love to be unknown"—THAT IS VICTORY.

HIS TENDER HANDS

By Winnie Lynch Rockett

His tender hands have fashioned tiny things:
The wee blue petals of forget-me-nots;
A drop of mist; an insect's tissue wings;
A poppy seed; a caterpillar's spots;
The sensitive antennae of a bee;
Each amber globule of the desert sands . . .
Then shall I fear, when He has said to me,
"Thy days, my little one, are in my hands"?

The Church College Speaks

I am the Church college.

I am the oldest institution of higher learning in America. Before there had been state universities or other institutions of college rank, I had been founded. For three hundred years I have served my country well. Three centuries of achievement vindicate my right to be.

I stand for life's highest ideals. I search for truth, believing God's universe is fire-proof, and that I may light the torch of Truth anywhere. I lay emphasis upon genuine scholarship. My graduates are among the nation's greatest men and women of vision and spiritual power.

I train for service. Through me, culture dominates the work of the world. I give leadership to the nation. From me have come presidents, governors, legislators, judges, educators, editors, in greater proportion than from any other source. Upon me the Church depends for its preachers, its teachers, its missionaries—all of its leaders. Without me the work of the Church could not go on.

I deserve your support. I receive from each student less than half the cost of what I give. From me the poor are not turned away. I cannot continue the splendid record of the past unless I have help.

I am the Church college. I need your prayers and your gifts.

A Lesson From a Russian Thistle

I John 3:2

*by Amanda Friesen

One morning as I cautiously made my way to the living-room window with the aid of my crutches, I felt impelled to gaze for a long time into the outdoor world.

During the night frost had painted an otherwise bare and ugly yard into a scene of beauty. "Truly this is fairyland!" I gasped.

My attention was then drawn to a lone Russian thistle. Each branch was frost covered. Every thorn sparkled with millions of tiny diamonds.

Despised, ugly thistle, when you were rolling about in the dust you did not dream that some day you would be the dazzling shining object that you are this morning. Thus my thoughts ran. Then as I glanced at my body, twisted, bent, not beautiful, I looked up to God in glad exultation because some day He shall change our vile bodies like unto His glorious body.

PRELUDE TO BEAUTY

Fairyland!
And you once an ugly thistle
Are bedecked,
Each thorn, frost covered, white,
As golden sunbeams kiss you.
Yesterday
You heard shrill cold winds whistle,
You recall
Resentment at your plight
You did not guess Winter's breath
Was fairy's wand to transform you.

Romans 8:28.

ART OF SELF-DEFENSE

'Do you think it would be wrong for me to learn the noble art of self-defense?" a religiously inclined young man inquired of his pastor.

"Certainly not," answered the minister, "I learned it in youth myself, and I have found it of great value during my life."

"Indeed, sir! did you learn the old English system, or Sullivan's system?"

"Neither. I learned Solomon's system."

"Solomon's system?"

"Yes, you will find it laid down in the first verse of the fifteenth chapter of Proverbs. 'A soft answer turneth away wrath." It is the best system of self-defense of which I know."

My Impression of the Conference

Rev. A. W. Friesen, pastor of the Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska, writes:

The first General Conference that I was privileged to attend was at Perkasie, Pa., in 1920. Since that time I have not missed any. At that time it was quite a thrill to go on such a long journey, especially with the thought of seeing Washington, D. C., also. In these 21 years the Conference has met at various places.

Every time we come home from the Conference we give a report of the happenings. I believe it is the duty of every minister or delegate of the church to do so. Too many of our church members are not familiar with the work of our Conference, and valuable energy and gifts are spent in other fields which really should be spent in our own field.

One thing that impressed me again at this Conference was the fine co-operation between the churches, especially those in Canada toward us here in the United States. Yes, we appreciated the hospitality of the Eastern Conference. One of their members made this expression to me personally, "The West is the most forsaken place on earth," too bad that "the best people have to live there."

Did You Know That

1. The Oklahoma Bible Academy enrolled fifty per cent more students on September 8 than last year on the same date?

2. The Board paid off one-fourth of the indebtedness of the school during the same week, leaving only $1900 of indebtedness against O. B. A.?

3. The Board passed a resolution to drill a new well and install a water system in the buildings?

4. Rev. Kuhlman who was the head of a Bible school in China for three years has been added to the teaching staff and will be assistant Bible teacher?

5. Many of our young people are in Bible schools on the West Coast or in the East that should be in our Bible schools?

6. By God's grace O. B. A. shall go forward to give many an opportunity to get their Bible training in our own school.

7. This is your opportunity to make the Oklahoma Bible Academy the Bible school of the Middle West by earnest prayer and support. Will you come to our assistance today?

GOD'S LOVE

By J. F. Sawatzky, Pastor, First Mennonite Church, Madrid, Nebraska

"For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life," John 3:16.

Love is not easily defined because it is the very essence of God. "God is love." The only source of love is in God. God has laid within the soul of man the power to love. True love and God cannot be separated. Pagans may love, but even with them it is the virtue God, whom they do not even know, gave them. As God is the source of all life, so He also is the source of all love.

The most adequate definition of love we have in the Bible is found in I Cor. 13. Paul, so to say, magnifies love and breaks it up into its elements and qualities. As a ray of light passing through a prism breaks up and shows all the basic colors, the colors of the rainbow, so love is seen through Paul's inspired intellect in its elements and qualities. It is compared with eloquence, the gift of speech; with prophecy, mystery, knowledge; with faith that can move mountains; with sacrifice which is as nothing without love; with giving to the poor and letting our bodies be burned.

Its elements are long-suffering, kindness, humility, meekness, unselfishness, etc. Its qualities are faith, hope, endurance, etc. Love is without end, it endureth forever.

Our aim at this time, however, is not to define love but rather to look at God's love. "For God so loved" our text begins. Are we always in harmony with this declaration? Do we see everything about us in the light of God's love?

We have been passing through hard times. Some years ago it became a real problem for the average man to make ends meet. The older ones who were well established could barely hold on to their material goods. The young beginners had no opportunity to advance in material things. Such was the case in Saskatchewan, Canada, in 1938, and we found the same condition prevailing in the United States.

Is that the expression of God's love toward us? Let us remember that He holds our destinies in His hand. He therefore has to do something to remind us of His love. We turn our hearts so much to material things when all goes well that God has to stop us to make us realize our dependence. Our love has centered more upon the present world than on our Heavenly Father. He herewith endeavors to again turn us away from things that perish and toward things that will endure. God wishes to reinstate the relationship between man and God which existed before sin came into this world.

We could continue thinking along these lines and show that God in His infinite love enters into all of the world's problems, yes, even into the gigantic strife in which the nations of the world are entangled. This war with its effect upon our own people, the Mennonites, may yet have the effect of thoroughly convincing many a young man of the guilt of war and make him see the great value of nonresistance.

Turning again to our text we read, "God so loved." Words fail us to express the magnitude of His love. Whom did He love? "The world." He loved those people who had disobeyed Him and followed Satan, men who had sinned. He so loved Israel, His chosen people, who had through the centuries disobeyed Him and worshiped idols. He so loved the heathen who had other gods they worshiped and who lived immoral and shameful lives. He so loved mankind who bore the curse of sin and who were going the path that leads to destruction.

He so loved the world that He sacrificed His only begotten Son, the only one He had, the best He had. God's Son is worth more than all creation. He was with God in the beginning. He was from everlasting. He is one of the Triune Godhead. He is God Himself.

God gave His Son, His only Son. Can we fathom such a depth of love? Once only did God and man flow together to bring forth the God-man. Jesus of Nazareth was this man. Christ who dwelt within Jesus was God. God gave His only begotten Son as a sacrifice for the world, the sins of the world. He gave Him as a ransom. This ransom is sufficient to pay for all the sins of the world, my sins and your sins included. We will not perish because of our sins. They are settled for. The world's accounts against God have been balanced.

"God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him." Does that exclude anyone? No, it includes all. Whosoever includes you and me. There is no human being born who does not come into the category of whosoever. The vilest of sinners is meant, the profanest in speech is included, the immoral one has a share in this number. Whosoever means me, it means you. Let us put our names in place of the word whosoever and read the verse. God so loved Jonas that He gave His only begotten Son, that if Jonas believeth in Him Jonas should not perish but have everlasting life.

What is the condition? Whosoever believeth in Him. Believing is the condition, believing in the only begotten Son, believing in His deity. This is

A REQUEST

Invitations are beginning to come in to Missionary P. A. Penner for his services here and there. Since he has to consult with the Board about them, it is best to send such invitations to the secretary of the Board, so that it can make a program that will cause as little travel and expense as possible.

WITNESSING

In a village only six miles away from us live two Christian families. With the exception of one daughter-in-law, they are all illiterate. Always the Christians in the various villages are urged to have evening worship together. Generally one of the men takes charge. But here there is no man who can read God's Word. There is, as I said, no one but this young daughter-in-law. Women do not ordinarily take the lead in such things, but here in this village, not only does the Christian group gather in the courtyard for the evening prayers, but non-Christians of various castes come and sit at the edge of the courtyard in the evenings and listen to the songs, the Bible stories, and the prayers as this young woman leads.

Said the village owner to the evangelist who was there on a visit, "This is a miracle. Our women don't open their mouths about such things. Surely it is the wisdom and the courage that your God gives that makes it possible for this woman to do what she does." They took knowledge of her that she had been with Jesus.

FROM ONE HOME TO THE OTHER

(Sixth Continuation)

Today is our last full day on board ship. Tomorrow noon we are to arrive in Bombay. That will mean that we have been on this ship forty-five days. Never before have we been on a ship so long a time. When we went to India the first time, in 1921, we were on the ship thirty-two days. But times are abnormal, and one can be glad indeed to be able to cover this long distance in such a short time, and up to the present, thank God, in good safety. I shall keep this letter until we are actually off the ship in Bombay, and then add a note yet.

Today, May 4, is a very important day for our family. It is our twentieth wedding anniversary. If we would have no other way to make joy and to celebrate than many of our ship's company, then the whole family would get drunk today. It is most pathetic and painful to see what so many people call a "good time." The Apostle Paul speaks of total depravity, but all too many human beings find more and more new ways to show their depravity of heart and mind. But on board ship each family can have its own cabin. Our family gathered in our cabin, and we had our regular family devotions. Then we talked about how our wedding verse, Ps. 37:5, has in truth been demonstrated to us so very many times these twenty years. Then we enumerated the high points of each of the twenty years. Among the highlights are that our Heavenly Father has guided us in joyful service in helping Him in His Kingdom. Another highlight is that He has entrusted us with four children, three of whom are consciously in fellowship with our Lord and Savior. The baby is still too young to be consciously aware of this. When we look back, these twenty years have passed by all too rapidly; and we find that we are not just absolutely young anymore. However, by the grace of God, we can be useful to others for a good many years.

A few days ago we left the beautiful island of Ceylon. This island's fame has been sung in the Christian churches for decades, and also in Indian non-Christian lore. In the Christian Church we sing Ceylon's fame in the song, "From Greenland's Icy Mountain." In Indian lore Ceylon is remembered in connection with the story of Ram Chandra, one of India's famous divine incarnations. Ram and his wife, Sita, were in one of the forests of India. One day Ram and his brother went out hunting, and while they were away from the camp, Ravan, a very evil god, came and stole Sita and carried her off to Ceylon. Then the monkey god, Hanuman, came and helped Ram fight against Ravan. The big thing that Hanuman, the monkey god, did was to build a bridge between the mainland of India, and the island Ceylon. A bridge was very necessary for Ram and his friends and Hanuman and his monkey soldiers to cross on to Ceylon. Boys and girls may look at their geography to see about how far Ceylon is separated from the mainland of India. India has many stories of this kind. Let us remember, they are only stories even though many people in India think these stories divine.

When our ship entered the harbor of Ceylon we could not dock at a pier because the harbor seemed too crowded. So all the freight was brought in flat boats to the ship. The way those huge flat things surrounded the ship by the dozens, it looked as though

By Joanna S. Andres, Newton, Kansas

(There shall be only one message for this week, with the editor's permission, and only one each time your Mennonite reaches you during the next few weeks.)

"When I saw him, I fell down at his feet as one dead," Rev. 1:17.

When the Almighty touches human life with His glory, that life falls tremblingly into the dust.

The three years of intimate fellowship with the Christ must have remained a vivid reality to the disciple John now grown aged and held in bondage on the Isle of Patmos. Though he remained in close heart-bond with his Lord throughout the years, he must often have relived in thought the time when Christ had dwelt in their midst and he had seen and touched Him, yes, even leaned upon His bosom.

We wonder whether John had been present at Bethany beyond the Jordan when "on the morrow" Jesus had come and John the Baptist had pointed Him out as the Lamb of God. Was this the first time John had seen his Lord? It may very well have been. We know for certain that when the time "again on the morrow came" (John 1:35), and the scene of the previous day repeated itself, that John looked upon Jesus and followed Him.

With one exception, there was no time that we know of during the years of discipleship that John or anyone else could not look upon the face of Christ.

This was our gift from heaven! The Son of God became the Son of Man in a brief period of time that stands out as both the brightest and the darkest in the earth's passing ages. He emptied Himself for our sake that we might look upon Him and love Him forever. We were allowed to walk by His side, to touch His garments, to take His hand, to look into His face, to feel the heart of compassion and love that with magnetic power draws men to cling to Him.

Only on the Mount of Transfiguration, when God for a moment reclothed His Son in glory, do we find the three disciples of whom John was one, falling down before their Lord in trembling fear. There had to be a touch and a "be not afraid" from the lips of the One they knew, to lift them from the dust for an onward walk with Him.

Did John remember this experience when again, after many years of faithful toil, he was permitted to look upon his glorified Lord from his exile on Patmos? We wonder. He says of himself: "When I saw him, I fell at his feet as one dead" (Rev. 1:17). Man in his earthly tabernacle, though he be one born of the Spirit, cannot bear to see the Glorified. There is still the curtain of human limitation, woven by the hand of God, drawn to hide the light of heaven. It is only when divine mercy has stooped to earth, has touched, has spoken, has permitted as a gift the view into glory, that any human eye has been able to look into the same.

So upon John, trembling in the dust of Patmos, comes the touch of the right hand of his Redeemer (Rev. 1:17). This hand he knew, scarred by the nails of Golgotha. He knew the voice of his Lord when it spoke to him: "Fear not." The Glorified One upon whom John could not look had stooped to lift him from the dust, to grant him grace to see the heavens opened. With the touch of the hand that he knew upon him John could bear to see the Lowly One of Galilee, the Crucified of Olivet, as the King of kings and Lord of lords. The curtain had parted. The stage was set. The scenes changed rapidly in the dramatic march of the conquering Christ.

When I read the Easter story and come to the lines: "Behold Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and took hold of his feet and worshipped him" (Matt. 28:9), I feel that I cannot read beyond this. There I must stop. I must go down into the dust before the Risen One. This is my place. Here I must stay. I must kneel before Him. Humbly I must worship Him. My Redeemer!

There is a power in the glory of the Mighty One before which we weak and sinful creatures cannot stand. We find the shepherds "sore afraid" when the light from heaven shines round about them, and Saul of Tarsus falls into the Damascus road at the feet of Him he persecuted, blinded by the light, struck by the power. "Woe is me, for I am undone," cried Isaiah when he saw the Lord "sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up." Yes, even John, the beloved of Christ, falls before Him as one dead.

It is not for us to look beyond the veil except where we may follow the eyes of the few for whom it was lifted. But the Lord of Heaven has descended to us. He is both at the side of the Father, high and lifted up, and He is in touching nearness of our life with His right hand upon us. Yea, He dwells among us, in us, and we may behold His glory, "glory as of the only begotten from the Father, full of grace and truth" (John 1:14).

Blessed is the heart whose eyes are opened to behold the Glorious One. At that moment it will fall before His feet in death and shall be lifted up in newness of life to find that it must remain forever at the feet of Jesus.

What soul can hold the fulness of His being? Still there is more to follow. "Now we see in a mirror, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know fully even as also I was fully known" (I Cor. 13:12). What a day that will be when we shall be loosed from earth's house of clay to enter into the fulness of Christ.

"Eye hath not seen,
Ear hath not heard,
Neither hath entered into the heart of man
The things which God hath prepared
For them that love Him."

Until that day, let us stay in the dust at His feet.

THE FULFILLMENT OF HISTORY: THE NEW JERUSALEM

Topic: The Glorious Consecration
Rev. 21:1-7, 10-12, 22-24. Read Rev. 21, 22

Introduction

In our last two lessons taken from Revelation, glimpses of the glory world have been given us. The glorious visions of the redeemed, enjoying the bliss of heaven before the throne of God and of the Lamb, greatly encouraged the suffering saints when martyrdom threatened them. In our lesson for today, John describes the most exalted and beatific vision which God permitted him to see. The prospect of heaven awaiting the faithful and true still makes a strong appeal to those who believe in a future life. God's Word teaches the certainty of an eternal reward.

A New Heaven and a New Earth, vss. 1-7

We look forward to the final and eternal state of things. John sees that which lies beyond this earthly life. The last judgment is past. The earth has been transformed and evil no longer has any place on it. Everything connected with our heavenly abode is new and different from our abode on earth. The sea, a type of constant unrest, with its separations and tragedies will be no more. All will be peaceful and quiet.

"The holy city, new Jerusalem" of which the old Jerusalem was a type, is of heavenly origin, "coming down from God, out of heaven" (vs. 2). Our future life is in intimate fellowship with God (vs. 3). He will dwell with His own who will be His people, devoted to Him and blessed by Him. There will be no more grief, disappointment, or sorrow (vs. 4). God will remove all causes that produce tears. Our glorified bodies will not be subject to pain nor to death. Never ending joy will be the eternal reward of the redeemed. God Himself is authority for these promises. Christ Himself spoke frequently of the future life and its blessings. God is eternal and His promises will be fulfilled. He gives His blessings freely (vs. 6), complete spiritual satisfaction to the spiritual thirsty. This promise of eternal life is for those who overcome the world, the flesh, and the devil. These "shall inherit all things" and shall be God's children.

The Holy Jerusalem, vss. 10-12, 22-24

John, in the spirit, sees the holy Jerusalem with God Himself as her glory dwelling in the midst of her. The figurative language used, the great wall, sets forth the security and safety of those dwelling in the holy city, as does also the exclusion of the ungodly. The twelve gates are additional emblems of perfect safety. Only God's elect, the spiritual Israel, shall enter the heavenly city. There is no temple there. None is needed, for the whole city is a sanctuary. God Himself will be present. He and the Lamb are the temple of the city (vs. 22). The problem of illumination is wonderfully solved for the city. It will need neither sun nor moon nor any artificial light, for the Lamb is the light of it (vs. 23). Jesus is the light of the world, the light which lightens up the darkness in people's hearts. The redeemed from every "kindred and nation and tribe and tongue" shall dwell in this city. Kings shall bring their glory and honor into it. The gates will be open at all times (vs. 25).

Everlasting bliss in the heavenly city is a sufficient reward for all suffering which we may endure for Christ's sake on earth. Heaven with all its glories is a fitting eternal abode for those who have the heavenly spirit and life.

GOD OUR HEAVENLY FATHER

Gen. 1:26-28, Matt. 6:24-33
Topic: Loving and Honoring Our Heavenly Father

Introduction

The aim of the series of studies during the fourth quarter is "To familiarize the pupil with the great Christian teachings with a view to building up Christian faith and life." There is great need for such study today. These teachings are all-important.

Many people are quite content to live in a haze concerning their conceptions of God and religion. Other knowledge, considered so essential, cannot compare in importance with correct views concerning God, the Holy Spirit, man, sin, salvation, and the hereafter. The doctrine of God logically comes first in Christian teachings. The Bible gives us an exalted conception of Him. He is righteous in all His dealings with men.

God, the Creator of Man, Gen. 1:26-28

In God's creative acts and process, man was the last and highest of created beings. "Let us make man" (vs. 26) is full of meaning. In it we have the plurality of Persons of the Godhead suggested. Man was created in the image and likeness of the Godhead —of God. This refers to the intellectual, moral, and spiritual likeness, rather than to the physical. Man was created a true personality with distinctive powers to weigh motives, make decisions and definite choices, build an ethical Christian character, love God and be godlike. These powers separate man, as by a great gulf, from all other forms of life. God appointed man to have dominion over every created thing on earth. Man is allied by his bodily origin to the "dust of the ground" (Gen. 2:7), but by his spiritual origin he is allied to God. The divine origin of marriage is seen in that He created male and female. The history of the human race began with God's blessing (vs. 28) and has so continued. God created the earth, but man is to subdue it, occupy and use it.

God, the Provider, Matt. 6:24-33

The word "serve" in the Greek means to serve as a slave who is the property of his master. The word "master" (vs. 24) means "lord." Jesus is saying that no one can have two absolute lords, sovereigns to whom his will is surrendered. We cannot be surrendered to the world and to God at the same time. God did not create all creatures and then cease to care for them. Our lesson tells how He provides for man, for the fowls of the air, and clothes the lilies of the field. Jesus tells us not to be overly anxious (R. V.) about the material needs for our lives (vs. 25). God provides for the lesser of His creation (vss. 26,28), then surely He will provide for man who is infinitely higher in God's estimation. God considers the life and the body in which it dwells as more important than food and raiment. Jesus speaks of God as "your heavenly Father" repeatedly. He makes all needful provision. We are His in a special sense and have a right to trust Him for our daily needs, but only after we have done our best.

Loving and Honoring God, vss. 31-33

God loves and provides for us. A responsive love on our part is due Him. The chief thought of the "Gentiles," those who do not know God, is about earthly things, but that of the Christian should be about his spiritual welfare (vs. 33). God has definitely promised to supply all our needs when we have met His conditions. We should honor Him by a submission of our hearts and wills to Him.

Why do many find it difficult to believe the promise in verse 33?

What is involved in loving God with all my heart?

What are some evidences that God is in His world?

CORRESPONDENCE

LORRAINE AVE. MENN. CHURCH

Wichita, Kansas

The Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church has enjoyed many blessings during the summer months. Some changes also took place.

Dr. J. E. Hartzler was with us the week of June 15 to 22, giving us very inspiring messages each evening and the two Sunday mornings. June 22 was set aside as Mission Sunday with a basket dinner at noon and lunch in the evening. The tent which had been erected for the week was well filled. Many friends of the Conference came to enjoy the blessings with us. During the week various ministers and young people from different Conference churches came to assist in the services. We certainly appreciate this fine spirit of co-operation shown us and again heartily thank them for it.

On June 8 Rev. E. D. Schmidt, who last fall had resigned as our pastor but was serving us temporarily in a part-time capacity, discontinued his work with us. He has opened an office in Wichita at 410-11 Bitting Building as a Naturphaytic Physician. He is pioneering in the field of trying to correct both spiritual and physical ills and endeavoring to get the right relationship between the two, recognizing that God is in control of the laws governing both the physical and spiritual body. We wish him success and God's richest blessing in his new work.

On Sunday, Sept. 7, our congregation decided to extend a call to Rev. P. E. Franz, formerly of Geary, Okla., to become our pastor. He has accepted the call and will be formally installed as pastor of our church Sunday morning, Sept. 28.

We are busy making plans and organizing for a financial drive for our new church building. Our campaign is to take place from October 6 to 13. We are in hopes that we can raise enough money so that no debt which has not been covered by pledges need be made. May all our friends remember us in this great need both with their prayers and financial assistance. Each week sees more Mennonites coming to Wichita, so we are urgently in need of this new building to provide adequately for the spiritual needs of our people. —O. K. Galle, Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. HELENA BANMAN SCHMIDT was born in Russia in 1871, and died in her home in Salem, Oregon, on Monday, August 4, 1941, at the age of 70 years.

She came to America at the age of about five years and lived at Canton, Kansas. She accepted the Christian faith when eighteen years old and was baptized and united with the Mennonite church.

In the year 1891 she was married to Abr. H. Schmidt. This union was blessed with four children of which one daughter preceded her in death.

The family came to Oregon in 1925 and lived in Salem since that time. She was a member of the Emmanuel Mennonite Church at Pratum, Oregon.

She has been in failing health for a number of years, but was a very patient sufferer until called to her rest. She leaves to mourn her departure her husband, and the following children:

One son, Henry Schmidt; two daughters, Mrs. Lena Ware and Mrs. Arthur Dalke, all of Salem; one sister, Mrs. C. R. Voth of Kansas; and three brothers, A. H. Banman of Idaho, Frank Banman of Kansas, and J. H. Banman of California.

the great fundamental truth which Satan tries to take away from us. We are told that Jesus was a great man, a worthy example to follow; but that He was after all a man. No, and again, No! He was God. Some time ago there was a report in The Mennonite Weekly Review of the work of E. Stanley Jones. It told of his talk to college students where he urged them to line up with Jesus Christ and accept Him as their ideal. The editor made a note: "Accept Him as their Saviour which is most necessary."

Believe that He was sacrificed for the atonement of sin, that He gave His life freely for my sin and for yours, that He died on the cross to bring salvation to the world. Believe that His shed blood, and His blood alone, cleanseth us from all sin. Beloved, there is no other sin-cleansing element but the blood of Christ. "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin."

We must all have a part in this cleansing blood. Here, once more, Satan endeavors to lead us astray, proclaiming that the blood which flowed on Calvary is nothing to us. Yes, even Christians deny the power of the blood. Salvation will not be ours if we cannot believe in the whole truth. Israel believed in God, the only God, but they did not accept His Son Jesus Christ. Therefore Jesus says to His disciples, "Ye believe in God, believe also in me" (John 14:1).

Believe in His resurrection from the dead, that death could not claim Him. On the third day He arose, bringing life out of death. Life from death is everlasting life, life which death connot affect. "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die" (John 11:25). Thank God that we have everlasting life in Christ Jesus.

Whosoever believeth in Him as God, as the ransom for our sins through the power of His blood, in righteousness through His resurrection, hath everlasting life. And finally, believe in His ascension into heaven, occupying a seat at the right hand of the throne of God, interceding for us. Brother, Sister, can you glory today in God's love? By Christ's ascension into heaven we are sanctified, made holy, and continue in growth as we more and more consecrate our lives to His service, becoming stronger in faith and more fully led by His grace. Our Christian lives are to become more Christlike every day as we grow older. Let us at all times live lives that are holy. Let us believe that in Him we will be glorified.

Whosoever believeth in Him as described above has the promise of our text: "Shall not perish but have everlasting life." What a glorious promise. Not perish even though this body of ours is laid into the earth to turn again to ashes. Not perish but live. The future cannot be dark to us any more. Eternal life is the final stage. Eternal life without sorrow or pain or hardship. Eternal life with joy and peace and rest and love.

Such is God's love towards us. He gave Jesus Christ as His love-gift to us, and He wants to give everyone of us to Christ as His love-gift to Him. Are you included in this love-gift? Believe in Him and you will be.

Remember, if ever you will be lost and perish, it is because you did not believe in Him when He was preached to you. Believe in Him now and be saved and receive the knowledge of everlasting life. While we plead with you, will you accept Him? May God give you this grace.

"I shall pass through this world but once; any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness that I can show, let me not defer it or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

"The best angle from which to approach any problem is the 'try-angle'."

The Difference

The worldly-minded person asks, "What can I get out of life for my sake?"

The person who has been born again and who has a love for Christ in his heart asks, "What can I put into life for Christ's sake?"

Have you, as a Christian, little time for God's WORD and WORK, then apply the above test to all choices which confront you.—W

Forgetting Those Things Which Are Behind

The importance of forgetting mistakes we have made was impressed upon me in a new way a short time ago when a friend said to me, "Don't repent!"

Since then I have tried to learn not to repent. It is necessary for many of us to learn this lesson, for if we fail to forget our old mistakes it will be impossible for us to give our best in the more important task of pressing on toward those greater things which the future holds out to us with such rich promise.

You may be sure that for all of us there must be periods of whole-hearted and intelligent repentance. But how often, instead of turning with confidence and courage to new beginnings, do we mourn past failures. There comes a time, however, when we must leave our disappointments behind and put our talents to work; a time when we can say with confidence and sincerity, "But this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."—H. Y. P. Union Resolutions

1. We believe that the work of the Young People's Committee has progressed during the past three years, and also realize the trying conditions under which the committee has worked. Therefore, be it resolved that we publicly express our appreciation to the officers and members of the Committee for their untiring efforts in behalf of the young people. Be it further resolved that we express our appreciation to those who have taken part in the program of the young people's session thereby assisting in making it a success.

2. Be it resolved that we continue to carry on the following phases of the work of the Young People's Union:

   1. The adoption, use, and scoring of the standard for the Mennonite Young People's societies.
   2. The promotion and use of the follow-up system among the churches of the General Conference.
   3. The distribution and use of the revised prayer calendar.

3. Be it resolved that the interchanging of leaders and youth representatives to our retreats be encouraged, the details of such an interchange being left to the districts.

4. In the light of conditions found in some of our communities, we recommend that consecrated young men of training, ability, and good judgment be sent to such communities for periods of sufficient length to render a real service.

5. Be it resolved that the young people be encouraged to attend our General Conference sessions. We recommend that the District Representatives be appointed before each session of the General Conference and that each district make itself responsible for the transportation expenses of its representative to the Conference.

6. Be it resolved that we co-operate with the Education and Publication boards in planning for a larger youth section in The Mennonite, and that we endorse "A Mennonite Paper in Every Mennonite Home."

7. We believe that the paper prepared by Dr. H. A. Fast on "Suggestive Reorganization" was a constructive contribution to the Conference and is worthy of further study and consideration.

8. Be it resolved that we encourage our young people through the District Representatives and The Mennonite to make a thorough study of our Mennonite principles and peace heritage and that small groups be encouraged to discuss these principles. Furthermore, we recommend that they keep in touch with all of our young men in camps or otherwise away from home.

9. Be it resolved that we accept the statement of the position of the Conference on peace, war, and patriotism. —The Resolutions Committee

OUR COMMUNITY CHURCHES

Program for October 12, 1941

Leading Topic: Other churches in our community, Romans 12:4-13.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "We are Children of Our King," "Come, We that Love the Lord," "The Church's One Foundation."
2. Reading of the main topic, and prayer.
3. Talk by the pastor on the origin of our denomination.
4. Offering for Foreign Missions.

II. Leader's Introduction

Almost every community has several churches representing different denominations. Each church has its special points of emphasis, its own practices in the way of ritual and conduct of church worship. But in the essentials the churches are agreed, they worship God, the same Father, they believe in Jesus Christ as the Saviour, they feel responsibility toward their fellow-men. Church members of one church should learn to apppreciate each other. No one church can lay claim to being perfect. Each one has some points where it is strong, and these should be valued by sister churches.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Salutations to Church Leaders	Romans 16:1-5
2. Other Churches Established	Acts 11:19-26
3. Supported by the Church	Phil. 4:14-18
4. "General Assembly" of the Church	Heb. 12:22-24
5. Offend None	I Cor. 10:31-33
6. Christ to the Churches	Rev. 1:10, 11, 20

IV. For Discussion

1. How did the various churches in Asia Minor become established? Did they have the same practices as the mother church in Jerusalem?
2. What reasons are there today to work for church unity? Would you be in favor of all churches in your community forming one church?

V. Facts for Study

Minor differences such as the form of baptism should never be overemphasized. Such things as emotional expression given through singing and through testimonies in various ways should receive due consideration in the light of the background of the church membership. Some groups demand more of this, others less. The Methodists have a different way of expressing their religion than the Episcopalians. Within our own Mennonite groups there are differences and they should be appreciated rather than criticised. The Friends with their periods of silent worship, those groups who like movement and loud expression, as the negro churches and a good many white groups too, are rather different from each other because of their backgrounds of training and environment. Their sincerity and devotion to Christ and His cause are the essentials and often one group is just as wholehearted here as the other.

VI. Illustration

A man met a little fellow on the road carrying a basket of blackberries, and said to him: "Sammy, where did you get such nice berries?"

"Over there, sir, in the briars."

"Won't your mother be glad to see you come home with a basketful of such nice ripe fruit?"

"Yes, sir," said Sammy, "she always seems glad when I hold up the berries, and I don't tell her anything about the briars in my feet."

The man rode on. Sammy's remarks had given him a lesson, and he resolved that henceforth he would try to hold up the berries and say nothing about the briars. —Baptist Union.

VII. Food for Thought

Brothers and sisters are not alike but they make a family together. Churches, too, have the same Father who loves them all and watches over them.

I RESOLVE TO PRAY

Program for October 12, 1941

My Prayer

"My life must touch a million lives in some way ere I go
From this dear world of struggle to the land I do not know.
So this wish I always wish, the prayer I ever pray:
Let my life help the other lives it touches by the way." —Anonymous, F. H. Revell Co.

Prayer Hymn: "O God, Our Help in Ages Past."
Scripture Reading: Jas. 5:13-18.
Silent Prayer.

Poem: Prayer

I know not by what methods rare,
But this I know, God answers prayer.
I know that He has given His word,
Which tells me prayer is always heard,
And will be answered, soon or late.
And so I pray and calmly wait.
I know not if the blessing sought
Will come in just the way I thought;
But leave my prayer with Him alone,
Whose will is wiser than my own,
Assured that He will grant my quest,
Or send some answer far more blest.

—Eliza M. Hickok, F. H. Revell Co.

Leader's Talk:

"Helen Welshimer says: 'Too many people have the idea that prayer is something to be kept in a pasteboard box, wrapped up in tissue paper and only removed from its wrappings on Sunday and at prayer meetings or just before going to bed.'

"We need prayer all the time. If you cannot trust your friends with your troubles pray to God. Talk to Him as you would to a friend. Prayer is a blessing to Christians alone, and they should make use of it."

A Legend

There is a legend that Hercules was once walking along a very narrow path. Suddenly a strange looking animal appeared before him. This strange fierce looking animal threatened Hercules. He struck it with his club and passed on. In just a little while the same animal approached more threateningly than before, and it was three times as large as it had been before. Hercules struck it fast and furiously, but the harder and oftener he hit it, the bigger and more frightful the monster grew. Hercules could not continue his journey, for the frightful monster had grown so huge that it blocked the road entirely. Then Pallas, the goddess of peace, appeared to Hercules and told him to stop striking at the terrifying monster. "Its name is Strife," she said, "let it alone, and it will soon become as little as it was at first." —Retold.

8. Three boys repeat from memory Matt. 5:9.

"Oh, how praying rests the weary!
Prayer will change the night to day;
So when life seems dark and dreary,
Don't forget to pray."

—N. M. W.

turtles were crowding around the ship. Then the Indian coolies came, and unloading and loading went on day and night with an awful lot of noise. Ever so often we heard Hindi words, although the language of the Ceylon people is Singalese. But the action of the workers is just like that which we know so well in India. Before a given work is undertaken there is an awful lot of yelling and screaming. We also saw mouth wars as we see so often in Indian villages. People do quarrel and curse each other's ancestors for many generations back and, if need be, curse also the oncoming generations. But it is very seldom that the quarrelers come to actual blows or fist fights. Though these mouth wars are not to be recommended, yet if nations could also content themselves with them, not so many innocent people would be blown into eternity before their time. Another real Indian characteristic we saw in Ceylon is the art of sleeping any time and anywhere and in any condition. If there is nothing to do, the man simply lies down on the floor and sleeps as soundly and apparently as sweetly as though he were in the most comfortable bed. Many times I have envied the ordinary village man for his ability to sleep. Maybe we are not calm enough or resigned enough to do that. The hard life of India's poverty also has its compensations.

Today is May 6, and we are actually on India's soil. Our good ship, the President Harrison, arrived in Bombay harbor yesterday afternoon, May 5. This means that we have been on the ship forty-five days. But we are here. By the grace of God, we are in India again, our adopted land, our home. We committed ourselves into our Father's hands when we left San Francisco. We also knew and know that scores of friends and relatives have prayed for the safety of our journey. All prayers have been answered. We are here. Today we are trying to get all our freight arranged so that it can get on the train. One of our good brothers from Mauhadih, our old mission station, came to meet and welcome us. It seemed mighty good to see brother Wilson Joseph again, and have him tell us about all our beloved Christians at the mission stations. This evening we all hope to leave for the interior. Brother Wilson will go with Mrs. Thiessen and Muriel direct to Champa; and I will go with Eleanor to the mountains where she will enter school. Our next report will come from Basna, God willing, from the place where we hope to work the next eight years. But to one and all, I would like to say: Please thank God with us for our safe arrival in India.

When we came to the port in Bombay a big pile of letters of welcome awaited us from our co-workers in India. It was refreshing to receive them. Only one contained sad news. Mrs. A. E. Parker, wife of the principal of the school which our children attend here in India, has died. The Parkers left San Francisco only a little over a month before we did. They also were in America on furlough, and we wanted to sail together. They were ready a little sooner. Now she has passed on to her eternal reward, only a month after arriving in India.

With fraternal greetings,

John Thiessen

Resolutions

ADOPTED AT THE LAST SESSION OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA

held at Souderton, Pennsylvania, August 17-22, 1941

(Rev. Phil. A. Wedel, Aberdeen, Idaho, secretary of the General Conference, sends in the following resolutions for preliminary publication in The Mennonite. They will be published officially in the Minutes and Reports of this session which will appear later.—mb)

1. RESOLVED, To adopt the minutes of the previous Conference session.

2. RESOLVED, To adopt the recommendation of the Business Committee. It reads: That the program prepared by the Business Committee, as printed in The Mennonite and Bundesbote be adopted as the official program of this Conference session and be followed.

3. RESOLVED, That the business session open at 9:00 A.M. and close at 12 o'clock noon, reconvene at 1:30 P. M., and extend to 4:30 P. M., the evening sessions to begin at 7:30.

4. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Executive Committee.

5. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 1 of the Executive Committee. It reads: That the Minutes and Reports of the session at Souderton be printed and distributed as in previous years, two to a vote, and that the churches be requested to take one offering and send it to the Conference Treasurer to pay for the same. The boards and committees are requested to supply the Conference Secretary with copies of reports in both languages.

6. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 2 of the Executive Committee. It reads: The Executive Committee recommends to the Conference the interpretation of Article 18b, of the Constitution that one may cast 10 proxy votes in addition to the votes of his own church.

7. RESOLVED, That a telegram be sent to Rev. I. R. Detwiler, host pastor of the First Mennonite Church, Normal, Ill., where the Central Conference convenes. Greetings from the Conference were included in the telegram.

8. RESOLVED, That the Conference instruct the Secretary to cast a unanimous ballot in favor of accepting the nine churches recommended by the Committee on Admittance of Churches. (This increased the membership of the Conference by 865 members. See Resolution 19 also.)

9. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Placement Committee.

10. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Church Unity Committee without the recommendations.

11. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 1 of the Church Unity Committee with the understanding to have it published in time to be voted upon at the next Conference session. It reads: Under Admission under Article 13 of the Constitution, add: The General Conference stands ready to unite with any conference of Mennonite churches where such union can be achieved agreeable to both parties.

12. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 2, a), b), and c) of the Church Unity Committee. It reads: a) To cultivate the friendship of other Mennonite churches and conferences wherever possible. b) To contact prospective churches or conferences which may be interested in uniting with the General Conference. To work out plans for union in collaboration with these churches or conferences and to present the same to the General Conference. c) To present to the General Conference names of such churches and conferences as may desire admission.

13. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 3 of the Church Unity Committee. It reads: We recommend that the Conference authorize the Church Unity Committee of our Conference to formulate plans together with the Church Unity Committee of the Central Conference looking forward to an ultimate union.

14. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 4 of the Church Unity Committee. It reads: We recommend that a pamphlet containing information regarding the purposes, ideals, and activities of the General Conference prepared by the Church Unity Committee be published and distributed among our churches.

15. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Foreign Mission Board, including the treasurer's and auditors' reports.

16. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 1 of the Foreign Mission Board. It reads: Recommended, that the evacuated missionaries accept employment at home while they wait for the opportunity to return to the field (except of course women with children).

17. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 2 of the Foreign Mission Board. It reads: That on the application blank for mission candidates the following question be added as question No. 15: Is it your purpose to teach and preach that Jesus Christ is the only Saviour and Redeemer who has redeemed man, not with corruptible things, with silver or gold . . . but with His precious blood as a lamb without blemish and without spot, even the blood of Christ; and that this salvation is by the grace of God through faith in the crucified and risen Christ?

18. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 3 of the Foreign Mission Board. It reads: Recommended, to remind all our mission friends and churches of the special need in times like these to follow Paul's exhortation in I Tim. 2:1: "That first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men; for kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty.... in the sight of God... who will have all men to be saved."

19. RESOLVED, To receive the Fairfield, Pennsylvania, Mennonite Church into this Conference.

20. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Board of Home Missions, including the treasurer's and the auditors' reports.

21. MOVED, To adopt recommendation 1 of the Home Mission Board with the understanding that payments can be made in installments. It reads: Whereas the Home Mission Board accepted the Mennonite Bible Mission, 4221 South Rockwell Street, Chicago, as one of our mission projects in February, 1939, and whereas the Wiens family erected the buildings some years ago, the Home Mission Board recommends that the General Conference give permission to purchase the property which consists of a double lot on which the Mission stands, for a consideration of $5000. (The Mission, a frame building, has a comfortable auditorium, Sunday School rooms, and an apartment for a family on the second floor.) (See Res. 22.)

22. RESOLVED, That the purchase of the Chicago Bible Mission be referred to the General Conference Trustees and that they in conjunction with the Home Mission Board act as they see fit.

23. RESOLVED, To retain the Orphan Fund mentioned in recommendation 3 of the Home Mission Board for the purpose for which it has been given.

24. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 4 of the Home Mission Board. It reads: Whereas the Home Mission Board has felt the worth of a field secretary in home mission and church extension work, our Board cheerfully contributed our part toward this support until the office was discontinued, June, 1940, and we firmly believe that other boards would profit if this office were continued, we recommend that the office be filled again by the Executive Committee of the General Conference as soon as feasible.

25. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Peace Committee, its treasury, and the auditing report.

26. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 2 of the Peace Committee. It reads: The General Conference declares that it is its purpose to contribute its share of the funds required to finance the Civilian Public Service Camp programs as may be agreed upon by the constituent Mennonite groups co-operating through the Mennonite Central Committee.

27. RESOLVED, To adopt point 3 under "Our Position on Military Service" in "A Statement of the Position of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America" in the report of the Peace Committee, amended as follows: We feel that we cannot consistently take part in the financing of war operations through the purchase of war bonds, and we are very sensitive to making voluntary contributions to organizations or activities which may indirectly make us supporters of war and military programs. Instead, we urge that we make our contributions to civilian and church organizations which are directly engaged in administering relief to those in distress or to other constructive enterprises.

28. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 4 of the Peace Committee. It reads: That the General Conference give its moral and financial support to the Mennonite Central Committee as it is engaged in the united task of vital concern to the common faith of Mennonite groups.

29. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 1 of the Peace Committee. It reads: That the General Conference approve "A Statement of the Position of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America on Peace, War, Military Service, and Patriotism" as was presented by the Committee.

30. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Board of Publication including the treasurer's and auditors' reports.

31. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 1 of the Board of Publication. It reads: In order to help realize the aim of the Conference set forth in Resolution No. 95 of the session of 1938, "to have at least one Conference paper, the Bundesbote or The Mennonite, in every Conference home," we recommend that the price be reduced to $1.00 per copy to churches that will provide a copy of either of these papers for every family on the church roll and pay for the same through the church treasury. Otherwise the price is to remain as heretofore.

32. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 2 of the Board of Publication. It reads: Since the reports of offerings take up so much space in our church papers, we recommend that, beginning with January, 1942, these be published quarterly in supplement form in the English language and sent out with each of the papers.

33. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Committee on Doctrine and Conduct including the treasurer's and auditing committee's reports.

34. RESOLVED, That the seminary "Statement of Doctrine" be mimeographed and distributed and action delayed till later.

35. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Board of Education, including the treasurer's and auditors' reports.

36. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 1 of the Board of Education. It reads: That all schools within the General Conference whose work is not of collegiate rank be invited to report their work to the Board of Education which in turn shall report to the Conference for all these schools.

37. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 2 of the Board of Education. It reads: Recommended that the work of the German-English Academy of Rosthern, Saskatchewan, and the Collegiate Institute, of Gretna, Manitoba, be presented to sessions of the Conference through the Board of Education, in addition to the schools invited to make such reports by Resolution No. 45, of the Conference of 1929.

38. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 3 of the Board of Education. It reads: That the General Conference ask all schools of collegiate rank to invite the Board of Education to send one or two of its members to visit each school once a year at the time of the principal meeting of the school. This arrangement is proposed for the purpose of making it possible for the Board of Education to be better informed and in better position to be of help to the schools. The expense of such visits is to be borne by the Board of Education.

39. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 4 of the Board of Education (a reaffirmation of No. 1 of the Board of Education report of 1938). It reads: That the Board of Education express its appreciation for the work done by the General Conference Field Secretary, and strongly urge that this work be continued at the discretion of the Executive Committee. The experience and insight gained through this type of work we believe to be of great value to our churches and should be utilized in the future development and expansion of the work of the Conference as represented by our various boards.

40. RESOLVED, To adopt the report of the Emergency Relief Board, including the treasurer's and auditors' reports.

41. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 1 of the Emergency Relief Board. It reads: That the Emergency Relief Board be authorized by this Conference to continue to co-operate with the Mennonite Central Committee as heretofore, and be again officially represented on that Committee by two members of the Emergency Relief Board.

42. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 2 of the Emergency Relief Board. It reads: In view of the splendid work done by the Field Secretary in the past, be it resolved, that if the Executive Committee of the Conference deem it advisable to reinstall the office of Field Secretary, the Emergency Relief Board is ready to co-operate with other boards and committees of the Conference in sharing the expense to carry on such work.

43. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation 3 of the Emergency Relief Board. It reads: Recommended that the Emergency Relief Board be requested to closely co-operate with the Conference Peace Committee to make the testimony of peace as effective as possible.

44. RESOLVED, To adopt recommendation of the Middle District Conference to issue Peace Certificates, if feasible, and to ask our Peace Committee to handle the matter.

45. RESOLVED, That in the first sentence of "Statement of Purpose" in the Seminary report, at the point following the word "serve" we add "the Lord Jesus Christ," to read: The purpose of the Witmarsum Bible School and Seminary is primarily to serve the Lord Jesus Christ and the needs of the Mennonite Church of North America.

46. RESOLVED, That under the heading "Statement of Doctrine," No. 2, be inserted "the bodily" before the word "resurrection" to read: We believe . . . in His bodily resurrection from the dead.

47. RESOLVED, To change "absolute trustworthiness of the Bible, etc." under No. 4, to read: "We believe in the divine inspiration and infallibility of the Bible as the Word of God and the only trustworthy guide of faith and life."

48. RESOLVED, That No. 2 of the "Statement of Doctrine" be changed to read: We believe in the deity of Jesus Christ, the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth, born of the Virgin Mary, in His perfect humanity, His atoning death, His bodily resurrection from the dead, and His personal triumphant return.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John Kirchhofer of Berne, Indiana, celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary at their home Sunday, September 14. "They were married on September 13, 1891, . . . by the late Rev. S. F. Sprunger, at that time pastor of the Mennonite church. Mrs. Kirchhofer was formerly Lydia Lehman. Her father, Peter Lehman, now 94 years old, is still living. . . . It is considered a very rare occasion when one of the celebrants of a Golden Wedding anniversary can point to the fact that the father or mother is still living." —Berne Witness

—May we call attention to the fact that any contribution sent in for publication should be accompanied with the name and address of the contributor. If you do not wish to have your name published indicate this and your desire will be honored. Also please indicate whether the contribution is original or borrowed, and if the latter, give the source if possible. Thank you.

—Rev. J. D. Jantzen, of Hillsboro, Kansas, met a tragic death Friday afternoon, September 19, when the team with which he was raking hay ran away. Funeral services are held today, Tuesday, at the First Mennonite Church, Hillsboro. May we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family.

—The bulletin of the Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa., reports that they are again planning to start a Teachers' Training Class for their Sunday School teachers the first week in October. It states that "one of the common criticisms directed against the Sunday School is that it lacks teaching efficiency. Such criticisms are often made by unsympathetic people. However, let us not be too self-righteous, for some of the stated shortcomings of the average Sunday School are well founded." No Sunday School is perfect and because this work is so important all of them should strive towards improvement and perfection as the Zion Sunday School is doing.

—On Saturday, September 13, the Forty-fifth Anniversary and Donation Day was observed at the Home for the Aged at Frederick, Pa. Most of the churches of that district observed Harvest Home Services for the benefit of this Home on Sunday, September 14, as announced in the various church bulletins.

—To the incomplete announcement regarding the Eastern District Sunday School Convention to be held on Saturday, September 27, which appeared in the last issue, we wish to add the place of meeting, namely, Souderton, Pa.

—The fifth Mennonite Civilian Public Service Camp is located at Denison, Iowa. This is a camp formerly occupied by a veteran company which was transferred to Audubon, Iowa.

—Rev. and Mrs. Willard Claassen of Freeman, South Dakota, are the proud parents of a baby daughter, Barbara Ann, born September 2.

—The Grace Mennonite Church Messenger of Lansdale, Pa., Rev. Olin Krehbiel, pastor, reports: "August 24 was a milestone in the history of the Grace Mennonite Church for on that day one of the sons of the congregation was ordained to the gospel ministry. Brother and Sister George Greger are the first to go into this field of service from this church. We wish them God's blessing at Napier."

—The September number of the Church Messenger of the Eden Mennonite Congregation, Schwenksville, Pa., Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, pastor, reports that an "Infantile Paralysis Ban" has been placed upon public assembly and that, therefore, the children of the church have not been able to attend Sunday School or to have their Christian Endeavor meetings. We sincerely hope that the danger of contagion has passed and the "ban" has been lifted.

—The Bethesda Hospital Gift Day was observed Thursday, September 18, instead of on September 16 as announced in last week's issue. We apologize for this error.

Lead, Kindly Light

It is said that when Rev. Peter Conolly, a minister from the British Isles, came to the United States some time ago, he was so thrilled with the brilliant lights of New York City that he spent most of his first night walking up and down the streets of the city feasting his eyes on the light. He had come from the darkness of London, out of black-out into blazing light.

Life, too, often leads through darkness. God sends shadows into our lives and we, in our self-pity and despair, do not see the light ahead. We are called upon to enter the tunnel of sorrow or disappointment, and instead of trying to peer through the darkness expecting the light on the other side, we settle down to despair as if expecting to remain in the tunnel. How little faith we often manifest in our great God.

It is a comfort to know that after the shadows comes the light, after the night, the day. There is always sufficient light for each step we are called upon to take. When I start out at night in a car for a destination some miles away, I do not despair because there is not sufficient light for me to see the whole way, for I know that the headlights of the car will always throw enough light for the distance I have to see, until I get to my destination. So it is in the realm of the spirit, enough light for each step: "As thy days so shall thy strength be." Trouble is caused, accidents occur, when I try to go faster than the light leads. May we let Him who is the "Light of the World" lead us, following Him, one step at a time.

"Lead, kindly Light. Amid the encircling gloom lead Thou me on. The night is dark and I am far from home, lead Thou me on. Keep Thou my feet, I do not ask to see the distant scene, one step's enough for me." —mb

HOW TRUE, TODAY

"To look around is to be distressed,
To look within is to be depressed,
To look to Him is to be blessed."
—Gospel Messenger

Widening Horizons

"Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations; spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes" (Isaiah 54:2).

In a little churchyard in Switzerland is the simple tomb of a man who perished in an Alpine accident. His only epitaph were these words, "He died climbing." Undoubtedly he was constrained by dreams of more glorious scenes than his eyes had yet envisaged. In the attempt to scale the peaks he gave his life.

But the Christian perspective is in a higher realm. The ever-widening sphere of service compels us to action. We cannot sit idly by while millions are on the march to eternity without God. The love of Christ in the human heart constrains us to go out "in the midst of them" and bring as many as will come to the safety and security of Christ.

We are admonished in this passage to avoid the limited vision. It is not becoming to a Christian. The world is our parish. The gospel of Christ is designed to embrace that need. Trying to compress it to fit our own distorted vision will be disastrous to ourselves and untrue to God's eternal purpose. If we are to go "forward with Christ" we must enlarge the place of our tent.

—Sylvester T. Ludwig in "Come Ye Apart"

Power of Forgiveness

A Quaker had a very quarrelsome neighbor, whose cow often strayed into the Quaker's well-cultivated field. One morning, having driven the cow right home into its proper pasturage, he called at the owner's house and said, "Friend T____, I have driven thy cow home once more, and if I find her in my garden again . . ."

"Suppose you do, eh?" exclaimed the neighbor angrily. "What then?"

"Why," replied the Quaker, "I'll drive her home to thee again, friend."

The cow never troubled him again.

In Happy Appreciation of the Reverend Peter R. Schroeder

A buoyant step; a quiet poise
That in restraint holds eagerness;
A ready sympathy that glows
In instant smile of tenderness.

A head erect, a bearing straight;
As if spirituality
Gave to the medial stature strength;
A keen, alert mentality.

A handclasp firm of fellowship;
Ere speech begins, a hesitance;
And as it flows, the gentle tones,
That rise to earnest resonance.

Impassioned words, persuasive, clear,
That, in mellifluent urgency,
Pour out the language, great, of love,
With "Deutsch" and English fluency.

A voice that loves to sing in praise
Of Christ's redeeming charity
As silent reaches of the church
Awake in tenor clarity.

A face imploring, rapt in prayer;
A childlike trust in Providence;
A searching look, direct and gray,
From eyes of boundless confidence.

All these the graces are, and more,
That softly bring in retrospect
The loved mentor of our youth,
A pastor, fearless, circumspect.

He served each week and Sabbath day
His place, in proud humility;
The church had blessing from his work
Of fervent, sure ability.

To lure of power, pleasure, wealth,
He knew the soul's immunity
That, wholly God's, thrills to pursuit
Of Christian opportunity.

Steadfast like Peter's, called the Rock,
His faith was firm, unshakable,
A shepherd good, he fed the sheep
With patience, tried, unbreakable.

He fed the lambs, and courage had
To serve Christ still in thankfulness
When pleasing Him, not man, he found
A cross the price of faithfulness.

Against such faith, of which each word
And deed cried out in evidence,
Who of that privileged flock he led
Can doubt the Christ's omnipotence?

Loved minister, in stillness oft
Your potent presence, lingering,
Though not in flesh, is spurring on
Your work, in hearts remembering.

If waters deep must be your course
And waves that threaten, mortally,
The Master still can reach His Hand
As once He did on Galilee.

—Mrs. Helen Bergstedt
Fort Wayne, Indiana

Concerning the above poem Mrs. P. R. Schroeder writes: "If you find it convenient to insert it in the Mennonite some time I shall be very much pleased since quite a number of our friends have requested that I send it in. The thing that is most remarkable to me about this poem is that Mrs. Bergstedt, nee Helen Gilliom, was a girl in her teens when we lived at Berne, and still she saw those characteristics in Mr. Schroeder that describe him as well as any adult could do it."

A Letter to the President

The President of the General Conference, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, received the following letter from Albert M. Gaeddert, Camp Director, at the Civilian Public Service Camp at Colorado Springs, in answer to the letter sent the camp from the General Conference.

August 28, 1941

Dear Dr. Krehbiel:

Your message to the young men in the Civilian Public Service Camp of August 19, was received with much appreciation. Thank you for your kind interest and for your well-wishing to the boys in the camp and to the entire Civilian Public Service program. It means much to know that entire conference groups are back of a movement such as this. We trust that in some degree we will prove ourselves worthy of such interest.

It is also our hope and belief that this way of unselfish service, and this testimony to the "better way of life," will bear witness to the Prince of Peace; to a world that is torn with conflict, anger, hate, and war. We do not consider our time here as merely a year spent, but we are looking forward to the opportunities that are presented, along with the obligations that we are trying to meet. It is our hope that out of this movement will come, not only nobler and better Christians, but a type of leadership with visions to make a world in which we would like to live. We realize that of ourselves we could do but little, but by the grace of God all things are possible.

We continue to solicit your prayer support.

Sincerely yours,
Albert M. Gaeddert
Camp Director

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

THE JUBILEE MONTH, OCTOBER, IS HERE!

As already announced in the last Mission Number, October of this year, is to be a time of mission celebration, because fifty years ago, on the first of this month, Missionary R. Petter entered our mission work as a God-send from Switzerland, and he is still in the work, although not on full time.

Brother Habegger, who is to arrange for the program, writes:

"On October 1, it will be fifty years since Brother Rodolphe C. Petter entered the mission work of the General Conference among the Cheyenne Indians. A celebration is to be held at which Rev. Alfred P. Waltner will represent the Mission Board and bring messages at the meetings that are to be held at the various mission stations.

"Brother Petter worked for twenty-five years in Oklahoma, among the southern Cheyennes, and twenty-five years here among the northern Cheyennes. He translated the New Testament and large portions of the Old Testament into Cheyenne, and has been a great blessing to the work. We hope the churches and other organizations of the General Conference will take note of this event, and praise the Lord for sending Dr. Petter into this work to bring the gospel to the Cheyennes. Pray for the workers and the native Christians, that this Jubilee will bring great blessings."

The first Sunday in October would be the most suitable day for such a celebration in all of our churches. Let it be a real "Thanksgiving Day." The Mission Board has found in the past, that "Thanksgiving Day" in November is in many churches made a great Mission Day, to which we usually look with great expectations for our treasury, which usually needs such special days at this time of the year, and we need it this year so much that two Thanksgiving Days are not too much. Let us have two of them this year, one in October and one in November.

This week our Executive Committee of the Mission Board had a meeting at which our treasurer informed us about the condition of the treasury, saying, "The treasury is empty."

The salaries for this last quarter are due, and we cannot pay them. Three months ago we made an appeal for the third quarter and for a $7,000.00 debt. We thank the Lord and the churches that this has been covered. But now we have great need of another quarter's payments, at least $15,000.00. What better occasion could we wait for than this Mission Jubilee to bring special sacrifices and prayers for this need, together with thanksgiving and praise!

This is in a way an emergency appeal because of the evacuation of our missionaries from China. Eight of them had to evacuate for America, and six for the Philippines. Brother and Sister S. F. Pannabecker, Brother and Sister C. L. Pannabecker, Brother and Sister August Ewert, and the sisters, Aganetha Fast and Etta R. Davis came home or are on the way home. Brother and Sister Albert Jantzen, Brother and Sister Lester Wuthrich, and Brother and Sister Marvin Dirks went to the Philippines for language study. That makes fourteen in all, which has caused large extra expenses. Brother and Sister H. J. Brown and the sisters, Elizabeth Goertz, Marie J. Regier, and Wilhelmina Kuyf remained in China.

FROM ONE HOME TO THE OTHER

By John Thiessen

(Seventh Continuation)

June 8, 1941

Home again. At last, after three and a half months of continuous travel, we arrived in our Basna home on May 15. We left our Bluffton home on February 1. Ahead of us we saw a long and likely dangerous journey. Now it is all over. We look back upon it now and see clearly the hand of our Heavenly Father over us. He has kept us in health, through so much indefiniteness and through dangerous waters and ports, arriving in India in the fiercest heat of the year; all in His fellowship. Yes, life with Him is very rewarding.

When I closed my last section of this report I thought that I would write this final section as soon as we would be in Basna. But I had overlooked one very important fact when I made that plan. This fact is that a missionary's time is only very partially his own. On board ship, when I said that tomorrow would be the day when I would write letter so and so, if God gave health, then that was done tomorrow. On the mission station one can make such a plan but one has no idea whether one can carry it out; because we are in the midst of people and we deal with people all day long. When they require our time, our suggestions, our attention to listen to their problems, our admonition, our prayers, our visits, yes, our all, then we just have to forget our resolution about writing a letter, and tend to people—our brothers and sisters in Christ. That is the reason why the date on top of this letter is June 8 instead of May 16.

Now I wish to invite my readers to come with me to Bombay once more. As I wrote in the former section, we landed safely on May 5. We sent a cablegram to Rev. Richert, Newton, stating that we

The Blessings of Friendship

*By Earl Salzman, Pastor, First Mennonite Church Upland, California

"Henceforth, I call you not servants; but I have called you friends."

It is said that when the first war was at its height and Paris was constantly threatened by the German armies, an American publicist, who was thoroughly saturated with the high ideals of President Wilson, was invited to a rough dinner in an underground chamber somewhere near the front lines. It was here that he made a speech to the soldiers telling how we were going to make the world safe for democracy and organize the world for peace. Just then the German planes flew over and began to drop bombs; the noise of bombs on the outside and the peaceful talk on the inside seemed so inconsistent that the whole meeting broke up in laughter.

This morning in this peaceful sanctuary, not quite so picturesque but just as truly presented, we have a similar situation. We want to talk about friendship while the whole world outside is mad with war. In a day when so much of our national energy and resources are being used for slaughter and destruction, it may seem beside the mark to talk about friendship. We may think we need something more stern and vital than friendship.

Let us recall that Upper Room made forever famous by some of the things the Master said. It was in this Upper Room, as Jesus bade farewell to His disciples, that He said, "No longer do I call you servants, but I have called you friends." In that day the world outside was hostile too but from the friendship of Jesus and the disciples have come amazing results. Hence, it may not be so far fetched for us today to think about friendship. Let us look into our own experience and see if several things are not true concerning friendship.

In the first place, I am sure we all agree that no relationship can bring us the highest joy and blessing until it is crowned with friendship. We may live in the same town, on the same street, but that does not make us friends. We may be neighbors, but if we are not friends, that may be a very bitter experience. We may be married and pledge our lives together, but unless there grows out of this relationship a towering friendship it will be tragic. Yes, if we each examine our own life, we will see no human relationship is quite complete until it is crowned with friendship. Teacher and disciple is not enough, lord and servant is not enough, minister and congregation is not enough,—nothing is enough until we can say, "I have called you friends."

In the second place, friendship is a creative power that helps to keep us going. Dwight L. Moody once said that the most trying experience he ever passed through was when he thought he didn't have a friend. Perhaps more folks than we like to think, break down because at the center of their lives they think they are without a friend. A book appeared a few years ago entitled, I Like the Depression. The author of this book was at one time a money maker. He thought in terms of the dollar. Folks meant very little. When the depression came, it took about all he had. Then be began to think. Now he had more time with his family. His wife became a new companion to him. He could see his children with new love and understanding. After he had fallen through one story after another of his vanity and pride and sat amid the ruins and wreckage of his life he began to measure the stature of his friends; and how they stood between his contempt, still believing in his best.

How much more familiar this experience is than appears on the surface. How often to others we seem calm and steady, yet how frequently it is only camouflage, and at the center of our lives we have so much inside information of ourselves. We feel so much like soldiers who have shot their last round of ammunition and are ready to fold up on the next charge. Behind the scenes it is often so with every one of us, our friends believing in us when we cannot believe in ourselves. Thus, standing between us and our contempt, they keep us going. In times like this, when bitterness and hatred are winning such victories and nations are plunging into the sea of war like the devil-infested swine, do we need friendship less? Would you say in a desert we need water less? Would you say on a stormy sea we need life preservers less? Would you say on a dark night we need light less? Rather, times like these which make friendship seem all the more feeble are the times when we need friendship most. If, then, you are helping to build up friendship where you are, remember you are attending to very important business.

In the third place, this is something that every one can have a part in. However, when we face the great need of the world and then think of our little ability, we feel beaten down to a feeling of insignificance. If, as you read these lines and think of the world with its problems that are so gigantic in extent and so complex in detail, you feel that as for you, you can't do anything about friendship in our world, just remember our Lord. It appears He didn't work very directly with government or economic organizations. He did most of His work through the network of personal relationships. He did something like fire that kindled from soul to

But Thou Art Rich

Revelation 2:9

God exchanges earth's temporal loss for heaven's eternal gain.

On the steppes of Russia, the same vast steppes which have now become a caldron of human wrath in which the blood of two nations which has never mingled in life, flows together in death, on these same steppes in the time of peace, on the top of a hill at whose feet nestled a thick woodland lived a friend, an older friend. At the time of a father's death and a mother's long illness, she took four little ones into her loving care. The home was beautiful in which she lived. There was little that she could not buy, for the large granaries that held the yield of the fertile soil allowed her many joys. One of these was the landscaped path leading down into the woodland and into a small recreational park built into the very heart of the forest. Brilliant rocks and plants from her own greenhouse beautified the spot. Her life seemed rich and full. And yet, would the One who is able to look into the inner chamber of man's heart have said of her, "I know thy richness but thou are poor"?

It was a great moment in my life when, after twenty-six years, I saw her again in a new home. War, with a greedy hand, had left her bare, hungry, desolate. Slowly as the years had passed, God had exchanged her loss for gain. Her home was now a simple room cheaply furnished. What did it matter? Here a cup of joy was running over. Here a face was lighted with love, and a heart was singing the refrain: "Ich habe meinen Heiland gefunden." It was again as though a lowly place on earth had been clothed in heavenly glory because into a manger bed the Christ had been born. Yes, the Redeemer had come in the hour of loss and pain to be her gain; and her life, emptied of all that earth could give, had had room for the fullness divine. Surely He must have said to her, "I know thy tribulation and thy poverty (but thou art rich)." And she must have lifted her eyes unto Him with joy, knowing that it was so.

"Lay thou thy treasure in the dust, . . .
And the Almighty will be thy treasure,
And precious silver unto thee."
(Job 22:24, 25)

I cannot believe that salvation is a sudden act of God in the believer, nor can the fruit of the Spirit be expected at conversion. Its seeds are planted into the heart, but the fruit takes time to grow. It is only when the Christian is willing to receive the cuts from the pruning knife of the Gardener that there can be growth and fruitage.

How slow we are to receive the cuts. How we shrink from the slightest trimming. How patient is the Pruner, how skillful, how watching to cut only as we can bear it. To us who love Him, He says, "Lay thou thy treasure in the dust, and the Almighty will be thy treasure and precious silver unto thee."

Still we cling to our treasures. A treasure is something in which our heart finds its joy and satisfaction. Our Lord once said to us, "Where thy treasure is, there will thy heart be also." He knew the heart of man in its divided love, even the ones that would follow Him. He knows it still in its refusal to yield Him its all.

We sing:

"I surrender all! I surrender all!
All I have I bring to Jesus,
I surrender all.

"Notwithstanding—full confession;
Pleasures, riches, all must flee;
Holy Spirit, take possession!
I no more, but Thou in me."

When Christ takes us at our word and asks us to give even the last of our heart's all, be it our pride, our talent, the daily work in which we have found joy, our physical strength, the unyielding to a disappointment or a shattered hope, or a cross heavy and painful,—we shrink back to clasp in fear of loss the treasure which He asks, until by grace we kneel with willing heart to lay it at his feet and to find that our loss has become our gain.

"O foolish and slow of heart to believe!" Can we not hear Him saying it today? Would to God that we would gladly let loose, gladly give up, gladly yield, knowing that any loss brings heavenly gain. Would to God that the Spirit would work within us that victory which was Abraham's, that we, too, would turn and say to the "King of Sodom" when he offers us the treasures of his kingdom: "I will not take a thread nor a shoe-latchet nor anything that is thine, lest thou shouldest say, I have made 'Abraham' rich." Without doubt, then we, too, shall experience within our hearts the presence of God saying unto us, "Fear not, . . . I am thy exceeding great reward" (Gen. 14, 15).

"Out of my bondage, sorrow, and night,
Jesus, I come
Into Thy freedom, gladness, and light,
Jesus, I come.

Out of my sickness into Thy health,
Out of my want and into Thy wealth,
Out of my sin and into Thyself,
Jesus, I come to Thee."

So let us, Mighty One, come unto Thee, no longer unyielding but yielding. Say also unto us, "I know thy tribulations and thy poverty (but thou art rich)." Yes, rich!

CHRIST OUR SAVIOUR

Matt. 20:25-28; Luke 19:1-10

The Self-Renouncing Saviour, vss. 25-28

Jesus dealt very gently with His selfish disciples. The mother of James and John had just come to Him asking for the places of chief preferment for them in His kingdom (vss. 20-23). They felt themselves fully qualified even though they did not know the implications of their request. The other ten were quite indignant when they heard this (vs. 24) for they harbored the same desire. The human heart is so self-seeking. Even those nearest to Christ did not escape it—do not escape it now.

Jesus "called them unto Him" (vs. 25). He draws us nearer to Himself that He may win us from our lower lives to a higher one. The world's way is for those in high places to make a show of their authority and impress others with their superiority. The method of Christ's kingdom is completely at variance with this (vss. 26,27). Even the apostles were not to "exercise dominion" over others in the Church which they were to establish. In Christ's kingdom he that serves is great. He must be willing to take the place of a servant—a minister. He who would be the chief must take the place of a most humble servant (cf. Matt. 20: 26,27; 23:8-12; Mark 9:35). Christ, the Head of His kingdom, is the supreme illustration of this principle. He came to minister, to serve, and it cost Him all that He had, even His life as a ransom, the price that purchased eternal life for others (vs. 28). This is one of the great verses from Christ's own lips.

Jesus Saves the Seeking Zacchaeus, vss. 1-10

Jesus was on His last journey to Jerusalem. Momentous events lying before Him absorbed His thoughts. He stopped in Jericho to help a sinner. He was always ready to help a needy one, a seeking one. He is ready today. We are too busy at times to help someone. Zacchaeus was a head collector of taxes—rich, dishonest, dissatisfied, a man of earnestness and decision (vss. 3,4). He made a real effort to see Jesus, probably inviting ridicule by his actions.

Jesus knew he was trying to see Him, and He was as eager to see Zacchaeus (vs. 5). He was one of the sheep that must be found. Jesus passed by all the priests who lived in Jericho and went home with a despised publican who "received Him joyfully." Zacchaeus was not accustomed to such kindness and respect, and it touched his heart. Jesus showed His deep interest in sinners whom people in general scorned. Jesus rose above the prejudices of His day. We should do the same in our day. He saw in the despised publican a man with an immortal soul just as valuable as the soul of any proud Pharisee. Jesus' action filled the pious Jews with severe disapproval (vs. 7). They criticized Him strongly.

Jesus' interest in Zacchaeus awakened a responsive love in his soul. It inspired real repentance and resulted in a genuine conversion (vs. 8). The genuineness is indicated by his readiness to make a large sacrifice. His conversion affected his pocketbook. This is a reliable evidence of the reality of a person's Christianity. He made restitution. The love of Jesus transformed Zacchaeus into an honest, large-hearted, and self-forgetting saint. His riches did not prevent his being saved. He was willing to let go of them. He chose Christ instead of riches. His first step toward salvation was in seeking to see Jesus. He found salvation when he met Him.

Christ is the Saviour of the world today. In every land and nation He is demonstrating His power to break sin's shackles when persons are willing to repent of sin. Christ alone is the light of the world, the only Saviour. His redemptive love transforms men's hearts.

Why did Jesus take an interest in publicans and sinners when others did not?

What is man's part in his salvation?

soul. That fire still burns on. The empires of His day are gone. The economic systems of His day have vanished. But His contributions to personal relationships survived them all.

Wherever we live, we can drop some impulse of friendship, and remember it works like magic. It is something like the widow's meal in the barrel, in that old story,—the more it was emptied, the more it filled up. Friendship is like that,—the more it is shared, the more we have. If someone says, "What can I do to make this wild, fierce world more friendly?" I say, "Start where you are." One remedy is offered when a certain section of mid-America is threatened to become a desert. The planting of trees. Millions of trees will hold the soil and keep America from becoming a desert. However, when trees grow, they grow as individuals; so that all these trees might be imagined to be saying, "I help keep mid-America from becoming a desert." Just so, this turbulent world needs friends, millions of friends. If you are helping to build up friendship and erase the lines of hatred and bitterness, then you are attending to very important business.

In the fourth place, friendship is the by-product of co-operative human endeavor. We do not walk up to someone and propose friendship. It comes as a result of doing something else. Enduring friendship is not built on selfishness. To cultivate a man because we can use him, means that we will fling him aside when his usefulness ceases. Thieves will hang together until they have secured their booty, then the partnership is dissolved. Selfishness is not a unifying, but a disintegrating force. The lasting foundations of friendship are to be found in a united effort in a common cause. Men who co-operate in an enterprise that is worth while come to understand and prize one another. Those who are rowing in the same boat, singing in the same club, playing on the same team, are constantly making discoveries in friendship. Such folks do not whine about their own lot or cry because they are unpopular. They take hold of the thing that needs to be done and join hands with the nearest group. They soon discover that their own lives have become enriched by new associations and cross-fertilized by scores of unsought contacts. They discover that the finest friendship is quite involuntary; it is the by-product of co-operative human endeavor.

Finally, it is true, is it not, that such friendship is the test of our religion? Such friendship as we have been talking about may last and grow in spite of all the flaws and frailties that we may discover in our friend. What right have we to demand perfection in him when we do not possess it ourselves? Indeed his very flaws and frailties may endear him to us. At least we can overlook flaws when teamwork continues. To sit still and look at our friend is to criticize him and lose him. To work with him steadily, patiently, hopefully, is to keep him, and to constantly find new reserves and resources in him. God's good men are never perfect men. The apostles of our Lord were far from flawless. But they were united in a common danger, a common task, a supreme devotion, and after three years of companionship and instruction, He gave them no diploma, but simply said: "I have called you friends."

SECOND MENNONITE CHURCH

Beatrice, Nebraska

The high school Bible class which was formerly conducted by the late Rev. M. Horsch, and during the past year by our pastor, Rev. R. Weinbrenner, is again being held once a week after school hours, in the basement of our church. There are 22 prospective scholars, 10 from the First Mennonite Church and 12 from the Second. The pastors will conduct the work this year, Rev. Walter H. Dyck teaching the first semester and Rev. Weinbrenner, the second. The Beatrice Ministerial Association is attempting to arrange for similar courses in the various churches and during school hours, within another year.

Field crops have again been greatly curtailed by a dry growing season, and recent floods have done considerable damage to both farm and city properties in this vicinity. —W. C. A., Corr.

EAST SWAMP MENNONITE CHURCH

Quakertown, Pennsylvania

Greetings to all the Conference churches. It has been some time since you have heard from us. We thank God for all He has seen fit to do through us day by day.

The General Conference leaves many pleasant memories with us. It was a joy to meet so many new friends from the West. We thank God for the Christian spirit manifested in all sessions. The young people of our church feel deeply honored in having one of our young people, Miss Dorothy Dietz, as secretary of the General Conference Young People's Union. We thank the Lord for the fine group of young people which we have. They recently held their third Young People's Bible Conference at which time Dr. Barnhouse, of Philadelphia, brought inspiring and heart-searching messages. October 17 to 19 they are holding their fourth Conference with Dr. H. Framer Smith, President of the Pennsylvania Bible Institute as the speaker.

Five of our young people are preparing for the ministry; four, are attending Moody Bible Institute, Chicago; and one, Bluffton College. John Boehr, of Bluffton, hopes to graduate next spring and is planning to continue his studies at the Dallas Theological Seminary.

Our Harvest Home services were held on Sunday, September 7. All of the food brought to that festival was given to our pastor and family, Rev. and Mrs. H. D. Burkholder. They will be spending their vacation with their parents in the vicinity of Bluffton, Ohio, September 29 to October 14. While in Ohio they expect to visit the Civilian Public Service Camp, Bluffton, Indiana.

The Lord has been very gracious to us all. May He continue to bless us as we seek to "rescue the perishing" souls among us. His return is sure, yet uncertain as to time, so let us labor faithfully till He comes. —Correspondent

BETHEL MENNONITE CHURCH,

Langdon, North Dakota

In the evening of August 3 the young people rendered a program of welcome at the church for Brother and Sister Dallenburg. Due to heavy rain, many who had planned to be there and some who were to take part in the program could not be there.

The Brethren Mennonite Church, of Rose Hill; the Swiss Mennonite Church, of Alsen; the Salem Church, of Munich; and countless friends and neighbors were invited to help the Bethel Church welcome its co-worker on August 10, at 2:00 P. M. Rev. Ortman, of the Salem Church, made the opening, which was followed by a duet by the Spenst sisters, "Follow Thee." Rev. Ortman then introduced Rev. N. N. Hiebert, of Mountain Lake, Minn., a visiting minister here at the time. Rev. Hiebert spoke on Acts 1:20, 24. He also spoke on the duties and responsibilities of a pastor. This was followed by a quartet, "Let Jesus be the Pilot," by Alvin, Paul, Agnes, and Evelyn Bartel.

Rev. Fadenrecht expressed his pleasure in being able to witness such a change in our church since he had become acquainted here twenty years ago. He spoke of the different pastors who had come here occasionally and how Rev. Edward Duerksen, now of Avon, had been as a Moses sent from God, how he sacrificed for us and how through his labor and sacrifices he had succeeded. He read Joshua 1:5 and spoke to Rev. Duerksen as Moses who had been taken away from us, and that God had sent us a Joshua to lead us on and carry on the work from which Moses had been taken.

This was followed by a trio, "If Jesus Goes with Me," by the Penner sisters. Rev. Ortman spoke on how we as the church would be responsible for the account which our pastor will have to give of us according to Ephesians 18:19. He also read Galatians 6:6 and Isaiah 40:10 and offered the closing prayer. In the name of all the churches present he extended a welcome to Brother and Sister Dallenburg.

After the program a lunch was served in the church basement. God has not only been merciful unto us, but He has indeed blessed us more than words can express. We have much to be thankful for.

IN MEMORIAM

JACOB TIAHRT, son of Peter Tiahrt and Elizabeth Kath, was born on March 5, 1860, in Russia Poland. In the year 1873 he came to America with his parents, living at Detroit, Michigan, for 6 months. After this they journeyed westward and made their home at Yankton, S. D., for seven years, at which time the home was deprived of his mother who was called to be with her Lord. In 1880 the family settled on the homestead three miles east of Dolton, S. D.

Upon his confession of faith he was baptized April 2, 1882, by Elder Christian Kaufman and became a member of the Salem-Zion church, of which he remained a faithful member until his death.

He was joined in holy wedlock with the surviving widow, Katherina Schmidt, on March 5, 1889. Together they shared life's joys and sorrows for 52 years and six months. This home was blessed with two daughters and three sons. The children and their families are as follows: Jacobina, Mrs. A. V. Tieszen, Marion, S. D.; Lena, Mrs. H. J. Ewert, Dolton, S. D.; Albert, Arlington, Virginia; Leon; Newton, Kansas; Waldo, Halstead, Kansas. In 1939 they celebrated their golden wedding.

There are 14 grandchildren in the family. The children and grandchildren all survive him. He alone has gone on before, and we as wife, children, and grandchildren rejoice with him in his peaceful rest in the arms of Jesus. He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Maria Ediger, of Spencer, S. D.

In 1899 he with his family moved to Dolton, S. D., where he was active in the business of grain buying for 35 years until, weakened by his ailment, he found it necessary to retire.

Twenty-two years ago a small sore developed from a pimple on his face. In spite of consulting many doctors and submitting to much treatment the wound gradually grew worse. The ailment which was pronounced as cancer was nursed and uncomplainingly cared for by his dear wife.

His children all visited him during his last days of suffering and assisted in caring for, and comforting, him. He passed away quietly at 6:00 A. M., Sept. 5, 1941, at the age of 81 years and six months.

Funeral services were conducted Sept. 7, 1941, at the Bethesda Church, Marion, S. D., Rev. A. P. Waltner and Rev. Albert Claassen officiating. Interment was made in the Rosehill Cemetery.

The mother and children hereby express their sincere thanks to all kind friends and acquaintances who so kindly assisted in service, visits, words of comfort, prayers, and songs during the illness and death of the beloved husband and father.

From Camper to Friend

Box 1576, Colorado Springs, Colo.
September 6, 1941

Dear Friend,

I surely feel fine over here. The weather has been grand. This morning, however, it was cloudy and misty, and by noon it was snowing as though it were Christmas. Quite often one heard the expression, "Merry Christmas." The camp is located near some hills which provide a nice pastime for me. I enjoy hikes into them.

Our library has a good variety of books and magazines. Each of us was asked what paper he would like to read. Consequently, we get the church papers of practically all the denominations represented. Some of us have our own papers. As far as reading is concerned, I do little. Some of the boys read a lot.

We have a variety of classes already, Spanish, manual training and crafts, first aid, Bible study, music, men's chorus, typing, and bookkeeping. A representative of the Soil Conservation Service gives a lecture each Monday night.

Up till now I have enjoyed the work very much. For eight weeks I worked in the kitchen. At present I have control of a shovel with a long handle. While working in the field, I have often thought of how we do our work. Walter Makens lines up the job. He is from the Soil Conservation Service. He tells us what he wants done, and very often he doesn't come around until the job is done. No one orders us around. The boys like to see the work go forward. There's no shirking from work. We work in groups of about twenty. One of the group is foreman; he receives orders from Mr. Makens.

We go to work in open trucks. At noon they bring a hot lunch to us. This work up till now has been very pleasant.

I have planned to go home for a furlough this month. We get two and one-half days a month. The group of boys that are here mix very well.

As ever, Jake

"Proof that the present system works was offered the conference by General Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Administrator, who said, 'Man for man and camp for camp, the Civilian Public Service Camps are doing two or three times as much work as the CCC camps which occupied the same barracks and did the same work.' The camps are regularly completing work projects far ahead of schedule, providing the government work supervisors who had previously dealt with WPA and the CCC with an amazing new experience when they grumbled, not because there was work to do, but because it was not provided fast enough. The CPS camp near Colorado Springs has the record of doing a measured piece of work in one-seventh the number of man-days required by the CCC. A government official said, 'If the army had the attitude which the CPS camps show, we would not worry about low army morale.' "

Oregon Mennonite Young People's Retreat

The first Oregon Mennonite Young People's Retreat was held at the Silver Creek Recreational area near Silverton, Ore. This was an ideal place for a retreat of this kind.

The four churches of Oregon were represented. The pastors of these churches were our instructors: Rev. D. J. Unruh, from the Emmanuel Mennonite Church, in Pratum; Rev. Homer Leisy, from the Grace Mennonite Church, Dallas; Rev. Arnold Regier, from the Mennonite Church in Portland, and Rev. P. A. Kliewer, from the Mennonite Church in Albany.

It was our privilege to have with us Herbert Franz, from the Menno Church in Washington, and also Mr. and Mrs. Schierling, from Portland. Mrs. Schierling has been active in retreat work at Mountain Lake, Minn.

The classes were interesting and well attended. Campfire services are always impressive. At ours we felt the nearness of God during our testimony and praise service. We plan to have another retreat next year, the Lord willing.

The purpose of this retreat was to draw our young people closer together and to build in us that most holy Faith which will help us to press forward in His service as well as in all of our Christian living. During this time of world confusion our Christian young people need to band together to encourage and admonish one another.

"O magnify the Lord with me and let us exalt His name together."—Martha Gerig, Pratum

YOUNG PEOPLE'S BIBLE CONFERENCE

The young people of the East Swamp Mennonite Church, Quakertown, Pa., of which Harold D. Burkholder is pastor, will sponsor their fourth Bible conference, October 17-19, 1941.

They have engaged as their speaker a prominent Bible teacher from Philadelphia, Pa., Dr. H. Framer Smith, president of the Pennsylvania Bible Institute. Dr. Smith formerly was director of the Pastor's Course at the Moody Bible Institute for seven years and has served as president in several other evangelical institutions.

JOINT SERVICE

The Christian Endeavor societies of the Flatland, West Swamp, and Quakertown churches held a campfire service at "Camp Mennolan," near Finland, on Sunday evening, August 31.

The meeting was in charge of Miss Verna Sell and Mrs. Harry Engleman, of the West Swamp Church. The guest speaker was Mr. Roger Koehler, who spoke on the theme "The Future." Special musical numbers, a reading, and discussions were given by various members of the different societies.

Would it not be a wonderful thing for other C. E. societies to join with their neighboring societies to hold a joint service? Often suggestions are given that are of real worth to the home church.

COMMUNITY YOUTH GROUPS

Program for October 19, 1941

Leading Topic: Other Youth Groups in Our Community, I John 1:3-7.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Rise up, O Men of God!" No. 230; "Who is on the Lord's Side?" No. 190; "Shepherd of Eager Youth," No. 398; "Give of Your Best to the Master," No. 400.
2. Reading of topic, Scripture and Prayer.
3. Group singing.
4. Offering for Civilian Service Camps.

II. Leader's Introduction

Man is a social being. This is especially true of young people. Was it God's purpose in giving mankind this nature to have them learn by living in groups that interest, considerateness, sympathy, helpfulness, unselfishness, and the like are valuable character traits? It cannot be denied that open-minded group life will make for wider appreciation, friendship, fellowship, and growth in unity. Groups can learn from each other as well as individuals. By choosing the same goal there will be growth in unity and strength through the endeavor to achieve that goal or purpose. If a group of spiritually-minded young people will approve and uphold the character building factors in the community life, and show their disapproval of those that work in the opposite direction, they will become the rallying center for many who otherwise would lack the courage to stand alone.

III. Suggested topics for Short Talks

1. A Community Revived	II Kings 11:17-21
2. Religion Restored	Ezra 6:15-22
3. An Ideal to Work For	Micah 4:1-5
4. A Community Call to Youth	Acts 16:6-10
5. Advice to Youth	I Tim. 4:12-16
6. Appeal to Separation	II Cor. 6:14-18

IV. For Discussion

1. What Christian youth groups are there in your community that should co-operate?
2. What other youth groups are there in your community for whom the church youth groups could furnish guidance, and how?
3. Why are youth groups often in a better position to influence other groups than older people are?

V. Facts for Study

A community often has, besides the church or religious groups, youth groups for recreational purposes, social purposes, political purposes, and others. What kind of groups does your community have? How can their efforts and interests be utilized or guided for greater good? Young people rubbing shoulders in the schoolroom, on the athletic field, in society, or at a common task will find that living in the face of the same problems of life will have a marked influence in unifying them and developing similar ideals and standards.

VI. A Selection of Poetry

Break Down the Walls

By John Oxenham

Break down the old dividing walls
Of sect and rivalry and schism,
And heal the body of Thy Christ
With ointment of Thy chrism.

Let the strong wind of Thy sweet grace

Sweep through Thy cumbered house, and chase
The miasms from the Holy Place!

Let Thy white beam of light beat in,
And from each darkest corner win
The shadows that have sheltered sin!

Cleanse it of shibboleths and strife,
End all the discords that were rife,
Heal the old wounds and give new life!

Break down the hedges that have grown
So thickly all about Thy throne,
And clear the paths, that every soul
That seeks Thee — of himself alone
May find, and be made whole!—

One church, one all-harmonious voice,
One passion for Thy high Employs,
One heart of gold without alloys,
One striving for the higher joys,
One Christ, one Cross, one only Lord,
One living of the Holy Word.

I RESOLVE TO STUDY MY BIBLE

Program for October 19, 1941

Call to Worship

The law of Jehovah is perfect, restoring the soul;
The testimony of Jehovah is sure, making wise the simple.
The precepts of Jehovah are right, rejoicing the heart;
The commandment of Jehovah is pure, enlightening the eyes.
The fear of Jehovah is clean, enduring forever;
The ordinances of Jehovah are true, and righteous altogether. (Psalm 19:7-9)

Song: "Beautiful Words of Jesus."

Scripture Reading: Psalm 119:33-40.

Prayer: By Superintendent.

4. That we might increase in peace, Ps. 119:165
5. That we might be able to tell others, Ps. 119:13

Poem: The Spirit's Light

The Spirit breathes upon the Word,
And brings the truth to sight;
Precepts and promises afford
A sanctifying light.

Majestic like the sun;
It gives a light to every age—
It gives, but borrows none.
—Wm. Cowper, F. H. Revell Co.

ABRAHAM, A MAN OF PRAYER

Program for October 19, 1941

I Thessalonians 15:17: "Pray Without Ceasing."

To the leader. If possible secure a good modern map and a Biblical map. Two Juniors could then trace Abraham's journey at the same time as the lesson proceeds. Use a good picture illustrating "prayer" for the worship center, a good picture of an ancient stone altar would be very fitting.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude: Melody of "Sweet Hour of Prayer" by the pianist with violin obligato.
2. Call to worship: "O come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our maker, for He is our God, and we are the people of His pasture and the sheep of His hand," Psalm 95:6, 7a.
3. All sing softly the refrain of "Sweet Hour of Prayer."
4. All heads bowed for a period of silent prayer.
5. Leader's prayer.
6. Scripture reading, Psalm 42, by a Junior boy.
7. Solo: "Sweet Hour of Prayer."
8. A "Sing-Song"—Juniors group about the piano and sing several favorite songs.

II. Study Period

Aim: To acquaint our Juniors with Abraham's prayer life. To arouse a desire for close fellowship with our Heavenly Father.

1. Introduction by a Junior girl:

In ancient times worshipers built altars wherever they pitched their tents, or whenever they had a special occasion to pray to the Lord. These altars were sometimes just mounds of earth, usually, however, they were built of stones. In studying the life of Abraham we find that he, too, built altars to Jehovah and worshiped Him wherever he pitched his tent. In this way Abraham expressed his faith in the Lord God, and consecrated his home (the place where he dwelt) to God.

2. Trio: Verse one of "God Reveals His Presence," The Mennonite Hymnary, No. 506.

3. Altars Set Up by Abraham, by four Juniors.
 (a) At Shechem (Sichem)—Genesis 12:4-7.
  —The first halting place
  —God's promise to Abraham
 (b) At Bethel—Genesis 12:8.
  —What is meant by "called upon the name of the Lord?"
 (c) At Bethel—Genesis 12:10; 13:1-4.
  —The entire family at the place of prayer
 (d) At Hebron—Genesis 13:18.
  —God renews His promise, Gen. 15:1, 5, 7
(Two Juniors at the maps point out the above places.)

4. Discussion of, "The Family Altar," "Grace at Table," by the group.

5. Abraham's Introductory Prayer (Gen. 18:1-33) told by a Junior girl.

6. Memory verse by three Juniors—James 5:16b.

7. Song in unison: "We Praise Thee, O God, Our Redeemer, Creator."

8. Leader's heart talk: "The place of prayer in the life of a Junior."

III. Mission Minutes

Who is Who?

1. What missionary celebrated his fiftieth year of service this month?
2. What missionary recently returned to our country after forty years of service?
3. What missionary was born in Switzerland?
4. What missionary speaks many languages?
5. What missionary has worked among hundreds of lepers?
6. What missionary has translated the Bible into the Cheyenne language?
7. What missionary was the very first to go to India?
8. What missionary do you pray for most?

(Leader: After the answers, pass pictures of the missionaries that answer the "Who is Who?")

IV. Closing Moments.

1. Memorize verses 3 and 4 of the song of the month, "When We Walk With the Lord."
2. Repeat from memory the verse of the month, Gen. 17:1b.
3. Pray together the prayer of the month, Psalm 86:11a, 12.

had arrived. The first necessary work in the customs department went very quickly. We had carefully declared our goods, and the customs official got the impression that we had done the proper thing so he asked us very few questions and finished us off in a hurry. But our freight was still in the hold of the ship. All we had, by now, was what we would call in America, our express parcels. Our ship did not come to the wharf until late in the evening of the same day. We with our express parcels came to shore at 1:00 P. M. After the customs business, we went to the depot where they have a nice waiting room. Here we planned to stay until the next evening, which we thought would be plenty of time to clear our freight and arrange other matters.

Early the next morning we took care of some business in the market, and then I went to the ship again to see whether our freight had come off already. We had a total of eleven boxes. I found that two boxes had come off. But to my disappointment the other nine came off at such great intervals that it was three o'clock in the afternoon before the last was off. Then I could not get a truck right away to take these boxes to the customs house. At six o'clock Mrs. Thiessen's train left for Champa, and Eleanor and I were to go to the mountains, our train leaving at 6:15. I became nervous. Thinking had to be done in a hurry now. So I decided to leave the eleven boxes with our Christian brother, Wilson, who had come to Bombay to meet us, and I would hurry off to get Mrs. Thiessen and Muriel on the train for Champa, with all our express parcels, and Eleanor and I would stay over another twenty-four hours. This was done, but it required a lot of perspiration. I had forgotten how slow things move in the Orient.

The next day, which was already the 7th, I went to the ship again. I learned that the American Express Co. had taken our eleven boxes to the customs house. I went there as soon as they opened, which was at nine in the morning. I presented my wishes and asked to have the boxes cleared. The reply came that another ship had come in and all the officers had gone to tend to the business on that ship, and none would be ready to wait on me until four o'clock that afternoon. Well, then I became excited. I had not come to India to stay in Bombay. I asked whether I might see one of the chiefs. This was granted. I told the gentleman in all earnestness that I had already missed my train yesterday, and if no one could wait on me until 4:00 P. M. then I would surely miss the train again today; and my daughter was already two months late for school. At first he was hard and said, "Everybody is in a hurry, you are no exception." I told him that I granted that; and then I repeated my request again. Finally he said rather sharply: "Where are your goods?" Although that came in sharpness, yet it gave me hope. I had seen to it that they were all on one pile. So I told him that they were right down the stairs and near-by. He took my declaration sheet and came fast. He asked me then what this box contained and that box. I could answer as quickly as he asked, and he cleared my eleven boxes as quickly as it takes to write this. Then I called the American Express man who promised he would take all to the freight depot and bring me the freight bill to the train before our train would leave. I felt a big relief and went back to the depot and took a nice sleep. Our train time came, but no American Express man appeared with my freight bills. And actually, our train left and I did not have the bills. How I felt you can imagine. But we took the train in faith. From the first stop station I wrote a letter to one of the missionaries in Bombay whom I knew, telling him my story, and asking him whether he would inquire at the office of the American Express Co. whether all was right with the freight, and asking that the freight bills be sent to Dr. Bauman at Champa. From now on all I could do was to trust that everything would be done right. And, thank God, it was. The freight bill came to Dr. Bauman, and after ten days our eleven boxes were in Champa.

WHOLESOME, HELPFUL BOOKS

WITH CHRIST ON THE EDGE OF THE JUNGLES

By S. T. Moyer

The descriptive title of the book indicates the interesting nature of its contents. Rev. S. T. Moyer, who since 1920 has served as a missionary in India under the auspices of the General Conference Board of Foreign Missions, has in simple, but forceful, language told of the triumphant struggle in their endeavor to win the outcasts of India's millions to an acceptance of Jesus Christ.

It is the story of Christ's work as carried on, not by one or two missionaries, but as Rev. Moyer states, "Lives of at least a dozen missionaries have intimately touched this work and guided it." Throughout the book the reader is made conscious of the author's complete renunciation of all credit for work done on the edge of the jungles of India as well as in the "jungle of man-soul," giving all credit to the One who called them into this work.

The book is divided into three main sections: (A) The Background of the Story; (B) Bringing to Birth a Church; and (C) An Awakened and Growing Church. These sections are divided into a total of sixteen chapters bearing such descriptive titles as "Doors Open on Rusty Hinges," "Bhuts: Spirits of the Air," "With Christ Among the Lowly," "The Millstones of Poverty," "Roaring Lions in the Jungles," "The Spirit of God on the March," etc. The book is an acknowledgment of the power of Christ on the edge of the jungles in India, the power of prayer from the homebase, and the grace of God in the lives of those who labor with Christ on the edge of the jungles.

THE MIND OF CHRIST

By Dan Gilbert

In this book, The Mind of Christ: What It Is and How to Possess It, Dr. Gilbert tries to show that the "mind of Christ" is the only true guide, the only source of real intellectual power, and the only standard of eternal truth. He discusses the futility of trying to create mental power by "self-improvement" or through conformity to the standards of the intellectual fashion world.

His discussions are centered around the following nine chapter heads: Intellectual Fads and Fashions, The Open Mind and the Empty Mind, The Broad Mind, The One-Track Mind, The Liberal Mind, The Free Mind, The Rational Mind, The Mind of Satan, and The Mind of Christ. The book is written in popular style making it easy to read and understand.

GEORGE MULLER, THE MAN OF FAITH

By Basil Miller

In this book of 159 pages Dr. Basil Miller, well-known author and Bible lecturer, has portrayed the life of George Muller, one of the greatest prayer warriors of the past century. It is a wonderful testimony to the power and grace of God in the life of this man who came to an experience with God out of a sinful, riotous youth. The many aspects of Mr. Muller's life are dealt with under such chapter headings as: Sin-Darkened Youth, The Youth Learns to Pray, Mastering Lessons of Trust, The Birth of a New Idea, Into His Life's Work at Last, Trusting God for Daily Supplies, Building for God and Orphans, Undertaking Greater Things for God, Carrying Faith's Message to the World, The Scriptural Knowledge Institution, Trials of Faith, Gifts and Giving, The Evening of His Life, and His Lengthening Shadow.

The biography of this man of faith leads the reader to realize the power there is in prayer and faith. The reader will be blessed through the reading of this book.

SIGHT SERMONS

By Elmer L. Wilder

This book of object lessons will be a help to any worker with children. The author puts forth an effort to make various spiritual truths clear to children through the means of object lessons. The spirit of the book is expressed by the author in the preface when he says: "In the words of the Master, 'Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not' (Mark 10:14), we have the authority for, and technique of, child evangelism. The majority of children will, when properly evangelized and given the opportunity, accept Christ as a personal Saviour, without being over-persuaded. . . . It is my prayer that the Lord of the harvest will bless these lessons as they are entrusted to those who seek to bring children to a saving knowledge of Christ."

The book contains 76 object lessons, each illustrated by Ransom D. Marvin. A few of the titles and subjects are as follows: It's Well to Tell (Testimony); Faith Fills (Satisfaction); The Can Cousins (Witnessing); Patchwork (Righteousness); Cheerful or Tearful (Giving); Ringing True (Consistency); People and Paper (Influence); Pens and People (Service); Nails and Nations (World Peace).

Visitors Welcome

Looking about in our towns and cities, one sees so many signs reading, "No Tresspassing," or "Keep Off the Grass," that one expects to find them everywhere. However, there are some exceptions. In a certain town there is, bordering on a busy highway, a beautiful private garden, and a sign that says, "Visitors Welcome."

The owner of this garden knows the magic of sharing his possessions with others. He might selfishly admire and enjoy alone the rare and beautiful flowers that bloom in his garden, but he is generously passing their beauty and fragrance on to others. He has found that his garden gives him a thousand fold more joy when he shares it with others. Through the eyes of visitors he sees beauty in his garden which he had not suspected was there; and by being friendly to others, he has encouraged and received the friendship of others.

This reminds us of the words of Jesus when he said, "Give, and it shall be given unto you." The givers always lead the richest lives, while those who have "Keep Out" signs in their hearts are invariably dwarfed personalities. When we open the gates to our hearts and minds and share with others the beauty, joy and courage that comes into our lives, we find our own happiness multiplied manyfold. —S.

Sowers of Good Seed

Perhaps no question is asked with more eagerness or with more earnestness than this: "What can the individual do under circumstances such as surround us today?"

The feeling of being a mere number or a helpless pawn is not enjoyed by anyone who has any self-respect left. That is why so many feel that things are altogether out of their place now when the individual is being discounted more and more and respected less and less. The question is one of deep meaning to those who raise it. Many are raising it in despair. They feel there is no answer. Others feel that there ought to be an answer even though nobody seems to be quite clear as to what that answer is for the moment.

A suggestive answer was given to this question during the war of 1914-1918. It was as follows: "When everything seems to be going dead wrong keep feeding on the good!" There is a lot of food for thought in this homely statement.

Long before the foregoing words were uttered, Jesus talked about sowers and sowing with emphasis. Himself a carpenter, He had not lost sight of the fascinating magic of Nature—Growth! He must have spent many of His leisure hours walking through

Sowing and Reaping

Sow with a generous hand;
Pause not for toil or pain,
Weary not through the heat of summer,
Weary not through the cold spring rain;
But wait till the autumn comes
For the sheaves of golden grain.

Scatter the seed and fear not,
A table will be spread;
What matter if you are too weary
To eat your hard-earned bread?
Sow while the earth is broken,
For the hungry must be fed.

Sow while the seeds are lying
In the warm earth's bosom deep,
And your warm tears fall upon it—
They will stir in their quiet sleep;
And the green blades rise the quicker,
Perchance, for the tears you weep.

Then sow, for the hours are fleeting,
And the seed must fall today,
And care not what hands shall reap it—
Or if you'll have passed away
Before the waving cornfields
Shall gladden the sunny day.

Sow and look onward, upward,
Where the starry light appears—
Where, in spite of the coward's doubting
Or your own heart's trembling fears,
You shall reap in joy the harvest
You have sown today in tears.

—Author unknown

the fields and woods. He saw things as they appeared, apparently from nothing, until they reached a useful and beautiful maturity. He was fascinated by the wonder of it, and never tired to call the attention of His followers to the lessons to be drawn from the phenomenon of growth in Nature.

The sower seemed to appeal to Jesus very definitely. One cannot help but feel that He looked upon God, whom He called Father, as the Great Sower. He had respect for the man who faced the heavy toil of sowing with a great purpose. "Behold, a sower went forth to sow!" Then He saw men who took time to select the seed to be sown with great care. It must be Good seed!

This thought of sowing and its lessons was readily transferred to the spiritual realm by Jesus. Perhaps herein we will find the true answer to our question. The individual may continue to sow. His influence may be handicapped by circumstances, but it need not be stopped. Good seed of the Spirit may be sown in many ways. Words are not always necessary. They may even be a hindrance. All of the finer ways of understanding which the Love of God has taught men can be brought into action until many things occur which would have been impossible without the attitude of the sower. Such a one does not give up simply because present circumstances seem or are unfavorable. Such a one sows the Good Seed which has been given him from God.—Bulletin, First Menn. Church, Reedley, Calif.

PUBLICATION

REV. WEINBRENNER TO EDIT THE MENNONITE

The opinion quite generally prevails among the readers of "The Mennonite" that the General Conference lost an efficient editor when Dr. J. R. Thierstein passed away. The Publication Board was fortunate to find in Miss Mary Becker of Newton, Kansas, a good substitute. But since she was planning to go into the Foreign Mission field, her work on the Mennonite could only be temporary. Consequently the Board has been searching for a suitable person who might take over the editorship of the paper permanently.

Feelers were put out and various persons contacted. Finally, after much prayer and meditation, a call was extended to Rev. R. Weinbrenner, pastor of the Second Mennonite Church of Beatrice, Nebr., and upon prayerful consideration he decided to accept the call, provided his church would be willing to grant him the necessary time to do this work in addition to his pastoral duties. Realizing the importance of the work, and being pervaded with the feeling of loyalty to the Conference, permission was granted and, the Lord willing, Rev. Weinbrenner will take over the editorship of the Mennonite by the middle of October.

The position is one that requires much ability, tact and wisdom, but it also offers great opportunity for rendering valuable service to the individual readers of the paper, to the conference generally, and to the Kingdom of God as a whole. For this reason the Publication Board bespeaks for Rev. Weinbrenner the brotherly co-operation and the sincere prayers of the constituency of the General Conference.

The Mennonite Hymnary

Edited by W. H. Hohmann and Lester Hostetler

The second edition of this new Hymn Book is just off the press and a large number of copies have already been sold. As is inevitable in so large a work, some minor errors crept into the first edition, which, incidentally, was sold out within a few months of its publication in December of 1940. These have been eliminated by the editors in the second edition in so far as they have come to their notice.

The book contains over six hundred hymns suitable for use for all church meetings as well as Sunday School and Young People's meetings. The editors kept in mind the importance of congregational singing in making their selections. A distinctive feature of the book is the selection of over 70 of the German chorales. About twenty of them appear with the German text printed at the bottom of the page. There is a selection of over thirty well chosen hymns for children and a collection of sixty-five of the best of the Gospel songs. A section of metrical Psalms and choral responses are found at the end of the book as well as a selected list of responsive readings, prayers and other aids to worship. The latter were compiled by a special committee composed of Dr. C. E. Krehbiel, A. E. Kreider, and J. N. Smucker.

The book aims to conserve the best of our heritage in Christian hymnody. It has been well received in our churches and has met with much favorable comment from authorities in church music outside our own denomination. The CHRISTIAN CENTURY says of it: "one of the most attractive and best edited of the recent church hymnals." The cost is $1.40 per copy, postpaid. Twelve or more copies, $1.15, not prepaid.

The Holy Spirit Our Helper

John 3:5-8; Acts 1:8; Rom. 8:26-28; Gal. 5:22-26

Topic: WHAT THE HOLY SPIRIT DOES FOR US

Introduction

Christianity is the only one of all the religions on earth which teaches that there is a personal, divine Holy Spirit who is able to dwell in us, teach us, transform us, comfort, help and guide us aright. He is not merely an influence that goes out from God. Christ places the Spirit on a level with the Father and the Son (Matt. 28:19), implying both his personality and his true deity. Our lesson reveals four aspects of the Spirit's work.

The Holy Spirit Regenerates. Jno. 3:5-8

The Holy Spirit is that person of the Godhead through whom the power of God is exercised in all things pertaining to religious experience. Jesus was talking to Nicodemus, a member of the Sanhedrin (vs. 1). He described regeneration to him as a divine work in which one is "born of the Spirit." Jesus sums up all he said to this earnest inquirer in vs. 5. The expression is general and applies to all persons. No one can see God's kingdom unless he is born from above. Water is symbolic of a thorough spiritual purification by the operation of the Holy Spirit. The necessity of a new birth is imperative and absolute. Millions of people have experienced its reality and know that a deep-seated change has taken place within their hearts. The Spirit is like the wind (vs. 8) which is invisible, yet none the less real. It can be heard and felt, and the work and effect of it is clearly visible. So is the effect of the Spirit in a life.

The Spirit Gives Power. Acts 1:8

Jesus turns the disciples' attention from times and seasons (vs. 7) to their own duty of witnessing for Him. He promises to them the power to do this after the Holy Spirit is come upon them. This power would enable them to witness effectively in a world of sin. God gives power and ability to be used, not merely for personal enjoyment. We are to be witnesses as God gives us power and opportunity.

The Spirit Helps Us to Pray. Rom. 8:26-28

Sometimes people merely say prayers, and sometimes they really pray. Our ignorance in prayer is apparent. By nature we favor the flesh and the material things. Neither in manner of praying nor in what we pray for, do we satisfy the Lord. Prayer in the Spirit, in which the Spirit helps us to pray, gives fervor to our thanksgiving and praise and directs us in our petitions; brings response from God. The Spirit arouses deep and intense yearnings—"groanings"—which defy expression in words. If we live close to God in Spirit-led prayer, all things and all experiences will work out for our good in the development of Christian character.

The Spirit Produces Fruit. Gal. 5:22-26

A very important result of the presence of the Spirit in one's heart and life is the producing of fruit, the Christian graces which Paul enumerates (vss. 22, 23). There is within us a constant struggle between the flesh and the Spirit (vs. 17). These Christian graces are wholly the work of the Spirit. First and foremost of these is love. He who has true love will have the others also. The more Christ-like a person is, the more do these graces and virtues abound. They who are Christ's have definitely renounced every sinful thing connected with the fleshly appetite. The Holy Spirit is a living reality in the world and is available for our help and guidance.

What results might we expect if the whole church were Spirit-filled?

How does one "walk in the Spirit" (vs. 25)?

Where are we individually to be witnesses?

He That Hath No Sword

"He that hath no sword, let him sell his garment, and buy one."

This passage of scripture, Luke 22:36, is used by the militarist to justify his position. Many different interpretations can be given this passage if it is taken out of its setting. But if we keep in mind the fundamental principle of the teachings of Jesus in regard to peace, we have no trouble in understanding this passage. Through His ministry, Jesus placed supreme emphasis upon love, sacrifice, good will and peace. Can we imagine Jesus instantly turning and recommending the purchase of impliments of war and destruction? Were the conditions such that they needed swords? Jesus predicted that they should drink the cup of bitterness and death that he was to drink; then why should they shrink from drinking the cup when their master drank it?

The feast of the unleavened bread was at hand. Jesus desired to eat the passover with his disciples for the last time. He knew what was in the heart of Judas. He knew Judas would betray him into the hands of His enemies. It was His desire that they eat the passover without being interrupted. He sends Peter and John to prepare the room. He did not tell the disciples where they would eat the passover, but He told the two that they should go

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

QUARTERLY REPORT

Mauhadih, 2nd quarter, 1941

Dear Brethren of the Foreign Mission Board:

Since my last report the good work of God's Spirit has been going on. The total number of persons baptized since Christmas from among non-Christians has now reached ten. The last person who took the step came alone and I asked him: "Do you not want to wait until your wife is ready too?" "No", he said, "I have testified in the village that I am becoming a Christian now, and I do not want to go back on my word." I also warned him about ulterior motives, that if he were secretly expecting to be fed or have his debts cleared, etc., he would be sadly disillusioned afterwards, that under such circumstances he better turn back. But he insisted that he was becoming a Christian only for the salvation of his soul. So I finally baptized him.

And there are others in whom the Gospel message is working. Three families who were baptized by Duerksen and Wiens report that their immediate relatives are becoming inquirers. In a village on the Western edge of our area there lives a young married man who has not yet taken baptism, but who preaches to his people to repent and accept the salvation in Christ. There is a young man in the village of Tal-Deori (where we have had so many disappointments as well as victories) who is one of the village owners, and he is continually striving with his relatives to permit him to become a Christian.

My wife went to the hills in the middle of April to make a home for the Ratzlaffs as they began their language study. In the middle of May I also went up. In the middle of June Ratzlaffs went into a boarding house and we came home.

Thiessens arrived in India just before I left for the hills. They are now well settled in Basna. With their coming we have transferred some more equipment from Mauhadih to Basna, as furniture, safe, other office equipment, and some cattle and roofing tin.

We are glad that we got back to our station before heavy rains set in, and that we found every thing normal here.

Before leaving for the hills I had the joy of reinstating several persons who had been under church discipline, but also had to excommunicate two others. One of these last has since shown a repentent spirit.

Sincerely yours

F. J. Isaac

FROM ONE HOME TO THE OTHER

(Seventh Continuation)

From America on we had planned that I would take our daughter Eleanor to the mountains, where our children studied before we came to America in 1939. Since we knew that our arrival in India would be several weeks or even months later than the opening of school on the mountains, we felt sure that there would be no chance of sending Eleanor with anybody else. But in these abnormal times other missionaries have to do the uncommon as well as we. There were several more missionary families on our ship who went right up to Landour (where the mountain school for children is located), and Eleanor might have gone along with some of them. But I had promised Mr. J. C. Regier, of Buhler, Kansas, to go up to see his daughter and son-in-law to give them a personal word about the tragic accident of Mrs. Ratzlaff's mother. Also, the last days on board ship, I developed bad tooth trouble. Since we know that there is an American dentist on the mountains, I took this chance to go to see him.

In thirty-six hours we were to arrive on the mountains. But when we had traveled about five hours from Bombay, all of a sudden our train stopped, and stopped for seven hours. A freight train had run off the tracks and we just had to wait. This meant that we missed our train in Delhi and would have to add twenty-four hours to our thirty-six hours before we would get to the mountains. The heat was terrific, the hottest time of the year. And the engine smoke (Indian engines burn a cheap coal) and the dust just covered us. Eleanor got so tired of it that she thought it was too hot and dusty to be a missionary. I tried to comfort her by telling her that heat and dirt are only among the smallest problems and difficulties a missionary has to face. We had to wait for our train then in Delhi for about fifteen hours. We took this chance to go to see some of the important scenes of the capitol of India. Delhi was already the capitol of India before the British came. The so-called Moghul rulers built some marvelous mansions in this city. Over four hundred years ago the king by the name of Shah Jahan built his court rooms and palace, and those buildings are still there. However many of the precious stones, inlaid in marble, have been removed (most of them stolen) through the centuries. There are enough there yet to see what marvelous beauty it must have been when new. One room is entirely finished out with mirrors. All through the enormous building fresh water was running, from six to twelve inches deep and some six feet wide. The bottom of this "run" used to be laid out with silver strips so that the water always sparkled. Then he had silver fish swimming in the water. Another room contained

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGE

By Joanna S. Andres, Newton, Kansas

I Know

In this time of world unrest and tragedy, the rapid changing of events and the birth of new national movements, the Christian naturally turns to the Book of Revelation for the answer to his questioning heart.

This period in which we are living is not much different from the time that gave birth to the revelations written down by the disciple John. There was suffering then as we have suffering now, though we might say that we have it on a larger scale, but do we? Is not suffering endured individually and not by a group or a nation? As we have them now, so at that time there were martyrs, prisoners, men and women homeless, desolate, hated, pursued, and exiled.

It was to the Christian Church of the first century, at a time when the persecuting forces of Rome were raging against it, that the message of the book of Revelation came. Surely, many a believer's heart must have grown faint in the tragedies of life that were forced upon it. May we not believe that this revelation of Christ came to the church at this time because it was in need of it? Certainly, it held a direct message of hope and courage for the fainting, questioning heart.

What a quickening surge of strength must have pulsed in the lives of the believers when the epistle from the beloved elder was unrolled and the content read to them. The message must have traveled fast from group to group meeting in secret places throughout Asia. Many dimmed and tired eyes must have grown bright with joy and hope in those gatherings. I do not doubt that the tears fell and that the hearts of the listeners truly "burned within." There must have been a holy silence at the close of the reading, a silence that comes to the human heart when the Divine draws near in His overpowering fullness. And after such a silence comes the weeping of the overflowing heart—the overflowing with love and praise and adoration. Might it not have been so? Oh, could they only have shouted out the fullness within, what a mighty song of praise that would have been! But they needed to be still, for the ear of Rome heard well. With what inner strength they must have left those meetings, facing the future unafraid, though that future bring them death.

They had seen their Lord again! They had seen Him walking in the midst of them and He had said, "I know." They had seen the blood of the church avenged by His hand and preserved to be His own, to dwell with Him. They had seen sin and Satan overthrown and their Christ become the mighty Victor over all. He had once become the Alpha in their life, this they knew, this they had experienced, and now He had shown them that He would also be their Omega. Wondrous truth!

Yes, the Lord had said, "I know." Does that not also comfort our hearts at this time? Many of us have become restless and fearful as we have watched nation after nation entering the present conflict, even our America. Is it not healing to know that in the midst of all the sin and hatred, and the sorrow and suffering which they create, stands the Mighty One saying, "I know?"

As He gave the great vision of Himself to the church of Asia in the time of its need, so may He show Himself to us in this time of chaos as the Designer of the events in the history of this world, events that are planned stitches in the pattern of the redemption plan. May we see Him as the last Conqueror of empires to rise and fall, at whose feet shall fall the nations of the world. May we see Him who once became the Alpha of world history, become its glorious Omega when sin shall be no more.

Until that day when the "great voices in heaven" shall announce, "The kingdom of the world is become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ: and He shall reign for ever and ever" (Rev. 11:15), until that day there must be struggle. But having the visions of the final Victor and the assurance of His constant nearness, Himself within us, let us face the future with the convictions of Paul:

> "I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor death, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Rom. 8:38, 39).

"I know," said the Christ.

Foreign Missions

the rose-water fountain. From each rose a differently flavored perfume water came. In this the king and queen bathed. Truly, those old kings tried to make for themselves a heaven on earth.

We also went to the so-called largest Mohammedan church (mosque) in India. It is supposed to be the second largest in the world. The one in Cairo, which we saw twelve years ago, is the largest. Since it was Friday when we were in Delhi we had a chance to see the great worship of the Mohammedans. At one o'clock some fifteen thousand gathered to worship Allah. It was real picturesque to see fifteen thousand worshipers do exactly the same thing at the same time. There was unison, as one can hardly find it anywhere else in the world. We also went to see the present capitol of Delhi, called New Delhi. There we see something of the most magnificent art of the present day. A deep yearning went through a person's breast that the war might not spread to India so that those most beautiful buildings might not be destroyed.

Finally we arrived on the mountains, some seven thousand feet above sea level. Now we were out of the great heat, and one could heave a sigh of relief. Those of our fellow missionaries who were on the mountains greeted us most fraternally. They were our newer missionaries, the Orlando Waltners and Harold Ratzlaffs. Those missionaries who had come to the mountains for a brief rest were Mrs. F. J. Isac, Miss Augusta Schmidt, and Miss Helen Nickel. Besides these, all the children of school age are also here, viz., the Bauman children, the Duerksen children, Teddy Moyer, and Donald Isaac. All were as happy as could be. The only cloud on the faces of some was that just recently the news of the death of Rev. P. R. Schroeder had arrived in India.

My stay on the mountains was very short. I saw the dentist who advised me to have two main teeth pulled by our own doctors, so that I could remain quiet for the after effects. Then I stayed for Sunday morning church, since it was Saturday afternoon when we arrived. In the church I met many of our missionary friends whom we have known during these long years of service in India. Eleanor met former classmates and other school friends. She felt very much at home right away. Late Sunday afternoon I left for our home in India. On the way I had to change trains, and it happened to be in Allahabad, a large city, where Mr. Parker, the former principal of the mountain school, lives. Mr. and Mrs. Parker had charge of the school all the years that our boys, Harold and Aruthur, were in school. The Parkers were in Amerca recently while we were there. In fact, they visited us twice in Bluffton. They returned to India a little more than a month before we did, and when they were here about three weeks Mrs. Parker died. The shock was very hard. They also left two children in America.

On the 13th of May I arrived in Champa. Mrs. Thiessen had arrived on the 7th. Brother Dr. Dester had come from Basna, nearly a hundred miles, to Champa to get us in his car. But since I was delayed twice for twenty-four hours, he had not been able to wait for me. When I arrived he had already gone to Basna with Mrs. Thiessen and Muriel and the goods. At the Champa railway station all the missionaries on the plains met and welcomed me. P. A. Penners were missing. As far as we know we passed them at Penang. We left Penang during the day, and they arrived there in the evening of that day. So we have not had a chance to meet them. Sorry. The welcome by our fellow missionaries and our Christians was very hearty. One felt at home. How grand will it be some day when we will meet our dear ones in the eternal home. There will be a "meeting again" with no unpleasant feeling that parting time will come again. And above all else, there we shall see Him who has called us and loved us and saved us, face to face, never to part again. How glorious the hope.

As fine as the welcome in Champa, and as much as one felt the sense of belonging, yet it was not the destination looked for. It was not quite HOME yet. I stayed in Champa one day to rest a bit because I had had seven nights of disturbance, mostly on trains, trying to sleep on hard benches. No pullman on the trains we go in. On May 15 I took the train again, going a little over one hundred miles in a southwesterly direction, and then on a bus for a hundred miles in a southeasterly direction, till we came to Basna village. There the brethren Dester and Duerksen met me. It was now only five miles to the mission station. What a feeling, finally to arrive at the place which shall for eight years, by the grace of God, be our home. Here, God willing, we shall help Him for eight years build His kingdom. Here, by His grace, we shall do all we can for eight years to lead India's boys to follow Christ and to live a useful life, daily, with Christ. Here for eight years we hope to teach our youth of India the practical phases of life: agriculture and various types of handwork, and prepare them to help other to Christ. Yes, the task is big and long. The job is mountain high. But we are not without guidance and help from above. We also know first hand that we have a praying conference and churches behind us. We are aware of the undergirding from God and men; hence we rejoice and go on starting our work with confidence and joy. We resolve to write you often, but as I said before, we deal with souls daily, yes, hourly, and if letter writing is sometimes pushed aside, it is not done willfully. We want to write, but so often present duties crowd out good intentions. So have patience with us, and kindly keep on remembering us before the throne of grace all through the eight years or as long as our Heavenly Father chooses to use us in our home with our beloved people of India.

With warmest greetings,

into the city and: "When ye are entered into the city, there shall a man meet you, bearing a pitcher of water; follow him into the house where he entereth in, and ye shall say unto the goodman of the house, 'The Master saith unto thee, where is the guestchamber, where I shall eat the passover with my disciples?' and he shall shew you a large upper room furnished; there make ready." Judas had to stay with the disciples and Jesus in order to know where they were going to eat the passover lamb.

Peter and John go to find that place. I see them going to prepare for the passover. I hear them talking about Jesus' prediction that he should be delivered to the enemies and they would kill him. I can hear Peter suggest to John that they get swords and hide them in the room so they can defend Jesus when the time came. This done, they waited for Jesus and the other disciples.

The others finally came. All was ready. As they sat at the table eating the passover, Jesus broke the bread and gave it to them. He gave them the cup also saying (Lk. 22:20-21), "This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you. But behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table." The plot is now exposed. Judas leaves the room and meets the priests and tells them where Jesus may be found. The others quarrel as to who should have the foremost place in His kingdom. Jesus told them they would all be offended in him and all would leave him. Peter, knowing that the swords were secretly hidden in the room, vowed that he would never leave Jesus even though all others leave him.

This put Peter on the defensive, and he had been thinking how the sword could be used in case Jesus would be attacked. (Lk. 22:35) Jesus calls their attention to the fact that they were taken care of and lacked nothing when he sent them out on the mission. They were without purse, scrip or shoes, and yet lacked nothing. To this statement they said nothing. Here Jesus in an ironical manner told them: "He that hath no sword, let him sell his garment, and buy one." In modern language we would say that Peter and John "bit." They then revealed their secret and said to Jesus: "Lord we have two swords." To this Jesus replied: "It is enough."

What were two swords over against the great number of enemy weapons! Jesus wished to teach them the absurdity of dependence upon material defenses and the complete fallacy of the use of the sword. As we find in Mt. 26:52, after Peter had cut off the servant's ear, Jesus healed it and said: "Put up again the sword into its place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." The sword belonged in the sheath where it could do no harm. This lesson his disciples never forgot. And for me it is one of the greatest lessons of nonresistance. "He that taketh the sword shall perish with the sword."

CORRESPONDENCE

GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH

Dallas Oregon

Greetings with Proverbs 3:5 and 6: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart: and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall dirdect thy paths." How thankful we should be that we have these precious promises and can trust in the Lord in this world of chaos, for if we were to trust in our own understanding we would soon be lost.

In my last letter to the Mennonite I mentioned that we were going to hold our first retreat in Oregon from August 29 to September 1. We were privileged to enjoy this. It was successful far beyond our expectations. We were deeply moved and felt God had blessed us richly. The theme of our retreat was, "I Choose Christ," John 6:67-69. The teachers and subjects taught were, "Search the Scriptures" by Rev. Homer Leisy, "Challenges in the Christian Life" by Rev. P. A. Kliewer, "Christian Stewardship" by Rev. D. J. Unruh. Rev. Herman Wiebe, of Dallas, was in charge of the consecration services, and Rev. Arnold Regier was recreation leader.

On June 18 Vivian Frieda Dyck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Dyck, of Dallas, and Aron Eddie Schellenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aron Schellenberg, of Deer Creek, Oklahoma, were united in marriage. It was a beautiful and impressive ceremony.

During the summer we've been privileged to have several missionaries and guest speakers with us. On June 15 Miss Katherine Dyck from Nigeria, W. Africa, gave us a very interesting talk and showed pictures. June 24 Dr. H. A. Fast spoke to us in the interests of the C. O. camps. For a while it was thought that one of these camps would be located in Oregon, but since they were unable to secure a camp it will probably be some place in Washington. Miss Aganetha Fast from China brought us interesting messages, June 24, in the evening, and June 27, in the morning.

Last Sunday night, September 14, Rev. Homer Leisy brought us the report from the General Conference. By showing his moving pictures he took us on a tour to the Conference and back. The church was filled to capacity. Quite a few visitors from our neighboring churches also attended.

On October 13 the Beacon Bible School will open its doors to Christian young people. They will have six months of school this year instead of five months as previously. We praise God that we have such a school in our midst, which is grounded on the fundamental principles. —Helen Thiessen, Corr.

OUR COLLEGES

Bethel College

Registration up to September 15 stood at 275 as compared with 292 at the same time last year. Completion of registration will probably show a slight reduction in the number of students over last year. These losses are due principally to the fact that many of the young men of college age are in the Conscriptive Service Camps.

Work on the Memorial Hall is progressing somewhat slowly but surely. When completed it will seat nearly 3,000 people and, in addition, will provide room for the college dining hall and gymnasium. The building will be a fine tribute to the loyalty and devotion of our people and their interest in higher education. It will also provide a central meeting place for conferences and other large gatherings.

The Fall Mixer on Friday evening, September 12, was sponsored by the Student Council. The meeting was held on the lawn of the Science Hall. A special feature in connection with the pragram was the introduction of the faculty members. Elinor Krehbiel introduced the members, and each appeared to the accompaniment of an appropriate, original choral number rendered by a select chorus. The weather was fine and all had a good time.

At least five of the '41 class are planning to prepare for the ministry. They are in the following institutions: Jacob Enz, Newton, Kan., White Biblical Seminary, New York City; Wesley Ewert, Drake, Sask., Hartford Theological Seminary; Roland Goering, Moundridge, Hartford Theological Seminary; Elbert Koontz, Valeda, Kans., Bonebrake Seminary, Dayton, Ohio; Orlo Kaufman, Moundridge, Kan., Garrett Biblical Seminary, Chicago.

Prof. Hohmann has been conducting try-outs for the college A Cappella Choir. The choir may not be as large this year as last on account of the smaller number of men's voices available.

Felix J. Schrag, '35, who has served as Field Secretary for the college for over two years, has left with Mrs. Schrag for Chicago where he will do graduate work in social ethics and rural sociology in the University of Chicago.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Alvin J. Miller to Appear in Vesper Service

Alvin J. Miller, assistant professor of education at Kent State university, and a former Mennonite relief worker in Russia, will speak at the first Bluffton college Vesper service of this year on the subject, "The New Paganism in Europe." The Vesper choir will also be included on the program . Services will start at 3 p. m. in the college Chapel, Sunday, September 28.

Richard Weaver, Bluffton college senior from Goshen, Indiana, Magdalene Oyer, junior from Bluffton, and Arthur Thiessen, sophomore from Basna, Central Province, India, have been awarded honor scholarships for leading their respective classes in scholarship and general student activity. Inasmuch as all three students already possess scholarships, their reward is not of a financial nature, but of an honorary nature only.

Rev.Whitmer Addresses College Church

Rev. P. E. Whitmer, former pastor of the Grace Church, Pandora, addressed members of the Bluffton college church organization as they were assembled for their regular service Sunday evening, September 21, in the First Mennonite Church. His subject was "An adequate faith for our day."

Harold Thiessen, junior, played a violin solo for the occasion. Robert Sommer, senior, acted in the capacity of chairman.

Y.W.C.A. Members to Be Installed

Installation services for new Bluffton college Y.W.C.A. members will be held Wednesday evening, September 24, in the college Chapel. Miss Lucile Tschantz, president of the organization, will present the aims and pledge of the "Y" in a candlelit atmosphere, after which all members will light their own individual candles and march in procession from the Chapel, across the campus, to the baseball diamond. Group singing of hymns will conclude the program.

Gospel Teams Meet

A joint meeting of the Women's and Men's Gospel teams of Bluffton college was held Thursday evening, September 18, at the college cabin. Thelma Daily, women's president, and Bob Sommer, men's president, led the group in singing. Herbert Fretz led in devotions, reading and interpreting the Scriptures and offering prayer.

Two sacred numbers of music were offered by the women's quartet, after which Mrs. S. Floyd Pannabecker gave the evening's address. She spoke of the place and importance of the Gospel teams on the campus today.

"What Shall We Do?"

Are you in a C. E. program committee that is "stumped" as to what kind of program should be put on? Do you feel that your programs are stale from a lack of variety and from the failure to meet the actual spiritual needs of your members? If so, why not try a change!

Have you studied the "Instruction" section of our Young People's C. E. Standards? In it are suggested such program subjects as: Devotional Training, Church History, Evangelism, Mennonite Principles, Peace, and others. Why not center some of your programs around these subjects.

There are good ways to use each one of them. Devotional training goes hand in hand with inspiring members to observe the Quiet Hour. Even many who do observe morning devotions by themselves or with their family, do it in a "quick-get-it-over-with" attitude. We need to be trained to engage in the Quiet Hour with hunger and thirst for spiritual food and drink. Try creative topics and reviews of good books on this subject.

Someone might conduct a quiz on the beginning of the General Conference and then let someone else give a review of its beginning as given in Smith's new book, The Story of the Mennonites. Some members would learn that our Mennonite historian has published a new book.

One C. E. society has become so interested in clarifying its ideas about evangelism, that it has asked its pastor to order 24 copies of "Other Sheep I Have," a very readable pamphlet put out by our Conference Evangelism Committee. Write to Rev. J. J. Plenert, Philadelphia, for free copies.

Planning a program on Mennonite Principles will make you think hard on what are distinctive Mennonite principles. The program theme could be, "Why Be Mennonites?"

All young people should know the peace stand of our conference. See The Mennonite, No. 35, p. 7, or order free copies of the statement from Rev. E. J. Bohn, Souderton, Pa. Perhaps a panel discussion by a group of young people on "Why Noncombatant Service Is Wrong," would be of interest to the older people of the church. Get a projector and show moving pictures of the Colorado Camp. Write to Rev. Walter Dyck, Beatrice, Nebr., for these pictures.

"Boy and Girl Relationships" is an ever-pertinent subject. The subject is well-treated in A. L. Murray's book, Youth's Problem No. I. It can be gotten from the Mennonite Book Concern for $1.35. Make your program for the evening a camp-fire service, preceded by games and a wiener roast. Your pastor should be a good leader for the discussion. It will be a program long-remembered.—W.

Aberdeen Y. P. Retreat

On the morning of July 19, forty-five Aberdeen Mennonite young people started very optimistically for a C. E. retreat in spite of threatening rain clouds. Our destination was a private camp in the mountains, near Lava Hot Springs, Idaho, a distance of 80 miles. The rain accompanied us unceasingly all the way, making it difficult to drive on the narrow mountain roads. Camp was reached at 12 o'clock, where everyone, except those digging cars out of the mud, found welcome shelter.

Both Saturday and Sunday afternoon were spent chiefly in playing softball, horseshoe, hiking, and swinging on various comfortable swings and hammocks. Saturday evening after Vespers we were very agreeably entertained with a debate, a "quiz" program, and a pie eating contest. This "Fun Hour" was in charge of John Isaak and Carl Wenger.

One important part on our program, the meals, was well directed by Alice Lehman and Irene Becker. Of course, all had to do their share, but helping was almost as much fun as eating.

The theme of the retreat was, "Come ye apart and rest awhile," and the message Sunday morning, delivered by Randolph Moser, was based on this text. Preceding the morning service was the Bible Hour, ably led by Carl Wenger. In the afternoon Henry Becker led an interesting and lively discussion at our Open Forum. The programs, both days, were pleasingly varied with special music, Scripture verses, choruses and testimonies. The final service on Sunday evening was one of great inspiration. After a short but impressive message, Malcolm Wenger led us in a Fagot Service. As each one placed his fagot on the fire, as a symbol of our lives burning for Christ, we felt deeply the importance of letting our lights shine in a world of darkness. Thus the Retreat ended, leaving each one with a better view of what his life as a Christian should be.

OUR COMMUNITY'S NEEDS

Program for October 26, 1941

Leading Topic: Meeting Our Community's Needs, Luke 4:16-20.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Jesus Shall Reign," "O Send Thy Light Forth," "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer.
3. Short play or a tableau.
4. Offering for Missions.

II. Leader's Introduction

As Jesus looked over the community in which He lived, he found needs to be met and felt Himself sent to meet them, and these were his objectives: "to preach the gospel to the poor; to proclaim release for captives; recovery of sight for the blind; set free the oppressed; and to proclaim the Lord's year of favor." He was busy working to meet these needs when John the Baptist sent two disciples to ask Him if He were the Christ as His answer to their question shows.

The story of the good Samaritan is a vivid illustration of meeting a neighbor's need. Jesus' feeding of the 5000, making water into wine, His giving time and thought to the needs of the Samaritan woman and the people of her town, spending much of His time with the twelve, were all instances of Jesus, our Lord and Master's meeting needs of His day and of the people with whom he lived.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A Happy Community,	Psalm 33:12
2. A Community Fed,	John 6:5-13
3. Community Cooperation,	Acts 4:32-37
4. Example of Helpfulness,	II Cor. 8:1-5
5. Helping Each Other,	Gal. 6:1-6
6. God's New Community Covenant,	Heb. 8:7-13

IV. Topics for Discussion

1. How much emphasis should be placed on meeting the needs of individuals as we plan for meeting the needs of our community?

2. Is there danger that we machinate our efforts to meet community needs if we lose sight of the fact that a group is made up of individuals?

3. Do we try too much to meet community needs by way of proxy, that is, through committees and organizations rather than by direct, personal touch?

4. How much of organization must we have in order to be able to meet some of the existing needs for spiritual life, for social life, for recreation, for meeting the material needs in a highly organized industrial society?

V. Facts for Study

It is often difficult in our day to see clearly what the needs of a community are. There are so many activities, life is so busy and so complex that it takes time and thought and spiritual insight to evaluate the needs. What is it that those with whom we live truly need, and what can we do that they may have it?

They need their daily bread, food, clothing, and shelter. But man does not live by bread alone—he needs companionship, friends, a home. And more than that, he needs food for his soul—a vision of God and communion with Him. To supply these needs, we will often need united effort, working together for wholesome social life and careful planning for the young, perhaps putting more emphasis on their enjoying things together than we sometimes do. We will also appreciate and provide opportunities for spiritual growth such as regular Sunday worship services, conferences, retreats, peace rallies. And maybe Jesus' insistence on and persistence in meeting the needs of those who were hungry, blind, and sick should show us, too, the way we are to take to reach the hearts of men and help them find the way to the heart of God.

VI. Illustration

"What is your most pressing need at the present time?" was the question asked of the Rev. H. H. Witham, executive secretary of the Methodist Home For Children at Williamsville, New York, by a business man from Buffalo. The former hesitated but a moment before he answered: "An administration building." They talked the matter over for a few minutes, and then the visitor said that he was prepared to give up to $75,000 for that purpose. The secretary was not greatly surprised, for he was a man of faith, and he had been praying for the home. Its needs were constantly presented before the Throne of Grace. "But what led you to do this?" he asked the benefactor. "The Spirit of God," was the all-sufficient answer of the business man.

I RESOLVE TO SERVE

Program for October 26, 1941

Call to Worship

Go, labor on: spend and be spent,
Thy joy to do the Father's will;
It is the way the Master went,
Should not the servant tread it still?
—Horatius Bonar

Song: "Serve the Lord in the Days of Youth."

Scripture Reading: Jas. 3:13-18; Eph. 6:7.

Prayer: "Teach us, good Lord, to serve Thee as Thou deservest; to give and not to count the cost; to fight and not to heed the wounds; to toil and not to seek for rest; to labor and not ask for any reward, save that of knowing that we do Thy will; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."
—Ignatius de Loyala

Song: "O Scatter Seeds of Loving Deeds."

Daily References:

Acceptable Service	Heb. 12:28
Reasonable Service	Rom. 12:1, 2

Serving Others Gal. 5:13, 14
With Perfect Heart and Willing Mind I Chron. 28:9
Choose the Right Master to Serve Matt. 6:24

Song: "Who Will Follow Jesus?"

Leader's Talk; followed by general discussion.

"Jesus told us how to earn the greatest rank and honor in the kingdom of Heaven. 'In that hour came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who then is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven? and he called to them a little child, and set him in the midst of them, and said . . . whosoever therefore that shall humble himself as this little child, the same is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven.'

"Jesus never has asked anyone to do something which he has not already done himself. So in asking us to become as a servant, He had already led the way.

"God has a particular task for each of us to do; that is the reason He has placed us in this world. We can observe this from history. Alexander the Great conquered the world and gave to it the Greek culture and language. This prepared the way for the disciples to go everywhere preaching the gospel. . Then the Romans came and conquered the territory which had been in the control of the Greeks. They built a wonderful system of paved highways and thus made it easy for the Christiians to go to all parts of the empire with the message of Jesus.

"God sent Washington to build a government for a peace-loving people; Lincoln, to set men free. And so in the history of every great man, we can see the hand of God using him for the good of the earth.

"If we don't each do our own individual task, it won't be done. Suppose Christ or Paul or Peter had failed or refused to do the work which God had set aside for him. We would be heathen today. If we fail, someone will be lost because of our influence.

"He that is greatest among you shall be your servant . . . And whosoever shall humble himself shall be exalted." —Int. Ex. Service

Closing Song: "I Would Be True."

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors to see how Abraham was a man of God. To help them to a knowledge and understanding of Abraham's faith.

1. Introduction by a Junior girl.

"Abraham lived about 2000 years before our Lord Jesus was born in Bethlehem. The country of his birth was Ur of Chaldea. And although this country had a high degree of civilization, the people worshipped idols. Abraham did not worship idols. He prayed to the one, true God. God wanted all of the people of the earth to have a knowledge of the one true God. He chose Abraham to become the father of a miphty nation, a nation that should spread abroad the truth that there is only one true God.

God called Abraham to leave his own country and his own family and go to a land which God Himself would show him.

Abraham obeyed God.

God gave many precious promises to Abraham. One was that He would make him a great name. His name is better known than any other person's. Christians call him "the father of the faithful." The Jews claim him as the founder of the Hebrew race. The Mohammedans also call him "father."

Even though it seemed that some of the promises of God would never happen, Abraham believed them and God counted that to him for righteousness.

2. Three Junior boys repeat in concert Genesis 12:1-3.

3. Boys' chorus: "I Would Be True."

4. God's promises to Abraham, by four Juniors:
—Genesis 12:1-3;
—Genesis 13:14-17;
—Genesis 15:1, 5-8;
—Genesis 22:15-18.

5. Talk by a Junior girl: "Abraham, the Friend of God," II Chronicles 20:7; Isa. 41:8; James 2:21-23.

6. Song in unison: "What a Friend We Have In Jesus."

7. What is meant by Genesis 18:19? Discussed by a Junior boy.

8. Leader's heart talk.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Discuss plans for Christmas.—
—Writing letters or cards.
—Making and packing home made candy.
—Let the Juniors choose to whom they wish to send cards or letters. Give them the correst address.
—Which would be better, to make candy at home and bring it or to make it at a Junior-get-together? Plan definitely for this.

2. Pray for the missionaries that are still on the field in China.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Sing from memory the song of the month.
2. Together repeat the verse of the month.
3. Pray the prayer of the month.
4. Sing "Into My Heart."

To be leaders: In the last week's lesson it should read "Abraham's intercessory prayer" and not "introductory."

C.P.S. CAMP NEWS

CALIFORNIA WOMEN CAN FRUIT FOR CIVILIAN SERVICE CAMP AT SAN DIMAS

Reedley, Calif.—A committee of ladies of the Mennonite Brethren church spent Wednesday and Thursday of last week canning peaches and making preserves for the boys at the C. O. camp at San Dimas.

Mrs. George W. Huebert and Mrs. Frank Heinrichs superintended the work and a large number of ladies of the congregation helped.

Four boys from the camp, Ebner Friesen and Melvin Henke of Reedley, and Robert Gray and Jake Doremus, brought a truck and jars and sugar for the fruit. They remained the two days and helped with the work, then were able to take some of the canned fruit back with them.

A ton of peaches went into the cans. The fruit was donated by different farmers in the district, members of the church and other groups who are helping support the camp. There were also 101 jars of fruit already canned that were donated and sent to the camp.

The ton of peaches made 933 jars when the ladies completed their work. This included 75 quarts of peach jam and 11 bottles of peach syrup. There were 746 quarts of canned peaches.

During the apricot season a church near Hanford canned a large consignment of apricots for the C. O. Camp. Other churches have been helping the boys at camp by donating fruit and other food for the support of the project. At present there are 65 boys in the camp, and with the staff, the total is 75.

—Reedley Exponent

The above article presents a challenge to other communities. Any church, mission society or other organization can do what this church in California did. Through such gifts of canned fruits and vegetables the expense of maintaining the C. S. Camps could be greatly reduced. It is true, in most communities fresh fruits are not as plentiful as in California, but fruits and vegetables put up in tin cans are available anywhere. So why not arrange for "showers" of such articles and send them to the C. S. Camps? It would make the boys in camp feel that the "home-folks" are really thinking of them and are willing to share their sacrifices with them. Who will start the ball rolling?

The Executive and Financial committees of the Bluffton College Board, attended by Dr. L. L. Ramseyer, President of the college, Mr. Jesse Loganbill, business manager, and Rollin Moser, field secretary, met in Fort Wayne, Tuesday, September 16. Plans were made to meet the financial and other special needs of the college.

Marriage Course Sponsored

The bi-annual marriage course sponsored by the Y.W and Y.M.C.A. organizations of Bluffton college will again be given this fall. Rev. Simon M. Dividian, pastor of the Central Church of Christ, Lima, Ohio, will open the series of lectures October 1. Others to appear on the program are Dr. Roy Burkhart of Columbus, nationally known authority on marital affairs, and Dr. and Mrs. Gary Cleveland Myers, both well known authorities on child care and training.

Austrian Refugee to Study at Bluffton

Otoo C. Elmer, of Vienna, Austria, will come to Bluffton college as a refugee student for the year 1941-1942. He spent a year and a half as a refugee in South America prior to his coming to the United States in 1940. He is expected on the campus some time this week.

Mr. Elmer's academic and vocational interests lie in the fields of chemistry and textiles, respectively. He has had four years of technical training in a school for textile chemistry in Vienna and comes to Bluffton with a very high scholastic rating and excellent recommendations. He speaks German fluently, Spanish, English, and some French.

Mr. Elmer's scholarship is provided by the Y.W. Women's Gospel teams. It was awarded to him of the American Friends Service committee.

Dr. E. L. Harshbarger of North Newton, Kan., who has been confined to the hospital for some months is convalesing. However, his improvement is very slow, and he will not be able to do any work this year. Dr. Melvin Gingerich, Washington, Iowa, is taking his place on the Bethel College faculty.

Whereas, the Conference in conjunction with other historic peace churches has been granted the privilege of operating Civilian Public Service camps for conscientious objectors, be it hereby

RESOLVED, That this Conference express its sincere appreciation to the government of the United States for its sympathetic understanding and recognition of our religious position based upon the life and teachings of our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. We pledge ourselves to support every endeavor to promote peace and destroy war, consistent with the principles of Jesus. We further pledge ourselves to engage in a program to relieve distress and suffering and to do all in our power to further a constructive program of civilian work of national importance. We pray that God may direct the government of the United States to the end that its power may be directed to promote peace and good neighborliness among the nations.

72. (6) RESOLVED, That we hereby give recognition to the very fine and instructive exhibits presented by the various boards, societies, and committees, and that we express our appreciation of this work to all who have made the displays possible, namely, The Women's Missionary Society, the Foreign Mission Board, the Home Mission Board, the Young People's Committee, the Publication Board, the Peace Committee, and Bluffton College.

73. (7) RESOLVED, That we instruct the secretaries of the General Conference, boards and committees to prepare condensed reports in the form of a synopsis, to be read in the place of the detailed printed reports at future conferences.

74. (8) RESOLVED, That we heartily recommend to our people the following books recently produced by Mennonites, and strongly urge their use and study:

a) The thorough and readable "Story of the Mennonites" by Dr. C. H. Smith.

b) The valuable study "Introduction to Child Care" by Miss Ella Wiebe.

We further appreciate it highly that these manuscripts have been turned over to the General Conference.

c) The inspiring story of pioneer missionary work "With Christ on the Edge of the Jungles" by S. T. Moyer.

d) "The Mennonite Hymnary" which makes such a rich contribution to our worship services.

We further express our appreciation of the splendid work of the Women's Missionary Society in making available much helpful literature.

75. (9) Whereas, Conference resolutions require the appointment of several committees in advance of Conference sessions, and

Whereas, such committees become an integral part of Conference machinery, be it therefore

RESOLVED, That we recommend that the names of such appointees be published prior to the first session of succeeding Conferences in order that delegates may familiarize themselves with the personel of such committees.

76. (10) RESOLVED, That we hereby give recognition, and express our appreciation, to the following:

IN MEMORIAM

ISAIAH W. WELTY, 63, died at his home in Bluffton, Ohio, August 12, 1941, at four o'clock, following a three-year's illness. During all his affliction he was a patient sufferer and a testimony to every one visiting him. His joy came fully when his daughter Viola was preparing to enter the mission field. His sickness did not hinder her from sailing to Africa.

Funeral services were held on Friday afternoon at two o'clock, at the Ebenezer Mennonite Church of which he was a faithful member and in whose welfare he was much interested. His pastor, Rev. A. C. Schultz, and Rev. P. J. Boehr, of the St. John's Mennonite Church, spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family. He is survived by his wife, four daughters and one son. He was laid to rest in the church cemetery.

JACOB J. WALTNER, oldest son of John and Maria Krehbiel Waltner, was born on July 16, 1858, according to the Gregorian calendar, in the village of Edwardufka, in the government Volhynia, Russia. There he spent his early childhood and attended the village school. He loved to talk about his childhood and the school days spent in Russia.

In his early youth, while still in Russia, he was baptized and became a member of the Mennonite church with which he remained affiliated until his death. He always took a great interest in the affairs of the church and attended many conferences. He always had the welfare of the church at heart.

In 1875, when the great Russian emigration of Mennonites of 1874 and 1875 took place, he came to America with his parents. They located on a farm nine miles from Yankton, South Dakota. Here he grew to manhood and with his parents and younger members of the family shared the hardships of pioneer life on the Dakota prairies.

In 1879 he entered into the bonds of holy matrimony with Freni Miller, from which union eight children were born. Two of them, one infant and one daughter, Anna, at the age of 19 years, preceded him in death. After his marriage he moved to Childstown Township, Turner County, where he made his home with his wife's parents, John and Mary Miller. Here he lived continuously for sixty-one years, until he was called to his heavenly home.

He was a friend of Christian education and was one of the founders of Freeman College as well as one of its charter members. He served on the board of directors a number of years.

The deceased leaves to mourn his death, his wife and six children, five sons, John, Emil, Ben, Edward, and Henry, all living in Turner County, and one daughter, Lena, living at North Newton, Kansas; sixteen grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; three brothers and two sisters; besides many relatives and friends.

After a lingering illness of several months, he passed away quietly on September 14, 1941, at 11:00 P. M., reaching the age of eighty-three years, two months, and eight days.

ALFRED A. SPRUNGER, son of Abraham and Magdalena Neuenschwander Sprunger, was born in Monroe Township June 7, 1880, and passed away at his home near Berne, Indiana, Sept. 10, 1941, bringing his age to 61 years, 3 months and 3 days.

Dr. Rodolphe C. Petter whose entrance into the mission work of the General Conference among the Cheyenne Indians fifty years ago is celebrated during the month of October. This winter scene, taken several years ago, shows this great man in the simple environment of the station at Lame Deer, Montana. (See the article under "Foreign Missions" in the Mennonite of September 30.)

His marriage to Robertine Liechty took place on Jan. 1, 1903. To this union were born 10 children. He was converted to Christ in his early youth and was baptized April 8, 1898, joining the First Mennonite Church of Berne, where he remained a faithful member unto his death.

He was stricken with paralysis four years ago and was confined to his home since then. He suffered patiently, and earnestly sought the will of God in his affliction, and many times expressed his desire to go home to be with his Lord. He was known by a large circle of friends as a loving father, a devout Christian, always mindful of the needs and cares of his family and of his fellowmen.

REFUGE

This is not love; yet every part
Of love is here: the open heart,
The strong caressing hand,
The eyes that, even closed, can understand.
This is our need. It justifies
Our simple way. No bows, no lies,
No doubts, only release
To the sure haven, not of love, but peace.

MARRIAGES

Margaret Hehn and Carl Kuhnle were married in the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pa., on September 26. They will make their home at 2143 North Randolph Street in Philadelphia.

June Bachman, Washington, Ill., and Rollin Moser, Bluffton, Ohio, were married on Wednesday evening, September 17, in the college chapel. Dr. L. L. Ramseyer performed the ceremony.

The General Conference through its Home Mission Board supports 24 ministers in Canada who are doing itinerant work among the scattered groups in the various provinces. The total annual expenditures of this Board for this and other activities are around $20,000, and the regular monthly payroll at present is $1,384. This is a splendid service, and the spiritual blessings brought to the thousands who are benefitted thereby should stimulate real active support, financially and through prayer, of this important conference activity. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Students of Freeman Junior College were happy to have Rev. Hooge of Henderson, Nebraska, speak to them at their regular chapel service Sept. 29.
—Elmer Ewert who was just recently released from the C. O. camp at Colorado Springs, Colorado, has enrolled at Freeman college.

—Freeman Junior College Corr.

Rev. Wilmer S. Shelly has requested to have his address changed from Wadsworth, Ohio, to Topeka, Indiana. The reason is that he has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana, of the Central Conference. The change is to become effective October 15.

Missionary G. A. Linscheid who has been ill for several weeks is slowly improving. He was able to attend the Sunday morning service on Sept. 28th and hopes to be strong enough to resume his regular pastoral work at the Emmanuel Mennonite Church, beginning with the first Sunday in October.

The Bethesda Mennonite Church, Henderson, Nebraska, has maintained a Bible School during the winter months for a number of years. It will be held again this winter and is to begin in October and to continue for 5 months. This is a commendable undertaking, and its good fruits must be evident in the community, particularly in the lives of those who have attended the school in past years. Are there other similar schools in Mennonite communities? We shall be glad to make mention of them in the Mennonite if a report of their existance is sent to the editor.

Rev. P. E. Franz, formerly of Geary, Oklahoma, was installed as pastor of the Lorraine Ave. Mennonite Church, Wichita, Kansas, on Sunday morning, Sept. 28th. The congregation is planning to erect a new church building in the near future.

Miss Mary Becker, who has so ably edited The Mennonite since the passing on of Dr. J. R. Thierstien, has decided to attend a Biblical Seminary in New York City during the coming winter. Miss Becker is a candidate for the Foreign Mission field, and the Board had planned to send her to India this fall, but due to the present world conditions it was not deemed wise to do so. Consequently she decided to continue her training by attending the Seminary for a year.

The six chuches in the General Conference having the largest membership are the following:

Canadian District, Rosenort, Rosthern, Sask., 1552; Middle District, First Mennonite, Berne, Ind., 1272; Western District, Alexanderwohl Mennonite, Goessel, Kans., 912; Northern District, Bethesda Mennonite, Henderson, Nebr., 715; Pacific District, First Mennonite, Reedly, Calif., 501; Eastern District, Zion Mennonite, Souderton, Pa., 484.

The First Mennonite Church of Berne, Indiana, which has the largest church building in the General Conference, has completed the work of painting and redecorating the interior of the building, and services are again being held in the church after a recess of several weeks. Two hundred gallons of paint were required to complete the job, and more than 10,000 feet of lumber were used in the scaffolding. —Menn. Weekly Review

Work on the new $50,000 church building which is being erected by the Bethel Church, Mt. Lake, Minn., is progressing satisfactorily. A pipe organ costing $4,000 will be installed, and the committee in charge of collecting the organ funds hopes to have the instrument completely paid for by the time it is installed. —Mt. The Mennonite Hospital at Beatrice, Nebraska, observed its annual Gift Day on Thursday, October 2.

STRENGTH SUFFICIENT FOR EVERY NEED

When Moses was about to die, he blessed all the sons of Iserael (Deut. 33). Part of the blessing pronounced on Asher, the son of Leah's handmaid, was: "As thy days, so shall thy strength be." What a marvelous promise! Jacob and his family were God's chosen people, and Moses, who was God's chosen instrument to lead the children of Israel out of the bondage in Egypt into the Land of Promise, was speaking for God when he pronounced this blessing on Asher. All who, through faith in Jesus Christ, have become His followers are God's people even in a fuller sense than were the people of Iserael. And therefore this promise applies to all Christians.

These words imply our daily need of entire dependence upon God. The strength of which Moses speaks is the strength that comes from God. And this strength is promised to all of God's children. Whatever our needs may be, His strength is sufficient for all of those needs.

Again, these words assure us that this precious promise is for all of our days. "As thy days"—that means every day, as long as we sojourn here on this earth. That "strength" is ours in bright and balmy days—days of joy and happiness. But it is ours also for the stormy days—days of sorrow and of trouble. No matter what our experiences may be, we can count on, yes, we can rely on that divine strength to uphold us and to see us through. "As thy days, SO shall thy strength be."

The secret of obtaining this needed strength is by waiting on the Lord. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint" (Is. 40:31). Only those who "wait upon the Lord," who believe his Word and have a sincere desire to do his will in all things, can rightfully claim this promise. And not only have they the right to claim this promise, but they can be assured of its fulfillment.

Child of God, are you weak and easily overcome by circumstances? Are you defeated again and again in your struggle against the wiles of the "evil one?" Are you misjudged, misrepresented or illtreated? Are you in trouble with no apparent means of escape? Are you bereaved and lonesome? Be not dismayed nor throw away your confidence in your Lord! "Hold fast the profession of your faith without wavering; (for He is faithful that promised)" (Heb. 10:23). And that faith will be rewarded. Divine strength will be given in sufficient measure to enable you to gain the victory over sin, self and circumstances or to bear in humble resignation the cross which God has designed for you. —S.

Temper

When I have lost my temper
I have lost my reason, too.
I'm never proud of anything
Which angrily I do.
When I have talked in anger
And my cheeks were flaming red
I have always uttered something
Which I wish I had not said.
In anger I have never Done a kindly deed or wise,
But many things for which I felt
I should apologize.
In looking back across my life,
And all I've lost or made,
I can't recall a single time
When fury ever paid.
So I struggle to be patient,
For I've reached a wiser age;
I do not want to do a thing
Or speak a word in rage.
I have learned by sad experience
That when my temper flies
I never do a worthy deed,
A decent deed or wise.

Duties of a Church Member:

1. To live a consistent Christian life.
2. To attend church services regularly.
3. To consecrate time and talents for Christ and the church.
4. To live at peace with fellow church members and to speak well of the church.
5. To endeavor to win others for Christ and the church.

PUBLICATION

In last week's Mennonite the announcement was made that Rev. Reynold Weinbrenner of Beatrice, Nebraska, has accepted the editorship of "The Mennonite" and that he will take over this work beginning with the middle of October. For this reason all contributions to the paper and all exchanges should be sent to him and addressed as follows: The Mennonite, 500 Bell Street, Beatrice, Nebraska. However, all subscriptions to the paper and payments for the same should continue to be addressed as before, namely, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas.. If these instructions are regularly followed, much unpleasant confusion and embarrassing delays will be avoided. SO PLEASE TAKE NOTICE.

Another matter that will need to be remembered by all who send contributions for the paper is that Rev. Weinbrenner will continue to reside in Beatrice and edit the paper from there. On this account anything which is to appear in the Mennonite must reach the editor not later than one week in advance of the date of issue. In case an announcement of special importance needs to be made on short notice, it may be sent to the Mennonite Publication Office at Newton, and efforts will be made to have it inserted. However, such items must be received not later than Saturday morning prior to the date of issue.

The Story of the Mennonites

By Dr C. Henry Smith

Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana, 1941.
823 pp. $2.50.

The Story of the Mennonites by Dr. C. Henry Smith is the book for which those interested in Mennonite history have long been waiting. This production not only covers the entire period of Mennonite history from the origins of the group in the first quarter of the sixteenth century to events in 1939, but it also brings into proper perspective the various American and European wings which make up this church. The author's sympathetic interest in all the branches of Mennonitism has enabled him to deal with each group impartially and to give each one its proper space in the book in reference to the movement as a whole.

Dr. Smith's book is, however, much more than an ecclesiastical history of the Mennonites. Since these people often settled in compact groups where they formed self-sufficient communities, they developed significient economic and social institutions which made their culture distinctive. The Story of the Mennonites covers these topics admirably and therefore will be of interest to the sociologist and economist as well as to the historian.

Written in the author's usual clear and interesting style, the story runs along smoothly from one topic to another so that the reader is able to visualize the movement as a whole rather than a series of separate, unrelated movements. Running through the entire story is the theme that the Mennonites have been pioneers, courageous pioneers, who have been willing not only to suffer untold hardships in frontier areas for conscience' sake, but also pioneered religious thought, being the first modern church group to preach and practice religious toleration, separation of church and state, and opposition to war.

Over one-half of the book, 531 pages, is devoted to the study of the European origins of the church and to its history in the various sections of Europe. Beginning with the origin of the Anabaptists, the story next takes up in order Menno Simons, the Switzerland group after 1535, the Netherlands, the Southern Baltic group, the South Germans, and the Hutterites, and finally the settlement in Russia.

The rest of the book is the story of the church in the Americas. The account of the first settlements in eastern Pennsylvania is followed by a study of the expansion of the Pequea and Germantown settlements. The Mennonites during the Revolution, the nineteenth century expansion and church divisions, and the coming of the Russians are the topics of the next three chapters. Following the chapters on the General Conference, and the trek to Mexico, Paraguay, and Brazil in search of freedom of conscience, the last two chapters of the book are entitled "Culture and Progress" and "Keeping the Faith."

The author has used few foot notes and has not included a bibliography because the book was written for the general reader and not the history specialist. An index and a number of illustrations enhance the value of the book. —Melvin Gingerich in B. C. Bull.

The book may be obtained either from the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana, or the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas.

STEWARDSHIP

The Best for Him

God does not care for the gift you make after all the wants are supplied. We must be willing to lay the best on the alter, or miss the blessing. The stewardship of money is a searching test of loyalty to Christ. Money represents something we think most about, work hardest to get, and when we pay a part of that precious possession as the Lord's it spells loyalty. —Selected

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGE

By Joanna S. Andres, Newton, Kansas

"But I Have This Against Thee"

Revelation 2 and 3

As the aircraft searchlights throw their beams far into space, breaking the darkness with the strength of their light and continually scanning the skies for an enemy plane which must certainly be hit when it is spotted, so may we, who are Christ's own, feel the eyes of our Lord that are "as a flame of fire" searching out our soul to spot the enemy within or to keep him at a distance.

The enemy of man's soul is the ruler of the kingdom of darkness who is constantly at war with the Kingdom of Light. He fears the strength of the divine Light. Where? Within the soul of man! The soul is the battle ground.

Even in the heart of the child of God into whom the Light has been born, there is a conflict because the enemy is restlessly at work and too often gains possession of a few corners of the heart, for we, too, sometimes "love darkness rather than light." (John 3:19).

The longing for light and its purity is a natural urge for the "born again." "Oh make me clean " is the prayer of our heart. We have the divine promise of cleansing; the possibility is there, but too often, too very often, we fail to say, "I will let Thee, Lord." The battle is not ours to fight. Our task is to surrender. The Christ will win the conflict. We cannot. We cannot even wash one spot of darkness from our soul. Light alone can absorb darkness.

Can we not feel the searching light of Christ fall into our hearts and, though we know that we have pleased Him in part, must we not also hear Him say to us, "but I have this against thee?" Then let us come to Him.

"Just as we are, and waiting not
To rid our soul of one dark blot,
To Thee whose blood can cleanse each spot,
O Lamb of God, we come!"

And He wants us to come. "Come now," He says, "and let us reason together: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isa. 1:18) .... "I will turn my hand upon thee, and thoroughly purge away thy cross, and will take away all thy sin" (Isa. 1:25).

"Let us reason together." Did God have to plead with Iseral, His chosen, for a cleansing from sin? Had His own children whom He had nourished and brought up (Isa. 1:2) been caught in the net of darkness and had they become so accustomed to walk in it that they did not even feel the need of light?

Does God also have to reason with us, His church, whom by the death of His own Son He has rescued out of darkness to become children of light? Does not this time in which we are living cause us to think more earnestly? Does not a clarion call proceed out of the midst of suffering humanity, calling the bride of the Lamb to cleanse her garment? calling the Church of Christ to let her light so shine before men that they may see (Matt. 5:16)? Surely we cannot remain unmoved when nations are being judged and are being used for judgment.

Let us allow Him to come to us, whose own we are. Let us allow Him to come so near that we can feel the searching of His eyes as they fall upon our darkness within and hear Him say, "I have this against thee."

The human heart so often shrinks away when sin is revealed; sometimes it becomes rebellious, sometimes angry, and sometimes it steals quietly away to hide its sin. But sin cannot remain hidden from the eyes of Heaven. Its eyes rest like burning flames within the heart.

Is not our own selfish self the cause of much of our sinning? We love and protect our "self" when, instead, we should bring it under subjection and discipline it severely. Would that our Lord might develop within us that strength of soul that asks for correction and purging, that suffers with joy, that smiles at rebuff, that silently bears a wrong and is grateful for every step that puts self to death and tears to shreds the garment of self righteousness. Let our song be:

"O wash me, Thou, without, within,
Or purge with fire, if that must be,
No matter how, if only sin die out in me,
Die out in me."

"If only sin die out in me." Surely, no price is too great to pay for this—no pain, no sorrow. Louder than the cannon's roar and the fire of guns from shore to shore, comes the voice of the Almighty "as the voice of many waters" calling to His own, "awake to righteousness and sin not" (I Cor. 15:34). "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as wool." Then let our answer be, "O Lamb of God, I come! I come."

"Yea, only as this heart is clean
May larger visions yet be mine,
For mirrored in its depths are seen
The things divine, the things divine."
Then wash me now, without, within,
Let darkness change with all its sin
Into the beauty of Thy Light
Till all is bright, till all is bright."

GREAT MOUNTAIN PEAKS

Those of us who were born and grew up on level plains or farstretching prairies will readily admit that a first view of a towering mountain made a great impression. Mt. Edith Cavell, with Ghost Glacier at her feet, made a lasting imprint on my mind and soul. Like almost every other peak in the Canadian Rockies, the reflection of this mountain in the deep, deep blue water of a mountain lake, makes a double picture, very colorful and soft. And throughout the years the name and the mental image of this beautiful mountain have symbolized unselfish and sacrifical service.

In another land, one of flowers and color against a background of unpainted wooden houses, busy commerce and business, much sordid living, too, stands the symetrical contour of Fujiyama, a picture of soft and simple beauty. Long after that memorable visit in Japan one carries in one's vision this motif, a symbol of simplicity which is humility, too.

But, oh, the Himalayas! The awe-inspiring panoramic stretch of glistening, towering, snow-capped peaks, as they unfold past the windows of any cottage in Darjeeling, when the rain stops, the mists lift, and nature chooses to unfold its curtain for a "thriller." Kunchenjunga, peer of the range, draws one's attention and aspirations upwards and upwards like a magnet. India, where people cower and writhe in darkness, illness, poverty, and sin, presents this contrasting picture of great height, great beauty, great goodness. A mountain of power, is Kuchenjunga.

Again the Himalayas, but this time in Kashmir. Previous experience makes one stand quietly or walk cautiously in their majestic presence. Nanga Parbhat can be seen from a number of vantage points in Gulmarg, but one surpasses all other sights. The chaukidar (watchman) at the government Rest House assured us that we will never be sorry that we saw the mountain first from his special prospect point. He lead the way up the hill, past the Rest House, through the garden, farther still into the dark blue shade on the needle paded carpet of the erect pine trees. Down a little where the branches hung lower, and with one graceful sweep he parted them aside to admit us to step onto a large flat slab of stone on on the very brink of a precipice. Oh, the breathtaking picture of the far-distant mountain, perfectly edged in its decorative leafy frame. Peer of purity! A clear, cold, blue sky marked perfectly the outline of the giant. The mountain stands burnished in its silvery white robe of snow, the folds of which flow well two-thirds of its height down. Its head is brighter still, like the purest of white gold. And not even one friendly little fleecy cloud appears above its shoulders. The base is dark and strong and colorful. No admission ticket purchased at a high price could ever have opened a door to usher one into any place to see a picture as exquisite as this one. A mountain of purity and peace!

To a privileged few—and I am not yet among their number—to a few, I say, those who were willing to give up a good night's sleep, to venture out into the cold, to climb when climbing meant hard work, to gamble with the weather, knowing all the time that some have gone many times and have always failed to get a view,—to them has come the vision of the world's HIGHEST peak, Mount Everest. There is one place from Tiger Hill, out from Darjeeling, where this peak can be seen. One must love a mountain view in order to want to see it badly enough to make effort often and at inconvenience and strain. Those who have seen Mount Everest say that it paid them to try. Everest, symbol of love.

Today I am happy that the desire to climb is not dead in me. Not war nor work nor failure nor discouragement nor hardship, none of these are subtle or strong enough devices of the enemy of God's children to kill the desire to climb until they can reach in faith to recieve the good and great holy gifts of His Spirit. These towering mountain peaks in the Christian life are accessible to those who will exercise in order to receive them. "A harvest of love, joy, peace, forbearance, kindness, benevolence, good faith, meekness, self-restraint. Against such things there is no law. The Holy Spirit brings them."—Weymouth

Snapt Shots from Janjgir

S. T. Moyer

Our Janjgir Pastor, Rev. M. R. Asna, was stirred up over the need of baptizing the younger adolescents of the church. My wife had given him a special tract on this subject. The youth included cases over which hopes for years had been dashed to pieces. They included his own son, and children who had finished our own Middle Schools and were out in High Schools. "Will YOU please ask them whether they will not take baptism before returning to school?" he inquired of me. And I, a missionary, had to be a soul winner and know how to deal with adolescents.

As in the days of Elisha, the school of the prophets, the Bible School, is too cramped. So I, the only experienced male missionary on the station, was asked to supervise the erection of a new unit. It meant drawing plans according to scale. My college work in drawing farm buildings and plotting apple orchards and surveying land helped. I not only had to make architectural drawings, but to direct carpenters and masons, to manage workmen, and to order all sorts of nails, hinges, roofing tin, etc. I, a missionary, had to become a builder of a school of the prophets.

The Pastors' Retreat Committee was sitting. I had heard poor preaching enough to make me sick at heart over wasted opportunities. At the same time I had read descriptions of such soul stirring preaching that I plead with the committee to include on the program one subject dealing with the pastor and his sermon. "YOU do this, please!" they insisted. And I, a missionary, had to tell Indian fellow-pastors how to prepare and preach a sermon.

My predecessor in this work, Rev. P. W. Penner, did outstanding work in building up this station and providing Janjgir with water. He was a conquering trail blazer in this matter. But with expanding work, a long drought, and famine conditions, a new well was needed. It meant blasting hard rock; it meant providing mamagement. I, a missionary, like Isaac of old, had to become a digger of a well.

MAIL FOR INDIA

If friends at home will send mail for India via American ships to India, the chances of it arriving will be greatly enhanced. Hence I would suggest that all Christmas mail be superscribed on the envelope with these words written above the address,

Fr. NEW YORK
via First Available S. S. of American Export Line for India

Such are the present arrangements. Chances are that they will hold until 1942, though a new international crisis may change them. If some one at home could make it his business to keep in touch with these steamers from New York and the West Coast and inform the Mennonite public accordingly, through the religious press, the safety of your mail for India for the present could be assured almost 100 per cent.

Unless you accept Jesus as your personal Saviour, a fine background and a good heritage may become the means of great loss.

The Joy of Giving

C. A. Fuessle, Jr.

Few people experience this joy because they do not give enough. David knew it when he disdained generosity at another's expense, exclaiming: "Neither will I offer unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing." The widow who gave her all knew it—she had fulfilled the conditions. Paul knew it—towering figure among those who followed Jesus, daily "in the wellowship of sufferings," yet rejoicing "evermore." And he strikes the keynote of the whole matter of giving when he describes the methods of the exemplary Macedonians. They gave "according to their power—and beyond their power," because "first they gave themselves to the Lord." This condition fulfilled, the details are wonderfully simplified. The money, already in the Lord's treasury, is merely to be applied, with Spirit-given wisdom, to the various causes representing the Christ-Kingdom.

Strange how many people must be pleaded with, fairly forced, in many cases, to do that which will have but one result—"joy unspeakable and full of glory."

O ye people of God, give, give, GIVE, until the sting of temporary deprivation is forgotten in the joy, the delight of giving. —The United Evangelical

CIVIC RESPONSIBILITY REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

(International Temperance Sunday)

Deut. 5:32,33; 11:26-28; Isa. 28:1-6; Hab. 2:12.

Introduction

There are some things which are definitely matters of civic responsibility. Things which affect the moral and spiritual welfare, the saftey, the education and health of the people, and matters of public decency, are a civic responsibility. It is quite generally recognized that the sale of intoxicating liquors is a public concern, and allowable only by legal consent.

Jehovah's Commands and Warnings

Deut. 5:32,33; 11:26-28.

The fifth chapter of Deut. is a summary of the commandments given to Iseral through Moses. These indicate the moral purpose of Jehovah regarding the nation. They were to be a people separated from all other nations in their manner of living and in their faith in Jehovah. This could be achieved only by faithfully doing all the Lord commanded them to do, walking in his ways, living as He directed them to live. If they would do this it would be well with them (vs. 33). There is a right way and a wrong way to live. God has clearly revealed the right way. Disobedience spells national and personal ruin.

Moses presents the outcome of obedience and disobedience clearly and forcefully so that the people may choose intelligently (vss. 26-28). Iseral's whole future was to be determined by this choice. Faithfulness would bring blessings and disobedience a curse. It is always so. The same choice is set before each one of us daily. On our choice hangs the issue of life and death. This is as true of our nation as it is of the individual persons. With the entire Bible at our hand, there is no excuse for any ignorance concerning God's demands on us.

God's Judgment upon Drunkenness

Isa: 28:1-6

Isaiah gives a picture, an illustration of the divine judgment visited upon nations when their people become habitual users of alcoholic liquors. Samaria, the capital of North Israel, was the "crown of pride" of the nation. Ephraim, the largest of the northern tribes, often stands for the entire nation. Outwardly things appeared well with the nation, but the seeds of decay were growing within. Drunkenness had become a national sin (Is. 5:11, 12). Isaiah sees the nation as smitten. God's law has not changed. Disaster surely awaits a drinking nation today. The Assyrians—"a mighty and strong one"—will be God's agent in meeting out punishment. Various figures (vss. 2-4) set forth the severe destruction at the invasion of the enemy. All this came upon Samaria because they did not obey the voice of the Lord their God. Their moral and spiritual decline could lead to no other result. God will demand inevitable and dire penalty from every nation that lives intemperately and unrighteously. Let Americans stop and consider and beware.

Isaiah looks forward to the time when the "Lord of hosts" will be the true glory of his faithful remnant (vss. 5, 6). He will inspire them to administer justice faithfully and strengthen them.

Drinking is more dangerous to public safety in our machine age than it ever has been. It breaks down the standards of morals and public decency, and especially so among young people. It breeds immoral acts and crimes. It is a disgrace for any community to license vice and crime-breeding drinking places. Drinking definitely militates against the welfare of a community and the standards of living. The evils of alcoholic drink are of such a character that the traffic in intoxicants ought to be abolished by the state.

What is the duty of Christians toward anything that promotes wrong-doing?

Can a Christian approve of the use of intoxicating drink?

What is the responsibility of the church to the drink problem?

SOME IMPRESSIONS OF THE CONFERENCE

Time and time again, during the business sessions of the Conference, I was deeply impressed with the fine Christian attitude on the part of our various Board and Committee Chairmen, Secretaries or Treasuerers who gave their reports to the delegates.

Whatever the nature of the report, you felt that these men had been "about the Master's business" humbly, perhaps in an obscure way, but nonetheless faithful stewards.

There was real forebearance and courtesy in answering questions and throughout discussions from the floor, concerning the many activities of the triennium. This is a real testimony on the part of the men who direct the work of our Conference.

I cannot help but add a word of appreciation for that silent example set before us. There was something fine and inspiring, also, in being able to look up at the painting of "Christopher Dock In Prayer," throughout the meetings.

OUR COLLEGES

Bethel College

Harold Linscheid, '29, has joined the Bluffton College faculty as instructor in mathematics and physics, filling the position left vacant by the death of his uncle, Prof. E. J. Hirschler. Mr. Linscheid is a son of Missionary and Mrs. G. A. Linscheid, Newton, Kansas.

Bethel College has a Prayer League which is composed of all who daily pray for Bethel. An alumnus from Kingston, Ontario, writes: "I rejoice every time I receive some news from Bethel. Bethel College has a warm spot in my heart, and I remember it before the Throne of Grace because it has done much for me as it is doing for other men and women."

In the senior class is a blind student, Arnold Graber, from Freeman, South Dakota. This is his second year at Bethel. He reads and writes in Braille. He also has one of the students read for him.

A gospel team composed of students is in training and will present Sunday evening programs in various churches wherever there is a call for their service.

The number of students registered now (Oct. 1) stands at 291. A few more are still expected so that the total may reach the anticipated 300. The number of male students exceeds that of the female students by about 10.

The college church under the leadership of Rev. J. N. Smucker is planning an interesting series of Sunday evening services to begin the first Sunday in October. Once a month there will be a musical program. A variety of good speakers will be engaged for the balance of the meetings.

—Source of news items, Bethel College Bulletin

Rev. G. S. Stoneback, pastor of the Eighth Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana, will be the speaker on the Religious Emphasis Week program to be given in the Bethel college chapel beginning Oct. 6th. The general theme for his lectures will be, "This is to live." The first service will take place on Monday evening. During the rest of the week two services will be held daily, one during the regular chapel hour and the other at eight o'clock in the evening. —Bethel Collegian

Helen Penner, a student at Bethel College last year, is planning to work in France under the auspices of the Emergency Relief board of the Mennonite Central Committee. Traveling with Miss Penner to France will be Lois Gunden, who has been teaching French at Goshen college, and J. N. Byler, who taught at Hesston and part-time at Bethel. At the present time the trio is in Akron, Pennsylvania, where they are awaiting the arrival of their passports and visas. —Bethel Collegian

C.P.S. CAMP NEWS

Arrangements are being made to offer, in camp, credit courses on the high school and college levels. Twenty campers have expressed a desire to enroll. Courses to be offered are: Letters of Paul, Mennonite History, Public Speaking, College Algebra, and Business Organization and adminstration. Campers and staff members who have had advanced academic training have been approved as instructors. Several campers have indicated their desire to take high school courses for credit.

Out of 2,423 C. O.'s classified up to September 1st, the denominational distribution is as follows: Mennonite 706, Brethern 261, Friends 142, Methodist 139, Jehovah's Witness 130, Presbyterian 62, Church of Christ 58, Baptist 52, Church of God 36, Catholic 34, Congregational 30, belonging to no church organization 100. The balance represent 77 different other denominations and organizations.

Mr. Orrie Miller, Rev. J. H. Miller, Rev. D. A. Yoder and Dr. E. G. Kaufman, all members of the advisory board, visited the Colorado Springs camp on September 23. They spent most of their time in observing the work projects and in conferences with the staff and the campers.

—Pike View Peace News

Gleanings from the Pike View Peace News by Mr. J. J. Friesen, correspondent from Henderson, Nebraska:

The C. O's. of that camp are engaged in soil conservation work which is directed by a group of soil conservationists. The field work is done largely on ranches which are some times 50 miles away. Some of the work consists of making diversion ditches, check dams, terraces and ponds. About 50 campers travel to these projects daily. Six men are in the research crew. They compile scientific data on rainfall, drainage, and moisture in the soil. Some are engaged on the camp ground. Ten work in the kitchen, helping to serve meals to 130 men. Five are in the laundry. About 12 work on other jobs as carpenters, night watchman, and gardeners.

Worship is highly stressed in camp life. A well rounded religious program has been arranged. Each meal is preceded by the asking of God's blessing by one of the boys. Breakfast is followed daily by morning worship conducted by various men of the camp. The weekly Bible class is conducted by Rev. Hazelton, Colorado Springs. Sunday morning services are in the assembly hall.

The most inspiring sight is the individual Bible reading in the evening before retirement.

Fellowship Group

By Arnold Reimer

I have been asked to write about our Beatrice Fellowship (Peace) group, and the following is an attempt to do so.

When the Draft bill went into effect we held meetings in our church (Second Mennonite, Beatrice) for a while for the men of draft age. After the men had a chance to learn more in detail about our peace position and what to do in connection with the draft, the meetings were replaced by a "Fellowship" group of young people for the purpose of meeting together each week for meditation, prayer, Bible study, study of other articles concerning our stand, and projects which could be done for the community. The group at first numbered around six or eight, including both boys and girls.

A little later young people from other peace churches were invited to meet with our group. Meetings were held all summer, and before school started there were around fifty young men and women from the seven churches represented. Some have left this vicinity since, but the churches which have been or are now represented are the Methodist, Christian, Church of God, Evangelical, Brethern, First Mennonite, and Second Mennonite. About twenty of the group have left for school and other places, and attendance at present is ranging around thirty or thirty-five regularly. Interest is unusually good. The meetings at first were to last about one hour, but as a rule it takes from one and one-half to two hours to complete a meeting.

Different members of the group take turns in being leader. Meetings vary somewhat, but generally they open with a devotional period, and then continue with Bible Study (Sermon on the Mount, Epistle of James, etc.), practical study, which includes mock tribunals, study of booklets, discussion of non-combatant and civilian service, etc., and a period for projects.

In connection with the discussions on non-combatant and civilian service it is interesting to note that nearly everyone who has come to the meetings regularly has decided that non-combatant service is not right, while at the beginning a large percentage of the group supported non-combatant work. This gives me the impression that in those "peace" churches where a large percentage support non-combatant work, the civilian service side has probably not been thoroughly discussed from all the different angles. As far as I know there are only two or three out of our whole group who, after they heard both sides of the question discussed thoroughly, take the view that certian types of non-combatant work might be all right.

In connection with projects, thus far we have not done as much as we would like to. Soon after the group was formed, we painted the steps and porch of our church, furnishing the paint and labor. But we felt that this was possibly too selfish, so a little later we began giving programs in different churches as one project. We gave programs in both Baptist churches in town, in the Brethren church near Carleton, Nebraska, in the First Mennonite Church west of Beatrice (with the Brethren and Second Mennonite churches also invited), and in the Brethren church near Holmesville, for the State F. O. R. Conference held there recently. We hope to give some more programs soon.

When giving programs in churches that are not pacifist-minded, we attempt to make it clear that we are not trying to "convert" them to our viewpoint, but rather that we are there for the purpose of letting other Christians know what a conscientious objector is (because the public as a whole misunderstands him), what we believe and why (mainly Biblical reasons), discussing how we interpret some passages most commonly used by a militarist, and what C. O.s are doing in a practical way, which includes relief work, C. P. S. camps, etc. Programs are opened with general singing and include devotions and special music. A mixed octette, male quartet, and girl's trio have furnished special numbers thus far. The program for the three local historic peace churches was a little different in that we discussed non-combatant and civilian service instead of "what we believe and why."

At some of our weekly meetings we write cards to our senators, congressmen or the President, either voicing our opposition to certain proposed measures or supporting measures such as food for the small democracies, etc.

For other projects we want to have different groups sing at the hospitals, jail, for invalids, etc. Jail services would probably be mainly evangelistic, and the services should vary according to need.

We also are expecting to give the name of our group to the local Salvation Army, certain local relief agencies for emergencies, etc. When help is needed, we shall try to furnish some.

Also, it is being suggested that we have offerings at our weekly meetings for various projects, which are not yet definitely determined. Part of the money will probably go for the relief of war-stricken areas in Europe, and possibly some for Civilian camps. Helen A. Penner of this community is now on the way to France to do relief work among French refugees.

The organization of the Fellowship group is as follows: chairman, vice-chairman and secretary. The offices of chairman and vice-chairman run for six months, after which the chairman steps out and the vice-chairman becomes chairman. The group then elects a new vice-chairman. The three offices above, together with the minister, make up a committee which is responsible for the programs for the weekly meetings.

Also, there is a program and project committee, composed of three members and the minister, which is responsible for making up programs for other churches and for suggesting projects to the group. Some of these have been mentioned before.

I feel that God has blessed the Fellowship group to a great extent. We do not want to win "laurels" for ourselves, but we want God to be honored and glorified through the efforts of the group.

FALL RALLY

A Fall Rally of the Eastern District Young People's Union will be held at the Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, on November 2, 1941, at 3:00 P. M.

Mr. Gerald Stucky of Berne, Indiana, who is a student at White Biblical Seminary in New York City, will be the speaker.

CALIFORNIA Y. P. RETREAT

The California Young People's Retreat was held at Camp Gains, Lake Sequoia, California, Aug. 2-9. The location of the Retreat grounds, namely, in the mountains and among the gigantic Redwoods, was an inspiration in itself. The Retreat theme was, "Climbing," based on Phil. 3:14: "I press toward the mark, for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." The theme was stressed throughout the Retreat, and we pray that many will have "climbed" to greater spiritual heights.

We were happy to have Rev. Edgar Toevs, Shafter, as dean of the Retreat again. Leonard Wiebe, Upland, as chairman, assisted. Dr. A. Warkentin of Bethel College added much by his stimulating Bible Study class. For Youth Problems Dr. J. H. Langenwalter of Reedly was a help. He also led the Vesper Services. For the Mission hour, for the first part of the week, Miss Agnetha Fast, recently returned from China, told us much about China. We were further blessed by hearing from Miss Ruth Hege of Venezuela. Rev. and Mrs. Chris. Ummel of Shafter, our guest missionaries, presented us with the needs among the migrants.

Recreation consisting of boating, swimming, and hiking, also added to the joy of each day. Each day was filled with these things which helped to develop a healthy spiritual as well as physical body. The Retreat ended with the desire laid upon each heart to go down into the valley and there to live victoriously for Him after a glorious mountain-top experience.

We had a fine Retreat and pray that next year's may be even better.

Sincerely in Christ,

—Marie Schroeder

RALLY HELD

The Western Distrcit Young People's Peace Rally was held in the Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas, on Sunday evening, Sept. 28. The church auditorium was filled to capacity. Paul Goering acted as chairman. Speakers for the meeting were Wilbur Ediger, who gave a report on the work he and other boys are doing at the Civilian Camp in Colorado Springs, Colo.; Rev. Lester Hostetler, editor of Bethel College publications and Professor of Bible, who spoke on the topic "Non-Combatant Service;" and Ted Claassen, who has traveled extensively in England and France and who spoke on "Relief." Mr. Claassen related his experiences as a relief worker in these two countries during the past year. Meetings like these are a great blessing, especially to the young men who are about to leave for the camp.

Rev. Albert M. Gaeddert, director of the Colorado Springs Civilian Public Service Camp, will be the principal speaker at the final session of the Western District Conference. This last evening meeting which is to be held in Convention hall at Hutchinson, Kansas, October 23, is again being planned by the Western Dist. C. E. "Lights in the World," has been chosen as the theme for the evening.

Rev. Gaeddert is well qualified to speak on the topic, "Our Youth as Lights in the World," and comes to us highly recommended. His work these past months has brought him into very intimate contact with young men. He has dealt particularly with the problem of the relationship between one's political and religious thoughts and actions.

The student's point of view will be presented by Orlando Wiebe, a senior at Bethel College. He will speak on the topic, "A college student amidst 'a crooked and perverse generation.'"

It has not been announced who is to speak on the subject, "It is better to light a candle than to curse the darkness." The last two are to be ten minute talks. A men's quartet of high repute has been contacted for the special music.

Every C. E. society should make a special effort to have as many members as possible attend this important meeting.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

SERIES: WAYS TO PEACE

Program for November 2, 1941

Leading Topic: Christian Missions as a Way to Peace. Romans 10:8-15; Matt. 28:19:20.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Far and Near the Fields Are Turning," No. 325; "On the Mountain Top Appearing," No. 336; "Hail to the Brightness of Zion's Glad Morning," No. 332.
2. Reading of leading topic and prayer.
3. Talk on "Mission Work As It Relates Itself to Peace," by a missionary if possible.
4. Offering for peace work, either Civilian Service Camps or Relief Work.

II. Leader's Introduction

The twenty third anniversary of the cessation of hostilities in the first world war, on Nov. 11, is the occasion of these two topics on peace.

The activities of Christian missionaries are one of the greatest influences for peace. The love of God, exemplified in the lives of men and women in the midst of a world torn by strife and hate and war, makes them ambassadors of good will and peace. In China, and in Japan they have taught Christians to live above the hates which war fosters. In India the work of missions has influenced even the hearts and minds of a number of the political leaders. In every country, and every place where missionaries live and work, the gospel of Jesus Christ proves to bring not only peace in the hearts of men, but also peace between men.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Peace between kings	I Kings 5:7-12
2. Good tidings of peace	Isa. 52:7-10
3. Lying prophets of peace.	Ezek. 13 1-10a
4. Messengers of peace	Luke 10:1-9
5. Peter's message of peace	Acts 10:34:38
6. Peace through Christ	Eph. 2:13-18

IV. For Discussion

1. When should missionaries leave their stations because of war?
2. What can our churches at home do to make mission work count for peace?
3. Is the influence of missions for peace helped or hindered by what the members of our own church are doing in the present crisis?

V. Facts for Study

The work of missions has always emphasized peace in the hearts of men. It has also brought harmony into home life. Christians have tried to make their homes abodes of love and understanding. It has made itself felt in its influence on community life. Neighbors have tried to be kind to each other, to do helpful things for each other, and to solve their difficulties by the ways of goodwill and peace rather than by the ways of duel, hate, and ill-will. It is also making itself felt in the attitude of the peoples of different countries to each other. The "Christ of the Andes" is testimony to this fact; also the spirit of love between the Christians of Japan and China. Where love reigns, where Christ rules, the peace must come. In our day of the second world war there is indeed need to push the work of missions—foreign and home—as the way to peace.

VI. Illustration

When Turkey joined forces with the mid-European powers in the Great War, both English and Americans hastened to leave that country to avoid being interned. But courageous young Doctor Cyril Haas quietly stayed at his post. As American Board missionary of Adana, director of the International Hospital in that Turkish city, he felt that as a Christian he could not leave the people of that community to suffer from lack of hospital service.

During this time Doctor Haas succeeded in saving the life of the wife of a Turkish general, after native surgeons had given her up to die. Not long afterward the young doctor became very ill, almost dying with typhoid fever because there was no ice available to reduce his fever. The grateful Turkish general, finding the doctor so in need of ice, called out his army, ranged them in a long line from the hospital to a snow cappped mountain in the suburbs, and hustled that snow down the line to Dr. Haas' bedside.

So radiant is a Christian life that it shines out to touch other strange lives—even those that are hostile—and renders them shining, too.

VII. Food for Thought

The coming of the Christ was to bring "Glory to God in the Highest, peace on earth, goodwill to men."

Program for November 2, 1941

Song: "America the Beautiful."

Scripture Reading: I Peter 2:13-17; Matt. 22:15-22.

Prayer: By Superintendent.

Song: "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Leader's Talk:

"The call to stand for liberty is one that thrills most people. We resent more than anything else to have our liberty taken from us. We all want the right to order our lives as we think best, even though we make mistakes. Character cannot be won if a person is not free to think as he pleases.

"Christ was the first to set us free, and Paul said, 'Where the Spirit is, there is liberty.' This is true liberty. It is not just the right to do as we please, because that kind of liberty often hurts others. But it is the liberty to do right and to be our best; serving God and man according to God's laws.

"The things that keep us in bondage are generally within ourselves. Prejudice and sensitiveness are among them. These traits make us give the wrong meaning to the words of other people, and we do not give them credit for good actions. Everything they do we take as an insult to ourselves. Christ can break these bonds and help us to see all others as God's children whom He loves equally within ourselves.

"It is only when we are free from hate and pride that we know what true liberty is. When this is true, we are willing to do what Jesus asks; and this is true happiness.

"It might help us Americans, who think so much of liberty, to know that every moral failure and every evil thought which we harbor helps to forge a chain around us. It is only when we live true to Him that we are truly free." —N. M. Whitwell

Song: "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Questions:

1. Where should we begin to practice good citizenship?
2. Is the public school a good place to begin to discharge responsibilities of good citizenship?
3. Does our town have a right to expect its young people to help keep the town beautiful and orderly before we are old enough to vote?
4. Does being a good citizen ever conflict with being a good Christian?

Song of the Month

"Hail to the Brightness of Zion's Glad Morning," The Mennonite Hymnary No. 332.

Program for November 2, 1941

ISAIAH

"Come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord." Isaiah 2:5.

I.. Worship Period

1. Prelude: Largo, Pianist.
2. Call to worship: "Sing unto the Lord, for He hath done excellent things. This is known in all the earth." Isaiah 12:5.
3. Pianist plays the melody of "Hail to the Brightness" very softly while the group reads the words of the song.
4. Stand and sing the above song.
5. Leader's opening prayer.
6. Scripture reading by a Junior boy: Isa. 40:1-11.
7. Victrola Record: "And the Glory of the Lord" or "He Shall Feed His Flock," from the Messiah.
8. Quiet moment for silent prayer.

II. Study Period

Aim: To acquaint our Juniors with some of the treasures from "Isaiah."

1. Introduction, by the Junior leader.

What do we mean by "prophet?"

Bring out the truth that the prophet speaks for God, having a message from God to proclaim.

2. All Juniors find the book of Isaiah in their Bibles. How many chapters in this book? Which chapter do you know best?

3. Talk on "Isaiah, the Prophet," by a Junior girl.

Isaiah was born in Judah, the son of Amoz (2:1). He probably was a prince, for he lived at the king's court and talked to the kings. He was a prophet for sixty years, being called by God the year that Uzziah died (6:1). He prophesied during the reign of four kings, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah. He was married and had two sons. He prophesied that our Lord Jesus should be born of a virgin and that He should suffer for our sins.

4. The story of the "Call," read by a Junior boy, Isaiah 6:1-8.

5. Six Juniors each read a prophecy of Christ.

a) Isaiah 7:14; b) 9:2; c) 9:6, 7; d)11:1, 2; e) 60:1-3; f) 61:1, 2a.

6. A Junior girl who reads well, read chapter 53, while the Juniors follow in their Bibles.

7. Solo from rear of church: "When I Survey the Wonderous Cross."

8. Minute talks on precious verses by ten Juniors:

a) Isaiah 1:18; b) 26:24; c) 40:8; d) 41:10; e) 43:11; f) 43:25; g) 52:7; h) 55:6; i) 55:8, 9; j) 65:24.

9. All sing: "Though Your Sins Be As Scarlet," Service Hymnal No. 463.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Divide the group into two sections. Let one name a missionary, the other give the field of service or, if retired, where the field of service was.
2. Ask three to report on a missionary letter found in our church papers.
3. Pray for these missionaries, (Sentence prayers).

IV. Closing Moments

1. Memorize first two verses of the song for the month.
2. Together read the verse for the month.
3. Pray the prayer for the month.
4. Sing: "Into My Heart."

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN W. PENNER, the oldest son of Jacob and Katharina (nee Wiebe) Penner, was born Dec. 23, 1853, in Neukirch, West Prussia. Since his parents were in business at this place, his childhood years were spent there. However, in 1864 his parents transferred their residence to Petershagen near Tiegenhof, West Prussia, and father, then a little boy, assisted them in establishing themselves on a farm. At this place he was privileged to attend the village school until he was 14 years of age. During one winter he served as secretary to a local attorney.

On May 29, 1871, he was baptized upon his confession of faith by the Elder Abraham Esau and received into the fellowship of the Tiegenhagen Mennonite church. Because of conscientious convictions concerning military service he joined the company of a number of others and came with them to America in 1876. He landed in New York July 1, 1876. His goal was the Mennonite settlements in Kansas. Two years later, in 1878, he united with the Brudertal Mennonite church near Hillsboro, Kansas, of which he remained a faithful member.

On Feb. 28, 1878, he married Elizabeth Ewert, daughter of William Ewert, Sr. They founded their new home in Butler County, Kansas. But after a stay of six years there, they removed to the Brudertal community. After 25 years of wedded life they were privileged to commemorate their silver wedding anniversary on Feb. 28, 1903. When in the year of 1913 father was elected county treasurer, the parents established their home in Marion, remaining there for the four years during which he was in office. Following that, the parents took up their residence in Hillsboro.

On Feb. 28, 1928 they were privileged to commemorate their golden wedding anniversary. And, by the grace of God, they were permitted to extend their married journey to 59 years, 9 months and 18 days when, on Dec. 16, 1937, mother passed to her heavenly reward.

The last seven weeks of his earthly life father spent in the Salem Hospital where he was given all possible care, yet the length of his pilgrimmage was taking its toll, and on the morning of Sept. 21, 1941, the Christ whom he served, quietly came and called him home. He reached the age of 87 years, 8 months and 28 days.

He was preceded in death by his wife, four children, one daughter-in-law, one grandchild and one great grandchild.

Of his immediate family he leaves to mourn his departure, 3 sons, 2 daughters, 2 sons-in-law, 2 daughters-in-law, 27 grandchildren, 11 great grandchildren, 2 brothers-in-law and 4 sisters-in-law.

We mourn but not as those without hope, for we are looking forward to a blessed reunion.

—Church Corr.

EDA LA FAYE SHARP was born May 25, 1929, near Bluffton, Ohio. She was the daughter of Charles and Alice Luginbuehl Sharp. On Saturday, Sept. 6, her short life of twelve years ended accidentally and tragically by drowning in Lake Erie near Huron. The family had been spending week ends in their cottage near the lake. She with her brother James, age 10, had been swimming back and forth to a sand bar for the third time. She evidently became very tired and told her brother, "to swim quickly to shore and call for help and tell mother I'm going." Apparently she was overtaken by an under tow or current before help arrived.

Her life, as expressed by her relatives, was very unusual for her age. For years she was concerned about the deeper things of life. Upon her own request she was instructed in Catechism, and a short time ago gave her own personal testimony of assurance of salvation. On June 15, 1941, upon her confession of Christ as Saviour and Lord, she was baptized and received into the membership of the Ebenezer Mennonite Church near Bluffton, Ohio. Her life as a fragrant bud and ray of sunshine is sadly missed by her parents, brother, grand parents and friends.

Funeral services were held at her parental home in Norwalk, Ohio, on Monday, Sept. 6, in the forenoon, and at the Ebenezer Mennonite Church in the afternoon. Rev. A. C. Schultz officiated. —Corr.

CORRESPONDENCE

GNADENBERG MENN. CHURCH

Whitewater, Kansas

October 1, 1941

It was at the last Christian Workers' Conference at Bethel College that the rural church was especially stressed. This is a correspondence from a rural church.

It is generally known that Rev. Harms no longer feels able to conduct Sunday morning worship regularly. This fall it will be 40 years that he has been the elder here. Aside from faithfully fulfilling his ministerial duties, he was also a successful farmer. Recently, Rev. J. J. Voth of the Bethel College faculty has occupied the pulpit quite regularly. He and his family have endeared themselves to us, and it was with real regret that we learned that the present arrangement would no longer be possible.

Many of our friends know that the Gnadenberg church is one of the oldest structures in the General Conference that is still used for worship. Structurally it is much the same as when first built. We still use the same hand-made seats. The hitching racks are still there, although seldom used. So it will be underestandable that we feel quite elated that, through the R. E. A., we now have electric lights. Recently, we were able to have a fellowship supper on the church lawn. This would hardly have been practical without the lights. I hope I am speaking for all the churches in this vicinity if I say that our lives have been enriched through the reading material secured from the W. D. Loan Library. The possibilities of this plan are endless. Could we hear from churches who have put the material to practical use? One of the projects in which we are especially interested is to help maintain our Civilian Service camps. It is only beginning to be apparent how expensive this will be for our people. Ted Claassen found time to tell us about relief work in the warzone. We dare not neglect to suport this work either.

Recently we had a C. E. program on "Recreation." We were told that in seeking recreation we should never forget our high calling in Christ Jesus, look for the best, and we will find the best. We should not only look at our work, but also away from it. Other helpful thoughts were exchanged. We listened to some music, spoke a prayer, and again remembered our neighbor whom only that week we had put away to rest in God's acre. After the program we spent a few minutes in visiting. It was all very simple, but it gave us the feeling of restfulness and serenity that our work-a-day lives are much in need of. Let us not neglect Sunday School and Christian Endeavor.

Many of our members knew Dr. J. R. Thierstein personally. His boyhood home was not far from here. Many people from all walks of life have paid tribute to him. We knew him as a man for whom differences in rank or position did not exist. He is now a worthy citizen of heaven.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LVI NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, OCT. 21, 1941 NUMBER 41

The Quiet Hour

Very few men who have to stand the strain of hard physical labor would think of going to work without a hearty breakfast. Such men generally enjoy making the most of a meal of eggs, ham, and cereal. Practically everyone realizes the necessity of partaking of food at the beginning of a day.

However, in many homes and, perhaps, even in some Mennonite homes, the spiritual breakfast is skipped, or it is only nibbled at. Father hurries to work; Mary rushes off to school; mother's attention becomes fixed on an avalanche of housework. The day begins with a mad scramble and not with a quiet hour in which the soul is fed.

The result: men and women, boys and girls venture into the activities of the day with their hearts comparatively devoid of spiritual food. Nature abhors a vacuum. So do sin and low living. Hearts not filled with the Holy Spirit will be filled by something else. That is inevitable. That is why the Christianity of many is so skeleton-like—not much to it. They lack that nourishment which makes for toughness of spiritual fiber and resultant positive, dynamic living for Christ's sake.

Whosoever would be filled with the Spirit must give God an opportunity for the in-filling. If we approach His Word with a hurried feeling and a desire "to get it over with quickly," then we shall consume little spiritual food and digest still less. We will be empty and weak throughout the day and unable to remember in the evening what we read or prayed about in the morning. We will be unable to minister unto those of our associates who hunger after food for the spirit, but who are kept from it by the tentacles of confused and sinful living. If we enter into the quiet hour hungering and thirsting for spiritual food and drink, then we shall be filled. Then we shall be able to share with others provisions for the spirit. Then we shall live deeply and abundantly in a Christ-like manner.

"Take time to be holy, the world rushes on;
Spend much time in secret with Jesus alone—
By looking to Jesus, like Him thou shalt be;
Thy friends in thy conduct His likeness shall see."

—W

No Time for God?

No time for God?
What fools we are, to clutter up
Our lives with common things
And leave without heart's gate
The Lord of life and Life itself—
Our God!

No time for God?
As soon to say no time
To eat or sleep or love or die.
Take time for God,
Or you shall dwarf your soul,
And when the angel death
Comes knocking at the door,
A poor misshapen thing you'll be
To step into eternity!

No time for God?
That day when sickness comes
Or trouble finds you out
And you cry out for God;
Will He have time for you?
No time for God?
Some day you'll lay aside
This mortal self and make your way
To worlds unknown.
And when you meet Him face to face
Will He—should He,
Have time for you?

Holy Ground

In the Biblical account of Moses' experience with a bush which, though it was aflame, was not consumed, we read that God said to Moses, "Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground." This act signified a sense of respect on the part of Moses. He was standing in the presence of God and as an expression of humility borne of a sense of respect and reverence, he removed the shoes from his feet.

The Hebrew people were very careful not to treat with disrespect or irreverence anything which pertained to God. In the Tabernacle, which was the sanctuary of God during their wanderings in the wilderness, there was a place called the Holy of Holies. Into this place only one person was ever to be admitted. This person was the High Priest. Even the High Priest was to go into this place only once each year and that only after he had purified himself according to the Law. It was a very sacred place. It must be entered with the utmost reverence and respect because God was there.

What a difference there is between the attitude of these people and the people of today, who seem to feel that nothing is sacred and who violate all the places where God is by conduct which is most disrespectful and sacreligious. We are told that the Hebrews did not even utter God's name when they read the Scriptures, yet today we find so many who use His name without thought or concern for what they are saying. We come to God's house and treat it as though it were any other house. We fail to realize that we have come there to stand before God and to be in His presence, nor do we realize that the place where we are is "holy ground."

Perhaps this failure to conduct ourselves in a reverent and respectful way goes deeper than we realize. Perhaps, we have lost a very important element in our Christian religion which we need to have in order to come to a realization that there are some things and some places which are "holy ground." Surely, this is true in the area of human life. Today we see how men have come to disregard the sacredness of human life and how they are bending every effort to destroy that which God has made.

It seems to be true that reverence grows out of an appreciation and knowlege of God. We need to realize that God is everywhere present and that all of life is a sacred thing, that no part of it may be faced lightly and thoughtlessly without involving disrepect and irreverence. If we look at life in this way, we will not have to trouble ourselves by trying desperately to create in ourselves a feeling of reverence and respect. We do not come into the presence of God once a year as did the High Priest, but our very bodies are His temples. We are constantly living in His presence, and we should have an attitude of reverence which can come only as we realize that we are "standing on holy ground."

Brother Petter's Arrival on the Mission Field

By C. H. A. van der Smissen

Since we are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of Brother Petter's entrance into our mission work, the writer was very strongly reminded recently of the time when we (members of the mission board and Brother Petter) came to Darlington. Having been asked to share these experiences with the readers of The Mennonite, the writer will try to do so.

Some members of the mission board and Brother Rodolphe C. Petter arrived at Darlington, now in Oklahoma, then in the Indian Territory. Brother Petter saw the Indian chief of police, Big Bull, a Pawnee, who was tall and broad. Brother Petter said, "Is that an Indian?"

The writer said, "Yes, that is an Indian police."

The next day we visited the Indian agent. The writer told the agent of Brother Petter's introduction to Big Bull. The agent said, "I can tell you of an experience that I had with Big Bull. Our office is above the store. A stairway leads to a platform, and there is the entrance into the office. One day, when the Cheyennes got their pay from the government, a Pawnee came and said, 'I did not get my pay on the Pawnee day; I want it now!' The secretary said, 'You cannot get any money today; it is Cheyenne day.' The Pawnee said, 'If I do not get any money today, no Indian gets any money.' He stepped out onto the platform, took his gun and said, 'I will kill any Indian who comes up the stairway.' So the Indians gathered below. Then came Big Bull. They told him how it was. Big Bull said nothing, but he came to me and told me of the circumstances. I said, 'You get him.' Big Bull said, 'Me get him dead or alive?' 'Yes, you get him.' Big Bull came to the stairway; he did not say a word, but he jumped up, knocked the Pawnee's gun out of his hand, took him by the collar, and carried him down, holding him outside the railing. When on the ground, he let him walk, but held him by the collar. When they reached my office, Big Bull shook him and said, 'Me got him alive.' I spoke kindly to the Pawnee, who, by this time, was thoroughly frightened. He acknowledged having done wrong and promised to behave. Then I let him go."

In the afternoon Rev. Petter and the writer went to the mission house. Petter said, "I would like to begin learning the Cheyenne language. Will you take the Arrapahoe?" The Arrapahoes were the other Indian tribe among which our missionaries had worked and had some converts.

We had small notebooks. We sat down on the porch where there were a number of women. Rev Petter began to cough and said, "Cheyenne," but they did not catch on. He coughed some more and said, "Cheyenne." Then Ben Roadtraveller, our converted Arraphoe, came. I told him what we wanted. He laughed and told the women, and they had a good laugh, for they had pitied Brother Petter, because he seemed to have such a bad cough. Now the Cheyenne and Arrapahoe words came flying, and they kept us busy.

SNAP SHOTS FROM JANJGIR

The Janjgir Church is served by three ordained ministers: —Pandit J. Walters, teacher in the Bible School; Rev. M. R. Asna, elder and pastor of the Janjgir Church; and Rev. S. T. Moyer, elder in charge. Among the varied types of ministry rendered are the following:

Catechetical Classes for boys and for girls.

Intensive Evangelistic Campaigns in the 358 different outlying villages. Eleven such campaigns were conducted this past year. A few baptisms occured. Many were deeply stirred. The enemy was aroused.

Rainy Season Bible Course. Eight classes met daily for five days per week for six weeks. These were open to the entire membership of the church.

Training-in-service of young workers. This last year three were thus in training. We are hoping and praying for funds and worthy recruits, so that not only these three, but three or four more may thus be trained this coming year.

Conducting regular Worship Services in Janjgir Church.

Conducting regular Worship Services in Udeband-Kanai Circut. This is a new project and has brought very encouraging results.

Conducting Visitation and Worship Services at three or four preaching points, 8 to 15 miles distant: Baloda, Akaltara, Dongri Pondi, and Belturki.

During the hot season, before the Bible School and the Middle School for Girls opened, the Janjgir church was crowded to the doors every Sunday. The young people were home for the summer holidays. Before they left for school and work, three of them received baptism after covenanting before Christ and His Janjgir disciples to follow their Saviour. Last Christmas twelve were baptized. After these young people left for school, and the Bible School students and the Anna Funk Memorial School girls came back to Janjgir, the church and its two wings were not only crowded, but those who came late had great difficulty getting seats. We wish some of the supporters in prayer and purse in the homeland could see this crowded congregation of worshipers every Sunday morning.

Three Sunday Schools, not counting those in the district, are now in operation at Janjgir. One is the Junior Sunday School for little children of the Christian community. You ought to see this inspiring, eager group of youngsters carrying their bits of copper, or handfuls of rice, as their weekly offering, and eagerly taking in the lesson and worship periods. Mrs. Moyer is superintendent of this Jr. S. S. The second is the Senior S. S., in which classes are arranged for all, including the very oldest. This school takes up the entire church building, its wings and tower rooms, its verandas, and the surrounding compound, so that the Junior S. S. has to meet in the Middle School Hall, some 300 yards away. The third is for non-Christian young men and boys who have passed out of the Mission Primary School. Bible School students teach in this, and Miss Burkhalter supervises.

"THIS DO IN REMEMBRANCE OF ME"

In the first part of June I sent out notices to the twenty different groups of Christians in the Kai Chow district, telling them when to expect me and that we would remember our Lord's death on the cross by observing the Lord's Supper. These twenty little churches are located from five to twenty-three miles from Kai Chow. Traveling on my motorbike I would visit two places each day, going out in the morning and returning for the night.

Out of these twenty places only eight have church buildings. At the others the people meet in the home of some Christian for worship. The Chinese houses are poorly ventilated, having windows only on one side, and these are often pasted shut with paper, leaving only the door for ventilation. In cold weather it is not so bad, but in summer it is very uncomfortable to hold a meeting in such small quarters, and one has to be an interesting speaker to keep one's audience awake. Hardly ever is there room enough for all to get in and sit down, so a group stands at the door to listen. Because the children are considered bothersome, they are usually told to leave; thus these adults hinder the children in coming to Christ even as the disciples of Christ tried to.

At Nan Wang Chuang we held the meeting under some trees, where it was very comfortable. Again, at Sang Tsun, we met in, what we would call, a barn. At one end of the room there was a cow with her calf. These were led outside before the meeting started. At the other end the feed was stored, leaving a space of about twelve by twelve feet for our meeting. But then, Christ was born in a stable. Why can we not remember His death in a stable? This place used to have a church building, but it was burned during the present war. They have been rather discouraged, but they are now again talking of building a church.

At Wu Hsing an old grandmother, who had not been at church for some time because of sickness, came to worship, even though she was still too weak to sit up during the service. Some bedding was placed on the floor. There she reclined, listened to the message, and also requested prayer for herself.

I had not visited at Liu Tun and Hu Chang for some time, because of the many Chinese soldiers there. They occupied all available space, so that even the evangelist at Liu Tun was crowded out and had to leave for a time. The Christians have now again arranged for a small place and have asked him to come back. At Hu Chuang they had asked the soldiers to kindly let us have one of the buildings for the time of the meeting.

It gave me a great joy to give the message and meaning of the cross at each place, before we had the Lord's Supper. The attendance was good, and I felt that the Lord blessed us richly. The cordial welcome, which one receives everywhere, and the happy faces tell one that they have found satisfaction in Christ. Pray for these small groups that they may grow in grace anl in knowlege of their Lord and Saviour. —August Ewert

SIN AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

Gal. 6:7, 8; I John 1:5-10; 2:1-6

Topic: Ways of Dealing With Sin

Introduction

Webster's dictionary defines sin as:"willful transgression of the divine law; neglect of the laws of morality and religion." Sin is a violation of God's law, either in purpose or in conduct. God created man a free moral agent, who is permitted to exercise his own will and make his own choices. Sin is also used in a generic sense to denote a depraved condition of the heart, which is the cause of outward sins.

Sowing and Reaping

Gal. 6:7, 8

God will not allow anyone to treat His moral laws with contempt and go unpunished. He rules the world through established laws and one of these is that a person will reap just what he sows. Men commit sin and in doing so bring its consequences upon themselves and only too frequently upon others. In all our actions we shall reap just what we sow. There is no escape from the results of sin. This is true of nations just as it is of individuals. If we act merely to gratify our carnal appetites, we will reap evil habits and moral ruin, "corruption" (vs. 8). If we act under the leading of the Spirit, giving ourself to God's service and the doing of His will, we shall reap life everlasting. Whatever we sow in life will be multiplied in our living.

Sin Makes Fellowship With God Impossible

I John 1:5-10

John declares the message which he heard directly from Jesus. God is infinite and unalloyed truth and holiness, "light" (vs. 5). We can not enjoy fellowship with God and at the same time knowingly do the things which He has forbidden, "walk in darkness" (vs. 6). Light and darkness are totally incompatible. The whole foundation truth of the entire Bible is in the infinite holiness of God. To "walk in the light" is to live in full surrender to the truth as found revealed in God's Word. Then we can have fellowship with God and men and cleansing from the guilt of sin and from the power of sin, by the power of the blood of Christ. He saves to the uttermost, cleanses from all sin.

Many deny their need of cleansing from sin, asserting their own righteousness, trying to cover up or excuse their sin. These deceive themselves. If we freely confess our sins to God, He will blot it out and freely forgive us. If we wish God to forgive us, we must be willing to confess to Him. To deny our sinfulness is to contradict the plain Word of God.

Christ, the Believer's Advocate

I John 2:1-6

The believer may be overcome in the hour of temptation, but he need not despair. The grace of God, through Jesus Christ, is available for the repentant sinner. Christ is our advocate with the Father, the propitiation for our sins, the atoning sacrifice made on the cross. Keeping God's commandments is one important test of the reality of our Christianity.

There are three "ways of dealing with sin," common among people. The first is simply denying the reality of sin or claiming that one has no sin to repent of. The sinner who acknowledges his sin can be pardoned. The second way is to let sin rule. The majority of people take sin as a matter of fact and do not even try to avoid it. The only right way, the New Testament way, is to confess sin, renounce it and trust in Christ for pardon and cleansing. Our lesson clearly states God's willingness to forgive. All have sinned, but God has made provision for help for the repentant one.

Why cannot people fully overcome sin by their own will power?

What do we mean by "walking as Christ walked?"

When may we rightly call a mistake a sin?

"What do you find yourself doing the most of —accusing or excusing? —Robert S. Tate

Mennonite Central Committee Relief Notes

October 10, 1941

Akron, Pennsylvania

Brother J. N. Byler, Sisters Lois Gunden and Helen Penner, recently appointed for relief work in France, sailed from New York on October fourth for Lisbon, Portugal.

Brother Byler is from Hesston, Kansas and has been a professor in the Mennonite college there for the past fourteen years. He has been given leave from his teaching for a year to go as a relief worker to France. Brother Byler will be replacing Brother Jesse Hoover as director of the French relief work, and will have his headquarters at Marseille, France. During Brother Byler's absence Sister Byler will be actively engaged in the M. C. C. headquarters at Akron as homekeeper.

Sister Lois Gunden, professor of French at Goshen College, also has a leave of absence, and has been sent to France to direct part of the home colony program for children. Her knowledge of French will well qualify her for her wark. Sister Helen Penner, a teacher, and student of Bethel college, will also be working in France as directess of one of the homes for chidren. Both Sisters Penner and Gunden will be located in Unoccupied France to carry on relief work.

London, England

Peter Dyck's letter of August 19

"According to John Coffman's letter this morning, a shipment of clothing has just arrived in Liverpool. This is the shipment I helped with during my pleasant stay in Akron. It will be a real treat distributing these goods."

Birmingham, England

The latest developments in relief projects here have been the opening of a home for aged and semi-infirm people who have been left destitute by the war. This home is located near Birmingham and is a haven for many war-sufferers.

Little Life Sketches From France

By Jesse Hoover

It was a happy little home "somewhere in Spain," father, mother and three children. And then came the terrible scourge of civil war and with thousands of others the father was hurried away to carnage and bloodshed. In one of the engagements Mr. Gomez who had been promoted to a captaincy was killed. Close on the heels of this tragedy came another. After the crushing defeat of the Republican forces this little fatherless family took to precipitous flight with the other thousands of hapless refugees, finding a sympathetic shelter beyond the borders of France. But in their flight the family had become separated. The three fatherless little children were without mother as well.

It was a happy day when finally the poor, widowed, homeless mother found and gathered together again her little ones. And yet it was unhappy, for the poor little forsaken babies were in such a state that it was necessary for her to put them into a hospital. She is living now at Cerbere with her aged mother and her three children, in the comparatively happy atmosphere of a poor little home. Her father returned to Spain a year ago and she has not heard anything from him since. She does not know whether he was shot or whether he may be languishing in a prison or a concentration camp. She also has two brothers in Spain. The one had been, until recently, in prison, and when he was liberated he had lost his job. The other is still in prison. Both had been officers in the Spanish Republican army. It is quite obvious that she can receive no help from her family. Into these seemingly hopeless circumstances broke a little ray of light and hope. Her three fatherless children are being fed at the canteen of the Secours Mennonite aux Enfants. She herself is being employed at the canteen a part of the day thus earning enough to keep the little family together. No one can say what might have happened to them without Mennonite assistance.

C.P.S. CAMP NEWS

October 7, 1941

The following Mennonite camps are now in operation:

Grottoes, Virginia		89 boys
Marietta, Ohio		44 boys
Bluffton, Indiana		131 boys
Sideling Hill, Penna.	(35 to arrive the 8th)	6 boys
Dennison, Iowa		117 boys
Colorado Springs, Colo.		124 boys

Sixty-three more young men have been assigned to these camps October 8, and thirty more are to arrive before the end of the month. By the first week in November the expectation is that the camps will be filled to capacity. The Dennison camp received its first assignments August 28, the Sideling Hill camp, near the west entrance of the Sideling Hill tunnel on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, received its first boys October 1. A total of 1,145 are now in the 18 camps in operation all over the country. Of these, 501 are in six Mennonite camps. Sixty-seven per cent of the young men in CPS camps come from the three Historic Peace Churches. Some eight per cent additional come from Christian peace groups like Christadelphians, Molokhans, and others. Thirty-nine per cent of the total number of C. O. s in camp are Mennonite boys.

On September 1 to 3 there was held at Winona Lake, Indiana, under the auspices of the National Service Board for Religious Objectors, an important conference to which directors of all Civilian Public Service camps were invited. Besides these a good number of representatives from the Historic Peace Churches were present, together with representatives from other denominations. In all, some 92 people were present. Among these were also General Lewis B. Hershey, General Director of the Selective Service System and two members of his staff, Colonel Kosch and Major McLean.

The purpose of the conference was to review the experiences of the past months in order to determine, if possible, what direction the future program of the camps should take. One big concern of the conference was the problem of financing the camps. Should we continue the present program as financed and directed by the churches? Would it be possible to accept more financial assistance from the Government without impairing our present freedom to direct the whole program of camp life? In view of the insistence of some groups that the Government subsidize and direct civilian camps for conscientious objectors, would it be possible to provide that both the church and the Government operate camps at the same time? The problem was thoroughly discussed from all angles, from the standpoint of the boys in camp as well as from the angle of the constituency which pays the bills. There was a strong feeling that every care should be exercised so that we do not lose the values gained under the present system. General Hershey, who spoke on this occasion and who answered very freely questions put to him at an extended open forum discussion on this problem, emphasized rather forcefully the great advantage the churches had under the present arrangement, an advantage which they would very largely lose in case the Government assumed large responsibility for the financing of the camps. The result of the discussion was the appointment of a Committee which is to explore fully this whole problem in consultation with the Government and present a recommendation to a similar meeting to be called as early as possible this fall. In the meantime, the present arrangements are to continue until January 1, 1942.

The development of an adequate educational program for our camps is no small problem. Boys come to camp with such varying educational and community backgrounds, and with such widely differing interests that it is difficult to arrange a progrom of educational activity that will suit everyone. The Mennonite Central Committee is therefore calling a meeting of the educational directors of our camps in Chicago, October 10 and 11, to which also representatives of Mennonite educational institutions have been invited, to discuss this whole problem in the light of actual camp experience and to try to set objectives and formulate policies and plans which they think will be in harmony with the desires of our constituency and with the wishes of our boys.

The spirit of the boys in camp as a whole is excellent. Discipline problems arise, and our camp staff tries to handle them in harmony with the Christian spirit and with general Mennonite practice. The boys as a whole are interested in working out a high type of life in their camp relations. They have been giving a good account of themselves, both as to the service they have rendered as well as to the character they reveal. A number of the camps are mimeographing their own camp paper which not only helps to inform home folks but also helps to keep up camp morale. The boys in camp and those in charge of the adminstration of the camp need your continued interest and prayers.

WHY CIVILIAN PUBLIC SERVICE WORK?

By Albert Gaeddert, Director,
Civilian Public Service Camp,
Colorado Springs, Colorado

In any undertaking whether of a personal or social nature, it is necessary that the aims and objectives of the project be clear in the minds of those who participate. Likewise, in our Civilian Public Service Camp work, the people involved ought to have a clear vision of the purposes toward which we are striving. It is called work of national importance under civilian direction, but that still leaves the aims out of the picture to a large extent.

Let it be said, first of all, that it presents a positive approach to the problem of peace, rather than a sole refusal to participate in the war machine. In the late world war, the best the conscientious objector could do was to refuse to do. Now, through the generosity of a democratic government, it is possible to offer our services for constructive purposes. With this I would list the first purpose and objective toward which we are setting our aims: to render constructive service to our government and to humanity. Although we refuse to become a part of the war machine, we are willing and eager to give our service where we feel that it is employed toward the harm of no one and to the upbuilding of the abiding interests and welfare of humanity. It is interesting today to find those who look at issues and their implications in terms of a long period of time. It is doubly encouraging to hear a statement such as this coming from one in government employ: "The greatest defense work we can do in our nation today is to defend the soil, upon which and by which we live." It may seem insignificant to go out to do soil conservation work when we think only in terms of each shovelful of dirt that we throw over the bank, but when we view the program as a means of preserving what the Eternal has entrusted to us, then the work takes on a personal significance, because it concerns people, individuals, families, communities, and nations.

A second objective of our camp program is to strengthen our democracy at home. We have a strong faith that the best method of preserving the democratic way of life is not with machine guns but by the simple demonstration of its principles in numerous small communities. The foremost principle operative is a sincere faith and trust in God and in man. Jesus, the Master of man, placed such a genuine faith in God that the most apt designation that He could give to God, that would fully express the close relationship, was Father. Because God was a Father, and the Father of all peoples, it followed that all men were brothers. Such respect, such faith is best developed in the democratic way of life; it cannot be fostered by blasting machine guns or by dive bombers and torpedoes.

Though our views may differ and our backgrounds vary, we can still get together, live, work, play, eat, and worship together. There is in this sort of set-up an opportunity hitherto unequaled. Here we can learn to know one another thoroughly, appreciate the goodness that dwells within each of us, and in a quiet and peaceful manner come to develop a keen appreciation for the possibilities of the other's personality. Spiritual growth is firmly grounded, for here it has time to bear the fruits of the Spirit: love, joy, peace, long-suffering, and kindness.

Another aim of our camps, as I see it, is to prepare the men who come here to go back into their own communities and there be able to render a greater service. They ought to be able to live more completely and more abundantly, having had their horizons widened by the personal contacts established. They should be able to understand their neighbor more readily, having learned to understand their comrades, with whom they lived for a period of time, as members of the same household. They should be greater churchmen, having learned to appreciate the values that the Church has upheld, some of which have become so much a part of them. They should be better men in their family relations, having established a closer kinship with those principles that bind family ties so stably. They should be greater men in the community, having developed a community spirit that carries a strong concern for all its associates. They should be better farmers or better city people, having seen at first hand the reaction of both groups to varying situations.

These are but a few of the objectives that, to my mind, our camps are holding up to those who enter into them. If one were to generalize a conclusion, it could very well be phrased in the words that the writer of the Book of Revelation puts into the mouth of God: "Behold I have set before thee an open door which no man can shut." —Pike View Peace News

Some of the board members came and told us that we would go to the Indian camp. So we went along. A lady from the mission kitchen also went. She said, "Yesterday the Florida prisoners came. They were taken prisoners in Kansas when they began to kill white people. They had been in Florida for quite a while. Now they have their guns and are dangerous." We stepped up to a tent. There lay a Florida prisoner with his gun, and he made a terrifying face. The lady said, "Does he not look awful?"

Mrs. Petter said, "I am not afraid." She sat down right before him, took a baby carrier and asked him, "What is this?" The bad prisoner smiled and explained that the Indian mothers carry their babies on their back in that.

We asked whether we should sing for him. "Yes, sing," he said. So we sang a song with a warlike melody, and he said, "Good, sing more." We sang another song.

Brother Petter read his Cheyenne words, but he could not pronounce "mother" correctly. He tried several times. He saw that the Cheyenne language is not easy to learn. The Indian took us to a large arbor. Mrs. Petter wanted to take a baby, but the baby shrieked so fearfully that she quickly handed it back to the mother.

The writer asked Ben to try to get permission for him to attend the heathen devotion to the setting sun. He got the permission. Petter went with Ben to see the Indian tent-camp and to have him tell of their life. Petter also told Ben to ask permission for us two to go into the circle when they danced. He got the permission.

In the evening the dance was held. The medicine men sent word to the writer that they were ready to dance and that we should enter the circle. The evening devotion to the setting sun was very interesting. They bowed and sang. The writer tried to put down by sound what they sang. When the devotion was finished, one of the medicine men stepped up to the writer and put his flat hand sideways against his forehead and then against the chest. Ben later said that that meant, "Does the white man, the man with the hat, understand?" This was the sign language of the Indians, which any Indian of any tribe understood. So did our missionaries. About two or three years later, the writer's tall Indian friend, chief Waaten, the big man from the Washita, sent him this devotion. Missionary J. J. Kliewer translated it and put the music to it.

However, Brother Petter was so interested in the life of the Indians that he forgot about the dance, until he heard the Tom Tom. Then he came and was very sorry that he had not been there to accept the invitation of the chiefs.

We stood outside the circle and watched them. When they stopped to rest, some young girls, who attended the school, stopped in front of us. The writer told them that we were invited to go into the circle. He asked, "Do you think we could go in?"

The girls answered, "You try it."

"We do not feel like trying it."

When they began to dance, we stood near the outside circle. Brother Petter said, "I would like to try the dancing. Will you help me?"

So we imitated them. After about ten minutes Brother Petter said, "My, but that is nerve-racking. Now I understand what makes them so wild." Soon a woman jumped into the circle, yelling. She stood on one leg and whirled around as though crazy, yelling all the time. We left, but the yelling increased very much.

The heights by great men reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight,
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night.

CORRESPONDENCE

GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH

Pandora, Ohio

"Praise ye the Lord, O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endureth forever" (Ps. 106:1). "In all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us" (Rom. 8:37).

Our church enjoyed many blessings the past quarter and the time to report is again here. Rev. Musser already has served us more than one quarter.

A sermon, in story form, is told to the children every Sunday morning just before the sermon. October 5 the Catechetical class will be started. It will continue until Easter. During the summer months our Women's Mission Society meets in the evening so that more can attend, because this is a rather busy time.

On the evening of July 5, Miss Evelyn Hilty gave some of the high lights of the Lake Geneva Conference. July 13 the Intermediate C. E. had a social gathering at Columbus Grove Park. We were privileged to have three union services during the summer months. The Methodist, St. Johns, and Grace churches participated. July 25 the Intermediate-Junior department had a S. S. picnic at the church.

July 25 Rev. and Mrs. Musser and daughters held open house at the parsonage. It was an informal social gathering. Many were present and all seemed to enjoy the fellowship. The Dorcas Mission Society meets monthly in the girls' homes.

July 27 the four Mennonite churches had a pulpit exchange in the morning, and in the evening the choirs of these churches gave a musical program at the First Mennonite Church of Bluffton. Prof. Harold Ruesser of Columbus, Ohio, directed the general singing, and it was good to be present. It is wonderful to worship God in song. August 3 the parents of Mrs. Musser and their son, Rev. E. J. Hostetler, pastor of the Congregational Church of N. Madison, Conn., worshipped with us, the latter preaching for us.

August 12-14 was the time for the Middle District Conference. It was held at the Ebenezer church and was well attended. A spirit of fellowship prevailed. Because the General Conference followed so closely we had as conference guests Dr. C. E. Krehbiel, president of the General Conference, Rev. P. P. Wedel, chairman of the Foreign Mission Board, Dr. P. A. Penner, who has served more than 40 years as Missionary in India, and Rev. J. M. Regier and family of Hillsboro, Kansas. Rev. Regier formerly served us as pastor. It does one good to hear these dear people whom we know for the work they are

Young People's Work

Westheimer Mennonite Church, Rosemary, Alberta

The Westheimer Church leaders are rejoicing in the active part that the young people are taking in religious work. Although there are a few that have not accepted Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour, they, nevertheless, help wherever they can.

Every month, on a Sunday afternoon, our young people render a German program, consisting of songs, poems, and essays. Once a month, on a Sunday evening, they give a program in the English language. English neighbors attend these programs. Our young people also have regular choir rehearsals. In order to facilitate their work, the young people bought a piano for $150. They have put it into the church for use in the regular worship services.

In order to accommodate all that came to our Sunday school, we had to arrange rooms in the basement of the school house on our church yard. We now have six classes, and each class has a regular teacher.

On July 6 our young people arranged for a song festival. Seven choirs and two quartets participated in the festival. In the evening they presented a program in the English language.

The regular worship services are well attended by both young and old. During the year we were permitted to baptize ten converts and to receive them into our church membership. Slowly a more vital spiritual life is making itself felt.

Regarding the home mission work that has been done in Alberta, it must be said that it is as changeable as the weather. In some instances, however, there is a real desire for the Word, and the desire for salvation is increasing. In these neighbouring churches young people are active and helpful in building up the work of the Lord. Of course, we must admit that some "scabby sheep" can be found in these congregations in Alberta as well as elsewhere.

Next time I hope to make a more detailed report about my itinerant work among those who are scattered far and wide.

I extend a most cordial greeting to mission workers in the home and foreign fields and to the conference. May the Lord pour out His blessing on the General Conference and on all visitors and delegates. We trust that He will give special grace to all who have special duties to perform.

In Brotherly Love,
C. D. Harder

Visit to Old Mexico

Henry T. Reimer, Jr.

Elizabeth and I are as far south as our Ford will take us. Just exactly why we came to Mexico we will never be able to explain. We crossed the border at Laredo, and after traveling on the Pan American Highway for three days, reached Mexico City.

The country is beautiful. The people—well, they make you feel that you should help them. If anything would turn you against the Catholic religion, their plight would. I suppose that they did give them something in place of their idols, but instead of making God the high spot in their lives, it seems that the priests and their comforts, and the beautiful cathedrals, were stressed too much. Mexico needs the Protestant church very badly. I hope that they get it before the people become entirely irreligious.

We have some trouble getting around because we do not speak the Spanish language. However, the people seem to understand us, and we are enjoying our visit very much.

As far as the international situation is concerned, I believe that the American industrialist has robbed the Mexican people. In regard to the oil problem of a few years ago, it is true that the Mexican laborer was made to work for practically nothing, just a few Pesos a day (the rate of exchange is now $4.83 for one American dollar). From what I can find out, English capital was even more strongly represented than the American.

The Mexican people are not forgetting these facts. In fact, the German flag can be bought just as easily as the American or English, and, personally, I have a feeling that the people do not have a very strong anti-German feeling. This may not have any particular meaning, but I wonder if people are not waking up to the fact that maybe our wars are very largely the result of commercial greed.

THIS AND THAT

—New Experience: My brother Irvin has entered the Civilian Public Service camp here at San Dimas (California.) He finds it a different situation than he has ever experienced before. Twenty-three denominations are represented, among which are Theosophists, Jews, Pentecostals, as well as Friends, Brethren, and Mennonites. Irvin says that one lesson which this year will teach him is tolerance and the art of getting along with others. It is a good deal different from dormitory life at Bethel, I guess. Nevertheless, Irvin, as well as the majority of the boys there, have made up their minds to cooperate with the camp management and to get as much good out of the year (or more) as they can.

—Louise Richert

—Support Orphans: The Junior Christian Endeavorers of the Eastern District Conference have contributed twenty dollars for an orphan in China and twenty dollars for an orphan in India. Because of the high rate of exchange in China at this time, it is possible to help two children with the money contributed to that work. —Catherine Niswander

HELEN A. PENNER ON WAY TO FRANCE

On October 4, Miss Helen A. Penner of Beatrice, Nebraska, embarked for France, where she is to do relief work for one year under the auspices of the Mennonite Central Committee. Miss Penner is to be directress of the Children's Colony at La Rouviere, which is near Marseille. Miss Edna Ramseyer formerly had charge of this work.

Sailing with Miss Penner are Lois Gunden, former teacher of French at Goshen College, Goshen, Indiana, and Joseph Byler, who formerly taught at Hesston College, Hesston, Kansas, and part-time at Bethel College. Miss Gunden is to serve in the Children's Convalescent Home near Banquls, which is about one hundred yards from the Mediterranean Sea. Mr. Byler is to direct the relief work in France and is to be located near Marseille. Mrs. M. C. Lehman, who had hoped to sail with the group, was unable to do so because of difficulty in the securing of a passport.

The party sailed from Jersey City, New Jersey, on the Excambion. On October 13, relatives of Miss Penner received an airmail letter which had been sent from Bermuda. It stated that the group was enjoying the trip very much, that all but twelve passengers had disembarked, and that the Excambion would next head for Lisbon, Portugal.

To her home congregation, Miss Penner wrote these lines: "I am so happy to have the opportunity to go as a representative of the General Conference to do this constructive work. This is one way in which we can give our peace testimony to the world. . . . Please remember me in your prayers."

Until further notice Miss Penner's address will be:

ORGANIZATION AND ENTERPRISES OF OUR GENERAL CONFERENCE

Program for November 9, 1941

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "I Am the Lord, O Hear My Voice" ("Mir Nach Spricht Christus, Unser Held"), No. 565; "The Work Is Thine, O Christ" ("Die Sach Ist Dein"), No. 550.
2. Reading of Romans 12:1-21 and prayer.
3. Group singing of the songs which are typically Mennonite and which are found in the Gesangbuch Mit Noten and in our new book, THE MENNONITE HYMNARY. Suggested songs are: Nos. 514, 518, 549, 562, 571.
4. Offering for the Schools of our General Conference.

II. General Conference Organization

1. Question Box on Officers, Committees, and Boards.

   For information see the Year Book of 1941 and the election results of the General Conference session which was held last August.
2. Chart presentation of the various District Conferences.

   List their executive committees, the chairmen of the various committees, and make brief mention of the work that they are doing.

III. General Conference Enterprises

Since education was the earliest enterprise, much earlier than missions, let us make a study of this phase of our conference work at this meeting. It will be followed by a study of Publication Work, Foreign and Home Missions, Relief Work, Peace, Young People's Work, and a study of the Canadian churches at two other meetings.

Short Talks

1. Early Efforts—The Wadsworth School.
   —The Beginning of Bethel College at Halstead.

   For material write to Dr. A. Warkentin,
   North Newton, Kansas
2. The Founding and Early Years of Bethel College.

   See old catalogs of the college and old church papers of that time.
3. The Organization and Growth of the College Department.
4. Admission into the North Central Association, Obligations, and Present Standing.

Write to Dr. P. J. Wedel or Dr. P. S. Goertz for information.

5. The Work Program of the College.
Harry Martens or Rev. Sam Goering could supply information. See the annual reports of the college for this topic and the previous one.

A similar outline should be used for the study of Bluffton College. The work of Freeman Junior College, the Mennonite Collegiate Institute of Gretna, Manitoba, the Oklahoma Bible Academy, and the Rosthern Mennonite Academy should be presented in brief talks. Material for these may be found in the Year Book of 1941. Those C. E. societies who wish to make a more than very cursory study of Bethel and Bluffton colleges will need to fill an evening with a program devoted to only one school. Probably they will need two or three meetings to study the various schools.

IV. Food for Thought

"My people perish for want of knowledge," said the prophet of old. Teach the hand and the mind and the heart—and then let the hand and the mind be fit tools of the heart.

NOBODY WANTS WAR—WHY NOT?

Program for November 9, 1941

Opening Prayer: "O Lord God Almighty, Who from Thy throne dost behold all the dwellers upon earth, look down with pity upon those on whom have fallen the miseries of war. Have compassion on the wounded and dying; comfort the brokenhearted; assuage the madness of the nations; make war to cease; give peace in our time, O Lord. We ask it in the Name of Him Who is the Prince of Peace, even Thy Son Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

Hymn: "Sweet Peace, the Gift of God's Love."

Scripture Reading: James 4:1-3.

Daily References:

1. Better than war	Eccl. 9:18
2. Wars to cease	Mic. 4:1-5
3. We need leading	Luke 1:76-79
4. We must work for peace	Psalm 34:14
5. The beatitude for peace	Matt. 5:9
6. The better warfare	I Tim. 1:18, 19

General discussion concerning the above references.

Song: "Peace, Be Still!"

Round Table Discussion: What harmful effects does war have?

1. War depletes the man power of the world.
2. War causes hideous, unnecessary suffering.
3. War is an economic waste.
4. War causes economic rivalries.
6. Have the members name other harmful effects.

Challenge: By Leader.

"We have found that we cannot rest our hopes for peace in politicians, so peace-loving citizens must turn elsewhere. But where shall they turn? The late Earl Haig said, 'The churches should make war impossible.' Some say it is not the church's business, and others say it is.

"The safest way to preserve peace is to teach it through the churches. Christians the world over must become peace-conscious. Let us base our peace campaign on the story of the world's greatest sacrifice and the cross of Christ. That alone would be sufficient if we would work together.

"Nations must prepare for peace as for war. We must organize for peace. It does no good when the trumpets are sounding and the guns are belching destruction.

"We all believe that Christ was the 'Prince of Peace.' If that is true, surely peace on earth cannot be brought about by such a murderous method as war.

"We are grateful to God that we have had as much peace in our country as we have had. Our land is known as a Christian nation, so to be truly loyal to our nation and to our God, let us ever strive and pray for peace in our hearts and in those of all men everywhere." —N. M. Whitwell

Song: "Work, For the Night is Coming."

Sentence Prayers.

Boys: Jer. 17:9—"The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?"

6. Solo voice sings verse one of "Trust and Obey" while the Juniors hum the melody softly.

7. Leader's heart talk.

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors to know something of the great prophet Jeremiah. To help them to realize that God hates sin and pleads with sinners to obey Him.

1. Open Bibles
   - —Find the book of Jeremiah.
   - —How many chapters?
   - —Read in turn the following precious phrases: Jer. 1:8b; 1:9b; 3:4b; 3:12b; 7:3b; 6:14b; 17:14b; 31:3; 31:6b; 31:34c; 33:11b.

2. "The Story of Jeremiah," told by a Junior girl:

"Jeremiah, one of the greatest of the Hebrew prophets, was born in the little town of Anathoth near Jerusalem. His father was Hilkiah, a priest. When Jeremiah was still very young, God called him to be a prophet. This was when Josiah was the king of Judah. Jeremiah felt that he was not able to do this great task (Chapter 1:6), but the Lord God promised to be with him (Chapter 1:8, 9). For fifty years Jeremiah prophesied. He had a very hard message for the people, because they had left the Lord God and worshiped idols. He had to tell the people of their sins and of the punishment to come if they did not turn to Jehovah. He begged them to leave their sinful ways and turn to God, but they did not listen to him. They hated him for his messages and persecuted him; but although that hurt him, Jeremiah was brave, bold, and very faithful in telling the message that God gave him."

3. How Jeremiah "acted out" his message to the people, Jeremiah 27, by a Junior boy.

4. "The lesson Jeremiah taught when he was at the Potter's house," Jeremiah 18:1-12, by a Junior girl.

5. Quartet: "Have Thine Own Way Lord" (Service Hymnal, No. 284).

6. "Jeremiah in the Dungeon," Jeremiah 37:1-4; 37:15; 38:4-13, by a Junior boy.

7. Minute talks on precious verses by seven Juniors: Jeremiah 3:4; 3:12, 13; 4:14; 7: 23; 29:13; 31:3; 33:11b.

8. Song: "Jesus Loves Me."

III. Mission Minutes

1. Have a "mission sing-song." The Juniors choose the song and the one verse that particularly brings the mission message. All sing.
2. Report on a missionary letter or talk.
3. Pray for all of the missionaries of the world.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Finish memorizing the song of the month.
2. Repeat the verse of the month.
3. Pray the prayer of the month.
4. Sing "Into My Heart."

"Thoughts, not things, cause worry."

"There is no progress possible without faith."

doing but whom we seldom see and hear. August 17 our church enjoyed a splendid program given by the A Capella Choir of Bethel College. August 24 we had the rare treat of hearing Miss Ruth Bixel give an Organ and Piano Recital.

The General Conference is again history. Nine of our church members attended part time, and all report a good conference. On Sept. 21 our pastor gave us a glimpse of the spirit of the conference: democratic, mission-minded, peace-minded.

We have a positive program to offer because we have "Christ" on our side. During our pastor's absence, our former pastor, Rev. P. E. Whitmer, served us. Our mid-week Bible study and prayer meetings are times of blessing, for the Lord is present. At present we study the Kingdom of God.

The following marriages occurred on the following dates:

June 28 — Elnora Burry and Harold Rayle.
August 2 — Geneva Hilty and Lloyd Samsal.
August 3 — Bessie Steffen and John Green.
August 17 — Margaret Niswander and Frances Sommer.
August 17 — Winnifred Sprunger and Leland Gerber.
August 24 — Alice Samsal and Kenneth Sommer.
August 27 — Anna Gertrude Schumacher and David Reichenbach.

Statistical Report

Given at the General Conference Session at Souderton, Pa., August 17 to 22, 1941

This report was written on August 11, 1941. The report of the statistician can be only as accurate as the reports which are sent in by the various churches of the conference. As a whole, the church leaders were quite faithful in filling out the report blanks and returning them to the secretary. Some of the reports, however, were recieved very late, which made it difficult to assemble all of the data before this session of conference. Ten churches did not respond. All of the churches of the Pacific District and the Eastern District have reported.

The Canadian District Conference churches were the most prompt in sending their reports.

Data of churches:

126 have Ladies Mission Societies.
98 have regular prayer meeting services.
40 use both the English and the German languages in their worship.

44 use only the German language (the greatest number being in Canada). Only 3 Canadian churches use both languages.
34 issue church bulletins regularly.
124 have Young People's societies.
31 have church bells.

Children:
Western District reported 3,945
Canadian District reported 3,002

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. MARY LANDIS FELLMAN, daughter of Aaron and Sarah Hager Landis, was born in Haycock Township, Pa., February 10, 1854. Early in life she was brought to the church by her parents, and on April 3, 1869, she was baptized by Rev. A. B. Shelly and received into the membership of the Flatland Church.

The marriage to Harvey Fellman took place on October 2, 1875. The union was blest with one child, Flora, who now survives her mother. The husband preceded her in death February 26, 1932. One brother, John H. Landis, also survives.

All her life she lived in this community. Her devotion to the church is well known by all neighbors.

She fell asleep just after the sun had set on Monday, Sept. 15, bringing her age to 87 years, 7 months and 5 days.

Text used by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, her pastor, was Rom. 8:28. Interment, Flatland burial ground.

MRS. ADELINE S. STAUFFER, daughter of Rev. Andrew B. and Fannie Weinberger Shelly, was born in Milford Township, Pa., May 22, 1861.

On March 26, 1875, she was baptized upon confession of her faith in Jesus Christ as Saviour and admitted into the West Swamp Mennonite Church.

The marriage to Uriah S. Stauffer occurred December 25, 1883. One son was born into this union, and he and her husband preceded her in death.

On January 1, 1899, she with her husband and a number of others became charter members of Bethany Mennonite Church. Here Mrs. Stauffer found her joy and delight in helping to build the Sunday School, choir and church. She labored in many capacities, and what she did was always well done.

One brother, Menno Shelly, survives.

For the last four and a half years she shared her home with her niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wickersham, who gave her every comfort possible during her illness.

Death came while asleep on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 25, bringing her age to 80 years, 4 months and 3 days.

Funeral service in Bethany Church was conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander. Text used was I Cor. 2:9. Interment, Quakertown Union Cemetery.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LVI NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, Oct. 28, 1941 NUMBER 42

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919

Have Ye Not Read?

On at least four occasions, when some important matter was under discussion, Jesus turned to the leaders of the Jews and said, "Have ye not read?" Evidently, these men, who were the best educated and most widely read men of their nation, had failed to emphasize or to comprehend in their extensive reading certain truths, which Jesus considered of vital importance. Zealous for reading they were. But they had missed out on a great many things which were of great significance to Jesus.

Is it not the same true of a great many Christians today? Many gorge themselves with reading matter. They have read Went With The Breeze and many other best-sellers. They read the newspaper, and not the Bible, daily. They depend upon five and ten cent magazines for the basis of a great deal of their thinking. They know the characters of the funnies better than the characters of the great Bible drama. They read a great deal, but much that is supremely vital remains unread.

Commercial agencies and our public schools very largely determine the reading choices of many. Magazine agents and newspaper publishers exert great pressure upon people to choose what they have to offer. Because of necessity our public school teachers ask pupils to read secular books, books which because of content and number, tend strongly to give the pupils a secular outlook upon the world. Is it right for the Christian to yield to the pressure of these secular agencies?

We have a limited amount of time and energy to devote to reading. In order to read a certain book, magazine, or paper, we must neglect some other reading material. We must choose, and every one does choose. How do we choose, in a Christian or un-Christian way?

A Christian choice of reading material means giving first place to that literature which helps us to grow in Christian character and in the work of God's Kingdom. The scholar who majors in history is bound to have on his bookshelves a greater number of books relating to history than to any other subject. The God-given assignment of every Christian is to major in Christianity. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness." Should not the majority of our books and magazines deal with that which we as Christians are to seek first? In fact, should not all of our reading material be related to this paramount purpose in some way? God does not give the Christian a minute of time for partaking of that which is not the best. Does not the verse, "Whether ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God," also apply to reading?

Let us choose our reading material in such a way that the Master Teacher will not have to turn to us and ask, "Have ye not read?" Let us choose the Bible as our text book. Let us choose all of our other reading material in such a way that it will make us better members of the Kingdom of God. Reading does make a full man. May we be full of Christ and His Kingdom. —W.

Thoughts On Christian Stewardship

Our Peace Doctrine

By Rev. Gerhard Friesen

When stewardship is mentioned most people think of the stewardship of material things. This is, indeed, an important part of Christian stewardship. However, Christian stewardship includes much more. In fact, for a Christian there is no phase that does not come under stewardship. Everything he has is for him a trust from God, to be used to God's glory and for the welfare of fellow-man.

Later it may be possible to bring some thoughts on the other phases; at this time we shall limit ourselves to the stewardship of our Mennonite Christian faith as it refers to the peace doctrine. I consider this as one of the most important parts of our stewardship because there is great need for it at this time.

Some may not have a clear conception of why we are called pacifists. What characterizes our faith? On what is it based? Is it worth what it costs to live up to it? These are thoughts upon which a person who holds this faith would want to be clear. The apostle Peter writes in his first letter (chap. 3:15), "but sanctify in your hearts Christ as Lord; being ready always to give answer to every man that asketh you for a reason concerning the hope (we might substitute faith) that is in you, . . ." Peter himself gives the reason in vss. 8-16 of this chapter.

We know that our faith is based on Christ and His teaching as recorded in the New Testament. What He lived and what He taught is fundamental for our life. It is not necessary here to go into detail in enumerating and quoting the passages that have special reference to this part of our faith; that has been done adequately by others in pamphlets, prepared for our young men of draft age. We wish to state here briefly that Christ's whole program was a demonstration of the method and the redeeming power of love. He came that we might have life, abundant or full life. God so loved . . . that He gave His Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should have everlasting life.

What does believing in Him mean if not accepting Him and His way of life? If Jesus' way is God's way, any way out of harmony with that could not be God's way. Godless ways never lead to anything good. The way of war is not the way of love. Hate breeds hate. Anyone who is overcome in war will seek to revenge himself some day. Love forgives, is kind-hearted, sympathetic, wills the good, and does that which is right, what is best for the other person or nation. By this method all causes for hate and revenge are removed and war becomes impossible. Evil is overcome by good.

As long as I am willing to have any part in this killing program, I would hardly have a right to ask the enemy to give up his program of killing. He could not believe that I was sincere. If we use the same technique that the enemy uses, how can we claim to offer him something that is better than what he has? If liberty, equality, honesty, truth, and democracy must be sacrificed to combat the enemy, how can we hold up to him these qualities as ideals for which he should strive? What we hate and despise in the enemy, that is, his craftiness, despotism, and savagery, is the very result of fighting him with his own weapons. He only tries to protect himself and gain the advantage. It is like supplying the fish with water. If we sow to the wind we will reap the whirlwind.

Our faith constrains us to love and be friends rather than to hate and be enemies. That is why we are called pacifists. Our faith is characterized by a program of Christian love. Our faith is based on God's program of love and forgiveness towards us and the knowledge that the way of love is the best, in fact, the only way of truly living. Our faith is worth living because it is the only way to make the world safe for democracy and for the Kingdom of God. Any other way spells chaos and hell.

If we have this faith we are God's stewards of it. I have occasionally observed that Mennonites coming from churches that practice immersion prefer to join with other denominations that have the same form of baptism rather than with Mennonite churches that do not practice immersion. Does that mean that the form of baptism is more important than our Christian faith in the peace doctrine? If we claim this faith of our fathers, shall we compromise it to remain loyal to some outward form, to safeguard a remunerative position, or to keep our standing with those who do not share this faith with us? Are earthly things, our life included, of greater value than spiritual realities? We are God's stewards of this faith. He expects us to prove to the world that this is the way of life. Dare we fail Him?

Our Prayer

When strife all around us is surging and long,
When sorrow is added each moment—
Then help us, dear Lord, feel Thee making us strong,
And look in Thy face with contentment.

When virtues like feathers are cast to the wind,
When all our traditions are tried;
Then let us wake up and see our great sin,
And think why our forefathers died.

When life's billows roll us upon the great sea,
When angry waves laugh us to scorn;
May all of our refuge complete be in Thee,
Our anchors will hold in the storm.

When finally at sunset our work here is through,
And all our adventures are done;
Then help us to know there is work yet to do,
The greatest adventures to come.

Hearing And Praying

Two young men who were members of the same church, were in a conversation about their pastor when one asked the other, "Are you interested in our pastor's preaching?" "Yes," replied the other, "I am indeed; I derive instruction and profit from his discourses." "Well," said his friend, "I am sure I can't feel that way. I am very far from being interested in his labors or getting any benefit from them." "Perhaps," rejoined the other, "you don't pray for our minister, do you?" "No, I confess I do not." "Well, it strikes me that your neglect of this duty explains your want of interest in his ministry. Let me urge you to remember him daily in your closet supplications, and I rather think the more you are exercised in praying for him, the more you will be blessed in hearing from him." The faultfinder took the advice, and some months afterward he met with his friend and stated the results. He had given his pastor a large place in his petitions, and meanwhile his minister had taken a large place in his affections; and if the minister derived no benefit from his prayers, he derived great benefit from his pastor's preaching.

IS DANGER GOD'S CALL TO LEAVE A PLACE OF DUTY?

By Wilhelmina Kuyf and Marie J. Regier

Yesterday we went out to a village, which lies about twelve miles away. This town was in occupied territory theoretically for some time, but only recently it became so practically. The early days of such occupation are always very trying. In each home we were showered with tales of suffering and indignities. Always we tried to point our Chinese friends to the only Refuge in trouble and mostly they agreed. Many were sick with diarrhea and with malaria. One dear old lady had been sick for two weeks. She was much discouraged because it seemed as though God did not hear her prayer. Now that we had come, she knew He had not forgotten her. As we were trying to comfort and encourage the people in the different homes, we were so very conscious of the fact that we had not suffered, that we had not faced danger as these people had. Were we capable of urging them to put their trust in God?

It was late before we got home; so many were buying medicines that we could not turn them away. We were no longer able to get into the city, but the Browns, who live in the suburbs, always take us in graciously. Then we heard of the letter from the board urging us to turn our work over to the Chinese and all to come home, evidently because of danger!

To turn our work over to the Chinese is, indeed, a very satisfactory arrangement to us. Moreover, we are not saying that God might not want us to serve some place else. We do not feel at all indispensable. However, is danger really God's call to leave one's place of duty? We appreciate the concern of our people in the homeland and their thoughtfulness, but is there not another side? Do you not expect us to face difficulties when you send us out? Do you not expect us to stick to our post like any other normal person does? There was a time when missionaries were looked upon as something unique, a bit more fine than other people. I am glad that that idea has passed and that people are beginning to realize that missionaries are just as human as anyone else. Are you now expecting less of us than of other people?

It seems that pressure must have been brought to bear upon the board to make such a radical decision when none of the other boards are going that far. The Catholics, we think, never consider evacuation, one reason probably being that their missionaries are all single people. Very few single women of other missions have gone home, and a goodly number of married women are still here. That the problem of parents with young children is different from those who have no other responsibility than their mission work is obvious. Also, those who have gone through trying experiences and those who are physically ill and need rest are naturally in a class by themselves. However, when it comes to evacuating missionaries wholesale, it seems to us, people at home fail to see the whole situation.

The matter of danger has possibly been exaggerated. There was no unusual danger when people left; nor is there now. The only thing that happened was that the government decided all at once that China was just as dangerous as Europe. The only conclusion which we could draw was that America was contemplating war with Japan. In that case there may be danger, but there is none yet. Even in the event of war, we are so far behind the fighting lines that chances are not very strong. Of course, one question which is always uppermost in people's minds is the danger to a woman staying alone. In the first place, those cases are extremely rare. In the second place, the Chinese women are in much greater danger than are we. In the third place, our Chinese Christians are just as much concerned for our safety as any foreign ones could be. In the fourth place, God's hand is not shortened even in a case like that.

Granted that there may be danger, where is there a place without it? Five Mennonites, of our acquaintanceship, have been killed in the United States since last October. During forty years of mission work in India and thirty years in China none of our missionaries have been killed. Does anyone stop driving cars just because of many accidents? Just lately a tornado passed through Kansas and demolished many farms. It also killed a number of people. We know that tornadoes are bound to come again, but it is not very likely that any Kansan is going to leave because of that. Finally, our church is sending men and women into the war-torn areas of Europe where danger is much more imminent than it is here. In other fields of work danger is not a paramount factor. Scientists and explorers do not seem to think that one living scientist is worth ten dead ones when it comes to risking life in order to discover some scientific fact. Soldiers do not retreat when there is danger. Should the messengers of the eternal gospel be expected to do less?

Our activity, no matter how brilliant, is of very little importance if God is not being glorified through it. Our quietness, no matter how little known, is of inestimable worth if it gives God a chance to shine through. We are not important, but God is. If He called us here, would He expect us to leave because of possible danger?

Builders All

By Alvin Beachy, Fairfield, Pennsylvania *

In Somerset County, Pennsylvania, nearly 150 years ago a man was hired by an Amish farmer and preacher to build a house. The lumber for the building came from a white pine swamp close by. The carpenter agreed to build this house for the nominal sum of three hundred dollars. All doors, window frames and sash were fashioned by hand. Even the nails were hammered out by hand.

The house is not particularly beautiful, but to me it has been a source of never-ending delight, and, shall I say, inspiration, for it is the house in which I was born. I have come to love that house not so much for its beautiful appearance, as for the character of the man who built it. I do not even know his name, and doubtless never will, for he has been gone for many years. However, I know from the careful workmanship that went into that house, that here a true craftsman labored. Here was a man who put his soul into his work. No slipshod methods were employed by this man, even though his tools were inferior to those used in the present day. The materials he used were only the best; they were always carefully selected whether the boss was present or absent.

For the first one hundred years of its life the house stood proudly on its original foundation, a shelter from the cold of winter and heat of summer. Then there came a day when all around the house the ground started giving way. Some one had discovered coal, and when the coal was removed the foundations of the house were imperiled. Furthermore, fire broke out in the mines, and the flames threatened to destroy the ancient building unless it were moved to a new foundation. Here is where the work of some hundred years before was put to the test. Would the ancient house bear the strain of being moved to a new location? It did, because the one who had built it used only the best of material and used it wisely.

What I am driving at is, that building a life is much like building a house. The things we consider vital determine largely, if not altogether, the kind of building material we use. The kind of material we use determines the strength or weakness of the finished product, be that a life or a house. I rather suspect that most of us will find it necessary at some time or other during our lives to move to new locations and new environments. Some of us may even have to live in a country where democracy, which we thought was here to stay, will be a thing of the past. Are the materials out of which we build life, the kind that will result in a structure strong enough to bear the strain of moving to a new location? After some of our fondest hopes have been shattered and our dearest friends taken away from us, have we anything left to give meaning or direction to life?

You, no doubt, have seen some very fine folks, whom you had admired and rightly so, literally go to pieces when tragedy came their way. You have also seen people who have seemingly had nearly every possible misfortune happen to them, and yet they have remained sweet and kind and cheerful. And, no doubt, you too have wondered what makes the difference.

I have found that these people are very often among what we call the common type and not so often among the idle rich. These unhappy individuals bear irrefutable evidence to the fact that one may gain the whole world materially and lose his own soul in the process, long before the funeral bell tolls for him. I know an individual who, before he succeeded in amassing a huge fortune, was an active worker in the church. He had time then to cultivate the art of friendship. He had time to observe the beauty of the world of nature. He had time to cultivate an appreciation of great music, literature and art. The home and all that it ought to stand for was dear to him, and he revered and honored it. Now he has time for none of these things. The home of his only child is broken up, and he was instrumental in making the break complete. His appreciation, yes even his desire, for the deeper finer things of life is gone. He has lost his soul. If the material wealth which he has succeeded in amassing were suddenly taken away from this man, I fear he would yield rather easily to the voice of Job's wife when she says, "Curse God and die." His life has not been wisely built. The materials, though they may have been good, were not wisely used.

It seems to me that appreciation of the fine and the high and reverence for the sacred is one of the marks of a really great life. I doubt whether Christ's appreciation of the lilies of the field came without some careful observation of the way in which they grew. One who can see beauty in flowers, appreciate great music, art and literature has much that money cannot buy, nor lack of money take away.

Yet there is something which this appreciation, fine as it is, cannot give to us. And that is a deep abiding faith in God and a genuine love for one's fellow men. These are absolute essentials for living in the highest and best sense of the word. I do not believe that we are ever really prepared to live until we have learned to know God in Christ—learned to know Him as Saviour and Lord, but also as Master of life. Having known Him thus, we need have no fear of death, for it is merely a stepping out into a new relationship with God where the limitations of the physical body are removed.

The final requisite then for great living is faith in

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Rev. Erland Waltner, Philadelphia, Pa.

Nov. 1—"At evening time there shall be light." Zech. 14:7b.

"Now we can see the stars." This was the jubilant response of a London lad to his first "black out" experience. Before this experience the dazzling lights of the city had blinded him to the beauty of the starry heavens. Again and again we learn that it takes the night time to show the stars. Some of God's greatest blessings are discovered only as we pass through the valley of the shadow. Then Christ comes to us anew as the Light of life.

Nov. 2—"How dear thy dwelling is, O Lord of hosts." Ps. 84:1, (Moffatt).

Let us be honest with ourselves. What motivates our attendance at church? Is it perchance a new hat, a girl friend, our love of society, or just plain habit? Or is it our love for God's house? The Psalmist was one who did love the courts of the temple. He went there, not merely out of a sense of duty or to please some fellow man, but because his soul was pining for fellowship with God. As a result he found joy and blessing in frequenting the sacred precincts. What we find in God's house depends largely on what we seek there.

Nov. 3—"Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain." Ps. 127:1b.

In excavating the ruins of Pompeii, Italy, the city destroyed by the volcanic eruption of Mt. Vesuvius, it is reported that the remains of a watchman were found at one of the gates of the city. Evidently, he had been faithful to the end. He had not abandoned his post even when the hot lava began to pour over the city. Yet he kept watch in vain. So it has ever been with those whose defense is in the things of man rather than in God. Oh, that we would say, "God is our defense." He alone can keep our city —and our country.

Nov. 4—"The triumphing of the wicked is short," Job 20:5.

Our day is one in which evil seems to have the upper hand. Propaganda seems to be crushing truth; might is suppressing right; hatred seems triumphant over love. God reassures us, however, that ultimately truth, righteousness, and love will conquer.

> "Truth forever on the scaffold, Wrong forever on the throne;
> Yet that scaffold sways the future, And, behind the dim unknown,
> Standeth God within the shadow, Keeping watch above His own."
> —James Russell Lowell

Nov. 5—"Let not your heart be troubled." John 14:1a.

Close to the spray of a roaring waterfall, at the end of a slender branch, a little bird built its nest. It could be seen sitting there quietly and unafraid beside the tumult of the water. An artist chose this scene to portray his conception of peace. The Christian can have such peace in times of turmoil. If his soul is hid with Christ in God, though his life may be surrounded by a troubled world, he may yet have a tranquil spirit. Inward peace is God's gift. "My peace I give unto you . . . let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

Nov. 6—"For our citizenship is in heaven;" Phil. 3:20a, (A. R. V.).

Christians are citizens of the Kingdom of God by virtue of the new birth. This citizenship is a present experience as well as a future realization. If by God's grace we are members of this heavenly realm, then we are as pilgrims and foreigners in this world. This is both a source of comfort and a guide of conduct. It is a comfort to know that we belong to something more permanent than this changing world. Also it reminds us that our loyalty must ever be to Jesus Christ in the determination of our conduct. Jesus said, that, though we are in the world, we are not of the world.

Nov. 7—"Perfect through suffering." Heb. 2:10.

Suffering seems to make some people bitter toward life. For others, the treading of the wine-press brings forth sweetness. In the tropics there grows a rose out of which the famous perfume, Attar of Roses, is made. The fragrance of this rose is sweetest, not during the daylight hours, but at night—at two o'clock in the morning when the heaviest darkness covers them. The Scriptures say that Christ was made perfect through suffering. On the cross Jesus transformed suffering into a sacrifice of a sweet savour. What suffering does to us depends on what we do with suffering.

Nov.8—"Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." I Cor. 15:57.

The letter "V" appears in many public places these days as a symbol of a coveted victory. Alas, for many people this desired victory in mainly vengeance. But the Christian knows of a victory which defeats no one but the devil and which benefits everyone. It is the victory which we may have through Jesus Christ over sin and over death. For such victory we may truly give thanks. In such victory we may truly rejoice. "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." "In this sign, conquer."

REPENTANCE AND FAITH

Luke 15:11-24

Introduction

In our lesson, the parable of the Prodigal Son, we have the subjects of sin and its consequences, last week's lesson, faith and repentance and forgiveness, set before us in a vivid and concrete way. "Sin necessitates repentance and repentance requires faith." Repentance means a change of mode of thought and feeling, a change in way of living and attitude toward God and man. Sin, and salvation through repentance and faith are matters of great personal concern. The glorious gospel message declares that full and free forgiveness awaits the truly repentant sinner.

The Sinful, Reckless Wanderer, vss. 11-16

The younger son represents the wanderer from God. Very brusquely he made a demand upon his father, looking upon him as one who should do as he, the son, desired (vs. 12). He wanted to be independent of his father. The desire to have our own way and disregard God, is the very essence of sin. Heart alienation from God lies back of the desire to be independent of Him. The younger son's heart was in the father's goods instead of with the father. Many desire God's material blessings but do not at all care for God.

Sin is alluring and very deceitful. The younger son thought he would be much happier in following his own carnal heart's desires. Satan very effectively persuades many to believe this. The Prodigal plunged into reckless and sinful living (vs. 13), exercising no restraint. He had much sinful enjoyment while his money lasted. His pleasures soon ended. He wasted his manhood with his money. His passions controlled him. Soon poverty and want overtook him. Want always follows on the heels of sin, temporal want oftentimes, and always the much deeper want and hunger-soul want and hunger. Friendless and alone, he was obliged to do most degrading work for a Jew and especially one from a wealthy home. The result of sin often is most debasing slavery.

The Repentant Wanderer, vss. 17-21

In his humiliating condition he began to think. He saw what he had brought upon himself. He had been as one beside himself. He began to come to himself when he began to see his true condition. Salvation begins in thinking (Ps. 119:59, 60). His hunger turned his thoughts to his father's house and table. Thinking led to resolving. Saving thinking leads to resolution, to action. Rather than perish with hunger, he resolves to return home and humble himself before his father (vss. 18, 19). He resolves to confess his sin, which is the only way for a sinner to come to God (Ps. 32:3-5). He was lost, now he wants to be saved and is truly repentant. He carries out his resolution at once. He retraces his steps to his father's house. The father, watching, looking for his son, saw him "a great way off" and hastened to meet him. We may forget God, but He never forgets us. Repentance is godly sorrow for sin. It manifests itself in forsaking sin. It is a heart sorrow because one has sinned against God.

The Father Forgives, vss. 22-24

Repentance must be joined with faith for forgiveness. The Prodigal had faith in his father. The love of the father was shown in his full and free forgiveness. The son confessed, the father forgave, the two were reunited. The son's sin was not minimized nor excused. It was forgiven. The son was fully restored. So God loves the sinner and forgives all who truly repent. God rejoices when one who is dead in sin becomes alive again through repentance and faith.

What is the main point in this parable?

What are good evidences of true repentance?

What punishment did the son suffer for his sins after his return and confession?

BUILDERS ALL

God, and by that I do not mean a projection of our own ideas of what God is, but faith in a high, holy and transcendent God, who rules and overrules the affairs of men, yet is a tender, compassionate Father as revealed by Christ.

He who has such a faith implanted in him can speak with deep understanding these lines written by M. L. Hoskins:

> "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the > years,
> 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the > unknown'
> And he replied, 'Go out into the darkness and put > your hand into the hand of God.
> This shall be better to you than a light, and safer > than a known way.' "

IS DANGER GOD'S CALL TO LEAVE A PLACE OF DUTY?

in The Mennonite: "Do not pray for easy lives. Pray to be stronger men. Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers. Pray for powers equal to your tasks. Then the doing of your work will be no miracle. Every day you shall wonder at yourself, at the richness of life which has come in you by the grace of God." We ask you to pray for us so that in the hour of trial we may be able to meet it.

Note:

While the above article is in a way a criticism of the board, we do not resent it, because it shows such a fine spirit of courage, faith, and devotion. We have not heard a single word of criticism of those who chose to stay on, and we pray for the Lord's blessing on their decision and for His protecting hand over them.

In order to explain more fully the reasons for the board's action, it should, perhaps, be stated that the question of danger to the missionaries was not the first consideration, but rather the difficulties it might bring upon the native Christians, in case war should break out, and the missionaries should be considered and treated as enemies of the country. In that case the native Christians would be in danger of being considered as giving "aid and comfort to the enemy," which is generally considered treason.

The board and the churches, no doubt, appreciate the spirit shown in the above letter.

C.P.S. CAMP NEWS

MEN RELEASED FROM CAMP

All the men who had reached the age of twenty-eight years prior to July 1, received notice of their discharge from camp on October 9. Fourteen men were able to return to civilian life after having spent about three months in civilian public service work. They will be placed in a reserve status and will be subject to call when the army calls all twenty-eight year old men for training.

Since the printing of the first camp directory, nine other men have been released upon the recommendation of the medical advisory board.

EDUCATIONAL DIRECTORS MEET

Educational directors from the six Mennonite C. P. S. camps met in Chicago October 10-11 to outline common objectives and policies for the educational programs of the several camps. Co-chairmen of the conference were Dr. Henry Fast, director of camps, and Dean Bender, representative of the Mennonite Central Committee. Meeting with this group were President Kaufman of Bethel College, and President Ramseyer of Bluffton College.

Attention at the conference was centered on the formulation of objectives for the educational program. Adopted by the Central Committee, these objectives are as follows: 1. Appreciation of our Mennonite heritage and mission in this world. 2. Understanding the Christian's relation to the state and the community. 3 Deepening Christian experience. 4. Promoting personal growth.

It was urged that the major contribution of the educational program should be a study group for the entire camp in which these principal objectices received interesting and thorough treatment. Efforts were made at the conference to correlate the camp programs more closely with the work of the various church institutions.

Representing the Mennonite C. P. S. camps were the following: Guy Hershberger, Bluffton, Indiana; Delvin Kirchofer, Sideling Hill, Pennsylvania; Robert Kreider, Colorado Springs, Colorado; David Wedel, Marietta, Ohio; Albert Foote, Dennison, Iowa; and John Moseman, Grottoes, Virginia.

"Rejoiceth Not In Iniquity"

"Oh, we used to have high old times in Illinois!" Brother Blanket concluded his story.

As a typical western farmer at the head of the table, he pushed back his plate and chuckled. Thanks to his wife and daughter, the Sunday dinner had been of the best. The guests, a neighboring farmer and his family of three young sons and two daughters, seemed well satisfied.

The conversation, meanwhile, went on. Begun with the usual topic of weather, the morning sermon, the state of international and political affairs, it had proceeded into a reminiscence of older yarns. Yarn followed yarn, and laughter frequently convulsed the whole crowd. Nothing seemed lacking to the enjoyment of all.

"Which reminds me," Brother Schickley began as the attention of the company was turned in his direction.

"The schoolteacher, I remember best, was a red-headed Irishman. That man, now, really had a temper! I never saw anything like it. He would give the boys a horse-whipping at the smallest offense.

"One day he locked one of the girls up in a dark, close broom closet. He'd done it before, but this time he forgot all about her and went off home after school, and left her there. When her folks came to hunt her and made him unlock the closet, they found the girl in a dead faint. It took quite a while to bring her out of it."

"What did they do to him?"

"Oh, they raised such a rumpus that he finally lost his job over it. Lucky thing for all of us, we figured."

"Well," said the host, "it looks like the women folks want to clear away the dishes," and, rising, he led the way to the front porch. Most of the younger ones followed, finding the tales of the men more intriguing than the housewifely chatter of the two older women busy in the kitchen and dining room.

The men continued the vein of conversation, as Brother Blanket began.

"I can only remember of being really mad once in my life—that was quite awhile ago." He sank into one of the porch chairs near by.

"It was when I was just a youngster, and we moved to a new town. The kid next door was a big bully, and he'd sneak over and pull mean tricks every time he got a chance. There was a gravel pile in their back yard, and he'd stage an ambush in the alley every once in awhile and throw rocks when I passed.

"One day when I was busy he caught me by surprise and scored a 'bull's-eye' right in the seat of my pants. That's when I saw red!

"I don't know to this day how I got over that high board fence, but I remember seeing him running for the house with his nose streaming blood, and howling at the top of his voice. After that he never bothered me!

"It does me good to this day to remember how scared he looked the next time we happened to meet!"

The group laughed with him and the talk flowed on, for the story reminded the other man of one of his youthful escapades. So the two old men became more and more engrossed in the "close shaves" and triumphs of old battles lost and won. One bragging account followed another. The naive audience of half-grown boys and wide-eyed girls only served to heighten their enthusiasm and the tones in which they described exciting scenes and incidents. The young people were repeatedly surprised as their parents brought out tales they had never heard before.

As the afternoon wore on and the conversation came around again to crops and politics and the lumbering business versus farming, the young people grew restless and strayed off in groups to various other spots of interest.

The three girls gathered in Nancy's room to look at her collection of Indian relics, her needlework, and to talk as girls talk among themselves.

Nancy kicked off her shoes and stretched across the foot of the bed.

"Ho-hum," she yawned, "you know sometimes I think our fathers rather glory in their 'wild oats.' Did you see the light in Father's eye when he was giving the story about the stolen watermelons?"

"Funny—I was thinking the same thing!" Margaret remarked casually, sitting on the dressing-table stool, and smiled as she picked up a brush and idly brushed her long black hair. "Of course you know I respect your father as a Christian, but it seems to me I'd be too much ashamed to tell it on myself!"

"Yes, and did you notice Ed listening to the one about the two brothers who fought over the same girls?" her sister Catherine asked. "After the way he's been aching to try to take Louise Fritz away from Bud, I'm afraid it's not going to help him much to know that his own father tried the same stunt when he was young."

"I suppose it's just lack of forethought," Nancy sighed, "but I do wish our fathers could see what a mistake they're making when they trot out those old yarns."

Margaret brushed her hair deliberately for a few strokes. "You know what it reminds me of?" she asked, pausing with the brush in midair as she turned toward the other two. "It just makes me

Oceanic Observations

By Helen A. Penner

God seems even more majestic and wonderful to me after observing another one of His marvelous creations, the mighty ocean. One can more readily understand and comprehend the real meaning of the statement: "being held in the hollow of God's hand," when aboard a ship, which seems so tiny in comparison to the vastness of the ocean.

"Wide, wide as the ocean,
High as the heaven's above
Deep, deep as the deepest sea
Is my Saviour's love
I, though so unworthy,
Still am a child of His care
And His Word teaches me,
That His love reaches me
Everywhere!"

Mountain Lake, Minnesota, Retreat

The Young People's Retreat, that was sponsored by the three General Conference churches of Mountain Lake, was held in the First Mennonite Church in Mountain Lake on August 24-27. About forty-five young people registered during the retreat.

The motto chosen for this retreat was, "Following Christ, Our Leader." This theme was carried out in a special way during the evening sessions when Rev. N. N. Hiebert of Salem, Oregon, spoke on "Following Christ, Our Leader, by Faith, in the Spirit, and in Hope."

During the morning and afternoon sessions the topics, "A Surrendered Life for Christ" by Rev. B. J. Braun of Delft, Minnesota, and "Mennonite Heritage" by Miss Mary Bargen of Mountain Lake, were discussed. The choir singing was directed by Mr. Otto Richert of Mountain Lake. The separate group discussions were led by Miss Elizabeth Schultz of Montrose, Pennsylvania, for the girls, and by Rev. N. N. Hiebert of Salem, Oregon, for the boys.

On the last afternoon a "retreaters" picnic was held at the mountain near Mountain Lake. Officers, who are to plan for next year's retreat, were also elected.

To close the retreat, a very impressive meeting was held at the lake shore, followed by a candle-light service.

We praise and thank the Lord for the rich blessings which He bestowed upon us during this retreat and pray that we may be willing to follow Christ, our Leader, more closely as our motto suggests.

Washington Young People's Retreat

The week-end of the Fourth of July was spent profitably by seventy young people who gathered at Kamiakin Camp, the Y. M. C. A. camp, located on Clearlake near Yakima, Washington. These young people gathered for a pleasant retreat which commenced with dinner, Friday noon, and drew to a close Sunday evening, July 6, with vespers and a torch-lighting consecration service.

We were fortunate to have two special speakers, of whom, I am sure, you have all heard. They were, Miss Aganetha Fast, home on furlough from China, and her brother, Dr. Henry Fast, who is Director of the Mennonite Civilian Public Service Camps. We enjoyed both immensely and received a great blessing from them. Miss Fast gave several lectures on her work in China. Dr. Fast held a series of classes in Mennonite History as related to our stand on peace and conscientious objection to war. Besides these classes we had several other interesting classes, which were conducted by ministers of the Washington Mennonite churches.

The hours between four and six o'clock in the afternoon were devoted to recreation. We had access to all camp equipment for the various sports, which included boating, fishing, volleyball, baseball, horseshoes, and swimming. The surrounding hills and trails provided opportunities for hikes.

The camp directors were very hospitable and accommodating in regard to meals and sleeping quarters. Though the invigorating air and exercise increased our appetites, the meals were excellent and ample. A larger crowd came than was anticipated. Consequently, every bed was occupied, and every extra mattress was put into use.

This was our first retreat, and we sincerely hope that it will not be the last. Plans are already being made for next year's retreat. Upon dispersing, the unanimous opinion of the group was that it was a great success, and that they hoped to come back next year.

A Set of Rules

We present a set of rules, designed for the person who wishes to kill Christian Endeavor in its first month (they are effective every month), or at least cripple it so badly that it will limp all year.

1. Do not attend the first meeting; wait until someone misses you and extends a personal invitation.
2. When you come, be sure to arrive ten minutes late and to make a disturbing entry during a prayer or scripture reading.
3. Make a big fuss if you are nominated to an office, but get angry if no one votes for you.
4. When asked for an opinion on an important matter, tell them you have nothing to say, but then go out and tell the whole world how things should be done.
5. If you are asked to participate in a discussion, remember to bring along some clipping with an involved thought and words which you cannot pronounce.
6. Do not do more than is necessary, and when other members do the work howl that the society is being run by a clique.
7. When you finally agree to take a meeting after much persuasion, forget all about it until Saturday evening, or better still, wait until Sunday afternoon to start your preparation.
8. Do not bother about getting new members. Let the other fellow do it.

As is true of all organizations, a Christian Endeavor society is made up of individual persons, and upon these persons rests the responsibility of making this the best Christian Endeavor year in the history of their church. Putting it plainly, the success of Christian Endeavor in your church depends on YOU! There are many small things that may look unimportant to you, yet they play a vital part in the ultimate success or failure of your society.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

By Mrs. Gerhard Friesen

Program for November 16, 1941

Leading Topic: A Christian is Gracious, James 3:13-18.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Majestic Sweetness Sits Enthroned," No. 120 in The Mennonite Hymnary; "I Have Found a Friend In Jesus," No. 446; "Take My Heart, O Father, Take It," No. 441.
2. Reading of scripture for leading topic, and prayer.
3. Talk on "Graciousness between parents and children," I Kings 2:19-20.
4. Offering for foreign missions.

II. Leader's Introduction

Grace, graceful, and gracious. These three go together very well. A Christian radiates the grace he has received from God. He does things through the grace of God. Living close to God makes him gracious in word and deed. He does things for others in a courteous, kindly, friendly manner. His tone of voice, his attitude, his method of doing things show sympathetic understanding and consideration of those with whom he lives. So often a bit of thought can help us to avoid bluntness and rudeness and carelessness in speech and action. Kind things done gracefully are doubly appreciated.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A gracious suitor-to-be, Ruth 2:8-12
(This topic might be followed by a discussion on "Boy and Girl Relationships.")
2. Gracious to a friend's son, II Sam. 9:6-8
3. An ungracious host, Luke 7:44-47
4. Unity and meekness urged, Phil. 2:1-4

IV. For Discussion

Either "Boy-and-Girl Relationships," or "The Meaning and Value of Friendship."

1. Do we choose our friends?
2. How do we cultivate friendships?
3. Why do friendships sometimes wane?
4. What do you expect to get out of a friendship?
5. What do you expect to put into a friendship?

V. Facts for Study

Hugh Black has written a very fine book on "Friendship." In line with the thought of graciousness in friendship, he offers the following thoughts: "There are more lives spoiled by undue harshness than by undue gentleness. More good work is lost from want of appreciation than from too much of it. We must have been struck with the profundity of our own thoughts, when we shared them with one, with whom we were in sympathy at the time. The brilliancy was not ours; it was the reflex action which was the result of the communion. That is why the effect of different people upon us is different, one making us creep into our shell and making us unable to utter a word; another through some strange magnetism enlarging the bounds of our whole being and drawing the best out of us."

VI. Illustration

"Enviable Attractiveness"

A well-known minister spoke recently of a young man of his acquaintance, whose charm took hold of everyone he met. "He is a university graduate. He was an athlete while in college. Now he is a very successful business man, has an exceptionally beautiful home, and a very delightful family. Like many others, I have pondered the secret of the young man's attractiveness. I think I have found it. It roots in the simple virtues which he learned in a Christian home and in the Sunday-school and church of his childhood. He sincerely cares for others, without professionalism or pose, for he is really interested in every person he meets. His attractiveness has something of a Christlike quality that is to be envied."

GOOD CITIZENS ARE THANKFUL

Program for November 23, 1941

Song: "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come."

Leader's Talk:

"Too often today we think of Thanksgiving, not as a religious festival, but as a day of overeating, hilarity, picture shows and football games.

"This is to be lamented, for the same God is giving us our daily bread, as gave the Pilgrim Fathers their blessings. It is not right to fail to thank God for all His blessings. Of course, this should be done every day, but especially on the day which is set aside by our government for national thanksgiving.

"The first Thanksgiving was for the purpose of really thanking God for His watch and care over the early settlers' lives during a severe winter and for their abundant harvest."

Scripture Reading: Psalm 92:1-8.

Prayer Song: "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

Sentence Prayers: (Surely all of us want to express our gratitude to God.)

Talk: The First Thanksgiving

"Because of their wonderful blessings, Elder Brewster announced one Sunday that, beginning the next Tuesday and continuing until the next Saturday, the colonists would have a festival of thanksgiving similar to that which they had been accustomed to in England.

"After a fervent prayer of thanksgiving for God's tender care and goodliness by Elder Brewster the colonists ate the first thanksgiving feast.

"The debt that we owe to our forefathers is great, but how much greater is the debt which we owe to God and His Son!"

Solo: (piano or voice) "What Shall the Harvest Be?"

Talk: Thanks for the Founders of Our Nation

"How shall we show our gratitude to our forefathers? Not by preserving landmarks, but in furthering the principles for which they stood. We can do this by showing our faith in the God of heaven and earth, and by honest work and a willingness to suffer hardships for our great country.

"If we can do these things, we will thank our Pilgrim Fathers in a far greater measure than by idle praise of their noble deeds and heroic self-sacrifice."

Talk: Thanks for the Founders of Christianity

"The apostles and early Christians compare with our Pilgrim Fathers. They endured hardships and persecutions that they might carry on the religion of Jesus Christ. Had it not been for their faith and perseverance we would be heathen today.

"How then shall we show our gratitude to them? Not by merely praising them for their courage, not through fine buildings and ritualism, but by living the kind of lives which they lived. We can live a life of service and unselfishness, like the Master; we can place the kingdom of Christ first, as did the apostles; we can show by our lives the truth of Christianity, as did the disciples."

Prayer Song: "Father, We Thank Thee."

Thank Offering.

Quiet Meditation.

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors to know something of the prophet Ezekiel. To help them to desire to know more of the Bible.

1. "The story of the prophet Ezekiel," told by a Junior girl.

For many years the prophets had warned the people of Jerusalem that God would have to punish them for their sins if they did not turn to Him. The last prophet of whom we learned was Jeremiah. Judah did not like to listen to the prophet Jeremiah, so the punishment foretold came at last. The beautiful city of Jerusalem was made a heap of ruins by the king of Babylon and the people were taken to Babylon to serve as slaves. God had said that this captivity would last seventy years. How the people now longed for the land of their fathers and tearfully remembered the temple of the Lord. The Lord their God wished to win their hearts back to Him. So He called a prophet, Ezekiel, who was given the mission to tell the people the things of God.

Ezekiel was born in Jerusalem, the son of the priest, Buzi. He may have been a pupil of the great prophet Jeremiah. He was perhaps past twenty years of age when the king of Babylon took him with others into captivity. He had his own house on the river Chebar. The "elders" of the people came to his house to hear the messages God had given him for them. Ezekiel had many wonderful visions. He acted out some of the truths that he taught the people. In the book Ezekiel we find that God is very good to those that are obedient and sends punishment upon those who persistently disobey Him.

2. All Juniors find the book of Ezekiel. Read the following verses: Ezekiel 1:3; 3:17; 8:1; 11;19; 20; 12:25a; 18: 20:21; 20:19, 20; 33:11; 34:16; 36:26, 27; 34:12.

3. Stand and sing verse one of "Wonderful Words of Life."

4. Tell the parable of the "Valley of Dry Bones:" Junior boy. See Ezekiel 37:1-10.

5. Two Junior girls may read selections that tell the vision of the glory of the Lord. Ezekiel 1:25-28; 43:1-6.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Pass "India Calling," "China Home-Bond," "News and Notes:" Ask the Juniors to glance through the papers. As soon as they see a familiar name they may raise their hand. Let each one tell one thing about the person whose name he has recognized.

2. Sentence prayers for these of whom we have spoken tonight. Each child taking part.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Boys repeat from memory the verse for the month: Isaiah 12:2.

2. Girls sing from memory the song for the month: "Hail to the Brightness of Zion's Glad Morning."

3. Together pray the prayer for the month: Isaiah 25:1.

4. Sing softly "Into My Heart."

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST SUMMERFIELD CHURCH

Summerfield, Illinois

We have been having fine rains the past few weeks. The farmers were able to get their seed bed ready, and now they are starting to sow their wheat and barley.

While our pastor was attending the Middle District and General Conferences, Rev. C. H. A. van der Smissen, his son Alvin and family, and Rev. H. J. Kliewer stopped off at Summerfield. They were on their way to the General Conference. Rev. C. H. A. van der Smissen was pastor of this church for about twenty-one years, and we were glad to learn that he is still hale and hearty and that he was able to attend the General Conference.

On Tuesday, August 12, the Ladies Missionary Society held a special meeting and invited Rev. H. J. Kliewer, a retired missionary, who formerly served among the Indians in Oklahoma, to address them and to tell them about his missionary experiences. In the evening Rev. Alvin van der Smissen gave an inspiring message to an appreciative audience in our church.

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 26, the Bethel College A Capella Choir, which was homeward bound after several weeks of touring, stopped here and gave us a very inspiring and delightful concert which was very much appreciated by all present. On their way to St. Louis, Missouri, the next morning, the college bus upset, but fortunately no one was seriously hurt.

From Sunday, September 21, to Sunday, September 28, our church held a series of special meetings. Rev. William Penner, pastor of the Wayland Mennonite Church, Wayland, Iowa, brought us very helpful and inspiring messages during the week. While he was here our copies of the new Mennonite Hymnary arrived and were dedicated to the worship and glory of God. Brother Penner gave a brief talk on the value and importance of music in our worship service.

Our Sunday School held its annual election on September 14, held its promotion exercises on September 28, and started the new year last Sunday. Our church also observed the World Communion Sunday last Sunday. So far none of our young men have been called into the service of Uncle Sam, and we hope that none will have to go, for we hope that this terrible war may soon come to a close. How foolish and futile the entire war program is!

BETHANY MENNONITE CHURCH

Quakertown, Pennsylvania

Sunday evening, September 21, we enjoyed an enheartening Harvest Home service and the giving of donations to the Home for the Aged at Frederick, Pennsylvania. Our pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, delivered a wonderful sermon to the congregation. A committee brought our guests from the Home for the Aged to the services. Eighteen attended. This was the first time that our guests from the Home for the Aged attended services away from the home, and they truly enjoyed it.

The donations included: 7 baskets apples, 4 pumpkins, 1 basket carrots and peppers, 1 basket potatoes, all the flowers used for the decorations, 45 lbs. sugar, 12 cans of fruit and vegetables, 5 lbs. lard, 42 tea balls, 1 box corn starch, 3 glasses preserves, 1 jar jelly, 1 jar sugar, 2 jars dried beans, 1 jar rice, 1 box graham crackers, 9 packages of breakfast cereal, soap, 2 towels, clothes pins, 15 quinces, 1 egg plant, and the work of the ladies, 95 jars of home-canned fruit and vegetables. The donations were all conveyed to the home the following day.

The committee is truly proud of this donation and the assistance rendered by all to make this a success. Our church membership is 150. Indeed, such cooperation and friendship is something to be thankful for.

EDEN MENNONITE CHURCH

Moundridge, Kansas

In the last few months we have welcomed, perhaps, more visiting ministers than during any one previous period. During the month of August we had the following visitors who filled the pulpit: Brother Peter W. Goering, August 3; Rev. Phil. A. Wedel, former pastor of our congregation, August 10; Rev. J. J. Ratzlaff, August 17; and Brother Orlo Kaufman, another candidate for the ministry, on August 24. We pray the Lord's richest blessing on these brethren as they continue to serve Him, and we welcome them to come back into our midst.

On September 24, two of our boys from the Colorado Springs, Colorado, Civilian Public Service Camp gave us an encouraging report on the activities there. On October 5, one of our boys from the Dennison, Iowa, Civilian Public Service Camp gave us a report on that camp. These reports were encouraging and should induce us to greater giving, praying, and thanksgiving for this work.

Brother and sister Clarence Schrag have been bereaved of an infant son. Incidentally, this was the only death among our group in this year. There have been five weddings since the last report.

Probably one of the climaxing events in our church of late was our harvest festival, held on September 28. We had five speakers. They had the following subjects: Brother Elmer Goering of Hutchinson, "The Christian's Attitude Toward the Government;" Sister Alida Schrag, "Personal Work;" Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman, "Paul Gave Thanks and Took Courage;" Rev. Sam Goering, "Whatsoever a Man Soweth, That Shall He Also Reap." Brother Ted Claassen spoke on relief work in England.

During these talks we were deeply stirred and brought face to face with the fact that the Lord had indeed richly blessed us and that we owe our whole lives and all that we have to Him in thankfulness for the blessings. Two offerings were held during the day. These brought in a substantial sum for foreign missions. May we become more thankful daily and may our lives be a living testimony for Him. That is our prayer. —Richard Schrag, Corr.

BETHEL CHURCH

Fortuna, Missouri

On Sunday, July 6, we were privileged to have with us Missionary Habeggers from Busby, Montana. After the morning sermon by Rev. Habegger a basket dinner was enjoyed. In the afternoon both Rev. and Mrs. Habegger held separate meetings for the men and the women. In the evening Rev. Habegger showed his slides of the Indians. This was very interesting.

On Monday evening, August 4, Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Unruh of Kingman, Kansas, formerly of this place, held services at our church and renewed acquaintanceships.

On Tuesday evening, August 5, a group from the Oklahoma Bible Academy gave a program of song and talks pertaining to the Word of God. The A Capella Choir of Bethel College gave us an inspiring program on the evening of August 27.

August 28-30, were the dates of the Bethel Young People's Retreat. The guest speaker was Rev. A. Warkentin. The retreat was held at the Lake of the Ozarks, near Versailles. Many of the young people and, also, guests attended. All experienced a period of spiritual fellowship.

This spring the young people of the church gave the church yard fence a badly needed coat of aluminum paint and planted shrubbery, which the Missionary Society had purchased. The Missionary Society has, to date, served three public sale dinners this year.

Special meetings will be held November 3-9, by Rev. J. N. Smucker, pastor of the Bethel College Church of North Newton, Kansas.

Rev. Leonard Metzker, Raymond Graber, and Calvin Hilty attended the Middle District and General Conferences. Mr. Metzker also visited his parents of Roaring Springs, Pennsylvania, while in the East. The young men report good conference sessions and an enjoyable trip.

On October 12, Rev. Metzker began a class in catechetical instruction for young people.

Celebrate Golden Wedding

On September 10, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lehman of the Bethel community, near Versailles, Missouri, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. In the morning Mr. S. J. Moser, brother-in-law of the Lehmans, made a short talk. At the noon hour a few close relatives brought well filled baskets, and a basket dinner was enjoyed by all. Mr. Lehman, who has been bedfast most of the time since Easter, was able to be up for dinner.

An unusual coincidence was that eleven persons who had been present fifty years ago were present to help them celebrate their golden wedding day. Mr. Lehman and Mrs. Lehman, who was Mary Loganbill before her marriage, were married by Rev. M. S. Moyer.

After dinner a short program, consisting of talks by Rev. Metzker and Rev. Hilty and several German songs by a quartet, was enjoyed by all. After the program refreshments of cake, cookies, and tea were served to the numerous relatives and friends who had come to congratulate them.

BERGTHAL NEWS

Corn, Oklahoma

Besides the near relatives and the Bergthal congregation, a large host of friends from the Herold, Sichar, Gotebo, and Geary communities attended the Hege-Duerksen wedding. The Kansas guests included Mr. and Mrs. Wiederstein and children of Inman, Mr. and Mrs. John Schmidt and daughters of Buhler, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Duerksen and two sons, Miss Marjorie Hunt of Newton and Miss Lois Duerksen of Hillsboro. When it became apparent that the Bergthal church would not accommodate all the guests, the M. B. congregation was so gracious as to put their large church in Corn at their disposal, which gave adequate room for the wedding and the following banquet. Over 400 guests were served in the basement.

Rev. George Bergen and family of Idaho visited home folks and renewed old acquaintances in the community the fore part of September. They stayed about one week, and on Sunday evening Rev. Bergen spoke in the Bergthal church. Rev. Bergen is a son of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Bergen.

Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Bergen and Elizabeth have returned to Illinois where Mrs. Bergen is being successfully treated for a nervous condition. They came here to be at the bedside of their daughter, Mrs. J. A. Ratzlaff, whose condition is still considered very serious.

The A. H. Hinz family have left and moved to Perryton, Texas.

The five dozen Mennonite Hymnaries have arrived and will make their introduction in the Bergthal church Sunday. With their great variety of hymns and songs, together with the many fine chorales taken from the old Gesangbuch mit Noten, we are sure these books will more than come up to expectations.

Rev. Hege is conducting a catechism class in the Mennonite church near Hydro every Thursday evening.

The Bergthal church will sponsor a series of evangelistic meetings beginning Oct. 6. Rev. C. H. Dirks of Hutchinson, Kansas, will be the main speaker.

Paul, a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hinz, visited his parents over the week end. He is attending the Oklahoma Bible Academy at Meno.

Miss Selma Ratzlaff left for Carlsbad, New Mexico, Saturday, where she has accepted a position as teacher. Miss Ratzlaff has taught in Clinton, Okla., schools for a number of years, but resigned to take up the work in New Mexico. She also was an efficient and earnest church worker and the congregation will miss her. —H. A. Unger

Spiritual Malnutrition

The twigs snapped near-by and there was a rustle in the grass. A girl who had been tramping in the woods quickly turned. It was the little herd of goats moving along in a small group as they grazed in the wooded pasture. Here and there they found little green bunches, and some were reaching up for the tender leaves of the small trees putting out their shoots early that spring.

Now one comes closer to the stump where the girl sits. She takes note of his large horns which stretch eighteen or twenty inches on either side. The long, silky hair almost reaches the ground. A choice bunch of green is noticed at the edge of a large log. He tries to get it, but only a tiny part of the ends can be reached. His head is turned and another effort ensues; at last, unwilling to be denied this choice bit of nourishment, his knees are placed upon the ground and, as he almost lies down in a final effort, the end is reached.

That common mountain goat went on its way grazing on the spring buds, but still the girl sat and mused in the sunshine.

The goat had to bend his knees in order to get that bit of food. Ah! and many of God's children must do the same. There are choice bits of food to nourish the spiritual man which God has placed in their reach. But some cannot be obtained by merely a brief pause in the busy walk of life. That which will give health and vigor to the soul often can be enjoyed only by the extra effort of bending the knees, and remaining in this humble position before God for an extended time.

Fellow Christians, are you merely existing on the spiritual food which is obtained by a passing glance at the Word of God, half-hearted attention to the man of God who stands in the pulpit, or now and then a few words of prayer hastily uttered by your bedside at night?

There are delicacies, sweeter than honey, which are enjoyed only by those who bend the knee and linger before God.

The individual who tarries before the Lord in this humble attitude will receive that which makes possible a firm step, clear vision, and a glow of health upon the cheek which would attract the world.

Do not remain weak and hungry, merely subsisting on the snatched bits of spiritual food. Spend time, much time, at the table of the Lord that you may be strong in the power of His might, not only able to walk the highway from earth to heaven without fainting, but have strength to assist the weak brother who may have fallen by your side.

A Man Is Poor

If he is without friends.
If he has low ideals.
If he has lost his self-respect.
If his morals are questionable.
If he has lost his grip upon himself.
If he is selfish, uncharitable, or cruel.
If he has forfeited his health for wealth.
If his mind and soul have been neglected.
If he has traded away his character for money.
If he has a disagreeable disposition that makes enemies or repels his friends.
If making money has crowded out the cultivation of his spiritual life.
If worldliness has caused him to lose fellowship with Christ.
If love of money has hardened him until the love of Christ and His Gospel fail to stir him to do his best for missions.
If all his investments and possessions are laid up on earth and he has no treasures in heaven.

"REJOICETH NOT IN INQUITY"

think of that verse in the Charity Chapter—you know, we memorized it in Sunday school last quarter—where it says, 'Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth.' "

"I wonder," said Nancy who had been leafing through her Bible, "if that's what this verse is talking about," and she read from Ephesians 5:3,—" 'All uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints.' "

"Hm—I wonder," Catherine looked thoughtful.

"Well, I don't see anything we girls can do about it, except pray for them that they may be able to see what influence such talk is apt to have on the lives of us who follow their example in so many things."

"Some day when we get old we'll live more in the past, too," Nancy said. "I hope that if the time comes when I am tempted to tell such stories before my children that I'll remember how I felt today. If I can, I know it will help me not to glory in the mistakes of my own youth, but to be more sympathetic with young people and their problems!"

"Me, too!" agreed Margaret, and began to brush her hair very vigorously as a conclusion to the discussion.

—The bulletin of the First Mennonite Church of Reedley, California, carried the following announcement on September 28: "Dear Friends: I have received a call from another church. At present I do not expect to accept this call for reasons which are not of direct concern to either church. I wish to state further that I have reached the conclusion that my name should not be considered as minister for another term of three years in the December election. It is my conviction that this is to the best interest of the church. I am making the announcement more than two months before the annual meeting and more than eight months before the expiration of the present term in order to give the church a fair chance to make the necessary adjustments. Fraternally yours, J. H. Langenwalter."

—The bulletin of the First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa., states: "The Eastern District Conference mourns the death of Mr. Alvin C. Alderfer, an outstanding layman of the conference, and for many years the efficient conference treasurer until he resigned because of ill health. Last May he also resigned as a Trustee of Bluffton College. He was a faithful member of the Eden Church, Schwenksville, and served as secretary of the congregation for many years."

—The Eight O'clock Stitchers and the Older Ladies Mission Society of the First Mennonite Church, north of Butterfield, Minnesota, had their mission sale on October 3. Over three hundred dollars was taken in.

Due to the fact that the "stork called at his home recently, the editor of the Mennonite was not able to attend the Western District Conference which convened at Hutchinson, Kansas from Oct. 22-23.

—At the annual convention of the Eastern District Sunday School Union the following mission project was adopted:

Toward the work of Rev. J. J. Rempel of Rosthern, Sask. ------------------	150.00
Toward the development of Mennolan Retreat Grounds ------------------	100.00

—Bluffton College News—"The Lost Church," a one-act pageant play, was presented by the Thespian Society of Bluffton College for the Bluffton Ministerial Association on October 12. Miss Thelma Dailey led a panel discussion on the topic, "What Is Expected of Me as a Christian," Sunday evening, October 5, at the weekly college church service. Taking part in the panel were Miss Betty Keeney, representing the teacher; Alvin Beachy, representing the minister; and Leland Lehman, representing the business man. —Two gospel team quartets have been selected. The first quartet is composed of Marcille Steiner, Lucille Steiner, Thelma Dailey, and Wanda Suter. The members of the second quartet are Viola Amstutz, Frances Beckenbach, Ruth Soldner, and Helen Habegger.

—The Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas, which recently purchased the new Mennonite Hymnary, installed these books with an appropriate dedication service on September 28.

—The Eastern Mennonite School, Harrisonburg, Va., had an enrollment of 309 students by the end of September. It is the largest enrollment in the history of the school. Last year's enrollment for academy and college was 271.

The Hardest

We may wonder as to what meaning orators will attach to Armistice Day this year. What meaning does it have for you and me? The dictionary defines armistice as, "a cessation of arms for a short time."

It is not hard for us to shake our head and to point out how true that definition has proved itself, and how nations put up the sword while they continued in that selfish, uncooperative, unjust way of international life that made inevitable the unsheathing of the sword again. It is not hard for us to condemn the nations for their lip-service to God and to the welfare of all men while they assumed the devil's attitude (as revealed in the temptation of Jesus) in regard to the kingdoms of this world. It is not hard for us, especially as Mennonites, to discern between profession and practice in the international realm.

It is harder for us to admit that some of our own people have entered into open hostilities against God by accepting military service or by seeking to profit from the armament program. It is harder to suspect that they, perhaps, never did make a thorough peace with God, that they, perhaps, never did surrender entirely to God through Christ, and that, perhaps, their baptism and entrance into the church was only a cessation of open and unrestricted hostility toward God, while deep in their heart they insisted upon dealing with God in such a selfish, uncooperative, unjust way as could only lead to open and active hostility in a time of crisis.

It is harder still for all of us to admit that no one of us is "without sin," that we are all guilty at times of seeking to go two ways at the same time, and that we sing "All for Jesus" and then engage in some practice which is for our own sake and not for Jesus' sake.

While we cast stones, let us throw some at ourselves. Only in that way can we become purified. Only in that way can we become as salt that has flavor and as light that dispels the darkness which seeks to crowd upon it from all sides. —rw

Teaching Children To Pray

By Dr. J. S. Schultz *

In Christian homes all over the world, few children have arrived at the age of two or three without having memorized a prayer such as "Now I lay me down . . ." and none should. Therefrom spring the first evidences of spiritual life and growth. Just as psychologists have seriously tried to determine the age at which the child begins to think, so we might well attempt to discover the first evidence of his spiritual awakening even though that is still more difficult. Let us hasten to say that we shall in no way enter into a technical approach to this question.

After the young child has memorized and then prayed a number of times such a prayer as suggested, he is almost sure to begin to question mother about Lord and soul, etc. These are the first steps into the Spirit world. The mother may need to clarify a few matters in her own mind. This is very healthful; on the other hand, it is remarkable with what simple answers the child will be satisfied at this age. Of course, it is only days or weeks until the same or new questions come up. That little soul wants to grow, and how sad if help is denied.

After two or three simple prayers have been memorized and used for a while and a few terms clarified, the wise and devoted mother will begin with original prayers. The child has developed somewhat of a prayer language, not only of words and phrases but also of simple meaningful corresponding thoughts and emotions. She will suggest some of the child's experiences that call for petition or thanksgiving and in turn help the child to find his own. Out of this grows a very natural relation between child and Jesus, somewhat akin to the loveliest of human relations. One marvels, and at times shudders, how often children pattern their ideas of God and spiritual matters after their impressions of people round about them; one shudders at the immeasurable responsibility that we as parents or only neighbors may have.

As the child increases in age, his inquiries become more complex and difficult. Whether the girl prays for the well-being of her doll or the boy for the recovery of his pet dog, each is sincere and expects an answer to his prayer. He must have some explanation that has meaning to him, or else he finds himself in serious danger of giving up this whole idea of praying if it doesn't do any good any way. Does Jesus care? Surely! If He cares about the sparrow and the lily and even the very hair on our heads, He is certainly concerned about children's happiness. On the other hand, we older folks are well aware that God does not answer all prayers in the form we request. In one instance, His very laws are inviolable, such as drought coming to the just as well as the unjust. In another instance, there is a God to be glorified or a soul to be strengthened; this may bring suffering even though prayers have been offered to the contrary.

*Professor of Bible at Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio.

The little, well-known incident of the children hurrying to school at a late hour well illustrates the truth which all need to learn, namely, that we must cooperate with God in partly answering our own prayer. Two children were running to school. Having started late, they feared that they would be tardy. As good children should, they thought of resorting to prayer, that they might be on time. One said, "Let's kneel down and pray." The other offered the plan that they pray while they ran. Can we as adults discern as well that often God can only answer prayer with our help? Prayer means strength to us; may we as parents and teachers be guided to help children and youth to experience the same in even greater measure.

A WORD ABOUT "THE MENNONITE"

After the former editor had passed on to his reward, it was noticed that The Mennonite appeared one week after another in its humble and self-denying way, without any editor's name. Still, the editorials and other articles, that were chosen, were so inspiring and encouraging that it was a real blessing to read it. It made one eager to know what interesting and comforting thoughts would come next time, and one wondered who was doing the God-pleasing work, as it is not everyone's talent to edit a church paper and to make it a blessing to its readers. Of course, there are a great many correspondents who help to inspire the readers of The Mennonite.

It was soon noticed though that at the foot of the editorials a small "mb" appeared. It came to the writer's mind that it must be the dear sister who had helped out the former editor (the writer's brother) during his stay in the hospital, whose help he had appreciated very much, and whom he had called a very capable Christian person. This, namely, was Miss Mary Becker.

As time passed on nothing appeared in The Mennonite about a new editor and one felt more and more that this sister would be the person whom the Lord wanted for this important position. Then we read that she was intending to labor for the Lord in India, and again we read that for the present the doors to that mission field were closed. So it seemed again as though the Lord wanted to keep her in her present position and one wondered why she was not chosen.

But, as we do not know all the circumstances, we trust that the Publication Board has self-denyingly tried to get the right person for this position. We now welcome Brother Weinbrenner to this service and wish him the Lord's blessing and guidance. As the writer does not know either person personally, he trusts that he will learn to love the incoming editor through his labor for the conference as we did the outgoing editor, so that the name of the Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified. We also wish Sister Becker the Lord's blessing in whatever she may undertake.

Respectfully, Chris. Thierstein

SHORT SESSION OF BIBLE INSTRUCTION

Freeman College will again sponsor a short session of Bible instruction beginning November 3, through 14. The classes will be held in the evening from 7:30 to 9:15, from Monday through Friday, and will be under the direction of Dr. C. H. Suckau and Rev. John B. Toews.

Dr. Suckau has spent nineteen years in India as missionary, and at present he is pastor of the largest Mennonite church of North America, The First Mennonite Church of Berne, Indiana. Rev. Toews is the Bible instructor at Freeman College.

The courses of instruction are: The Great Dispensations of the Bible, taught by Dr. Suckau, and Principles of Christian Training, taught by Rev. Toews. These courses are to be of specific practical value for Sunday School teachers, workers among young people, and all others who desire a deeper understanding of the great Bible truths.

A group of nearly eight hundred high school boys and girls were asked to check a list of ten desirable qualities in a father. The quality that received the largest vote was, "spending time with his children." What a challenge this is to fathers! Many fathers take time for most everything else, but they find little time to spend with their children. What a sad neglect!

—More bulletins from the thirty-five churches which issue them and more jottings from correspondents are needed for the jottings section. —Editor

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Why Do I Want To Stay On the Mission Field?

I want to stay because: It is not dangerous now. We have been as busy as we can be. The people around about us want us to stay. We are going to change in our mission work. We will need to come under the Order of the Far East, but that will still allow us to follow our general outline and methods.

I asked our Chinese doctor whether I could be of any help to him in our hospital work. He said that I could. A few days later, after I had gone to Taming, James Liu came for a committee meeting and brought a letter from the hospital. It was signed by the doctor (Chinese), the accountant, and the Chinese director of the School of Nursing and read as follows: Goertz Teacher, greetings of peace:

The work in the hospital is heavy and difficult. Suddenly there comes a letter from the Western country (Mission Board) and tells our Western friends to leave us. We are very much in straits.

We know that you, too, will have to consider leaving. If it were possible for you not to leave and to stay to work with us, our hospital would ten-tenths (entirely, completely) welcome you.

This is the special purpose of this letter.

Dr. Paul Hu
Mr. Ku T'ung Ch'ing, accountant and business manager
Mr. Wang Jui T'ing, Chinese graduate nurse and director of the School of Nursing.

Representing the K'ai Chow General Hospital, K'ai Chow, Hopei.

(Cholera vaccinations—1,300 in one afternoon)

I noticed, in The Mennonite, that Miss Edna Ramseyer of Bluffton, Ohio, is to be one of the speakers at the General Conference at Souderton and that she is to tell about her experiences in France (Europe). Our Conference favors sending workers to warring nations and into very dangerous places. Why not let me stay here where there might be danger later on, but none now exists? They go far away from home to help needy ones. We are right here with the needy ones.

We are reluctant to see the Pannabecker brethren and Rev. Ewert leave, but we sympathize with them in their desire to share responsibility for their families. They have been men with just the right dispositions necessary to deal with such affairs as come up in these days. They will be sorely missed by all of us. I am speaking for myself and also for the Chinese brethren and Christians.

You, dear friends in the homeland, you will keep the homefires burning. We depend on you. You will not let us down.

Yours here for the Master and for you,
Elizabeth D. Goertz

SNAP SHOTS FROM JANJGIR

By S. T. Moyer

The enrollment of the Janjgir Primary and Middle Schools is the largest of recent years. The Primary School serves all the children of the Christian community. It is the only school of the mission in which the local church helps to support by a definite allotment from the church treasury and budget. In recent years this school has been designated by the government as the school for non-Christian children for the neighborhood suburb of Janjgir. This, being part of the notified area of the government, is compelled by the government to send every boy of primary school age to attend. You may be sure that the Janjgir missionaries are much concerned about using this opportunity to the fullest to implant the Word of God in the young lives while they are in school, as well as after they leave school. Will you pray for this opportunity that it may yield good dividends for Christ and India in the immediate future? Please!

* * * * *

The Annie Funk Memorial School for girls serves the middle school for the five churches and stations of the mission. One of the neighboring missions, appreciating the splendid work done and the fine spiritual atmosphere prevailing, is now sending all its girls of middle school age to this school. Needless to say, that mission is paying full expenses for every girl they place here.

* * * * *

A new feature of the work this year, planned by Miss Helen Nickel, principal, is the introduction of normal training classes for girls. Thus young women teachers will be trained for our schools. They will also become better qualified Sunday School teachers. We hope that some day they will be good mother-teachers of their children. The primary school serves as the practice school for the young Christian women who are in the Teacher Training classes.

* * * * *

Is it too much to suggest that thus there blossomed forth the vague dreams and hopes and visions which God implanted into the heart and mind of a young girl forty years ago, as she did the chores about the home and barn, as she worked in the fields and in the mill, the wheels of which were turned by the gurgling waters of the Perkiomen River near Bally, in Eastern Pennsylvania? Annie Funk heard the call of God. She responded. She gave her all and went down on the Titanic. But God has richly blessed her prayers and efforts, your prayers and your efforts, and those of your co-workers in India, who have followed in the train of Annie Funk of Bally.

Our Heritage and the New Frontier*

By Andrew R. Shelly

"Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." Josh. 1:9

The words of our text were spoken at a time of transition in the history of the Children of Israel. After spending many years in bondage in Egypt, God used Moses to deliver them. The series of incidents surrounding the Exodus are well known. Then, after they had been in the wilderness for forty years, Moses, their great leader, was taken from them.

It was at this juncture that the Lord gave the challenge to Joshua: "Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel." We are not told what Joshua's immediate reaction was, but it certainly was a place of responsibility to which he was called.

In order to encourage his heart God spoke the words of our text: "Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." There were no specific promises, but the great assurance, "the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." They possessed a rich heritage, and this promise was sufficient to meet the NEW FRONTIER.

Therefore we read that Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying, "Pass through the host, and command the people, saying, 'Prepare you victuals; for within three days ye shall pass over this Jordan.'" What a daring faith Joshua had! His confident spirit inspired loyalty throughout the ranks, and with one voice the people answered: "All that thou commandest us we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us, we will go."

This morning we wish to look at our heritage and point to some new frontiers. As we think of this heritage we give thanks to God for all those heroic souls who through the centuries have sacrificed in order that we might enjoy the privileges of the gospel. But now we think particularly of those within our own fold.

In 1496 Menno Simon was born at Witmarsum, a small village near the west coast of Friesland, one of the provinces of the Netherlands. He was educated for the priesthood and in 1524 was inducted into this office. At this time the Reformation fires were being stirred into flames which spread through Europe. Leaders were arising all over advocating various reforms. At first Menno did not take these movements very seriously, but finally in January, 1536, he joined the ranks of the Anabaptists. He soon became an ardent advocate of: (1) the separation of church and state, (2) adult baptism, (3) the return to the Christian life on a New Testament basis, and (4) absolute opposition to war. He became the great leader of the movement.

This was quite a departure from the old system, and persecutions arose. Menno himself said: "For this I, my poor feeble wife and children have eighteen years endured extreme anxiety, oppression, affliction, misery and persecution, at the peril of my life, have been compelled everywhere to live in fear and seclusion." From pillar to post his followers were driven—to East Friesland, then to Northwestern Germany; then along the Baltic they fled, seeking a haven of rest. The climax came when the emperor issued his imperial edict, but Menno continued writing and preaching for nineteen more years until finally on January 31, 1561, he joined the immortals of all ages.

The sixteenth century was one of hardship and bloodshed. Three-fourths of the two thousand martyrs in the Netherlands were Mennonites. Many fled from country to country seeking a place where they could worship God according to the dictates of their consciences; so that by the end of the seventeenth century they were scattered over many parts of Europe. Waves of fierce persecution continued to drive our forefathers from place to place.

Finally, many of them received real hope of a better day. William Penn had secured a large land grant in the new world, and Pennsylvania became a haven of rest for tired and restless hearts. The first group of thirteen families left Crefeld, Germany, in 1683. After a long sea voyage they arrived in Philadelphia on October 6th. They now possessed perfect liberty of conscience and were free from oppression. One of the first tasks was the clearing of the forest and the building of a home, and establishing a basis for communal life. In the midst of this forest they built a log meeting-house, where they worshiped the God of their Fathers. One of the thrills of the past years occured when I preached from the pulpit of this old church. In front of me was the old table on which the first protest against slavery was written in 1688. I recalled the first Mennonite minister in America, William Rittenhouse, who preached from that pulpit about 250 years ago. I tried to visualize their life in the new world. The words of Frederick Faber came to me:

> "Faith of our fathers, living still
> In spite of dungeon, fire and sword,
> Oh, how our hearts beat high with joy
> When e'er we hear that glorious word!

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Rev. Erland Waltner, Philadelphia, Pa.

NOVEMBER 9—"The Son of Man is lord also of the sabbath"—Mark 2:28.

If this is an average Sunday in America, only one person out of twelve will be in attendance at church today. This estimate of statisticians reveals an appalling condition. What has happened to Sunday in our country? For the great majority of people it has been turned from a holy day into a holiday. Many excuse themselves, quoting Jesus, "The Sabbath was made for man." But Jesus added that if the Sabbath is to serve the needs of man, He Himself must be lord of the day. Voltaire once said, "The only way to destroy the Christian religion is to destroy the Christian Sabbath." Voltaire failed in his attempt to destroy the Sabbath, but, perhaps America will succeed.

NOVEMBER 10—"As thy days so shall thy strength be"—Deut. 33:25b.

When Israel was in the wilderness, God supplied manna for each day. Storing up the food was not permitted except before the Sabbath day. So also God rations out strength and grace to us each day according to our need. Many people, however, try to load the burdens of tomorrow upon those of today. They cross bridges before coming to them. Is this not contrary to God's plan? Jesus said, "Be not anxious for tomorrow. . . . Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." He was not repudiating intelligent foresight but He was teaching us to live one day at a time.

NOVEMBER 11—"In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength"—Isa. 30:15b.

Noise and power are commonly associated in our minds. We think that whatever makes a great noise must be strong. Perhaps that is why Israel trusted in neighing horses and modern nations trust in roaring mechanized units. But some of the most potent forces in the world are the quietest. Who has ever heard the dew fall? Actually tons of water are thus being deposited upon the landscape. Who has ever heard the sun rise? Yet what power could we compare with that of direct sunlight? So also is the power of a quiet faith. Though it may work as silently as the dew, Jesus said that even as much of it as a grain of mustard seed would be enough to remove mountains.

NOVEMBER 12—"Lead me to the rock that is higher than I"—Prov. 61:2.

For many years the rock of Gibralter has stood as the symbol of security and impregnability. Could anything be more secure than the rock of Gibralter? Yes, we know of another rock, called the Rock of Ages, which offers security to the souls of men. Jesus is the eternal rock of our salvation. Though the storms of life may blow and the billows may toss, our souls may be secure upon the "rock that is higher than I."

"O safe to the Rock that is higher than I,
My soul in its conflicts and sorrows would fly;
So sinful, so weary, Thine, Thine would I be;
Thou blest "Rock of Ages," I'm hiding in Thee."
—Rev. W. O. Cushing

NOVEMBER 13—"For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will keep thee."—Isa. 41:13.

A child's frightened cry pierces the night. Then it is hushed. What has happened? The child frightened in a dream is calmed as the mother steps to the side of the crib and holds the child's hand. When the nightmares of our waking hours stir up fear in our hearts, we may hear God's assuring promise, "I will hold thy right hand . . . Fear not." As long as our hand is in God's is there anything that need frighten us? "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

NOVEMBER 14—"Rejoicing in hope"—Rom. 12:12a

Often it is said, "As long as there is life there is hope." With equal significance we might say, "As long as there is hope there is life." When the star of hope passes from the skies of human trials then night has come indeed. However, as long as we have hope and our hope is in Jesus Christ, we shall live to see the dawn.

"Hope, Christian soul! in every stage
Of this thine earthly pilgrimage,
Let heavenly joy thy thoughts engage;
Abound in hope.
Hope through the watches of the night;
Hope till the morrow brings the light;
Hope till thy faith be lost in sight;
Abound in hope." —Selected

NOVEMBER 15—"Let us not be weary in well doing" —Gal. 6:9.

Someone has classified Christians into the following groups: the tired, the retired, the tiresome, and the tireless. The tired are those whose energies for Christ are always at low ebb. The retired are those who feel they have graduated from active church work. The tiresome are the critical and complaining Christians who know how things should be done but never help to do them. The tireless Christians are those who labor for the Master in spite of criticism, burdens, and sacrifice. God needs tireless workers. "The harvest truly is plenteous but the laborers are few."

UNION WITH CHRIST

John 15: 1-10

Topic: The Privilege of Union With Christ

Many New Testament sayings indicate the possibility of an intimate union with Christ through the Holy Spirit. Our lesson text from Jesus' own words, expresses this truth in a striking manner. "Union with Christ" conveys the idea of a most intimate relationship with Him, so that one can think of himself as joined to Him and as enjoying the most profound fellowship with Him.

Fruit-bearing Through Union With Christ, vss. 1-10.

Fruit-bearing is the central thought of our lesson. It sums up the results of union with Christ. He is the true vine (vs. 1); we are the branches and all our life and power and fruitage results from our union with Him. He gives life and strength to every believing soul. Our life, our power to bear fruit, is from Christ. Our training into highest fruitfulness is from the Father. The distinguishing characteristic of a branch that is inwardly in the vine is that it bears fruit. This is also the chief purpose and end of the life of a true disciple. God alone is the final judge as to the reality of our fruit-bearing. He designs that hindrances to spiritual fruitfulness should be taken away from the heart. His loving care for us is like that of a loving husbandman. If we submit to the ever-wise care of the Father, we may expect increasing fruitfulness (vs.2). Christ's words, when accepted and applied, cleanseth the heart for fruit-bearing (vs.3).

Christ exhorts us to maintain a most intimate relationship with Him (vs.4). This lies within power and is another secret of large fruitfulness. To abide in Christ is to have a spiritual relationship to Him of the same nature that the fruit-bearing branch has to the vine. Christ promised to abide in us when we do our part. Left to ourselves, without Christ's help, we would miserably fail. The branch has no independent life of its own. It draws all its sap, its life and fruit-bearing power from the vine. Its fruit is a manifestation of the life of the vine. We abide in Christ when we constantly look to Him in and let His life and Spirit flow into us and live within us unhindered by any distrust or disobedience. Our thoughts, desires, and acts will then manifest the Christ-life in us.

It is Christ's wish and will that we should bring forth much spiritual fruit, produced by His indwelling Spirit. This fruit is Christlikeness in character and in life. As long as we keep the union with Him unbroken, we receive a constant supply of grace from Him. Our praying will manifest the Christ-life within us. When His words live in our hearts, we will pray in accordance with God's will and in perfect confidence. God is honored when we bear much fruit that is pleasing to Him. If we truly love God, we will try to please Him in all things. No one can abide in Christ if he willingly disobeys His Commands.

Privilege of Union With Christ

We have the privilege of union with Christ through the indwelling of His Spirit. To the Christian this is, indeed, a great privilege. The words of Jesus and of Paul are very definite. Paul prays (Ephesians chap. 3) that they may be "strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man." Christ dwells in human hearts in the person of the Holy Spirit. Such indwelling by Christ implies an intimate union with Him. "Christ liveth in me" (Gal. 2:20) pictures the control of a human heart by the Spirit of Christ. This is a marvelous privilege. Union with Christ is the BEGINNING of fruitfulness. The cleansing by the Father assures MORE fruit. Abiding in Christ increases the yield to MUCH fruit. Only the fruit-bearing Christian lives his life so that others may derive good from it. Fruit grows, not for the good of the vine or the tree, but for the good of those who eat of it. Only a completely surrendered life is fully united with Christ.

How can our acts bring glory to God?

What fruits, other than "fruits of the Spirit," are the result of union with Christ?

In what sense is one who "does not abide in Christ," cast forth as a branch and withered?

OUR HERITAGE AND THE NEW FRONTIER

Faith of our fathers, holy faith,
We will be true to thee till death."

Well, from Germantown our forefathers branched out into surrounding sections. One of these was Skippack. Soon a thriving Mennonite Community was established there. The name of the schoolteacher was Christopher Dock. Day after day he faced his pupils in the small schoolhouse. Not only was he concerned with the imparting of knowledge to them, but it was his practice to kneel before his desk with a list of every student before him, thinking over their special problems and praying for them by name. It was at one of these times that his soul took its celestial flight. One of the great impressions of our General Conference was the picture portraying this. In 1750 Dock wrote the first treatise in America on pedagogy, and his conclusions are still valid.

Through various factors, great expansion movements were inaugurated during this century. Although much could be said about the westward march across the continent, we will deal with the opening of the Canadian Frontier. Equipping themselves for a long journey, the first group ventured to blaze the trail into the unknown regions. Day after day they proceeded in their Connestoga Wagons on a north-westerly trek over streams and rivers without bridges, across mountains without roads or trails, and finally into the forests of Canada where white man had never trod. As the settlers reached their destination they would immediately make a small clearing in the woods. With trees which they felled, they erected a small log house —their new home in the forest. The men busied themselves getting land ready for planting while the women got the household things in order. This included putting the spinning wheel and the hand weaving loom into action. The shoemaker used tanned skins of their own cattle to make shoes. Groups of settlers soon joined in the erection of sawmills, grist mills, hemp mills and lime-kilns. Wherever they went, they were careful to preserve their Christian heritage. Their forefathers had gone through terrific persecution for their faith and these folks were intensely religious. So, very early in the development of any tract of land, they made provision for a school and church. In the meantime they met in the various homes.

THE NEW FRONTIER

It was on the eighteenth day of July that I first visited the Pioneer Monument located near Preston, Ontario. I was driving on King's Highway No. 8 when my attention was attracted by the sign which reads: "This Side Road To PIONEER MEMORIAL TOWER. First Farm in Waterloo County settled in 1800. First Large Settlement in the Then Far Interior of Upper Canada." Then as I followed this road I came to the monument, a circular stone construction of about forty or fifty feet in height. Its rustic appearance bespeaks something of the unusual events it commemorates. In the spring of 1800, Joseph Schoerg and Samuel Betzner Jr., Mennonites of Franklin County, Pennsylvania, began the first two farms in the county of Waterloo.

Thus the simple facts are stated! But the feeling I possessed as I stood on the very spot along the Grand River where these heroic souls settled cannot be put into verbal expression; it was an experience of the soul. To the north was a fine field of golden grain glistening gloriously in the afternoon sun. To the west was the picturesque, winding Grand River. To the south was another section of the same river and a large pasture land. To the east three farms attracted my attention. Thus was the scene on that breezy July afternoon. But as I stood there my mind scanned the pages of four hundred years of history. I thought of things we have been speaking about this morning. I followed my forefathers as they went from place to place in Europe. Then I accompanied them across the Atlantic to their new homes in the "wilderness." Finally through the eye of my imagination I joined those heroic souls to the "then far interior of Upper Canada"—the first white settlers in Waterloo County.

But I did not only think of the past that afternoon, but as I gazed into the distance I saw a "new frontier." At that dramatic juncture, I was impelled to drop on my knees and thank my Heavenly Father for the daring faith of those who blazed the trail during the past centuries. Then my prayer was "O Lord, use me in the new frontier.—'Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel.'" I realized that it is up to us, the living, to go forward —carrying the torch. Oh yes, although we may not have to cut through the virgin forests of a new land, we do face new frontiers which require all of the daring courage of these pioneer movements of yesteryear.

We will have time to mention but five of these pioneer movements—trails which we need to blaze anew.

(1) We need to interpret and place a new emphasis on the solid, basic values of life. In our world today the material is emphasized at the expense of the spiritual. Power and might on the material plane is the order of the day! One of my former teachers made this statement: "At the bottom of all social problems is the fact that material goods are limited. Jesus sought to turn men's thoughts in a different direction . . . The things to be desired are spiritual . . . All can possess these . . . Each man gets more as he shares them . . ." Jesus said, "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" In a very real sense, it is the spiritual values which make life worthwhile.

We are further apt to overemphasize the time element at the expense of eternal values. It is very easy to lose our eternal perspective and become alarmed about these things which pass away. We are members of an eternal kingdom. We have been born into a royal family. Although we have definite responsibilities in regard to our earthly existence, we must constantly be reminded that we "have no continuing city here."

That leads us to an emphasis of the great eternal virtues. Three of these are truth, beauty, and love. Many in our day are reversing those with the result of falsehood, ugliness and hate. We must remember that it is these abiding values which mellow life's experiences and bring blessed human relations.

As we think of these virtues, we think of the basic Book in which we read about them. As we think of

A Day In the Great Smokies

*By Elsa E. Grantland

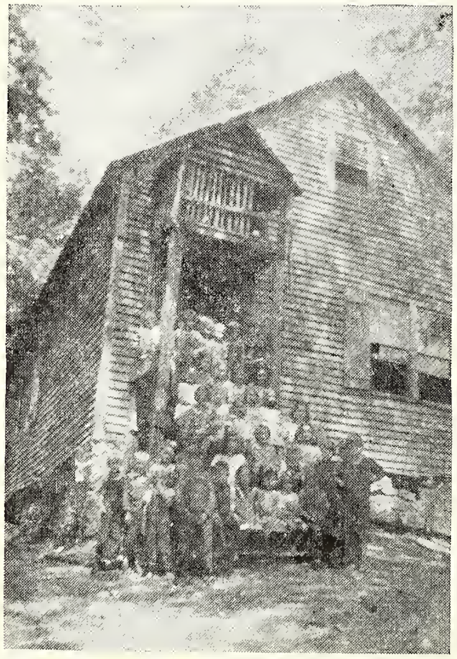
"Good morning folks! "... other sheep I have ..." John 10:16. How about going on a little trip down among the Great Smokies to see the high mountains with their tiers upon tiers of lovely, rich autumnal colors?" As we are in the valley we look up to the mountains. Once on top of a mountain we can look down the valley and see, dotted here and there, little cabins, up the branches and down in the "hollers."



Public School where Miss Grantland teaches Bible every Tuesday morning.

"Ready? Well, get into my little G. C. (Gospel Chariot) and let's be off. Let me have the tracts and as we go we will drop our tracts out of the car with the prayer that the Lord will speak and save that soul which shall pick it up and read it. Let us trust that He will make His Word fruitful. Isa. 55:11."

"Hello, what are you doing?" After exchanging a few bits of news I ask, "What did you read in the Bible today?" "Well, may I read?" I get them all in. After the whole family and the neighbors are in, I read His Word. I pray for all concerned, and their needs are talked over. We pray that the various needs, especially spiritual, may be met. We depart, leaving tracts and Bible pictures.

"Let's be off to the next home." Home? It looks more like a hut or shack. Well, it's home to these people. We see a wee house and a poor, tired mother with two or three children around her. She has been working in the fields since long before sun-up. She has come in to do some cooking. Then she will work in the fields again until dark. Her man is "workin' off" and the crop needs to be gotten in. The smallest tot helps. Because her man can't "work off" and also gather in the crops, they all work hard. Still there is very little cash, and her man has to go a loggin'.

"You ain't got somthin' that I can wear?" the weary mother asks. "I'd be mighty proud to have anything for me or the 'chillerns'." I recite a Bible verse and pray and then leave for another home.

"Let's travel on. What's this, a still? Oh, no! It's only a neighborly gathering." They are making sorghums. It's a gala time in the fall when kith and kin and neighbors gather to make sorghums for the winter. In the process of boiling everyone gets a lick from the same paddle; it all goes with the making. If Johnny's cap drops in, it's hauled out and the germs are boiled away with the sorghum. When finished all get a share for service rendered.

"Let's go across Hog Back Mountain and see what's 'a doin' here." We see the whole family, from the smallest to the oldest, sitting in the barn, grading tobacco leaves and getting them ready for the warehouse. If the summer has been good, then the tobacco will bring a fair price. If it was dry, well, then the tobacco will not bring much. This is the only way by which many of our people can get a little cash. We leave a portion of the scripture tracts, pray, and move on, giving out a coat here, a pair of shoes there, and to old grandma a warm night gown and a word of encouragement for her as she goes down the hill toward the sunset of life.

The women marry young, and many work very hard in the fields, just like men; they chop wood, etc. They get very little out of life and bear many "chillerns," as they are wont to say. The children have to eat when they are hungry. Although they can't buy much clothing, many of the children do go to school in the winter, scantily clad.

The houses here in the mountains are poorly built. They are built of wood, and some houses consist of one large main room with a fire place. In such a room there may be three or four beds, in which the whole family sleeps. Thus they live, far away up in the "hollers" and away from the rest of the world.

The House Built On A Rock

Luke, in the sixth chapter of his Gospel, records the parable of the house built on a rock. "Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will shew you to whom he is like: He is like a man which built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock. . . ."

From the beginning of time we find that men have tried, in a measure at least, to follow their highest idea of God. Through the centuries the prophets helped to reveal God to the people by interpreting Him as they understood Him. They preached reforms which were most needed at the time. But it was not until Jesus came that the way of salvation was completely and simply showed to mankind. The prophet Micah caught a glimpse of this higher vision when he taught the people that God only required that they love justice and do mercy and walk humbly with their God. But Jesus presented a complete picture, simply and clearly drawn: "But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven. . . ."

The sayings of Jesus! Whosoever heareth and doeth them, his house is built on a rock. —H. H. M.

A "Like-To-Do" Christian

A Christian can, and should be, judged by the willingness with which he comes to any assigned task. A Christian even shows his colors better by what he does on his own time—what he chooses to do when there seems nothing to do. It is not where he is on Sunday morning and evening. He is expected to be at the Lord's house. But where is he on Sunday afternoon, on Saturday evening, or any other evening after work? One way to "use time" which might only be "pass time," besides regular periods set aside for service and devotion, is a wise selection of hobbies.

You would have been inspired to have seen the three Palmer brothers who for conscience sake were sent to a federal penitentiary and then transferred to the Colorado Springs Civilian Public Service Camp. Following them from breakfast table one morning this summer we watched them snatch a period of 15 minutes before 7 A. M., when the trucks left for work, to put finishing touches to a beautiful rug which they had woven. They beamed with wholesome pride as they displayed their products and as they told of other more intricate patterns being planned. They would bring even greater happiness into the lives of friends. Minutes were golden to them. Conscientious objectors to what? The waste of precious time! Should we have times when there is nothing to do?

THIS AND THAT

Mountain Lake, Minnesota: "Our Christian Endeavor has decided to send articles to The Mennonite as was requested at the General Conference." (How very welcome these words are to one who looks, very often in vain, for news from the various churches. May other societies be like-minded. Suggestion: Because the printer desires that all typewritten material handed to him be double-spaced, would you, please, be so kind as to put your material in such form. Now to the news.)

On October 10, the people of this community brought together 15 bushels of potatoes, 7 bushels carrots and vegetables. Mr. P. P. Lohrenz, with his truck, took this load to the Civilian Public Service Camp at Dennison, Iowa, on the following day.

On October 15, Dr. H. A. Fast spoke to a large group about the Civilian Public Service camps. He also showed pictures of the camps. Everyone enjoyed the lecture very much. This meeting was sponsored by the Bethel Christian Endeavor.

Gleanings from the Western District Tidings: This six-page printed paper is now issued four times a year. William Juhnke is editor.

The Christian Endeavor Convention of the Western District is planning for its golden anniversary convention next summer.

The Pretty Prairie, Kansas, C. E. recently gave an exchange program at Moundridge, Kansas. Arthur Waltner said in a talk on "Love for All," "Love brings love and hate brings hate. No mortal being is ever justified in doing wrong that good might come out of it. If we want to follow the Jesus way, we must follow it in spite of the seeming strength, cruelty, or viciousness of the enemy."

The total receipts of the Western District C. E. Convention for the past year were, $1131.41.

The Eden C. E. of Moundridge, Kansas, has its own four-page paper. The cover has a youthful picture of Christ. Lillie Krehbiel is its editor.

The Hoffnungsau C. E. of Inman, Kansas, has a special birthday collection at every meeting. Collection baskets are placed in the front of the church and while the closing song is sung all those who have had a birthday during the month bring their birthday money forward.

The Hebron C. E. of Buhler, Kansas, had a model social hour after their meeting on September 21. Juniors and intermediates played separate games. Adults and young people divided into two teams. Each person was given a letter of the alphabet. Then a lively, word-forming contest was enjoyed by everyone. Refreshments were served. Rev. T. A. van der Smissen is counselor.

Young People's Projects

Pacific District Conference

To aid you in selecting a project, and in turn to help accomplish projects which are too great for one society, your district young people's committee makes the following suggestions:

First of all, we urge that the young people of each church meet as a group at least once a month. Christian fellowship will indeed be promoted through testimony and song, as well as through a united effort to serve Christ. Such meetings are enriched by the study of God's Word and the possibilities of our Christian life. Two studies are being prepared and will soon be distributed to each group.

Last year the young people of our district gave a most encouraging expression of their interest in the projects suggested. We have decided to continue helping Ernst Harder of South America to obtain an education here. He is very appreciative of this gesture. We hope that he will be able to return to his country upon the completion of his work to accomplish much for the Lord there.

Undoubtedly, you are helping to support the Civilian Public Service camps through your churches. As an auxiliary interest your committee decided to place several good books of a Christian nature in each of the camps. Our budget is not large. With your help we trust we shall attain it. Let "Our Utmost for His Highest" be the guilding theme of our activity.

3. Distribution of Literature on Present Day Problems, (Who does it? Where can it be obtained? What is available? Does it cover the existing problems and needs? Has it been helpful?)
4. Work in the Civilian Public Service Camps as a Testimony of Our Stand for Peace.
5. The Study of International Relationships in Our Schools and Colleges.
6. What Place Does the Christian Endeavor have in Constructive Peace Work?

III. Facts for Study:

Young people may work for peace in the following ways:

1. Study the problem, that is, become informed in regard to its many aspects.
2. Study the stand of your church on war and peace through the centuries; make a survey of the statements and resolutions made on this problem by our denomination in recent years.
3. Introduce the study of peace and related problems into the program of your church. Emphasize it in young people's societies, Sunday School classes, mid-week services, and in special study classes.
4. Exert peace pressure by writing letters on timely issues to the President and to members of congress.

IV. Food for Thought:

"Would you end war?
Create great peace—
The love that demands all of a man,
His love, his life, his veriest self;
Plunge him in the smelting fires of a work that becomes his child,
Coerce him to be himself at all hazards: with the toil and the mating that belongs to him:
Compel him to serve—
Kindle him with vision, invite him to joy and adventure
Set him to work, not to create things
But to create men."

V. Material on Peace:

Some can be obtained from the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas. A playlet, "Peace and Patches," can be had for fifteen cents from the Literature Committee of the Women's Missionary Societies. Write to Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pennsylvania. The Story of the Mennonites, by C. Henry Smith has very good information on the history of our people.

The men and children get to go to the store, but usually the mother has to stay at home. She gets to see very little of the community. She has to sacrifice the most.

Paint Rock is slowly recovering from its many divisions, created by the Holiness people and the Methodists, who have not cooperated with us. This has made it very hard. We had a splendid Sunday School for two years. Then one of the above denominations broke it up twice and took the building away from us. They wanted us to join their denomination.

We are holding our Sunday School in a small house; it is the only place available. We are holding our own in spite of all the opposition, for which we praise the Lord.

This afternoon I am going to organize another Sunday School thirty miles from here. It is a fair sized community, and they have no one to conduct a Sunday School.

I conduct Bible study every Sunday evening. A fair sized group gathers at our neighbor's home for a "sing" and the Bible study.

Please, pray for our work here in the mountains of North Carolina. We are praying that we may have a little chapel of our own by next spring, that our community will become united, that souls will be saved through the ministry of the Word, tracts, Sunday School, and home visitation. We are praying the family altars may be erected in the homes of Christian families.

OUR HERITAGE AND THE NEW FRONTIER

the Bible, we also inevitably think of the central figure of the Bible, Jesus Christ. "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." In Him all of our thinking culminates. In His life and teaching we have the basis for the solving of all our problems.

When we think of Jesus Christ, we must think of His institution, the Church. We are so apt to become lukewarm in our devotion to the Church. As we think of the Church of Christ we do not think of "another" institution, but of "the" Institution. The clarion call of the present hour is the call to a new devotion and loyalty to Christ and His Church—a loyalty imbedded with a daring courage to break through the "new frontier."

Well, this brings us to the final thought—a basic hope. Our world is filled with many lesser hopes. Millions are willing to die to bring these to a realization. But the hope that must undergird all our desires is that "blessed hope" of the Resurrection Morn. Therein lies victory for the Christian! They nailed the Christ to a cross nineteen centuries ago. They thought they could defeat His purposes. They felt that as death would claim His body; so His ideas would perish. But, thank God, the Resurrection Morn came! Jesus came walking in the garden! This is the great seal of our faith. No doubt we are sometimes tempted to be discouraged and full of despair. It looks as though the world is nailing all that is right and decent to a new cross, but let us remember that the Resurrection Morn lies ahead. This is the great seal of our faith. No doubt we are on the winning side! Let us march in step with our Great Commander, the King of Kings and Lord of Lords!

We now think of some of the specific pioneering areas of our Church in the Twentieth Century. (2) First is the whole non-resistance principle. Now there are two basic reasons why we cherish this conviction. First, we are opposed to killing our fellowmen. We believe that there is no exception to the invitation and command of Christ: "Love your enemies, do good . . ." Second, we believe that the "Law of Forgiveness" is better than the "Law of Retaliation." Much of our world is built up on the law of retaliation. Not only do I refer to the war, but even individual lives are built up on this principle. We must be careful lest we attempt to hide our individual sins in a pretense to a devotion to the cause of peace. We must apply our principle to the whole of life. It is in this respect in particular that we must pioneer! To be sure, we need a new devotion to our whole program as it relates itself to the war. We must be willing to sacrifice to make our testimony ring clearly! But, let it be remembered, that there is a subtle temptation which comes to us as Mennonites to deteriorate internally as we go forth in this worthwhile enterprise. In the final analysis it is more important to "love our neighbors" than to contribute a dollar to war relief. It is sometimes harder to be charitable to others in thought, word, and deed than to engage in something more impersonal. We need to go down to "bed rock." Sacrifice? Yes! But prompted by the love of Christ which goes so deep that it knows no hate. In addition, we must ever remember that there are so many Christians who share our abhorrence of war, but who do not accept our absolute conviction on non-resistance. Although we will hold to our position unswervingly, we must respect their viewpoints.

IN MEMORIAM

HELENA VOTH was born August 20, 1849, in the village of Pruganan, South Russia, and died September 28, 1941, reaching the age of ninety-two years, one month, and eight days.

She was baptized and received into the Mennonite Church at Orlof, South Russia. In the year 1871 she was united in marriage with Peter Voth of Paulsheim. To this union were born ten children four of which died in infancy.

In the year 1875 they migrated to America and settled on a farm near Mt. Lake, Minnesota. Six years later they came to Kansas and settled near Buhler. From there they moved to Halstead, Kansas. In 1893 they homesteaded near El Reno, Oklahoma. After some years they moved to Newton, Kansas. However, for the past sixteen years she lived in Wichita, Kansas. About a year ago her husband preceded her in death. She lived a quiet Christian life. For many years and until her death she was a member of the Mennonite Church of Halstead, Kansas.

She was confined to her bed for the last two years. heim. To this union were born ten children, four of from it easily. Then on September 23 she had a second stroke, which proved fatal. She was unconscious for the last three days. On September 28 she quietly passed away to her heavenly reward.

She is survived by two sons and four daughters: Henry P. Voth, of Draan, Texas; James A. Voth of Kansas City, Missouri; Mrs. Elizabeth Turner and Mrs. J. B. Muller, both of Wichita, Kansas; and Helen and Anna, who are at home; two sons-in-law and two daughters-in-law; nine grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

These and many friends mourn her passing; though not without hope, for we know that she has gone to a better home to be with her Lord and Saviour.

KATE LEWIS, nee Thatcher, daughter of Samuel Deborah Shelly Thatcher, was born November 11, 1857, in Haycock Township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania.

Early in life she took an active interest in the cause of Christ and joined the Applebachsville Reformed Church. Here she served faithfully in many capacities for many years.

On March 21, 1895, she was united in marriage to William S. Lewis. No children were born into this union, but their love for children was rewarded when they took a nephew into their home and reared him.

On January 11, 1939, Mr. Lewis preceded her in death. She united with the Flatland Mennonite years she worshiped with us. Her presence was always Church, November 17, 1939, and for almost two a blessing.

After a short sickness she answered the last call of her Creator on Friday, October 17, bringing her age to 83 years, 11 months, and 6 days.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander preached the funeral sermon. His text was II Tim. 4:6-8. Interment was made in the Applebachsville Burial Ground.

MARIE MANDL, nee Walter, was born atJohannesruh, South Russia, on August 1, 1869. At the age of ten years she migrated with her parents to America and with them settled on a farm ten miles northwest of Freeman, South Dakota.

At the age of twenty years she was baptized by Elder Paul Tschetter and was received as member into the New Hutterthal Church.

On November 24, 1889, she was united in marriage with Peter P. Mandl. Rev. John L. Wipf officiated. According to custom she then automatically became a member of the Hutterthal of which her husband was then a member. After moving to Freeman she and her husband joined the Bethany Mennonite Church on March 10, 1935.

They were privileged to commemorate their golden wedding anniversary on November 24, 1939, together with two other couples belonging to the same church. They were permitted to share life's joys and sorrows during fifty-one years, ten months, and twenty-two days. This union was blessed with three sons, one having died in his infancy.

Mrs. Mandl had many sick days in her life. Thirty-three years ago she underwent two serious operations at Rochester, Minnesota, after which she became well again and enjoyed good health for several years. Later her health failed again. This caused her to ail more or less continuously. About six months ago a serious kidney trouble set in. The last three weeks she spent in bed and suffered a great deal of pain. Her strong hold on her Saviour carried her through these days of severe suffering. She led a quiet Christian life and spent much time in reading God's Word and in prayer. She prayed much for her children and grand-children.

She passed away on Thursday evening, October 16, 1941, after having attained the age of seventy-two years, two months, and fifteen days. She leaves to mourn her departure: her husband; two sons, Peter and Joseph; two daughters-in-law; three grand-children; her ninety-two year old mother; four sisters and five brothers, among whom she was the oldest; and a host of friends and relatives.

We gladly grant her the rest with the Lord for which she longed so much. Services in the church were conducted by Rev. D. S. Wipf, who spoke on Ps. 90:12 and I Cor. 1:18, and by Rev. L. H. Linscheid, who spoke on Rev. 21:1. Interment was at the Hutterthal cemetery.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

Mountain Lake, Minnesota

In our church we are all happy and busy in the Lord's work. Our offering for the C. O. camps last Sunday brought $180.00. Two of our boys have written quite cheery letters to us. At our Harvest Home festival two weeks ago we raised $130.00. The church was decorated with fruit, grain, and flowers around the altar to remind us of God's providence. In another week all the Mennonite churches of these two counties will join together for a Union Hospital Day at the High School auditorium. A young people's prayer league has been started for ages nine to nineteen. It is a good thing when the children of the church confess their full allegiance to the Lord, for each one of their souls is precious in His sight.

We appreciate the recent suggestion in The Mennonite to make the Christian Endeavor programs more instructive and inspiring with the study of book reviews, biographies, etc. Surely there is no reason now why the Sunday night meetings should be dull or poorly attended. The Christian Endeavor is the place to discover talent among the young people, because the group is smaller. Here is where we find out who can sing, or speak, or take office, or handle money. Let us watch for these opportunities and put more boys and girls to work in this Cause that concerns us all.

We plan to have a set of chimes added to our organ which will invite more people to heed the call to church attendance. We expect Rev. Carl Landis to be with us one or two evenings next month to talk to us on "The Fellowship of Reconciliation." Brother Landis is rural secretary of this peace organization. We hope to move forward in knowledge and in growth as Christians and as church members during the winter months. While nature takes her long rest under frost and snow the spiritual world must be ever wakeful and stand fast against every possible enemy.

We greatly enjoy having in our midst Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Penner from India. Mountain Lake is blest by their residence here. We expect Miss Anna Quiring of the Belgian Congo to speak at our special program on November 9. At this time, too, we will have the annual opening of the mite boxes. This is always a great help to the treasury of the Oakleaf Mission Society. We send kind greetings to all who read our church paper. —Mary Bargen, Corr.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—George H. Saathoff and Margaret Bergdolt were married on September 1. After having made a trip to California they are now living on the farm of the bride's father at Trenton, Illinois.

—The Oregon Bible Conference is planning its second annual session. It is sponsored by the General Conference churches of Oregon. It provides a blessed time of Christian fellowship and spiritual inspiration in Christ Jesus. Our General Conference churches in Oregon are: Grace Church of Albany; Emmanuel Mennonite Church of Pratum; Grace Mennonite Church of Dallas; and the Alberta Community (Mennonite) Church of Portland. The pastors of the respective churches are: P. A. Kliewer, Daniel J. Unruh, Homer Leisy, and Arnold J. Regier.

—Announcements

—Helen A. Penner wrote the following on October 14: "As we were drinking bouillon on deck this morning a Nazi bomber flew toward us and circled round the ship quite low. We could plainly see the swastika and the German cross. Then he flew away without harming us. There are many gulls flying around now and we can see small fishing vessels. We saw a whale spouting water a few minutes ago. The pilot ship came to meet us and the pilot came aboard. We are slowly getting into the port. Lisbon is beautiful. It appears as though the buildings are white and have red tile roofs. I am anxious to go on deck again."

—Rev. and Mrs. Harold Burkholder and Rev. and Mrs. Emerson Slotterbach of Pennsylvania, who spent a short vacation with their home folks near Bluffton, Ohio, spoke at the various organizations of the churches of Pandora, Bluffton, and Lima. They brought real spiritual food. Their happy, smiling faces certainly indicate the joy of living a victorious, abundant Christian life. We wish them God's richest blessing as they return to their own fields of labor.

—Mrs. Willis Amstutz

—At the Hartford Theological Seminary there are this year the following Mennonite young men: Roland Goering, Peter Goering, Harold Gross, Ellis Graber, Wesley Ewert, Andrew Shelly, and G. Irvin Lehman (Old Mennonite). Andrew Shelly is president of the Foundation Student Association.

—With Christ On The Edge Of The Jungle, a new missionary book by Samuel T. Moyer, is selling very well. Three hundred copies of it were sold within sixty days after its publication in the United States.

—The Western District Conference, October 22-23, had to be moved from Hutchinson, Kansas, to Newton, Kansas, on October 23 because of in-coming flood waters. Arnold Funk, pastor of the Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kansas, was re-elected as president of the conference. An enheartening spirit of Christian brotherliness permeated the whole session of the conference.

—Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander is conducting evangelistic meetings in the Richfield, Pennsylvania, Mennonite Church. These began on October 26 and will end on November 7. Rev. Benj. S. Graybill is the pastor of this church. Our prayer interest is anticipated.

—Freeman Junior College news: Two music groups have been working diligently for some time. They are the College Men's Quartet, consisting of Jake Friesen, Palmer Graber, Solomon Wollman, and Harley Schrag; and the Academy Girl's Quartet, consisting of Elaine Waltner, Belva Waltner, Florine Waltner, and Helen Schrag.—On Monday evening, October 13, Dr. H. A. Fast addressed a large audience in the college gymnasium. He gave a speech on the Mennonite Civilian Public Service camps, of which he is the general director. These camps are under the direction of the Mennonite Central Committee. Dr. Fast discussed the camp life and the different kinds of work which the boys are doing. He showed interesting pictures which showed the various activities of the boys in the different camps. He said that very commendable work was being done by these draftees.

—In a recent Mennonite mention was made of the Henderson Bible School maintained by the Bethesda Mennonite Church of Henderson, Neb. The following is taken from a recent report by J. J. Friesen, correspondent for the Bethesda Church: "This school has made itself felt in the Sunday Schools of this community, for a number of its students are teaching classes in the various Sunday Schools. Some of the prayers which they are called on to make are heart-thrilling and soul-stirring to us older folk. May we more and more realize, as a community, the value and blessings of the Bible School." (Reports from other similar Bible schools will be appreciated and mention made of them in The Mennonite —Editor —The Saskatchewan ministerial conference was held on Thursday, October 23rd. It was held in the Mennonite Church of Saskatoon.

—The Mountain Lake Bible School is being conducted again this school year. The building has recently been remodeled, and a program of dedication was held on the school lawn Sunday afternoon, October 5th. Speakers were Rev. H. P. Wiebe and Dr. P. A. Penner. Mr. C. Wall is principal of the school.

—Mt. Lake Observer

—Rev. Henry Harder of Enid, Oklahoma, recently held extended services at the Salem Zion Church, Freeman, South Dakota.

—Robert Sommer, son of Rev. E. Sommer of Middlebury, Indiana, has assumed charge of the New Stark Federated church for the school year, 1941-1942. The congregation has provided him with an automobile for his transportation to the services. —Bluffton College News Bureau

—The First Mennonite Church of Beatrice, Nebraska, of which Rev. Walter H. Dyck is pastor, has begun to publish a church bulletin. It has a very attractive picture of the church on the front page.

—On October 12, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Regier and Mr. and Mrs. George Quenzer of the Elbing Church, Elbing, Kansas, visited Robert Regier at the Dennison, Iowa, Civilian Public Service Camp. On the same day the chapel at this camp was dedicated.

—Emmaus Mennonite Church, Whitewater, Kansas—

On Sunday afternoon, October 5, we had the privilege of hearing Brother Ted Claassen who has spent the past year in England. He revealed to us some of his interesting experiences.—Our choir under the direction of Orlando Andres, is planning for a Christmas program. —Corr.

—In The Bethany Messenger of September 17, Rev. L. H. Linscheid, after having referred to the lack of Christianity in some of our tax-supported schools, states, " . . . it ought to encourage Christian people to stand back of Christian schools all the more. It ought to make them willing to let it cost some to have these schools, to which they need not fear to send their children. We are very happy for the good schools that Freeman (South Dakota) has." The bulletin also states that Harold Gross has resumed his studies at Hartford Theological Seminary.

—The Buhler Mennonite Church bulletin has at the beginning of its worship service program the following, beautiful petition: "O God, Thou source of all pure desires and holy affections, give me now a quiet mind and a reverent and devout heart, that I may worthily worship Thee. Amen."

—Recently the bulletin of the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pa., informed its members that: "There will be directed work at Mennolan (Eastern district retreat grounds) every Saturday. . . . There is much work to be done before the winter months. Give all day, or an hour or two, whatever you can spare." We need more such cooperative labor in all our districts, do we not?

—The General Com. in charge of the General Conference at Souderton had their final meeting and after paying all bills, a $500 balance was left. The Eastern District Conference, not wishing to make a profit on the enterprise, gave $35 to the Bluffton Choir, $35 to the Bethel Choir, and $30 to the Freeman Choir. The remaining $400 was given for war relief. A word of commendation goes to the sub-committees for their fine and faithful service.

—Grace Menn. Church Messenger

—From the bulletin of the First Mennonite Church, Hutchinson, Kansas, we glean that the young people with their pastor went out to sing for the sick and the aged after the evening service on October 5.

—Rev. A. J. Dirks of Halstead, Kansas, who sustained a serious spine injury in an auto accident not long ago, has recovered quite well. Rev. Dirks is pastor of the Garden Township Mennonite church near Halstead, and he reports that he was privileged to add eight members through baptism recently.

The Mennonite

Last May we moved into a house which had been vacated by an elderly Mennonite couple. Because they had to move to a home in Ohio, they had to leave behind some things for which they had no great need. Thus it happened that in the rubbish of the furnace room I chanced upon fifteen old copies of The Mennonite, most of them from the year 1896. I laid them aside. One evening, recently, I began to scan them. Two hours passed and I reluctantly left them at 11 o'clock to go to bed. I had breathed the atmosphere of these old copies and had reacted to them in several main ways.

Firstly, articles on Mennonite doctrines and activities moved me to scan them avidly, but I neglected the quoted articles from non-Mennonite sources. Secondly, I was able to discover many of the problems of the Mennonite Church of that day by reading the frank expressions of prominent church leaders. Some problems of that day were: the lodge question, the Sunday newspaper, smoking, the building of a missionary spirit, the definition of the sphere of Christian Endeavor work, and the improvement of Sunday School work. The discussion of these problems seemed to clarify the spiritual atmosphere of that day. Thirdly, the mission news painted some vivid history. Fourthly, it seemed to me that many of the obituaries were only one-eighth as long as some of those which are printed today.

These impressions suggested certain facts which must be considered if The Mennonite is to serve as an efficient conference organ. Today as then it is necessary that capable men in our conference contribute well-written articles which bring out the implications of our whole Christian faith and especially of our distinctive Mennonite doctrines.

Furthermore, we need articles that deal with the necessary organization and methods for doing our work, articles that explore various possibilities and which pave the way for intelligent decision and action at our General Conferences. In fact, should not our church papers, in a certain sense, be the continuation of our last conference and the preparation for the next one? Most of our leaders are very busy, but if this paper is to fulfill its purpose, then they must be willing to give of their time and energy for its sake.

You who read this paper are the ones who from a wide area can contribute jottings and articles with a distinctive Mennonite flavor, articles which will make unnecessary many quoted ones from other sources, articles which will inspire, inform, and explore. Then, too, your suggestions are needed for the improvement of the paper. Should the obituaries be shortened, as some suggest? Should a story appear in each issue? Your suggestions are needed. Everyone is welcome. The Mennonite will very largely be what you the readers and the contributors help to make it. May it be a worthy servant of Christ and His kingdom.

Why I Am a Christian

It is indeed with "meekness and fear" that I set about to give a reason for the hope that is in me. Since the question asked is a personal one, "Why Am I a Christian?" so the answer must also be personal.

The root to the answer is imbedded deep in childhood. Christian parents and regular attendance at Sunday School and Church laid the foundation upon which developed that love for the things of God that quite naturally led me to accept Christ as my personal Saviour when I had reached the age of accountability. I would not have you believe that I "grew into Christianity." But an early training in things spiritual developed in me that desire for a closer walk with God, a more intimate acquaintance; the Jesus whom I had loved as a child, now became even deeper as a Saviour from sin.

Our Christianity is a religion of faith, entirely apart from pagan religions that have gods made with hands, visible but without power. My early salvation was certainly by grace through faith, and with a childlike simplicity I accepted the wonders of that great work of salvation, with little understanding of the great doctrines involved. Now that I have begun to study the Word more earnestly and see more clearly the factors involved in that sacrificial death, I am more deeply appreciative of the great gift offered so freely to all men. I praise God that His plan of salvation is so simple that a child can understandingly accept it.

Of course, there came that difficult adolescent period when things of the world seemed so attractive. I remember especially one Sunday evening when I didn't want to go to Christian Endeavor and made quite a scene about it. My older sister very quietly told me a story that proved the turning point of that period. She told of a visiting minister who was preaching in a certain church. As he entered, he put a half dollar in the offering box at the rear of the church. When the service was over, the host pastor announced that the guest pastor would receive whatever was in the box. There was exactly one half dollar in the box when it was opened. The guest pastor's small daughter said, "Daddy, if you had put more into it, you would have gotten more out of it." I started putting something into the meetings I attended, and the result was an increased interest and desire to serve.

But just supposing I had been reared in an atmosphere of agnosticism, and had given no thought to religion until I reached maturity. Given a choice of all the religions of the world, would I have chosen Christianity? With a clear understanding of all religions, modern cults as well as pagan idolatries, there could still be only one choice. What other religion is inspired by love? "God so loved . . . that He gave."

Christianity reveals man in his natural sinful condition: "for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God;" strangely enough it is the only religion that says we can do nothing about it. God has done it all! 1 Peter 2:24.

Other religions keep their adherents in a state of fear and subjection. Only Christianity elevates man to a new level, gives him the power to become a son of God according to John 1:12. As a son, he has an inheritance, and a very unusual one too. It's not the kind of inheritance that dwindles with the years, but according to God's own promise it is "an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven."

There is no place for fear in Christianity. It is the religion of love, and "there is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear." Only Christianity asks you to "be careful for nothing," and as an alternative to a care-filled life, offers that peace of God which passes all understanding. Philippians 4:6, 7.

Only Christianity inspires men at the command of Christ and motivated by love, to give their lives in spreading the Gospel to all men. It is indeed the only religion that can meet the needs of all men, simple enough for the ignorant and illiterate to grasp, yet comprehensive enough to meet every question of the intellectual inquirer.

Yes, given a choice of all the religions of the world, I would undoubtedly turn to Christianity. Only here would I find a Saviour who, in His infinite love, puts to His own account my sin and shortcomings, and puts to my account His sinless righteousness.

"COME TO OUR HOUSE, TOO"

Many years ago the apostle Paul heard a voice from Macedonia asking him to come there. That particular voice is long silenced. Yet, that spirit is still calling and inviting today. It is our custom at our Basna mission station, and every other mission station, too, that we missionaries go toward evening on Sundays to visit our Christians in the neighborhood. But where there are so many Christian families as in Basna, it is impossible for any missionary couple to visit everyone. So we try to go to as many as we can. As soon as we get to the Christian community, stray family members are seemingly everywhere at large, and as soon as we come out of one home, several voices start at the same time: "Come to my home, too." Everyone wishes us to come "under their humble roof" as they say. We come to as many as possible and promise those we cannot visit, to come to them the next time. Then we have to be careful, though, not to forget our promise. They remember the promise, and if we forget, we surely hear about that in due time. It makes us very tired physically, especially in the great heat, to walk from home to home and carry on a brief conversation and give a word of encouragement for the Christian way of life; yet one always feels rewarded for the privilege of fellowship with our brothers and sisters in Christ. One would be ever so glad if one could share this fine friendly invitation: "Come to our house, too," with all of you in America. We are so grateful that India can invite us; whereas, China cannot do that anymore, at least not at present. We would say especially to our young people in America: "India invites you—your sympathy, your understanding, your intercessory prayers, your help. Will you answer 'yes' to this invitation?" —John Thiessen

OUR FIRST SUNDAY IN BASNA

It was really a glorious May day. We cannot often speak of glorious May days in India, because May is the month of fiercest heat in India. But it had rained a little, and the great heat was a little less. The church bell rang at 7:30 in the morning. From all directions our Christian brothers and sisters began to come, but no children came. The church is quite near our home, so we can see the people come. I asked one brother where the children were. He said they had to gather in the school house some distance away, because there was no room in the church for the children. I was asked to preach this first Sunday, and it pained me a bit that the children were not there. But it is true that our Basna church is too small to receive our Christians with their children. For non-Christians there is no room at all.

We gathered with our Christian brothers and sisters, and what a joy it was to be together again with those who are called from the west, from the north and the south, to sing praises and thanksgiving to Him who has redeemed us all. Our hearts were thrilled to be with our fellow Christians again. One really has to take oneself in hand in order not to let one's emotional feeling run away with one. After church there were scores of well wishes and greetings.

Then a brief noon rest, and then Sunday School in the afternoon. Mrs. Thiessen consented to take a class right away. But I begged the superintendent (an Indian brother) to excuse me this one time, and give me a chance to go from class to class to visit. He kindly did so, and I went to see how our people teach their own country-men. It is the real hope of the new Christian church that India's people teach their own. Thank God that it is being done.

After Sunday School Mrs. Thiessen and Muriel and I went to visit our Christians in their home. We could get to only a small portion of our Christians in the near neighborhood. But the welcome we received in every home was so refreshing to us that when we went to rest that night, we felt lifted high above the common problems of life. Our first Sunday in Basna was a glorious day. —John Thiesssen

Chicago, Illinois

The Mennonite Bible Mission of Chicago has just closed a month of prayer. Each week the members of the Church were given a prayer for that week.

The prayer topics were: "Prayer for a Surrendered Life," "Prayer for Victory," "Prayer for the Home," and "Prayer for the Church."

Many homes were represented at our weekly meetings. God has answered many prayers during this month of prayer for which we praise Him.

P. O. Box 131

Dear Christian Friends:

Greetings to you in the name of Him who loved us and washed us from our sins in His Own Blood. We praise the Lord for every spiritual blessing as well as the temporal blessings that we have in Him. Even if we have had to leave for a season the land and the people whom we love, yet we feel the Lord has blessed us and led us in a wonderful way. We praise the Lord for the opportunity of continuing our language study here in Baguio. We can witness to the Chinese here in the Philippines, too, for there are many Chinese here. Eighty-five per cent of the business here in the islands is carried on by the Chinese. We also have the privilege to witness to Filipinos here, and the Lord has used us as His human instruments in winning some of these dear souls unto Himself. On Sunday afternoon a group of us, including my wife and I, often go out to the tuberculosis sanatorium here in Baguio. Tuberculosis is very prevalent in this part of the island.

Conditions in the world look rather dark now, but we believe that according to the Scripture things may even get worse. Christ tells us that there will be wars and rumors of wars and earthquakes and so forth. There will also be a turning away from the truth and the Word of God, but we are told to lift up our heads for our redemption draweth nigh. Yes, we believe Christ will soon return and take all born again believers out of this sinful old world. What a happy day to look forward to for the Christian! May we work together as the Lord leads us so that many more souls may be won to Him before He comes, if He should tarry.

We ask for your continual prayers that the Lord may soon lead us back to China that we again might witness to them of the precious blood of Christ, the only remedy for sin.

Yours in His glad service,
Lester and Agnes Wuthrich

An Important Meeting of the M.C.C.

At a meeting of the Mennonite Central Committee in Chicago, October 25, 1941, with additional representatives of the various branches of Mennonites cooperating in the support of the Civilian Public Service Camps, an important and historic decision was made to the following effect: that the various cooperating bodies of Mennonites now represented on the M. C. C. will take the full responsibility of administering the C. P. S. Camps and materially support the boys in them without Government aid.

Every group of Mennonites represented strongly expressed a sentiment to carry on such a program and support it financially. This means that the quota per member in all the Mennonite groups will be at least $1.00 for every six months.

Below is a financial statement showing the Civilian Service contributions made by the various Mennonite branches, Jan. 1, 1941 to October 21, 1941.

The figures below are self-explanatory. We can see where we stand as a conference in our support to the Civilian Service program in contrast with some other Mennonite bodies. Some of the churches of our Conference have sent in their full quota per member and over, but some have up to date not sent in anything. Can pastors do something in calling attention to this need in this crisis and challenge their people to respond to this great God-given opportunity that we have to sacrifice in another way than the world would sacrifice? Some churches make a personal solicitation of their members, some take monthly or quarterly offerings. Every pastor will need to work out some plan with his congregation as to the best way they can raise their quota.

Send all your contributions for the Civilian Service program to Mr. L. J. Horsch, 529 East J. Str., Ontario, California.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Rev. Erland Waltner, Philadelphia, Pa.

NOV. 16—"He entered, as his custom was, into the synagogue on the sabbath day." Luke 4:16b

"Life is just a bundle of habits," some of our psychologists tell us. While this is undoubtedly an over implification, our habits do play an important role in our life. Customs, which are the habits of society, often determine our choice of clothes, of food, and of pleasures. Personal habits govern much of our daily conduct. While bad habits may become unreasonable tyrants in our lives, good habits are among our most precious assets. Jesus rejected many of the customs of the Jewish religion because they were empty shells without vitality. But He did adopt the custom of attendance in the synagogue on the Sabbath day because He believed it to be a means of worshiping the Father in spirit and in truth. Can we claim to be followers of His if we follow not his example?

NOV. 17—"For none of us liveth unto himself." Rom. 14:7a

Our lives cannot be lived in a vacuum. Whether we like it or not, we are a part and parcel of a social and spiritual community. Thus we can never be entirely independent and we cannot escape our responsibilities to both God and man. Many people resent being approached about their religious faith. "My religion is my own business," they say. However, a man's religion should be of concern to all for if he has no faith, his life is a denial of God. In turn, he exerts his influence on all whom he contacts and thus becomes a stumbling block to the faith of others. Our life belongs to God and until it is controlled by Jesus Christ we cannot fulfil our obligation to our Creator or to our fellow creatures.

NOV. 18—"She hath done what she could." Mark 14:8a

"A shameful waste!" said Judas. "A good work," said Jesus. These were the conflicting comments of Judas and Jesus on the anointing of Jesus by Mary. Thus often the true value of a deed is confused because we do not have the Divine perspective. What seems a waste to us, may be a "good deed" in His sight. What we consider a "good deed," may be an abomination to Him. Mary with a heart of love was trying to show her devotion to her Master in the best way she knew. While others disapproved, Jesus praised her for it and said that her act would be a memorial unto her. Is it not marvelous how Christ takes a humble human service rendered in his name and transforms it into something of infinite worth? Even a cup of cold water, given in his name, will bring its eternal reward.

NOVEMBER 19—"Ye are bought with a price." I Cor. 6:20a

A little boy who had built a boat was trying it out near the edge of a lake when a strong gust of wind swept the little boat out of his reach. The next day as the boy walked down the street he saw his own boat in a shop window. Entering the shop he tried to convince the shop-keeper that the boat belonged to him, but he found that the only way he could have it again was to purchase it. When he had bought it he remarked, "This boat is twice mine—I made it and then I bought it." Could God also say this of our lives?' First, He created us and then through Jesus Christ He redeemed us, not with silver or gold, but by the precious blood of the Saviour.

NOVEMBER 20—"For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." Phil. 1:21

Life or Death? Paul did not know which the morrow would bring. Still Paul was neither afraid nor downhearted. How could that be? What makes a man fearless and serene in the presence of uncertainty? Here is Paul's formula: For me to live is Christ. Elsewhere he said, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." If Paul's life had been identified with a purpose of amassing wealth, death would be loss. If his life had been lived for pleasure, death would be a dreaded end. But since his life was mystically united with the One who overcame death, he could say, "O grave, where is thy victory?"

NOVEMBER 21—"Occupy till I come." Luke 19:13b

On the heights of Mt. Zion in Jerusalem, the writer met a religious hermit who had there made himself a little hut and was awaiting the return of Jesus Christ. He said that once he had possessed great riches, but that he had given up position, wealth, and friends so he might be ready for the coming of the Lord. But is this what Jesus meant when he said, "Be ye ready?" Certainly this hermit's scheme of life is not the one taught in the parable of the pounds. In this parable the servants were ready for the return only when they might be found carrying out the orders of the Master. The man who buried his pound and thus neglected his daily duty was the only one commanded. John Wesley was once asked, "What would you do if you knew Jesus were coming today?" Wesley replied, "I'd go to preach just as I have planned to do."

NOVEMBER 22—"Have salt in yourselves." Mark 9:50b

Someone has defined salt thus: "It's what makes potatoes taste bad, if you don't put it on." Many lives that we contact day after day are just as insipid as unsalted potatoes. Such lives have no flavor, no taste. But Jesus Christ can put the salt of God's grace into our lives so that everyone we contact will be able to tell the difference. As Christians, however, we are warned to keep our lives well salted so that the savor is not lost. Only by "keeping salt in ourselves" can we be the "salt of the earth," and thus be a seasoning and a preservative in an insipid and corrupt world.

PRAYER AND THANKSGIVING

Matt. 6:15-15; Eph. 5:20; I Thess. 5:16-18

Introduction

Prayer and thanksgiving are closely related and also highly essential to a Christian life. One cannot be a true Christian without prayer; without thanking God for his blessings, our prayers would be quite defective, and life would have a gloomy atmosphere. We naturally begin our prayers with thanksgiving and then petition God for things which we desire. Prayer is not merely asking God for something. We so readily make this the chief element in our prayers. Praise and thanksgiving offered to God is prayer. Many Christian hymns are sincere prayers and singing them with the heart is very real prayer. Jesus is our great example in His prayer life.

Where to Pray, vss. 5, 6

Jesus does not discourage and disapprove of all public prayer (John 6:11). He does condemn that praying in public which is intended to attract attention and admiration. The "hypocrites" of Jesus' day (vs. 5) masked their true selves and appeared to be very pious in their conspicuous and long prayers in prominent and public places. Perhaps this spirit still lingers in our day. They received the praises of men, the reward they sought. God probably heard little of their prayers.

Jesus emphasized the need of private devotional prayer alone in the "inner chamber," shut in with the Father, and the world shut out. This is a real aid to sincerity and frankness, an aid to unburdening our heart before God. He is far more real to the mind when we are alone with Him. Private prayer is essential to the nurture of our spiritual life. Nothing can take its place.

How to Pray, vss. 7, 8

Jesus states clearly that merely using many words and repeating many prayers is of no evil in producing results with God. There is a danger of our doing this when we use set forms of expression in praying while our minds are otherwise absorbed. Repetition that comes from intense heart earnestness of desire or emotion, is not vain and meaningless. God does wish for us to express our hearts' desires to Him, but He does not need to be informed of our needs.

The Model Prayer, vss. 9-15

The prayer begins with adoration of the Father in Heaven to whom it is addressed. It seeks God's glory, that He be acknowledged as holy. God's kingdom and will are to be put first in our prayers. We have no right to pray this unless we are willing to submit fully to God's will in our life. God has not promised us luxuries, but He does want us to trust Him for daily needs. We cannot expect forgiveness from God unless we have forgiven others. We cannot properly ask God to forgive our sins unless we are ready to forgive others (vss. 12, 14, 15). God does not tempt us (Jas. 1:13), but He allows us to be tempted. In His infinite wisdom He may lead us into difficult places for our highest good. He will deliver us from the evil one, Satan.

Thanksgiving in all Things, vss. 16, 18, 20

The Christian is to rejoice, pray and give thanks daily, hourly in all things, in all conditions. Joy arises from present good, and from anticipation of future happiness. The duty of giving thanks to God is very obvious. It is not only due to God, but is also highly beneficial to us. It lifts our minds above our trials and troubles. It greatly helps us to resist Satan's suggestive temptations. It makes our work easier. It increases our faith.

Prayer and thanksgiving indelibly stamp our actions and demeanor. They enrich the inner life, and a tranquility of bearing, a facial and bodily repose are seen as a result. They supply a steady flow of sustaining power in daily life. When we pray we link ourselves with the inexhaustible power of God. Prayer is a practice of the presence of God. True prayer changes both body and soul for the better.

How would you define prayer?

What is the proper use of the Lord's Prayer?

What are my chief reasons for praying?

ORIGIN OF WEDDING RING

The true origin of the wedding ring is unknown. Among some primitive tribes the man would weave a cord and bind it around the waist of the girl of his choice. In others women wore fetters around wrists and ankles, indicating that they had been captured by a certain man and belonged to him exclusively. The wedding ring is, perhaps, an outgrowth of one of these customs. In ancient times a circle represented eternity—no beginning, no ending. That was perhaps the reason for adopting the ring as the symbol of marriage—implying that it will last through eternity. —Selected

What Are the Basic Tenets of the Christian Religion?

By Rev. J. M. Regier

The very fact that there are so many divisions in the Christian Church is evidence that there is a great difference of opinion as to the importance placed upon many doctrines or tenets of the Christian religion. Who am I that I should tell my fellow-ministers which tenets are basic and which are of secondary importance? However, I am willing to express myself in a general way, suggesting some of the tenets which I consider important, or rather basic, and thus throw myself open to your criticisms.

I would consider those beliefs basic which are needed to achieve the end of the Christian religion. And what is that end? It is to help man reach the aim or the goal of his life. This, our catechism says, is "to live in God's fellowship, enjoy his favor, and obtain eternal happiness hereafter." Those doctrines that are needful for the accomplishing of this purpose are basic tenets.

May we then first discuss this question negatively and name some more or less common doctrines, which may be important, at least to large groups, but which we cannot accept as essential to the obtaining of salvation.

What are some of the beliefs that divide churches? What is it that splits up the Mennonite Church? Why cannot we and the Mennonite Brethren church unite? Why can we not unite with the Old Mennonite Church, or the Holderman church, or the Amish? Thousands of Mennonites consider these doctrines that separate us important enough to keep us apart, but are they truly basic in the accomplishing of the purpose of the Christian religion?

There are Mennonites who would sooner give up the principles of peace than the form of baptism. The mode of dress, the cut of beard, and the wearing of a head covering are considered important enough to justify the establishing of separate churches.

An old man told me recently that his brother is an Adventist. Once he had asked him if a man would feel that he had received forgiveness of his sins, testifying that he had peace with God and was living an upright Christian life, but he would not keep the Sabbath, could he then never get to heaven? The answer had been a positive NO.

There are many different views and beliefs held on prophecy, the second coming, a second chance, a second blessing, the baptism of the Holy Ghost, various interpretations of Scripture passage,—all extremely interesting topics, which always provoke much discussion, but to what extent are they basic?

Here is the doctrine concerning the Holy Spirit and the triune God. What is your belief? The rank and file of our church members would have great difficulty expressing themselves as to what they believe about the Trinity. Can they then not be Christians? If they can anyway, is a correct belief therein basic? For over a thousand years the Eastern Orthodox Church and the Roman Catholic Church were separated on the doctrine of the Trinity. The Eastern Orthodox Church teaches that the Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father only. The Roman Catholic Church adds "and from the Son." The Protestant churches of the west have adopted the Roman version of the creed. (Beliefs That Matter, Brown, p. 183.) Would we for a minute believe that this alone is reason enough to exclude the Eastern churches from eternal salvation? Is that belief then basic?

Let us then in a positive way name some tenets which are truly needful to a vital Christian religion. Naturally, the first one is to believe in God. Dr. Theodore Wedel said in Bethel College three years ago that the most needful thing for America is to believe that God is. It is interesting to let your imagination go in seeing what changes would be produced in the American people if they really believed in the kind of a God that Jesus has revealed to us.

Furthermore, in a recent Sunday School lesson God was presented to us as a heavenly Father. Is that a basic tenet that we accept Him as such? It would be very difficult to trust Him fully, and to be anxious to accept Him as a Shepherd, if we could not trustfully say, "Our Father Who art in Heaven."

A second basic tenet is to believe in Jesus Christ as our Saviour. Here are eight things for which Jesus said that he came: "I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness." John 12:46. "For judgment came I into the world, that they which see not might see, and that they which see might be made blind." John 9:39. "I am come to send fire in the earth, and how I wish it were kindled already." Luke 12:49. "I came not to send peace, but the sword." Matt. 10:34. "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth." John 18:37. "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." John 10:11. "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many." Mark 10:45. Who else, but the Son of God could carry out such a program?

A third basic tenet is salvation by faith. When the Philippian jailor tremblingly asked Paul and Silas, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?," the apostles answered, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." To the woman who anointed Jesus' feet in Simon's house, the Master said, "Thy faith hath saved thee." To the Galatians Paul writes, "Man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ." 2:16. Paul writes to the Romans about the "righteousness of God which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe." 3:22.

But, as Rev. Kreider wrote in a recent Sunday School quarterly: "Faith includes more than mere belief. It is more than the assent of the mind. . . . Faith in Christ is a commitment of one's self to and a trust in Christ. . . . It is a very vital experience. . . . It is the secret of salvation." (S. S. Quarterly August 3, 1941.) It must be a positive faith. "Faith, if it hath not works, is dead." Jas. 2:17. "For by grace are ye saved by faith. . . . For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works." Eph. 2:8-10.

A fourth belief which I would put down as a basic tenet is that of repentance. "I tell you, Nay: but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Luke 13:3. After healing the lame man in front of Solomon's porch, Peter said to the multitude: "Repent ye therefore, and be ye converted, that your sins may be blotted out." Acts 3:19. Jesus says, "I came to call sinners to repentance." Luke 5:32. John writes: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." 1 John 1:9. The Psalmist says, "The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise." Ps. 51:17. What relief confession brings to the sinner is expressed in Psalm 32: "When I kept silence, my bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long. . . . I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin." vss. 3, 5. But not only in the breast of the sinner will there be happiness, but also among the angels in heaven when one sinner repents. Luke 15:7. Forgiveness is the blessed fruit of repentance.

But as God forgives the sinner, we also believe in forgiveness from our side. This is a fifth basic tenet. "If thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." Matt. 5:23-24. "If ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you: but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your heavenly Father forgive your trespasses." Matt. 6:14-15.

A sixth doctrine which is basic with Christian people is that of prayer.

"Breathe on me, Breath of God, Fill me with life anew,
That I may love what thou dost love, And do what thou wouldst do.
"Breathe on me, Breath of God, Until my heart is pure,
Until with thee I will one will, To do or to endure.
"Breathe on me, Breath of God, Till I am wholly Thine, Till all this earthly part of me Glows with Thy fire divine."

—"Pray without ceasing." Jesus lived a life of prayer. He says, "Watch and pray, that ye fall not into temptation." "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." Matt. 7:7.

"Prayer is the Christian's vital breath,
The Christian's native air,
His watchword at the gate of death;
He enters heav'n with prayer."

Another basic tenet to which we all confess, but which we do not practice enough is that of love. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." John 13:35. "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and everyone that loveth is born of God and knoweth God. . . This commandment we have from him, that he who loveth God love his brother also." I John 4:7,21. Jesus says, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Matt. 22:37-39. "Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love." I Cor. 13:13.

An eighth fundamental belief that we hold is that of the Kingdom of God. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." Matt. 6:33. How often do we pray, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." When Jesus says, "Repent ye; for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand," would that not carry with it the practical responsibility of working, as well as praying, for the coming of the Kingdom? Although we will not enjoy the complete realization of the Kingdom of God on earth, the teachings of Jesus are plain enough as to our responsibilities toward this Kingdom, that I include it among the basic tenets of our faith.

A ninth doctrine that I wish to include among our basic tenets is our belief in immorality. Paul writes to the Corinthians: "If Christ be preached that He rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection among the dead?

Peace Meeting at Eden

The Western District Young People's Peace Committee is planning a peace meeting to be held in the Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, on Sunday evening, November 16, at 7:30 o'clock.

Speakers for the meeting will be Dr. P. C. Hiebert of Sterling, Kan., who is chairman of the Mennonite Central Committee, and Rev. David C. Wedel, director of the C. P. S. Camp No. 8 at Marietta, Ohio. Dr. Hiebert, who is also head of the department of education at Sterling College, will speak on the topic "Mennonites United for Peace." Rev. Wedel comes to us direct from the C. P. S. Camp at Marietta and will report on the work that is being done there. An opportunity will be given to ask questions during the Question and Answer period.

An invitation is extended to all who are interested in the work for peace and the activities of the C. P. S. Camps. An offering will be received which will be divided equally into four parts, namely, Relief, Civilian Public Service Camps, Mennonite work camps, and the work of the Young People's Peace Committee.

NOTES FROM a C. O.'S JOURNAL

Autumn days—steely, gray skies alternating with the sunny blue—light, fleecy, clouds intermittently hiding the snow-capped peaks of the Rampart Range—Quavering aspens high up toward the timber line their fluttering foliage of brilliant yellow, contrasting sharply 'gainst the dull green of surrounding vegetation—their dying leaves soon to fall and become a part of the layer of humus which the parent tree returns to its Mother Earth—The number of camp visitors continues to grow fewer and fewer as school progresses and seeding time rolls 'round— News from friends in school, their ardent enthusiasm for those experiences hoped for coupled with uncertainty which springs from unstable national and international affairs—new names appear in the school papers, different problems for the educational heads to solve—Here coal being hauled to the bins, hoppers being filled, heating facilities checked, stoves fired, overcoats and mufflers appear, camp jobs as kitchen work, office help, suddenly acquire new popularity as S. C. S. boys face long, chilly, days in the open field—Summer reluctantly releases dominion as a lone field of oats, just across from the camp, is harvested—Yes, the inevitable seasonal change slowly approaches, bringing with it colorful memories of other peaceful Autumn days—hope that through the dark clouds of world fear, hatred, and frustration will issue, via the cooperation of God, Nature, and Man, an Indian Summer of an understanding brotherhood, consecrated to an eternal, active, peace. This and That —Of the twelve young men who were called by the government three have been discharged, Victor Voth and Herbert Franz upon the grounds of their age and Wilbur Ediger upon the recommendation of the medical advisory board. The latter has resumed his duties as S. S. superintendent in church and as teacher in the Lehigh, Kansas, town school. Victor Voth has taken up business in Denver and Herbert Franz is serving our church with his musical talent in various ways, but has not yet been able to secure a steady job.—Mrs. P. H. Unruh, who has been ill in Bethesda Hospital for almost two weeks, was taken home Sunday, October 26, and is doing very well at the time of this writing.

—Corr. from Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church

—Helen A. Penner, newest General Conference relief worker in France, wrote the following from Cerbere, France, on October 20, 1941: We arrived in France at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. . . . We crossed through a long tunnel, about one and one half miles long, and came out in France at Cerbere. The scenery from Barcelona on was beautiful. At first we could see the Pyrenees mountains in the distance and finally we were in them. The mountain sides are terraced for cultivation in many places. After we were in the customs house another American Express man told us that Jesse Hoover and Henry Buller were in town and had been looking for us the day before. Mr. Hoover obtained permission to enter the room where we were waiting. Were we glad to see him! The Mennonites have such a good reputation here that when he explained that we were also part of his group, they ok'd our baggage without opening it. That made us happy, too.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

By Mrs. Gerhard Friesen

A CHRISTIAN IS GRATEFUL

Luke 17:11-19. Eph. 5:20. Col. 3:17.

Program for November 30, 1941

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "See the Shining Dewdrops," No. 407; "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come," No. 377; "Thank the Lord, With Bounteous Measure," No. 376.
2. Reading of leading topic and prayer.
3. Dramatizations: "The Spirit of Sacrifice," (5 girls) @ 5c; "Always Asking for Money," (9 characters) @ 4c; "The Thank Offering Speaks," (7 girls) @ 2c. (These may be had from Mrs. A. E. Kreider, North Newton, Kansas.)
4. Thanksgiving Offering (expect a large offering).

II. Leader's Introduction

Someone has said: "If one should give me a dish of sand and tell me that there were particles of iron in it, I might look with my eyes and search with my clumsy fingers and be unable to find them; but let me take a magnet and sweep it through the sand and it will draw to itself even the smallest particles of iron by the power of attraction. The unthankful heart like the clumsy finger in the sand discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day as the magnet finds the iron in the sand so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessing.

"The ways of expressing thanks are legion. Beyond the spoken word there are the deeds of service rendered, the worshipful attitude the bestowal of gifts on others more needy, and the smiling life evident to all around."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. God's response to thankfulness. II Chron. 5:13, 14.
2. Peace by prayer and thanksgiving. Phil. 4:5-7
3. Thankful sacrifice. Heb. 13:15, 16
4. Thankful for everything. I Thess. 5:16-21

IV. For Discussion

What definite things should we be thankful for?

In what way should we express our thankfulness to God?

V. For Study

Make a study of tithing at this meeting. It is a fit occasion for it.

You may get the following literature as a help for it from Mrs. A. E. Kreider:

"Stewardship Packet" @15c; "Tithes and Offerings," a playlet, @5c; "Malachi 3:10 Still Works," free; "Can We Tithe in Hard Times," free.

VI. Illustration

Everything for Christ

"Would you advise young Christians to do something for the Lord?" This was the question once put to Robert Chapman of Barnstaple.

"No," was the prompt and rather astonishing reply of Chapman. But he added immediately, "I should advise them to do everything for the Lord." The advise was consistent with that given by Paul when he said, "Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

VII. Food for Thought

Making One's Own Dream

The eloquent Robert J. Burdette once gave this advice to a youth: "My dear boy, there's nothing on earth sweeter or biitterer than an old man's memories. The things you are doing and saying today will be your dreams when your hair is white. Make your dreams pure and kindly and sweet."

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

FOUR GREAT PROPHETS

Program for November 23, 1941

Daniel—"And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." Daniel 12:3.

Setting—Use a good picture of Daniel. "Daniel in the the Lion's Den" is the most familiar. Place this where all can see it.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude: " All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."
2. Call to worship: "Sing unto the Lord, for He hath done excellent things. This is known in all the earth." Isa. 12:5
3. Stand and sing in unison—"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."
4. Leader's opening prayer.
5. Responsive scripture reading: Daniel 9:3-19.
6. Heads bowed for silent prayer.
7. Reading of Daniel 9:20-24 by a Junior boy.
8. Boy's chorus, "I Would be True."

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors to an appreciation of Daniel, the man who was true to God even when away from those who loved and served the same Lord that he did. To help them to be true and faithful.

1. "The Story of Daniel," by a Junior girl.

"Daniel, is one of the best and wisest men of whom we read in the Bible. His name means, 'the judge who speaks for God.' A prophet is someone who gives God's message to the people. In the last chapters of the book of Daniel we read the prophecy concerning his people and of things of the last days. These chapters are hard for us to understand, but we learn many lessons from the story of Daniel himself.

"He was probably a prince by birth, being born in Jerusalem. He was carried off to Babylon in the first band of captives while still very young; he was a handsome young man, very bright and well educated. The King of Babylon wanted to train him and his three friends for palace service. So, he was taken to the palace to be further educated. But here, Daniel, who knew the true God and worshiped him, would have to eat the food that had been offered to the idols. Daniel knew that this was not right, so he asked to be allowed to eat only vegetables and to drink only water. He was very courteous in his request.

God blessed Daniel for being true to Him. Daniel was made governor of the whole province of Babylon. He lived to be a very old man. Although he was carried away with the first band of captives, he lived to see the Jews return to Palestine, their native land."

2. "Daniel and His Friends in the King's Palace." Daniel, Chapter 1, retold by a Junior boy.
3. All sing in unison—"Dare to be a Daniel."
4. "Daniel Tells Nebuchadnezzar His Dream." Daniel, Chapter II, vss. 1-35, 48, retold by a Junior girl.
5. Daniel's Friends in the Fiery Furnace." Daniel, Chapter III, retold by a Junior boy.
6. Song, "I Need Thee Every Hour."
7. "Daniel Interprets Belshazzar's Vision." Daniel, Chapter V, retold by a Junior girl.
8. "Daniel in the Lion's Den." Daniel, Chapter VI, retold by a Junior boy.
9. Leader's heart talk—"What We Learn from Daniel."
10. Sing softly verse one of "I Would be True."

III. Mission Minutes

1. Bring the "Mission News and Notes." Find items of interest and read them to the group.
2. Pray for all missionaries all over the world. (Sentence prayers, each child taking part.)
3. Sing one verse of a missionary song.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Sing from memory the song for the month.
2. Repeat together the verse for the month.
3. Pray the prayer for the month.
4. Sing softly, "Into My Heart."
5. While the children leave, the pianist should again play softly the melody of, "I Would be True."

Conference on the Conscientious Objector

Chicago, Ill.—"The Conscientious Objector in the Second World War" is the live topic which will bring head of Selective Service, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey and other national figures to Chicago, November 15. The occasion will be an all day conference on the C. O. at the Olivet Institute Church, 1441 Cleveland Ave.

In an attempt to objectively survey the entire C. O. question for American citizens of differing viewpoints the conference will center much attention on Civilian Public Service, the camps for conscientious objectors set up under the Selective Service Act. Other topics include: Civilian Public Service in Action; The Churches and the Conscientious Objector; and The Larger Responsibilities and Hopes of Civilian Public Service.

Interpreting the national aspect of the question will be: Paul Comly French, Washington, D. C., secretary of the National Service Board for Religious Objectors; R. H. Muser, regional conservator of the Soil Conservation Service; Charles F. Boss, Chicago, secretary of the Methodist World Peace Commission; M. R. Zigler, Elgin, Ill., Brethren Service Committee; Henry A. Fast, Newton, Kansas, Mennonite Central Committee; and Thomas E. Jones, Philadelphia, American Friends Service Committee.

Leaders of Civilian Public Service Camps to appear on the program will be: Claude Shotts, Merom, Indiana; Paul Bowman, Lagro, Ind.; Tartt Bell, Magnolia, Ark.; and Albert Gaeddert, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Albert W. Palmer, president of Chicago Theological Seminary will speak Saturday afternoon on "The Churches and the C. O."

Sponsoring organization include: Conscientious Objectors Information and Service Bureau, American Friends Service Committee, Brethren Service Committee, Seventh Day Adventists, Methodist Youth Peace Commission, Mennonite Student Fellowship, and the Fellowship of Reconciliation. Further information may be received from Don E. Smucker, secretary, room 406-E, 740 Rush St., Chicago.

"I look upon the conference as a supurb demonstration of democracy," Mr. Smucker states, "for if on the brink of war American citizens are willing to discuss the rights and responsibilities of a minority it means that they are able to draw on their deepest convictions regarding the sacredness of human personality. I also believe that the reports on the Civilian Public Service camps may well be of permanent value in pointing toward a new kind of Creative Pioneering in terms of soil conservation, and many other areas of human and material need." Mr. Smucker is secretary of the Conscientious Objectors Information and Service Bureau in Chicago.

The conference sessions are open to anyone interested in the situation faced by the men with religious scruples against military service in the United States today.

—Miss Mary Becker (mb) writes: I enjoy my work here at the seminary (White Biblical Seminary, New York City, New York) very much. I feel definitely that the Lord has led me to come here, and that the time spent here is very much worth while in my preparation for service in His kingdom. The courses are approached from a Biblical standpoint as the name of the school would imply and the fellowship of the professors and fellow students is very stimulating.

"There are souls in this world which have the gift of finding joy everywhere, and of leaving it behind them wherever they go." —Faber

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

Nappanee, Indiana

On October 5 the First Mennonite Church at Nappanee held Rally Day in their Sunday School. There were two brothers, Jimmy and Joe Stillson, who had perfect attendance records, the one for seven years, the latter for three.

Twenty-nine of our women attended the Women's Missionary Society Conference at Grabill, Indiana, on October 16.

On Oct. 1 the church purchased the new Mennonite Hymnaries, and each Sunday evening holds a song festival in order to learn the new songs and chorales. Professor B. F. Hartzler of Goshen, Indiana, directed these festivals because of the expert leadership of Professor Hartzler.

On October 21 the members of the church met at the home of E. S. Mullett, pastor, to peel apples for apple butter. The apple butter, which was prepared for the C. O. camp at Bluffton, Indiana, was cooked at the home of Henry Ringenberg. Twenty-three gallons were made.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

Hillsboro, Kansas

The First Mennonite Church of Hillsboro extends to Brother Weinbrenner greetings and well wishes. May God richly bless him as the new editor of this worthy publication—The Mennonite.

Promotion of Sunday School pupils took place in our church in September, and in October our newly elected officers took up their duties. We have received manifold blessings through the Sunday School in the past year. We need to be more appreciative of the opportunities it affords us to study Christ's way of life and also to be more energetic in the work of building the Kingdom of God.

We are indeed very grateful to Rev. Hostetler for the inspirational messages brought to us each Sunday. He is also giving catechetical instruction to a fine class of boys and girls. No one but the editor of such a fine book as the Mennonite Hymnary could properly introduce the book to us and so ably lead us in such an interesting "sing" as Rev. Hostetler.

Centering around the theme, "My Church and I," Missions, the C. O. Camps, and Relief, and under the slogan "Dollars for Missions," the women of our sewing circles experienced anew that it is more blessed to give. We realized a generous offering.

Our Young People's C. E. installed their new officers in a very impressive ceremony with Rev. J. M. Regier in charge, after which an hour of fellowship on the church lawn was enjoyed by everyone. The young people sold cake and ice cream.

Several families and members of our church have moved away within the year to establish homes elsewhere. To Rev. J. H. Epps, R. N. Riesens, Dan Heins and Mrs. Martin Jost, we wish Godspeed.

The passing of G. D. Ewert, Peter Dyck, and Rev. J. D. Jantzen has thinned the ranks of our older folks and reminds us we are but pilgrims here.

Everyone who knew and esteemed Rev. J. D. Jantzen was saddened by the news of his tragic death. Of him it can be said that a fine Christian has answered the final call. We do not see him any longer with our eyes, but we shall never forget his kind, helpful spirit and his friendly smile. He was not without opponents, for rarely do we find a man who lives and speaks fearlessly his convictions who can go through life without opposition. We shall miss this man who was a devoted husband, a loving father, a staunch friend and a faithful worker in the church. Although we do not understand God's ways now, we know he knows best and in this, there is comfort.

Rev. A. E. Funk and Rev. J. M. Regier were in charge of the funeral services. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

—Mrs. Jacob Bartel, Corr.

EICKER EMMANUEL CHURCH

Noble, Iowa

Beginning the first of October and through the evening of the eighth, the Eicker congregation was blessed by having Rev. William Weaver of North Danvers, Illinois, bring a series of messages on "Facing Life with Christ." These messages were given to us in such a vivid way that no one who came with open mind and heart could leave God's house without feeling that it was truly "good to have been there."

On Sunday, October 5, our annual harvest mission festival was celebrated. Brother Weaver brought the morning message of thanksgiving and praise which was followed by a fellowship dinner. In the afternoon the members of the Ladies' Mission Society had charge of the service using the theme, "The Message of the Cross in a Modern World in Such a Time as This." The mission offering for the day amounted to $115.00. On October 5 Mrs. Lydia Richard passed on to her eternal reward.

The district Sunday School convention of Washington county was held at our church October 19. In spite of muddy roads an appreciative audience was present.

—Mrs. D. E. W., Corr.

* * * * *

Our beloved husband and father, DAVID P. UNRUH, son of Peter and Sarah Schroeder Unruh was born November 7, 1856, in Nicolei Dorf, South Russia, and passed away at his home in Goessel at 11:00 o'clock Wednesday morning, October 22, 1941, at the age of 84 years, 11 months and 15 days.

In 1874 he came with his parents to the United States and settled on a farm in McPherson County, Kansas.

He accepted Christ as his personal Saviour and was baptized June 5, by Elder Jacob Buller and joined the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church of which he was a member in good standing at the time of his death.

In his active years of life he was a constant worker in the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor. In his later years he often spoke of the time when he had still been able to take part in the various church organizations.

On December 15, 1887, he was united in marriage to Justina Gaeddert and they moved to a farm of their own in McPherson County. This union was blessed with eight children and ten grandchildren. Three children, Rudolph, Laura and Hulda; one daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frank H. Unruh; and three grandchildren preceded him in death.

In 1919 he had to submit to a serious operation, after which he was incapaciated to do farm work. In April, 1921, they moved to their town home in Goessel. This coming December it will be four years since they had the rare privilege of celebrating their Golden Wedding Anniversary which was a very happy occasion in their life.

The day before his sudden departure he expressed the wish that he hoped some day to die like his friend and neighbor, H. H. Duerksen, who died very suddenly the past summer. Little did the family realize that his wish would be granted him the very next day. He got up Wednesday morning, feeling exceptionally well, remarking he had a big appetite for breakfast. As was his regular custom, he went after the mail at about ten o'clock. Upon returning home he said he had heard that an old friend of his from Moundridge was ill in the hospital. He walked to the telephone with the intention of calling someone at the Old Peoples' Home to inquire about the condition of his friend. After giving the number to the operator he suffered a heart attack and fell to the floor. In spite of the doctor's and mother's efforts to revive him he was pronounced as having passed to his heavenly reward. The past year his eyes failed very rapidly. All his life he had been a big reader and when he realized that he could no longer see the printed word on the page, he found it very hard to bear. He greatly appreciated it when mother or Mr. B. H. Friesen, who visited him almost daily, read to him.

We, the family, realized his years were numbered. Still, his sudden passing came as a great shock to us, but we have the eternal hope of meeting him again.

> We cannot say—and we will not say
> That he is dead—he is just away
> With a cheery smile and wave of the hand
> He has wandered into an unknown land.
> We will think of him faring on
> As dear in the love of there, as the love of here,
> We'll think of him still as the same,
> And say—he is not dead—he is just away.

He leaves to mourn his departure, his wife, Mrs. David P. Unruh; and children, Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Unruh, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Unruh, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Unruh, Mr. and Mrs. Gus A. Unruh, and Emma Unruh; seven grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. John K. Regier and Mrs. D. J. Regier; and many relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at the Alexanderwohl Church on October 25. Rev. P. H. Unruh officiated and was assisted by Rev. P. P. Buller and Rev. P. H. Richert. Rev. C. C. Wedel spoke words of comfort at the grave.

WHAT ARE THE BASIC TENETS OF THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION?

.... This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." I Cor. 15:12, 53. "But is now made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." 2 Tim. 1:10. Should our belief in immortality be taken from us, would we not be robbed of a powerful incentive to do Christian service?

I wish to end this list with a tenth belief, which to me is a basic tenet in the Christian religion. I believe in the sanctity of human life. I have no right to take from anybody, not even in time of war. If anybody takes my life that is his responsibility, but I have no right to take his. Knowing that thousands upon thousands of church people will not agree with me on this, and that they still believe definitely that they are Christians, is this belief then not a basic tenet? I am perfectly willing to grant them religious liberty in their thinking, but as for me, this belief is basic.

Have I now covered the field, naming all basic tenets, leaving out none, and naming none that are only secondary? I will not make that assertion. But I do believe that anyone who shares these ten convictions, and adjusts his life accordingly, is a child of God. Let me enumerate them: I believe in God as my heavenly Father and in Jesus Christ as my Saviour. I believe that I am saved by faith in Jesus Christ and that upon my repentance he has forgiven my sins. But I believe very definitely that I, too, must forgive my fellow men. I believe in communion with God through prayer, and that I must prove that I am Christ's disciple by loving my brethren. I must zealously seek the Kingdom of God. My belief in immortality will strengthen me in this. And since life itself is a gift of God, I believe that I have no right to take that from anybody.

How would the work of the Christian church be affected, if all members were very strict in holding their basic tenets, and very charitable in minor doctrines? When John said to Jesus at one time: "Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us," Jesus replied: "Forbid him not: for there is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of me. For he that is not against us is on our part." Mark 9:38-40. How eager we sometimes are to stop someone in his religious work, but is it not wise to follow the advice of Gamaliel, "Refrain from these men and let them alone... Lest haply ye be found even to fight against God." Acts 5:38-39. When emergencies come upon us that we are compelled to realize that in unity there is strength, then we are able even to work harmoniously through the M. C. C., peace committees and the Civilian Public Service camps. Then we forget about non-essentials and stress the basic tenets of our faith. Might this be an opportune time to approach other Mennonite groups concerning closer co-operation in other fields of the Kingdom of God, such as missions, publication, and Christian education?

As we live the Christian life, may we always be strict with ourselves and lenient with others.

(In the discussion it was brought out that the Holy Spirit, the Church and Divine Revelation should also be included among the basic tenets. The writer agrees to that.) —J. M. R.

OUR HERITAGE AND THE NEW FRONTIER

(Concluded from last week)

(3) We must speak more particularly about our historic principle of the simple life. The industrialization of life, increased communications, and technological developments have all tended to complicate life. In fact, few people in our world are really "living." Our experience is typified by the conversation of a friend with a tourist. The friend remarked: "You must have seen some wonderful things in your trip." The reply was: "Yes, we must have—we made four hundred miles a day." That is about the way we are rushing through life—we are having many experiences, but, too frequently, rather than enriching our days they "clog" them. Dr. Joseph Fort Newton has written graphically on this point: "The tempo of life is terrifying; it's pace-killing." Says Dr. Newton, "Trying to avoid a void, we make life itself a vacuum in which we rush to and fro, frantically, bolting our food, and bolting life itself. How seldom do we have time—or take time—to taste life, enjoy it, digest it. Our experiences pile in upon us, pell-mell, like the clatter of dishes in the kitchen, noisy, confused. As a result, we might run past life without seeing it. We get a whiff of it, but miss its perfume..."

Dr. Newton is correct. It was Henry Thoreau, the great poet of Walden Pond, who said: "Let your affairs be as two or three, and not a hundred or a thousand." The success of life is not measured by the number of activities in which you can engage, but rather by how well we have done a few. Those who have really contributed to the Kingdom of God have not been those who have lived "cluttered" lives, but those who have carefully and prayerfully "selected" their activities so as to make their lives count for the most.

There is something of the spirit of the old-fashioned fire-place which we must retain in our modern day. It is that simple friendliness and neighborliness where just the family gets together for an evening—with perhaps a few neighbors joining—for a quiet evening together, just enjoying each other's company and gaining strength from that restful repose. One of the indices of a deteriorating community and country has always been a breakdown of family ties and the "neighborly spirit." Home was never intended to become merely a place to eat and sleep. We are faced with great problems in this regard. Our industrial life has forced some of us to work when we ought to sleep, and sleep when we ought to work. In fact, in many homes it is a matter of exchanging greetings between the "shifts."

Oh, but some may say, we don't have time to live the simple life to-day. The problems we face require haste. Well, I am reminded of the question the novice asked the great painter Michael Angelo: "Why do you pause so long between strokes?" The answer: "The longer the pause, the more telling are my strokes." I think you get the point!

Now you notice I said nothing about the so-called modern inventions. The reason is the fact that these need not be a hindrance to the achieving of our goal. The principles of the simple life are eternal and need but be applied to the life of each generation.

(4) It is becoming increasingly necessary to "recapture" the spirit of reverence in worship. Communion with God is the great source of strength for the Christian. It is the dynamo which recharges the spiritual batteries. The purpose of our worship ought to be just this. Dr. Hislop speaks of worship as "a search and a reception"—"The one is the soul seeking God, or the ascending movement; and the other is the Divine Spirit seeking the soul, or the descending movement." Now both of these "movements" are important. James says, "Draw nigh unto God, and He will draw nigh unto you." Every one of the sixty minutes should involve these two aspects of our worship—the soul tapping the eternal resources of spiritual power; and the laying of the heart open for Divine direction. We have departed a long way from the formalism of some churches, but we must beware lest our "freedom in worship" becomes a "license" to slovenliness and failure to really get in touch with God.

(5) In concluding this brief perusal of our "new frontiers" we must mention a spirit of closer cooperation between Christian groups. This must begin with a closer spirit of fraternal brotherhood between Mennonite groups. Our United Relief and C. O. camp work is a step in the right direction. But we need to go deeper than this. We must remember—whether in war or peace time—that the principles which "unite" us are far more important than those which "divide." A motto applicable to us is: "In Essentials Unity—In Non-Essentials Liberty—In All Things Charity." This is the only Christian way—and we might not always agree on what is "essential" or "non-essential," but if the seventeen thousand Mennonites of Ontario agree on the third of these statements, "In All Things Charity," we can have "unity" in the midst of "diversity." The "unity of the Spirit" will prevail! Then we must remember that we do not constitute the whole Christian Church. There are "other sheep" which are not of our fold. While we must be careful to live for our distinctive principles, for which our forefathers died, we need to remember that we need the fellowship of other Christian groups. The Kingdom of God is world wide in its scope, it includes all races and nations.

"In Christ there is no East or West
In Him no North or South;
But one great fellowship of love
Through-out the whole wide earth."

That is the challenge of the "new frontier"! Our forefathers feared neither man nor beast, disease or famine, but gallantly moved forward. The words of the Eternal God will be our inspiration: "Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest."

A LETTER OF EXPLANATION FROM SISTER GOERTZ

Kai Chow, China, Sept. 17, 1941

Rev. P. H. Richert
Dear Brother Richert:

Our American Consul General at Tientsin wrote me a letter, in which he mentioned the article (i. e., an article which did not altogether correctly report about the turnover of our mission property to the Chinese) and asked, "Request that full information concerning the reported transfer of the Missions property be furnished to this office."

In our opinion there has been no transfer of property, only the right to manage, take care of, and utilize the above property.

The Consul General further stated that as the Mennonite Mission has considerable property registered at the Consul General, any such changes would go through their hands. We have not yet returns on our answer. In the meanwhile we hope to keep in good favor with the powers that be, and also be permitted to continue the work in the spirit and method as first desired when the Mission was founded.

The General Committee here on the field is now taking over the work in earnest, even though this was to be done already in 1940, as indicated by Executive Committee decisions of March 9th of that year. In that same article which is referred to in my letter to the Consul, the last sentence reads: "The final right to the property remains with the Foreign Mission Board." This is not changed. It is only in the use of the property here. I hope this explanation is satisfactory. —P. H. Richert, Secretary —Berne, Indiana: Rev. Floyd Pannabecker, recently returned missionary from China and who is now teaching in the Bible department at Bluffton College, spoke at the First Mennonite Church on Sunday evening, November 2. Brother Pannabecker used pictures to illustrate his talk.—Carl Lehman was recently made business manager of the Bluffton, Indiana, Civilian Public Service Camp.—Recently, Ted Claassen, who has done relief work in England and who is a cousin of Rev. C. H. Suckau, told of his experiences at a Sunday morning service in the First Mennonite Church. He displayed pieces of shrapnel from a bomb which one night partially wrecked a room in which he was sleeping.—On October 19 the Men's Chorus of the First Mennonite Church gave a musical program at the Civilian Public Service Camp near Bluffton, Indiana.

Jubilee Mission Number

The Mennonite

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

VOLUME LVI NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, NOV. 18, 1941 NUMBER 45

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized Jan. 22, 1919

THIS IS THE PROMISED JUBILEE NUMBER

The co-workers of Dr. Rodolphe Petter like to call it a Diamond Jubilee, very likely because such fifty year jubilees on the mission field are as scarce as diamonds. Not many missionaries have the privilege of serving fifty years on the field. Our Mennonite denomination has had only one other besides Brother Petter, namely, the Dutch missionary, Peter Janz, Java. Both have also this distinction in common, that they both reduced a new language to writing and translated the Scriptures into it, the one the Cheyenne language, the other the Javanese language.

In time these two missionaries began their work forty years apart, the one in 1851, the other in 1891, but in space they have been 12,000 miles apart. In spirit they have been one, both dedicating their whole life to the greatest work on earth, the saving of souls. Both had offers in their life, that would have made them rich, but they refused them. That is real mission spirit.

This issue brings two addresses by Rev. A. P. Waltner, representative of the Board on the jubilee program, and two reports by Sister Frieda Kaufman, wha was a guest with some others whom she mentions in her report. The Board appreciates the interest these guests took in the celebration and expresses its thanks. Sister Frieda Regier Entz will send her report to the "Missionary News and Notes," we understand.

IN MEMORIAM

Since not one half of our families get the church papers regularly, it seems proper to say again a few words about our recently departed dear brother and valued board member, Rev. M. Horsch. He died on August 2 in Upland, California, where he lived with his family since 1940 as a retired pastor and missionary, having served as missionary in Oklahoma for a number of years, then as pastor in Upland and later in Beatrice, Nebraska.

For a few years he also served as General Conference itinerant minister in the interest of missions, which was uppermost in his heart, and which he served as board member until death called him home to rest. He was a very faithful worker and intercessor. We all miss him.

OUR TREASURY

Two months ago we reported the needs of our treasury, and the reaction of the churches and mission friends was fine. Thank you! About 10.000.00 came into the treasury in October.

But as fast as it came in, it also went out, largely to pay the debts. In order to pay the rest, and make all payments due before Christmas, we will need 20,000.00, which will cover the total budget for 1941.

Thanksgiving Day is at the door, and will, no doubt, as usual give the treasury a good lift. Thanks, prayer, and offering belong together. Exodus 23:15 says, "None shall appear before me empty." If we do as well in November and December as in October, we will balance our budget.

Speaking of paying debts, we must, of course, not forget our prayer debts. How large are they? The Scriptures sum up this total debt in the words, "Pray without ceasing." Who has paid them all?

Six missionaries in India have served their prescribed term and are due for their regular furlough. Four would have come this year in December if the treasury had permitted sending the money for the tickets. The six missionaries will need around $3,500.00 for trip expenses, including the railroad fares.

During the last conference the question was asked how much per member our conference had a reasonable right to expect for all purposes, compared with the average gifts in all denominations. This is thirteen dollars plus per member. Our General Conference last year gave about eleven dollars plus per member for all purposes. If we figure foreign missions alone, our conference gives more per member than the average, but on the whole, we give two dollars less. Is it not time to call attention once more to the old conference resolution, which recommends tithing? The number of thithers is slowly increasing, and all of them say they do not want to go back any more to the former way of giving. Why not have all of us try it for a year? That may not sound very orthodox, to speak of trying, but it is not unscriptural. In Malachi 3:10 God says to His people about tithing, "Prove me now herein, saith the Lord of hosts."

MISSIONARY PETTER'S LIFE STORY

The story of the main parts of Brother Rodolphe Petter's life is contained in his booklet of seventy-nine pages, which is called, REMINISCENCES OF PAST YEARS IN MISSION SERVICE AMONG THE CHEYENNE. It also contains two articles on native helpers by Mrs. Petter.

Now is the time to read and to advertise this. The English edition is out of print, but we have eight hundred German copies left. They may be had for half price, that is, for five cents a copy. Order this interesting and instructive booklet.

Orders should be sent to Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas.

Revenging one makes you but even with him;
Forgiving it sets you above him."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF DR. PETTER'S ENTRANCE INTO ACTIVE MISSION WORK

Given by Rev. A. P. Waltner, October 5, 1941

Beloved, a day of great importance has come. Today we are assembled to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of Dr. Rodolphe Petter's entrance into active mission work. However, we have not come together only to pay tribute to a man for what he has done, but we have come together primarily to exalt God for what He has done through a man, Dr. Petter, in these fifty years of active service. Dr. Petter was only the instrument in God's hand through which God accomplished His purposes. God always works through man for man. When God wants to accomplish something He raises up a man for that special purpose. Let me quote a few illustrations to prove this statement.

When God wanted to lead the people of Israel from Egypt to the land of Canaan, He raised up a man (Moses) for that special purpose. God had promised Abraham that He would give to his seed the land of Canaan for an inheritance. Abraham died without having seen that promise fulfilled, but he knew that some day, God somehow would fulfill His promise. Then, Abraham's seed became strangers and sojourners in the land of Egypt for a period of 430 years. During this time the seed of Abraham became a great nation. God had a set time for the "leading out" of this great nation from Egypt into Canaan. This nation however was to be led out by a man. So before the day of Israel's "going forth" hath come, God prepared a man whom He could use for that special purpose. Moses' birth, his education at Pharaoh's court, and the herding of Jethro's sheep in the wilderness were not an accident in his life, but all of these things were foreordained by God. God used all of these events to prepare a great leader for Israel. On the one hand God prepared a nation and prepared it for an exodus; on the other hand God prepared a man for the "leading out" of this nation. These events were so closely timed that when the nation was ready to be led out, the man was ready, fully prepared and equipped, to lead it forth.

Now let me quote another illustration that should be of special interest to you, Indians. Many years ago, we do not know when or how, some people came to North America. They multiplied. In the course of time they became divided into tribes. These tribes often fought heroic battles. They settled or roamed about in different parts of North America. These people did not know God, the Creator of the heavens and the earth. Most of these tribes worshiped the Great Spirit. God saw these people, the American Indians, and He had compassion on them. So God prepared a man, Christopher Columbus, a fearless sailor, and filled him with a longing to find a shorter route to India, so that a better trade relationship between the western countries of Europe could be established with India in Asia. Columbus, instead of finding a shorter route to India, discovered America.

Shortly after the discovery of America, when European people began to settle here, there were those who longed to preach Christ to the Indians. So a number of missionaries from the European countries began mission work among the American Indians. These missionaries sought the welfare of the American Indians, but, sad to say, many of the white people exploited the Indians. Consequently this work did not progress as fast as it could have done under different circumstances. So one of the reasons why God led Columbus over the Atlantic Ocean was to give you Indians an opportunity to learn to know Christ. God loved you and He did not want any of you to perish, but that all of you should have life eternal. The years went by. The white people took more of your lands, and you were forced into Reservation lands. The Cheyenne tribe also received its allotment of land from the United States Government. The government however was not much interested in your spiritual welfare. The government built some schools for you and provided some means for your livelihood, but the government was not concerned about your soul. God was. God saw your lost condition. God was willing to help you; not only was He willing, but He was yearning to help you.

So God one day sent a baby boy (February 19, 1865) into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Petter, who were living in Vevey, Switzerland. They named this baby boy, Rodolphe, little realizing that some day this baby boy was to become a worthy instrument in God's hand for the establishment of His kingdom among the American Indians. Since God had appointed this baby boy to be a special instrument in His hand He gave unto him the special gifts that were needed to make him what he was to be.

When this baby boy had reached school-age, he was sent to school. After Brother Petter had completed his education in Vevey and other towns in French Switzerland, he studied in the Basel Missionary Institute (Switzerland) from 1883-1889. There God prepared Brother Petter for the great work He had appointed for him among the American Indians in Oklahoma and Montana, like He prepared Moses in Pharaoh's Court and in the wilderness to lead Israel from Egypt to Canaan. Little did Brother Petter realize at that time that his Mission field was to be in America; he expected it to be in India or Africa. In a conference of the Mennonite Churches in the Swiss Jura Mountains Brother Petter was accepted as their missionary, and shortly after that he left his home, parents, brothers, sisters, relatives, and friends, sailing for America with his wife, Marie Gerber Petter. This was in 1890. In the Fall of 1890 Brother Petter attended the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America at Marion, South Dakota, and there he was definitely appointed as their missionary among the Cheyenne Indians in Oklahoma. Brother Petter could speak the French and the German; he also knew the Hebrew, Greek and Latin, but here in America he had to learn another language— the English—if he wanted to do effective mission work. So he and Mrs. Petter attended Oberlin College in Oberlin, Ohio, during the winter months of 1890-1891. God had, especially, given unto Brother Petter the gift of acquiring languages, so the English language was mastered in a comparatively short time.

Brother Petter was ordained as missionary in the fall of 1891 in Halstead, Kansas. This same year (1891) Brother and Sister Petter came to Cantonment, Oklahoma, on the first day of October—fifty years ago. Before their coming a mission school building had been built at that place, so Brother and Sister Petter were given their quarters with other workers in this mission school building.

Brother Petter realized at once that if he was to do effective mission work that he would have to acquire the Cheyenne language. This, however, was not an easy task, as the Cheyenne language at that time was still unwritten. In spite of this great hindrance Brother Petter immediately began the study of this difficult language. At that time the Indians believed that no white man could learn the Cheyenne language. But Brother Petter visited the Indians in their villages and gatherings and slowly collected words and sentences by pointing to persons, objects, and surroundings. These words and sentences were written down, marked diacritically, and after a time a large amount of words and short sentences were thus collected. To this collection other words and phrases were added and so Brother Petter's vocabulary became larger and larger. Soon Brother Petter was able to begin with the writing of a Cheyenne Grammar and the translation of the Bible, the Word of God. Brother Petter has translated large portions of the Old Testament, the entire New Testament, Bunyan's Pilgrim Progress, some songs and other parts of literature; besides this he has written for you a Cheyenne grammar and a large Cheyenne dictionary. Harvey Whiteshid and others helped him in this translation work.

During this time of language study and translation work, Brother Petter preached unto you, Indians, the Word of God in your tongue. From time to time he experienced great opposition, but he trusted in God who had led him to the Cheyenne tribe in Oklahoma, and God protected him wonderfully. Not only did God protect him, but He also blessed his efforts so that some of the Indians became willing to accept Christ as their personal Saviour and Lord. We do not know how many Indians were led to Christ through Brother Petter's work, but we believe that the number will be much greater than we anticipate today. This mystery will be revealed some day in the future, when all the saints will be gathered before the throne of God to receive their rewards. No doubt, some will be there whose names were not written in a record book of a church. That day will be a day of gladness and rejoicing.

On July 31, 1910, the first Mrs. Petter went to her heavenly reward. This was a hard blow for Brother Petter, but he knew that his work was not done; he knew that God still needed him to bring you Indians into closer relationship with God. Consequently he stayed on the field. On November 28, 1911, he found another faithful helpmate in Miss Bertha E. Kinsinger, who had been teaching for a number of years in the mission school at Cantonment. O how I enjoyed the letters that Miss Bertha Kinsinger had written quite regularly in the Kinder- bote! I had always looked for them, and I do know that they influenced my life for better and nobler things. They helped me to become more interested in mission work.

In the fall of 1916 Brother and Sister Petter moved from Oklahoma to Lame Deer, Montana. Here they found forty-two Cheyenne Christians as the reward of some faithful work that had been done by their predecessors. Since then many more were added. Many have died peacefully in Christ, others have fallen away from Christ, but many have lived and are now living a consecrated Christian life.

Today I would like to call your attention to what God has done for you. God had seen you, Cheyenne Indians, long before you were confined to the Reservation in Oklahoma and Montana. He saw your lost condition; He saw you traveling on the broad road to eternal destruction. But God loved you. God had compassion on you. So He caused Brother Petter to be born, He gave him the gift of languages and sent him from Switzerland to America. After he came to America, God sent him to Oklahoma, where he took up his mission work among you fifty years ago. At that time you had no written language. You believed that no white man could learn the Cheyenne language. However God enabled Brother Petter to acquire this hard and difficult language and he put it in writing. Through much effort and many sleepless nights he gave you a Cheyenne grammar, dictionary, and Bible. In other words, he made your language a permanent language and he made it possible for you to have the opportunity to read and to hear the Word of God in your own language. There is no other language so sweet and so dear as the language which a person has learned at his mother's lap. Through no other language can such deep impressions be made on one as through one's own native tongue. This privilege is yours today. Brother Petter became the instrument in God's hand to give you His Word in your native tongue. Many of you could not grasp the full meaning of God's Word when it was spoken to you in the English, and others could not understand the English. Somehow this language seemed so foreign to you. But God's Word came much closer to you when it was brought to you in your native tongue. You could understand it better. It was now easier for you to believe that this message was also for you, since it was brought to you in your own speech. Today I want to urge you to thank God that He has sent a man unto you who has been and still is an instrument in His hand to bring you to Christ. I just wonder what your condition would be today if God had not raised up Dr. Petter and endowed him with the gift of languages, if Dr. Petter had not come to you, if he had not translated the Bible into your language, if he had not labored among you so faithfully for fifty years. But not only do I urge you to thank God for sending unto you Dr. Petter and for using him as an instrument to give you the Bible in your native tongue, but I also want to urge you to read and to study this Bible diligently. This Bible was not translated for the white people, but this Bible was translated and printed so that you might have the opportunity to have a Bible written in your own language in your homes, and to read it in your homes. God said to Joshua (Josh. 1:8): This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success." God has the same message for you today. Your success is dependent upon your attitude toward this book. God wants to speak to you in your homes through this book. It is the greatest gift that God has given unto you besides salvation in Christ Jesus. Say therefore with the poet:

Holy Bible, Book Divine,
Precious treasure thou art mine;
Mine to tell me whence I came;
Mine to teach me what I am.

Mine art thou to guide my feet:
Mine to guard me when I sleep;
Mine to chide me when I rove:
Mine to show the Saviour's love.

Mine to teach me in my youth,
Fill my mind with saving truth
Mine to keep me lest I stray;
Mine to guide me all the way.

Mine to cleanse me from all sin,
Make and keep me pure within;
Mine to purify from dross,
Save me from eternal loss.

Mine to cheer my closing days,
Fill my heart with holy praise;
Mine to purge me from all leaven;
Mine to land me safe in heaven.

Mine to comfort when I die,
Waft me to my home on high.
Holy Bible, Book Divine,
Precious treasure thou art mine.

And now a few words to you, Brother Petter. I know that the path that you had to travel was not an easy and a rosy path looked at from the human side. This path required all of your energy and effort. No doubt you were sometimes discouraged. The struggle was a hard one, the hills you had to climb often were steep and rugged, but you have made the grade, you have run a good race. I have not come here to exhalt you, I know you do not want any applause of man. You were not eager for this celebration, because you feared the applause of men. Still I want to say a few words of encouragement to you. I know that there are many Indians today—living and dead—who are grateful unto God that He called you into His service and made you a mighty instrument in His hand for the extension of His Kingdom among the American Indians. You have laid a foundation upon which people will build even after your departure. The fruit that you have sown so bountifully will spring up and bear fruit. Your co-workers on the mission field appreciate your work. You have made it lighter for them to do effective mission work; they can build upon the foundation you have laid. The Foreign Mission Board appreciates the work which you have done. In the name of the board I want to say to you today, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant," and we know that Christ will some day in the future say to you, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of the Lord." (Matt. 25:21). I do know that many people in our General Conference do thank God today for what He has done through you in these fifty years of your active service. We also know that our government appreciates the work you have done among the Cheyenne Indians. Our government realizes that you have made it easier for them to deal with the Indians along different lines, because of your influence over them. You have not been a debit, but a credit to our government. So in the name of the Foreign Mission Board I wish you God's intimate fellowship and blessing for your remaining days of life. May God grant you daily the privilege to feel that when the outward man perisheth, that the inward man is renewed day by day (II Cor. 4:16), and may the precious promises of Ps. 121:3-8 be fulfilled in the future of your life as they have been in the past.

EXCERPTS FROM DR. R. PETTER'S SERMON

Given on October 5, 1941, at Lame Deer, Montana

(Contributed by Sister Frieda Kaufman)

Twenty-five hundred years ago God spoke a wonderful statement, and it has come down to us and was read in part today. Let us hear it again: Isa. 55:3, 6-12. He says his thoughts and ways are not ours. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts higher than your thoughts. That lifts our minds and hearts above the stars. For as the rain cometh down and the snow from heaven and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater—so, just like it, shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth; it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and shall prosper in the thing whereto I send it.

The occasion of our meetings last week and today is THE WORD. Not a person or an instrument, but the Word of God. I hope, therefore, that all glory goes to Him, and He blesses us.

The Word comes of God—notice the origin—of God. These are words which originate with God. They are not our words, our thoughts, or our minds. They are God's thoughts, God's mind, revealed to His children. They are words which come out of His being, out of His mouth. He speaks to tell us of His mind, His thoughts, His law, His whole being. The Word is what God is.

Jesus came to earth to teach us, and one day when speaking to a woman who did not understand the true worship of God, he told her that God is a Spirit —a being—a person—not a phantom. God is a Spirit. If He is that, He is in the Word, and the Word is a part of Himself. Hence this world was created by the commandment of God. You know how God created man after He had created all the other things. He took dust and made the first man and then breathed the spirit of life into him. He did not do that to animals and plants; they do not have the spirit of God. God inclined himself down to His first human being and breathed into him in love. This was now a different being than the others which He had created. That is how God communicated His own being into man.

In the last chapter of Revelation, God says that He is the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. In Hebrew, Alpha is Aleph; that means a gentle breath (Hauch in German). From that first gentle Aleph—which God breathed into man—come all the languages which are spoken now. "A" is the basic vowel of every language; it is the first sound which a baby utters. The thought of God was manifested through God in one language till after the Flood, then in many languages down to this day, down to your Cheyenne language. God did not want to leave you out. In His Word, He has also manifested His will, His law, His being, His whole purpose to you, His omnipresence, His omnipotence, His omniscience, light, life, and love.

No man could reveal this to us; God Himself gave this to man. This testimony runs clearly through all of God's Book and is for us to know. We are related to God, not by flesh and blood, but through His Word—His Spirit. No other creatures have this; none but those who receive the Word. The whole ancient Testament proclaimed this. John tells us in the beginning of his gospel, "In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made through him; and without him was not anything made that hath been made." Then Jesus, this living Word became flesh and "tented," dwelt among us; He is understood only by those who were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor the will of man, but of God. Through the redemptive work of Christ, His cross, His grave, His resurrection, it is possible to receive God's spirit in his fullness. "To as many as received him, to them gave he the right to become children of God, even to them that believe on his name."

Thirty-two centuries ago God said through Moses, "This commandment which I command thee this day, it is not too hard for thee, neither is it far off. It is not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, and make us to hear it, that we may do it? Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, and make us to hear it, that we may do it? But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it." (Deut. 30: 11-14) In other words, the Word is nigh unto thee, in thine own language. It was also given to the Cheyennes. They cannot say, it is too high for us; they have the same privileges as other peoples. The Word of God is quick, energetic, powerful. Heb. 4:12.

It is this Word of God which has brought us together, that has come to you, the Cheyenne tribe, that no one of the Cheyennes need say, "I did not know." It is very near thee, in thy heart, in thine own language. More could not be done. All has been explained and brought to light by God's love. I have not labored alone, let us think today of all who have taught you, who have worked among you and suffered for you, of all who have prayed and sacrificed in the churches that you may have this gift from God, so that none of you in that last day can say, "I did not know." Hear—Hearken—Obey—Follow!

A VISIT TO THE MONTANA MISSION STATIONS FOR THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF DR. PETTER'S SERVICE AMONG THE CHEYENNES

Reported by Sister Frieda

It all came about rather unexpectedly. Some one remarked at the dinner table that Mrs. Leona Thierstein Thiessen from Whitewater was planning to attend Rev. Petter's fiftieth anniversary in Montana. Knowing that she had been his faithful assistant in printing a large portion of the Cheyenne translation of the New Testament, we rejoiced over the pleasure which this visit would bring to Rev. Petter. Then some one suggested to me, "You have been talking about visiting Petters for years, why don't you go too?" Why not? Of course, there were plenty of reasons why I should not go. I had just returned from an extended vacation in Colorado, I felt guilty about going away so soon again, leaving my duties to others, and last but not least, my purse was suffering from a very vital deficiency. But when would I visit the Petters if I did not go now? A visit at this time offered special attraction—and—I decided to go.

Mrs. Thiessen accepted me as a travelling companion; Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz was willing to accompany us. Since our visit was planned as a surprise for Rev. and Mrs. Petter, all preliminary arrangements were made with Missionary Habeggers at Busby who would meet us at the railroad station at Crow Agency and take us on to Lame Deer on October 1. A week before we started, an air mail letter arrived from Mrs. Petter with a most urgent invitation for me to come for the anniversary. I answered her that I had all arrangements made to make the trip, that I hoped to surprise Rev. Petter, but I did not mention my travelling companions.

We left Newton on September 29, took the Burlington train at 8 p. m. in Kansas City, and arrived at Crow Agency about 8:40 p. m. the next day. The Habeggers gave us a hearty welcome at the station and in their auto took us to their home at Busby twenty-seven miles distant. How good it felt to stretch out for the night on a soft bed! Our train had given us such jolts on the way, that we decided it had taken on some of the nature of the country through which it passed and was trying to imitate a bucking broncho. And the newly graded road which connects Crow Agency and Busby could not be called smooth by any stretch of imagination.

At the breakfast table the next morning, October 1, we met Rev. P. Waltner from Marion, South Dakota, who had also arrived in Busby sometime the day before. He came as official representative of the Foreign Mission Board of which he is a member. We were all anxious to know, of course, what had been planned as an anniversary observance for Rev. Petter. Rev. Habegger explained to us that Rev. Petter had been so opposed to any celebration which would center about his person and work that the program committee had labored under great difficulty. The Petters had ordered some fine slides of Switzerland and planned to give pleasure to the Indians and their white neighbors by showing them this evening. There was to be a preaching service in Ashland the next evening, October 2, at Birney on October 3, at Busby on October 4, and in Lame Deer on Sunday, October 5. The meetings, with the exception of the first meeting, were planned to center about the Word of God, not around Dr. Petter, and Rev. Waltner had been informed that the subject of his sermons should be the Bible. This appealed to us, of course, but before long we were all wondering what we could do to give the occasion a more festive touch, especially today, it being the actual anniversary date.

It developed that Miss Marie Bergman of Whitewater had sent some beautiful artificial golden leaves with Mrs. Thiessen to be used as we chose. Soon visions of a green cedar wreath interspersed with gold leaves arose before me, a supper table made festive with touches of gold, a little celebration of praise and thanksgiving in the Petter home following the evening meeting, with Rev. Waltner, the Habeggers, Mrs. Valdo Petter and her children, Miss Marie Buller, and our trio present—surely Rev. Petter could not object to that! Knowing the love of Rev. Petter for everything which would remind him of his homeland, I had brought a book of Swiss songs and music with me. Soon we were all practicing for the evening meeting. What a happy surprise it would be to the Petters to have some Swiss songs to accompany the Swiss picture tonight! Rev. and Mrs. Habegger sing well, so do Mrs. Thiessen and Mrs. Entz and we practiced Swiss songs till we were hoarse. Rev. Habegger grew so enthusiastic over one song that he tried to improvise some special Alpine horn effect for the verse we sang about "d' Glocke tone und's Alpehorn dri." But the flute which an old Indian had given him produced such weird tones that I asked him to cease his efforts lest they suggest an Indian ceremony to Rev. Petter rather than the music of his beloved Switzerland.

Rev. Habegger thought that it would be best to take the "surprises" to Rev. Petter in separate sections. Rev. Waltner, Miss Marie Buller and I were to go first; Rev. and Mrs. Habegger, their daughter Lois, Mrs. Thiessen and Mrs. Entz would follow for the evening meeting.

It was a lovely drive to Lame Deer, and we arrived there about 3 p. m. The welcome which we received from both Rev. and Mrs. Petter was delightful, and the surprise as far as my coming was concerned was perfect. We offered our congratulations and best wishes for the day, and the Petters thanked us, while their eyes shone with joy and appreciation. Rev. Habegger left before long, promising to return with his family after supper. Soon Rev. Waltner and Rev. Petter were seated on the davenport in animated conversation while Mrs. Petter and I renewed our acquaintanceship of long ago, and then discussed the plans for the evening meeting. Rev. Habegger was to show the pictures of Switzerland, while she would explain them under the general heading, "The Land of Rev. Petter's Birth," or some such subject. She rather thought that a small group of white neighbors would sing, but she was not quite certain. To relieve her mind on that point, I told her that the Habeggers had practiced some Swiss songs which seemed to please her. Then we set up the program for the evening in detail, and she decided that the letters which had arrived should be given to Rev. Petter at the church following the pictures. We borrowed a tray from a neighbor and arranged the mail and a few packages on it for the presentation. Imagine my surprise when she flatly refused to let me cut a few twigs of cedar which I wanted in order to give the tray a little festive touch. "It is such a hard task to get anything to grow in Montana, and Rev. Petter allows no one to clip his cedar trees." My vision of a lovely cedar wreath with gold interspersed vanished into thin air. And the gold leaves to trim the supper table? Dear me, I had forgotten to ask Mrs. Thiessen for them and they were still in Busby. So the festive table vanished also. Little did I realize what would vanish next. I did not have the heart to ask for anything else from the garden—how I longed for the one at home! Believe it or not, this wicked sister crept out into semi-darkness later on and clipped some cedar twigs and arranged them so that the gold leaves would glisten like jewels when they would be laid upon them.

When darkness fell, rain also began to fall. Mrs. Petter came and calmly announced, "It is raining at Busby and the Habeggers have telephoned to say they cannot come for the evening." Now the Swiss songs vanished—but what was far worse—my dear travelling companions who had come over 1,000 miles to be here today, would not be able to greet the Petters until who knows when. What a disappointment to them! It just could not be! I asked Mrs. Petter to urge the Habeggers to try to come anyway, to assure them that it had rained very little at Lame Deer, that the clouds were breaking and the stars were peeping through, etc., etc. She telephoned all this. Then we went to the church.

It was well filled with Indians and white people; there were expectant faces and flowers—but my heart was on the road between Busby and Lame Deer. I knew little about the nature of that road so far, except that is was also newly graded like the road from Crow Agency to Busby, that it was nearly twenty miles long, that it passed through interesting scenery, but that this scenery was not interspersed with farm houses. And then I remembered the high grades and deep ditches along the way. How could I have been so insistent and urgent with my request that the Habeggers start out! My troubles for the evening had definitely begun.

And so had the evening meeting. The white group not having a song ready, some one suggested some song from a hymnal, which was sung in unison. Mrs. Petter made a few opening remarks, introduced Rev. Waltner and me to the audience, then asked that I lead in the opening prayer. Since Rev. Habegger had not arrived, the celebrant of the evening showed the slides and Mrs. Petter explained them. The pictures were beautiful, as pictures of such lovely scenes must be and were much enjoyed and appreciated by the audience. They ended with scenes of Vevey on Lake Geneva, the birthplace and boyhood home of Rev. Petter. Here our Swiss songs would have been most fitting, "In der Heimat ist es schoen" and "Herz, wohi zieht es di?" But my heart was not in Vevey nor in Lame Deer at this point, it was with the Habeggers and my dear travelling companions who no doubt were floundering about somewhere on the road between Busby and Lame Deer, probably stalking ankle deep through mud with help miles away. To say that I was unhappy was putting it mildly. But the program went on. Mrs. Petter was announcing that there had been Swiss music planned for this point, but since the Habeggers had not arrived, Milton Whiteman would sing a solo. Milton did not know that he would be called upon for any service; he had come to the meeting in his work clothes, but being a brave Cheyenne, he rose to the occasion. He must have been inspired when he chose his song, and he sang it simply, his deep bass voice filling not only the church, but reaching deep into our hearts. "I am a stranger here, within a foreign land, my home is far away upon a golden strand. Ambassador to be to realms beyond the sea, I'm here on business for my King." What could have been more fitting? God had chosen the song for the occasion, and a redeemed one of the Cheyenne tribe was singing it. While Milton sang, we could see Vevey lying like a gem on Lake Geneva—the long years of ambassadorship in a foreign land with its trials, hardships, and heartaches passed before us, and the eternal home and reward shone brightly in the near future for the King's own.

Rev. Petter was now called to the platform, and Mrs. Petter presented the tray with letters and packages. (Twenty-four had arrived, later there were over one hundred.) The gold leaves which were to glisten between the cedar shone with their absence only, but two packages wrapped in white and gold and the "stolen" twigs helped out wonderfully. Rev. Petter was deeply touched and expressed his appreciation. Rev. Waltner made some fitting remarks and closed with prayer. There were greetings, much handshaking, and everybody seemed to have a wonderful time.

Mrs. Valdo Petter and her three children were there and when she asked, "Did you come all alone from Kansas?" it was a relief to whisper my disappointment about the "others" into a sympathetic ear. Rev. Petter had a most mischievous twinkle in his eye when he showed his wife that she had not been able to intercept everything addressed to him, for a message from Rev. P. P. Wedel, the president of the board, who was on his way to Oraibi, Arizona, had reached him safely earlier in the day.

Later when Rev. Petter was seated at a table in his home happily looking over his mail, I prevailed upon Mrs. Petter to phone to the Habeggers and ask about their well-being. She assured me that they would be allright. Why should I be anxious? When I told her that I would not be able to sleep, lest I knew that they were safe, she consented. Mrs. Habegger answered and said that they had started out, but after it had taken them over an hour to go four miles, they had found a place to turn around and were all safely at home. "How many were in the car?" Mrs. Petter asked, rather surprised at Mrs. Habegger's "all." "Four of us," said Mrs. Habegger without thinking. "I wonder who those four were," said Mrs. Petter to us. Then noticing the blank expression on our faces, she added, "oh, no doubt they were bringing some one to play for those Swiss songs." So ended Wednesday, October 1.

The next day greeted us with sunshine. Mrs. Valdo Petter planned to send an Indian with her Ford for us at 11 a. m., and we fervently hoped that Rev. Habegger would be able to bring the other guests to Lame Deer by that time. The morning hours passed swiftly in pleasant conversation. Rev. Petter was sharing the contents of some of his letters with us when Mrs. Petter said suddenly, "There is a woman on the porch." I continued the conversation. Mrs. Petter rose and went to the door. "That's queer" she said looking through the glass, "there is no one here." Then she opened the door. "Oh, Oh, Oh!" she shouted for there stood Frieda Entz at one side of the door, and another "Oh, Oh, OH!" each growing louder and shriller, greeted Leona Thiessen as she appeared from the other side. The surprise was perfect, and Mrs. Petter had to sit down on a chair to recover her breath and equilibrium. Rev. Petter's eyes shone like stars when he welcomed the new arrivals. Rev. Habegger now put in his appearance, expressing many regrets about the disappointments of the evening before. Frieda Entz insisted that we go out and take a look at Rev. Habegger's car in order that we might all be convinced that he had really made an effort to bring his family and the guests to the meeting. The car was a sight to behold with a solid covering of Montana mud and slush. The "welcomes" were scarcely over when Isaac Shoulderblade, our Indian driver from Ashland, arrived, and "Goodbyes" followed for we did not expect to return to Lame Deer until October 5.

Isaac chose to take us to Ashland over a most scenic road. Of course, all roads in Montana were scenic to us, and certain spots reminded us of some drives through Yellowstone Park. There were winding roads through grasslands and woodlands, fine views from high elevations to distant horizons, and at last we saw the beautiful valley of the Tongue river directly before us, stretching as far as eyes could see toward the north and south. He pointed out the house and chapel of the mission station, nestled picturesquely under large trees in a bend of the stream. Soon we passed through the Indian village and crossed the bridge over the river, and Mrs. Valdo Petter and Miss Martin Gibbs, her companion and helper, were giving us a happy welcome. Daniel and Amy Petter, the two older children were in school; six-year old Valdo, who had been so ill the last spring, preferred to meet the guests from a safe distance, peeping at us around the corner of the house. Soon we were all gathered about the dinner table, and those who know Mrs. Valdo Petter and some of her guests of the day can well imagine that there was no lack of conversation. Later Mrs. Petter took us out to see "the lady of the land" and to meet some of the Indians. The Indian houses, I would rather call them hovels, are grouped to make two villages lying about two miles apart. The Tongue River marks the boundary of the Cheyenne reservations at this point. Just across the river, outside of the reservation lies our Mission station and about a mile further on is the small town of Ashland where the Petter children attend school. Just inside the reservation boundary, close to the river, lies the first Indian village and beyond that (also inside the reservation) is the large Indian Catholic Mission, St. Labre, consisting of numerous school buildings, a church and the respective homes of Capuchin monks and some order of nuns who are in charge of the schools and the mission work. It is all quite imposing as Catholic institutions usually are.

The Indians are hesitant about inviting white people into their homes, so wherever we stopped, they came out of their houses, grouped about the car and visited with us. The Indians in one of these villages have electric lights, some have radios and sewing machines, all have many mangy looking dogs and cats, much filth and all its attendant evils, a superabundance of time and very little initiative. When they have money, they overeat, when it is used up they suffer want. Of course, there are notable exceptions, especially among the Christians. But as a rule, it made one's heart ache to see how many Indians, young and old, call one room probably twelve by sixteen feet large their home, and to realize that all eat, gossip, sleep, and live in this small space. With the timber abounding on the reservation there seemed to be no excuse for anything like this, but I am not the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. These same conditions exist not only in Ashland, of course, but also in Birney, Busby, and Lame Deer.

The church was well filled for the evening meeting with Indians and white people. Mrs. Petter greeted the assembly; then Mrs. Entz and Mrs. Thiessen sang a duet. Milton had come from Lame Deer to interpret, and Rev. Waltner and I were asked to speak. It was our first experience of this kind. Rev. Waltner started out bravely on his subject, "The Bible, God's Rule for Our Conduct," but when he got through the introdultion to his sermon, he confined himself chiefly to the outline of his address with only a sentence or two added for further explanation. A short English sentence seemed to grow into a paragraph in Cheyenne. As for me, I found it very hard to speak to apparently attentive listeners but who portrayed neither interest nor response in their faces to anything which was said. I was grateful that there were some white people present who offered a bit of help and inspiration to a speaker. I can assure the readers that I did not envy our missionaries their task when I stood on the patform of the churches in Montana. When Rev. Waltner and I had finished our messages, Milton Whiteman gave a fine testimony and sang "Higher Ground" as a solo, Mrs. Valdo Petter closing the meeting with a few well chosen remarks. There followed many introductions and much handshaking, and later several Indians came to the Petter home to continue their visit with the guests from the distance and a good spirit prevailed. One woman walked four miles to come to the meeting; others had also come long distances. Mrs. Petter had Isaac take some of these to their homes in her auto. Leona Thiessen returned to Lame Deer with Milton and his wife; she longed for a quiet visit with the Petters, and she had it the next day, while Rev. Waltner, Mrs. Entz and I accompanied Miss Marie Buller to Birney where she is stationed.

It is about twenty miles from Lame Deer to Ashland and about the same distance from Ashland to Birney.

The road which Isaac Shoulderblade chose to take us to Briney was the one on the reservation side of the Tongue River, and it was a beautiful drive all the way. He pointed out the farm allotments of various Indians whom we knew by name by this time, showed us the location where "The Plainsman" was filmed a few years ago, and called our attention to the snow covered Big Horn mountain range wherever we could catch a view of the distant peaks.

Rev. P. A. Kliewer built a large house for his growing family when he was stationed at Birney, and it is just too bad that there is no missionary family on the field who can make use of this home.

Miss Marie Buller of Henderson, Nebraska, lives here, takes care of the house, and the church building, holds a children's meeting every Friday and befriends and visits Indian women. Frank Little Wolf comes from Lame Deer to preach on Sunday, and he looks after the spiritual need of the field as best he can. Miss Buller made our visit in her home as pleasant as possible. We enjoyed with her some canned beef, vegetables and fruit which friends from Berne, Indiana, had sent to her with the Habeggers when they returned from the General Conference. Later Rev. Waltner and Mrs Entz went to the Indian village and also attended the children's meeting. Frank Little Wolf, Milton Whiteman, Mrs. R. Petter and Leona Thiessen came from Lame Deer for the evening services, and the Habeggers came from Busby. Rev. Waltner spoke about "The Bible and Its Power," the text being Romans 1:6. After the meeting, Miss Buller locked up her establishment and we all went to Busby, forty miles distant,with Rev. and Mrs. Habegger. Miss Buller is a mighty brave girl to live alone on the lonely and isolated station at Birney, facing her second winter there without a companion or any personal means of transportation.

It felt good to all to be together again under the hospitable roof at Busby which had given us such a hearty welcome a few days ago. Three meetings were scheduled here for the next day, Saturday, October 4. The Habeggers had invited the Bethlehem Mennonite congregation near Bloomfield, Montana, over two hundred miles distant, to help with the services on Saturday and Sunday.

When we awoke, dark clouds were hanging above us, and a cold drizzling rain set in. But the Bloomfield folks arrived safely with their pastor, H. E. Widmer, their choir leader, and a double quartette of singers. Rev. Waltner preached about "The Bible, What Is It?" giving the Bible's own answer to this question; Rev. Widmer spoke twice; the young people from Bloomfield gave testimonies, and Mrs. Entz, Mrs. Thiessen, and I each spoke briefly. Rev. Habegger conducted all the meetings and interpreted for the visitors and the Indians. He speaks Cheyenne easily and fluently. His wife is a mighty able assistant in the work. The Indian children vied with one another to sit with her in church; she kept the little ones happy and quiet, seated twenty-two people at her well provisioned table for dinner and eighteen for supper, put us all up for the night, and everybody was well supplied with creature comfort. I almost envied her energy and ability.

The early morning drizzle had become a steady rain by noon, and there were no prospects of any let up by evening. The men in charge of the cars councelled together how they might be able to get to Lame Deer the next day. It was finally agreed upon that it would be better to make a detour of 150 miles rather than to drive over the newly graded road. The rain turned to snow during the night, and when morning came the most marvellous winter scene greeted our eyes. The Bloomfield cars put on their chains and started straight for Lame Deer, and we followed in their track. Snow was still falling, the world presented a study in gray shadows, black forests, and white snow, and we had an automobile ride which we will never forget. But we were in Lame Deer!

The Petters were in Sunday School when we arrived. A long table was all set ready for dinner, so Leona Thiessen and I quickly laid a wreath of the beautiful oak leaves, which she had brought with her, around the centerpiece; then we searched everywhere for the "stolen" cedar twigs which I had carefully set in water, expecting to use them today. Since we could not find them, (Mrs. Petter had taken them to church), we robbed a hanging plant and trimmed Rev. Petter's place at the table with a touch of green and gold. We got to church in time to hear Rev. Waltner's fine address for the day. (We hope that it will be published.) Milton Whiteman interpreted this anniversary message. The agent's wife and other Lame Deer friends had sent lovely flowers to decorate the church, everyone was in a festive mood, and an air of praise and thanksgiving prevailed.

It was hard to get about. I navigated through the snow in a pair of heavy men's overshoes borrowed from Rev. Habegger, and since there were thirty-three guests at Petters for dinner, the porch was literally filled with overshoes, artics, and galoshes. (If someone would lay sidewalks from the homes of the missionaries to the churches in Montana, they would be much appreciated, I am sure.) We were all very sorry that Mrs. Habegger had to remain at Busby to take care of the work in case Rev. Habegger could not be back. And Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Schroeder (Olga Petter) who had planned to come from Waterville, Washington, were also absent on account of the rain and snow. But Isaac Shoulderblade had brought Mrs. Valdo Petter and the three grandchildren, Daniel, Amy, and Valdo safely from Ashland, and who really cared abouth the weather now? There was sunshine in the hearts.

Rev. Habegger conducted the afternoon meeting and spoke in English and Cheyenne. Then he called on several Indians who spoke briefly and well. We caught the Indian testimonies both at Busby and Lame Deer and hope that the mission board will publish them. The personality of the speakers, however, added much to what was said. Rev. H. E. Widmer gave a good address, and the young people from Bloomfield contributed much to the festivity of the entire day with their well-rendered songs. And the Swiss songs, practiced for the October 1 meeting finally also found a place on the afternoon program. They were not a great musical success for the lack of practice and the absence of Mrs. Habegger, but we got through them somehow and Rev. Petter's appreciation made up for all that was lacking.

The day reached its climax at the evening meeting which was conducted in English. A lovely musical selection featuring two violins played with fine skill by a teacher in the Indian school and the wife fo a government employee, a lovely anthem sung by a group of white residents of Lame Deer, Rev. Waltner's address, "The Bible, Revelation of God's Will," an address by yours truly, and songs by the Bloomfield choir were all well received and appreciated. But best of all was the address by Rev. Petter. Every one present was deeply touched by the clarity of thought and the masterly way in which he presented the Bible as the manifestation in human speech of God's Person, Power, Thoughts, Will, Law, and Purpose. "The occasion of our meetings last week and today is the Word," Rev. Petter said, "not a person, nor an instrument, but the Word of God. It has also come to the Cheyenne tribe. More God could not do for them."

All felt the deep earnestness, devotion, and vibrant joy of the Christian personality who was proclaiming these truths, as he humbly acknowledged his gratitude to God and to all the co-workers both on the field and in the home churches for what has been wrought among the Cheyenne Indians through the Word.

The patient reader who has followned this long report to its close will be grateful for the glimpse into Rev. Petter's reaction to the anniversary observance which the following excerpt from a letter affords. He writes, "As the dew of the early morn not only decks the earth with glistening pearls but refreshes it, so the blessing of the past few days have affected my soul. The dew refreshes after it has sparkled."

TESTIMONIES GIVEN BY CHEYENNE CHRISTIANS AT THE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF DR. RODOLPHE PETTER

October 5, 1941

(All spoke through an interpreter except Milton Whiteman.)

Reported by Sister Frieda

At Busby: October 4, 1941

James Killsback, an old man. Baptized by Rev. G. A. Linscheid.

We Indians did not know anything of this kind of life. I am one of the older ones here. When this mission was built, I used to tell others, "Let's go to that mission and become Christians." Some did, many have passed away. A good many have been baptized here, especially women. Some may be hindered from coming by the rain today, others stay away. We have had Cheyenne Christians who could read the Word of God and would explain it to us. I am one of those Indians who cannot read or write, but have been a Christian for almost 34 years, led to Christ by hearing His Word. I think this Word is good and true, I have experienced it to be so. I am glad to hear your testimony. We are like brothers and sisters in the faith. What draws people aside is their evil thoughts and disobedience to God. What I have learned and what I have put in my heart has helped me. I thank all who came to visit us.

Charles Yellowrobe, an old man now. Baptized by Rev. Alfred Wiebe.

It is 50 years since Petter came to the Cheyennes and brought us the Word of God in our language. We Indians did not know anything of God. When the Indians roamed over these plains, they did not have ears to hear the truth. You have put bridles on a wild horse to tame him. Brother Petter has given us the Word so it became a bridle to guide us. I have been a Carlisle student and became acquainted with Christianity there. But when I came back I was not a Christian. When I used to hear the Sunday School teacher explain the lesson, I was uneasy, but the truth did not enter my heart. But after I came back here I joined the church and took the Word of God like a staff and it helped me to walk. A good many of us are still very backward and do not really know how to take care of ourselves. We are glad when others come and explain the Word to us. Many of the Indians do not understand how the Word from across the sea from a strange land can help them. We Indians think that when we talk to God He will be merciful to us. The old time Indians used to be guided by how they felt in their hearts and by what others thought. Now we have the Word to guide us. Today you have come from far. You speak to us and we talk to you, and we are one in the Lord through His word. God rules and there is no end to His plan and designs. That is all I have to say.

Rosa Little Bear. Baptized by Rev. Alfred Habegger.

I believe in God and became a Christian not many years ago. I was in great distress and need and I turned to God. I pray for all my children and relatives; God is my own help. I have hope that I will see my father who has gone on before. The grace of God has brought you here in spite of the weather. Thank you for all your testimonies; I wish that it were here like that among our young people. Our young people who visited in northern Montana saw and experienced many things and have told us about your meetings and love for God. Pray for us as we pray for you. We all belong to the same Christian church and we are friends together. I am glad that you came.

At Lame Deer: October 5, 1941

Frank Little Wolf, a Cheyenne evangelist.

I regret that so few Cheyennes are here today. We are brothers and sisters in Christ. I heard the word of God and wondered how I could become a Christian. I used to be one of the leaders in the heathen ceremonies. It was hard for me to leave the old way but I was led to want to follow Christ. I was liked and had recognition in the heathen ways. For those who have been raised as Christians it is easy, but for those who are heathen it is different. But today I have forgotten the old ways and rejoice in God's Word. Now when things go hard, I do not think of the old ways. Rev. and Mrs. Petter were sent here and helped us so much in bringing the Word of God. We do not worship Brother Petter but he brought us out of darkness into light. Three of my children and grandchildren have joined the church. I trust in God and am glad to tell it today. I try to help my people repent and turn to God. I regret that no more are here today. When this gathering was announced I went from house to house and invited the Cheyennes to come. Indians are more easily distracted by other things than the white people. The Indians did not take recognition as they should of the fact that Reverend Petter came across the sea to bring them the Word and that others have come from far to be here today, and I regret it very much. For 16 years I have taken the Word to Birney. It is often hard. I have no car and ride the 40 miles on horseback. Since I have become well taught in the Word of God I do not wish to go astray and do not want anything else and hope to become established in the faith more and more.

Mrs. Milton Whiteman

I feel very happy today for this occasion since we are rejoicing together over what Brother Petter has brought. There are only few here today but a good many have been baptized. Many have gone astray and influence each other to the bad. The white people who are faithful to the church are a help to the Indians. We have not responded to the truth as we should. It would be good if the Indians truly believed in Christ. We who have received this gift and are treated so well regret that no more are here today. It is quite a while since I joined the church and I delight to come to the church. I take refuge in Christ and trust in Him alone. In the past I followed a false religion but have cast that aside and now follow Christ. I appreciate all the speeches and the new portions of God's word brought to us by these ministers. In the Christian life ever more good comes to us. I wish that more Cheyennes would follow this way. This is all I have to say. Thank you!

Milton Whiteman, a Cheyenne evangelist, spoke in good English.

There is not much to add to what has been said. But since I have been born again and joined this church through the help and influence of Brother Petter I have been changed one hundred percent. The Indians all know what kind of a life I lived. I drank more booze, married more women than others, lived a wild life, smoked like a chimney and would be in jail all the time if I had kept it up. I have been delivered from all these things. By the grace of God I gave it all up and do not crave for them any more. I try to help in the church all I can, and I have thanked Mr. Petter many, many times for the way he has helped me, and for bringing us the word in our language. I thank you one and all for your presence here today. God bless you all as you return to your homes.

James Atwood

I have been very glad to see you come. It has been fifty years since Brother Petter has come to the Cheyennes. Through him we can now understand the Word of God. I consider it the gift of God that the word has come to us in our language. God calls those who are hungry and thirsty, and this also has happened here among the Cheyennes; God's call to us was a call of mercy. We Christians wish and hope that others may come and receive this life. We appreciate the visitors and thank them for coming and ask them to pray for us. It is a good thing to know God and to trust in Him.

THE BIBLE, THE REVELATION OF GOD'S WILL

By A. P. Waltner

We are living in an age that we can call an age of books. There never was a time in which there were so many books as we have today. There probably is nothing so common as a book. Each larger town and school has its library. Some of these libraries contain thousands of books. In the Congressional Library in Washington, D. C. there are several million books. These books deal with many different subjects. There are story books, books on science, books on etiquette, books on agriculture, horticulture, husbandry, industry, books on law, etc. To these many books that are filling our bookshelves, thousands of new books are added each year.

This evening we want to speak about the most important book that was ever written. A book that was written centuries ago; yet is not outmoded and never will be outmoded. A book that never will be surpassed by any other book. A book that contains more wisdom than is contained in all books when put together. A book for the destruction of which thousands of dollars and much time and energy have been expended and yet is read by more people than any other book. A book that has been translated into over a thousand languages. This book is the Bible. The Bible really is a library in itself. In it we have sisty-six books. These were written in a period of approximately 1500 years time. More than forty writers contributed to its writings. The writers were mostly common, ordinary people—farmers, herdsmen, fishermen, etc. A few were also highly educated and well-learned like Moses, Paul, and others. In this evening hour I want to speak on the theme: "The Bible, The Revelation of God's Will."

Fifty years ago, October 1, 1891, Dr. Rodolphe Petter, who was born in Switzerland, began his mission work at Cantonment, Oklahoma, among the Cheyenne Indians. He had come with one purpose, and that purpose was to preach the Word of God to the Indians. Brother Petter believed that the Bible revealed the Will of God, that it was the only book that revealed the Will of God, and that its revelation was infallible. Therefore he was very anxious to learn the Cheyenne language, so that he might be able to preach unto the Indians this Gospel Message in their native tongue. He not only was anxious to learn their language, but he was also anxious to give them this book, the Bible, in their native language. Brother Petter wanted them to have this book in their native language, so that they might have the opportunity to read it at their gatherings and in their homes and thereby become acquainted with God's will. This meant much work for him. They had no written language, so he had to reduce their language to a written language. Before he could do this, he had to learn their language through contact and observation. This required much patience and perservance. Finally he had acquired enough words so that he could begin with the translation of the Bible. This translation required many years of hard work. As his vocabulary increased he became more efficient in expressing the thoughts of the Bible in such a way that they expressed accurately the message of the Bible in the Cheyenne language. I sincerely believe that there is no man, who has done more for the Cheyenne Indians, than Brother Petter has done. He made it possible for them to read or to listen to the reading of God's Word in their own native tongue. I am, indeed, glad that the Cheyenne tribe has this opportunity. Now God can reveal His will also unto them. God's will is the same to the white, yellow, black, and brown races. God speaks through one book to all of the races. Now, very briefly, let us see what God's will is concerning us.

First of all, this book tells us that God wants all to be saved. This book tells us that God is no respector of persons. He loves the Indians, the Negroes, the Chinese, and the Japanese just as much as He loves the white race. We white men often claim superiority, but this book clearly teaches that before God all people are equal. In Acts, chapter 8, we have a record of the conversion of an Ethiopian. He was a black man; therefore he belonged to the Hamitic race. In chapter 9 we have the conversion of Saul. He was a Jew, and consequently he belonged to the Shemetic race.

In chapter 10 we have the conversion of Cornelius. He was a white man, and therefore he belonged to the Japhetic race. This shows that God wants all races to be saved. Since God desired the salvation of the Cheyenne Indians, He saw to it that Brother Petter was born, and He endowed him with the gift of languages, so that he could learn their language and put it into writing. Then He gave him grace to translate the Bible into their language. Now they have the Book that reveals God's Will unto them in their native tongue. Today we are to rejoice with them that they have this privilege. If we want to know what the government's will is concerning us, we read the official statements that the Government is sending us; if we want to know what God's Will is concerning us we must read the Bible. This book tells us that Jesus died for all and that it is God's will that all should be cleansed in the blood of Jesus Christ.

Secondly, this book tells us what kind of a life God wants us to live. I have a son in India. He is doing mission work there. He can not now speak to us face to face, but he has revealed his will and his wishes to us through letters he has sent us. So God does not speak to us in this present age face to face, but He has revealed His will unto us through the Bible. Through the pages of this book He tells us what we are to do and how we are to live. So God can speak to us only when we listen to the message of the Bible or when we read the Bible. God revealed His will to the people of Israel through the Old Testament, the books of Moses, the Prophets, and the Psalms. God reveals His will unto us through the New Testament as well as through the Old Testament. This book tells us that God expects us to live a clean life, to love our enemies, to speak the truth, to worship the only true and living God, the Creator of the heavens and the earth. This book tells us to abstain from worldly things and the lusts of the flesh, to respect the rights of our fellowmen, to esteem others higher than ourselves, to do unto others as we want them to do unto us, etc., etc. This book tells us how to conduct our family life, what the duties of a husband are toward his wife, and what the duties of a wife are toward her husband; what the duties of parents are to their children, and what the duties of the children are to their parents. This book tells us how our business should be carried on and what our duties are concerning our government and our government officials. Again I want to say that the Bible is the only Book that reveals unto us the will of God so completely and perfectly. There is no other book like it. Read it. Let God speak through it to you. Your life will be enriched by it. Your life will become more noble, your ideals higher. There is nothing more beautiful than a life lived in harmony with the will of God as revealed through the pages of the Bible.

Thirdly, this book reveals unto us where God finally wants us to be. The Bible teaches us that God has prepared a beautiful place for His followers, for the believers in Christ. This place is called heaven. It is a place where there is no sin, no sickness, no disappointment, no care, no tears, no sighing. A place where Satan can not enter. A place without death, without drought, without grasshoppers, without cropfailures, without false religions. It is a place where the redeemed shall see Christ, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world, from face to face; and His Father, who had made the plan of redemption before the foundation of the world was laid. This is the place where God wants you and me to be after death. God gave us this book that we might know something about that place. The Bible is the only book that reveals to us to some extent the glory of that place. The Bible tells us how we can get there. All that we have to do is to accept Jesus as our personal Saviour and follow His way of life as it is described in the Bible.

For a closing word, I would like to encourage all of you, Whites and Indians, to read your Bibles diligently. This book will reveal God's will unto you. This book will sharpen your conscience, it will cleanse your lives, it will show you how to live a life that is acceptable to God and a blessing to men. The more we read this book the better we enjoy it. I am glad that our Cheyenne Indians have the opportunity to read and to hear God's messages in their own language. May God bless all of you and may He fill your hearts with a desire to read the Bible.

(This talk was given at Lame Deer, Montana, on Sunday evening. October 5, 1941, the occasion being Dr. Petter's fiftieth anniversary celebration of his entrance into active mission work among the Cheyenne Indians.)

ARIZONA

BUILDING IN ARIZONA

"Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it." Psalm 127:1.

Keenly realizing the need of enlarging the Oraibi lower village chapel, the matter was laid before the Lord in the quietness of the mission home. Then one day after a morning prayer meeting Tom Mootzka was seen in deep thought looking over the possibility of enlarging the chapel. Upon inquiry he said, "We must have a larger church."

Then other Christians also joined in; the possibility of securing rocks was investigated, etc. There were repeated urges along this line. The mission board also knowing of this need asked Mr. Suderman for a plan and an estimate of the cost; this he felt was beyond his ability, for he is not a carpenter. The mission board meeting drew near and still there was no plan. With no contractor near he felt it an increasing burden. Then there came a day when it seemed as though God was just giving him the plan as he sat there way into the night drawing. He said, "I can hardly lay this aside to go to rest."

Then to get figures as to the cost was another problem. The plan was presented to lumber yards and also to a Hopi carpenter who was just then at home for a visit. In most cases these estimates have proved to be too low. The mission board accepted this plan and sent us notice of it, asking how soon we would need the funds. There was no carpenter near, nor did we know of anyone for this work; but the Lord knew.

Just at this same time the Toreva Baptist mission home had to be rebuilt. The Baptist board has a regular carpenter whom they send to their mission fields for building churches and parsonages. He had just completed a church and parsonage at Carson City, Nevada, where he had also had with him an able assistant carpenter from Mt. Vision, New York. But the Toreva house was too small a job for two carpenters. The missionaries there, knowing of the plan for Oraibi, brought these two men over one evening, and we talked the matter over. Do you wonder that we say, "The Lord sent us a carpenter?" Mr. Vickers stayed with us until the structure was fully under roof and enclosed with rough boards.

Meanwhile the Mesa chapel, where we were gathering for Sunday services during the building program, burned with practically all the church furniture. A few Sundays we met outside, and then in the new church basement, though yet unfinished; the Sunday School classes met here and there under difficulty of cold breezes and dampness. It has seemed like a long season of pioneer days. It has meant many a weary trip to the lumber mills of Flagstaff approximately one hundred miles from Oraibi with a midnight return home.

After Mr. Vickers left in May, most of the Christians bravely and nobly toiled alongside us. If in belligerent European countries women are lauded for joining the battle fronts, these Hopi Christian women will meet the comment of our Lord at His coming, for they have truly let their lights of love to Christ shine in their own village by handling the hammer, mixing mud, and plastering walls with their bare hands. One day one of them said, "Now we will soon have a church again, and won't we be happy!"

Some of the men have donated a good bit of labor, one man some rocks that he quarried all alone; one little old man gave all his labors free and besides gave some money to hire a competent worker to help Mr. Suderman put on the ceiling. Another man, whose leg was amputated years ago on account of tuberculosis and who now has an artificial leg, has been a help in many little things, especially in making benches. One day he said, "For so many years we have not done anything for God, so we want to do this without pay for the Lord." This man has no means of livelihood, often being low on food, and his wife suffers from anemia. Many more little incidents and expressions have served as tokens of love from the Father's dear hands.

Our native mission worker, Daniel Schirmer, at Hotevilla, has in these last weeks lent a faithful helping hand. On a few occasions Rev. Loveridge and Rev. Derbyshire from the Baptist Missions have also helped. We must not forget to mention the help given by Mr. Raymond, the public school teacher, who has shown his interest from the very beginning.

Though not finished in its details, the church was dedicated on October 5. (An account of this will possibly appear in the church paper soon).

On October 12 we had our first Sunday service with our own Oraibi group in a real church room since the burning of the Mesa chapel on April 25. It was a rainy day, but we had a quiet, blessed worship and meditation service. Then yesterday, a bright sunny Lord's day, a large group worshiped in song and study of the Word.

You friends who have given so faithfully and unceasingly, and have held us up in prayer, do not see this house of God, nor hear the expressions of gratitude and love for this church as we hear them again and again, neither do you see the faces beam as they enter on Sunday or for prayer meetings, nor do you sense the feeling of an increased surging of faith in their souls, but we do wish to thank you in behalf of the Oraibi Hopi Christians, and we are asking God to bless and reward you abundantly.

Besides the detail finishing there is still the need of a basement floor, a furnace, and the siding. (The Flagstaff Lumber Mills have promised to have siding for us as soon as possible. The government defense program delays the getting of materials considerably). These needs will be supplied in due time as God prospers the mission board treasury.

Yours for the salvation of the Hopis,
—Mr. and Mrs. John P. Suderman

DEDICATION OF ORAIBI CHURCH

(as seen by an "outsider")

Over the dedication of the rebuilt Oraibi church, October 5, the sky arched as bright and blue as an Indian turquoise. For weeks the region had known unusually violent showers; only the previous Monday a car crossing the tiny stream in a "wash" nearby had been caught in a sudden tumultous wall of water and swept to destruction. The Oraibi people had prayed for bright weather for this important Sunday, and no day could have been brighter. The poplars bent, shining, in the wind, and the assembled Hopis and white people bent against it, too. The scene was colorful: the women with their gay-hued blankets, many with their babies' round black heads bobbing on their backs; Pumpkin Seed hill rising bright as amber in the sun; on another mesa the ancient houses of Old Oraibi—thought to be the oldest continuously inhabited village in the United States—the ruins of the old church, burned last spring, gaunt against the sky.

Some of the very Hopis gathered for the dedication had probably thought the burning of the chapel a judgment. Yet the story of that great loss had loosed the purse-strings of far friends for this greatly needed remodeling of the church at the foot of the mesa.

The hour came. The pastor, Rev. J. P. Suderman, stood tall and fair-haired among his people and led them in a Hopi hymn of dedication, Yep Kihu God Enem Yukilti, "This House of God Has Been Built." He read the Scripture—"Except the Lord shall build the house, they labor in vain that build it" —and then asked a small old Indian, Qooyawayma, erect, quaint, dignified, to pray. The Reverend Mr. Wedel reverently turned the key in the lock, and the congregation surged into this renewed House of God, where they sang, "The Lord is in His holy temple, Let all the earth keep silence before Him, keep silence, keep silence, keep silence before Him."

We of another place and another denomination gazed around us with wonder and delight; this was a church not simply remodelel, but rebuilt. Twice as large as before and with additional windows of a simple Gothic form, it was newly spacious, airy, sunny. Though its detail was not yet finished, the masonry-effect and paneled wall-board which had taken the place of the former dark finish of walls and ceiling added immeasurably to the brightness and beauty.

Only a few days earlier we had watched pastor and people putting on those panels, men and women, boys and girls together nailing down the smooth new flooring. Outside, on ladder and scaffolding, we had found Mrs. Suderman washing the lofty windows. It was the day's stint she had set herself, she said, laughing; even on a ladder she was both dignified and gracious. Another of us had found her in the new basement of the church, briskly and capably making all the tables and benches which were to be used in feeding the congregation. It had looked to us as if the church could not possibly be ready for the dedication date.

There had been some seven work-parties, as typical of the Hopis as of our early Americans with their quilting-bees and corn-huskings. The Hopis have work-parties when they build, when they shear, when they harvest. Now they held them for making God's house, and had labored together in brotherly love, though some had been estranged before. During this last week, however, the work party had been practically continuous, lasting sometimes till one and two o'clock in the morning. The pastor had stayed his own efficient hammer and saw only to drive to the railroad for needed supplies, over roads made almost impassable by the weather.

Yes, there had been hearty and loving co-operation, surely blessed by God, and much contributed labor from a hard-working people whose living must be wrested from rocky, arid soil. They had given money, also. The small old Hopi who had prayed at the door was the largest moneygiver. A farmer and a weaver of fine Indian blankets, he tithes strictly and gives his first fruits to the Lord, though age-old Hopi custom is to give them to their own kin. The Hopi farmer must divide his farm, with a tiny field here, another miles away where there is another piece of arable ground. His work is doubled, his farming primitive; drought, field-mice, worms, threaten the crops; yet always this tither has in one or another of his fields fine corn or squash or beans, fine peaches or melons.

Inside the bright church, the first prayer was offered by Rev. Edward Derbyshire, Baptist missionary at Polacca, twenty miles away. The service continued with congregational singing in Hopi and English and numbers by junior and senior choirs, trained by the pastor and his wife. The pastor and his wife sang a beautiful duet, and Mr. Wedel offered a dedicatory prayer and a strong dedicatory sermon. The whole service was imbued with quiet reverence and thankfulness.

At the noon hour the congregation was invited into the new basement to tables laden with appetizing food prepared by the membership. Some 250 were bounteously served with corn from the season's harvest, puffy fried Hopi bread, mutton stew with its good Hopi hominy, grapes, peaches, apples, melons grown around Oraibi.

Soon thereafter the temple filled again for the afternoon services of prayer and praise. Here again, in the sunshine and amid the bright adornment of garden flowers, cosmos and dahlias, Christian brotherliness was evidenced. Children trained by the Hopi missionaries from Hotevilla made a joyful noise before the Lord, along with the choirs of the Oraibi church; and Baptist missionaries, Baptist Hopis and a government teacher joined with solos, quartet, instruments. The congregation included visitors from Hotevilla, Moencopi, Chai-bi-toh (Navajo mission), Keams Canyon (Navajo), Polacca, Toreva; from Kansas, California, Colorado; and the government workers at several of these places were represented.

This visitor found the joyful songs of the children especially moving, the more because she knew that these same children often sang their Godly hymns all the way home through the village so largely non-Christian—thus singing "a sermon a mile long."

The day was rounded out by the evening service, with another forceful sermon by Mr. Wedel and with more singing, bringing its mighty message of salvation to a people with a God-given musical sense and appreciation. Even the junior choir remained to the end, the little folks wanting to sing four numbers instead of the two planned for them.

All day the wind had blown as if in protest against the gathering of God's people and the brightness of the sunshine. But as we came out of His house the night was tranquil and the moon shone like an added benediction from a clear still sky. —Florence Crannell Means, Denver, Colorado

CHINA

HERE I AM, SEND ME

By H. J. Brown

Ts'ao Chien Hsun is a child of our mission. Some years ago he graduated from our Bible School in K'ai Chow. Later he studied in Peking and graduated from a theological seminary. A few years ago he took up work in Taming, teaching language to missionaries and doing many other things. During the last two years he has been superintendent of our Sunday School. Everywhere he is faithfully helping along. At present he is also a member of the school board, which requires a lot of work. He is a good singer and often renders fine selections of music. Really he is the only Chinese here in the church that can play the organ well. The foregoing at a glance shows that he is a valuable man.

This morning he sits in my office and tells me that he is to lay down all his work here by the end of June and is to leave us. To the question of where he is going, he has no ready answer. Immediately it comes to my mind, that six months ago he once hinted that he might be leaving us by the middle of the year, since he could get a much larger salary in Peking, and that inquiries for him had come in. Then again I thought that maybe the ladies, with whom he is working, had discharged him. Some workers are being sent home on account of the big cut in this year's budget.

But, "No," he says, "I have resigned. At first I really had in mind to find work with larger pay, but not now. The Lord has dealt with me these weeks. I have never before cried as much as during some of these last nights. The Lord was calling me to step out and serve Him in faith. That was rather tough, when I really anticipated a larger salary. I said, 'Lord, you know that even now with the present salary I cannot feed and clothe my family, and what is going to happen, should I cut loose from even this definite income?' I cannot take time to tell you all about the great struggle and the sleepless nights that I went through, until I finally said to the Lord, 'Okay, I will go!' However, I still had in mind, that besides going out to preach, I would carry along some medicine for sale. When I informed one of my fellow-workers of this plan, he immediately warned me that that would detract me from preaching the Gospel; then, too, he mentioned that medicines now were high-priced, and that the people would not accept the barter message. I went back home. Here my last prop of support was attacked. I surely felt miserable. Another real battle in prayer followed. But the Lord again clearly spoke to me, saying, 'Is it really so hard to leave all behind and step out following Me wholly in faith?' I replied, 'Lord, it seems hard, but here I am, and I am going to cut loose from everything and simply follow Thee, preaching the Gospel.'

"Now after this full surrender, my heart is at peace. There is a village, Chang Fu Ch'iao, ten miles away. Again and again the missionaries have spoken about the place and have told us that there are people in the village who long to hear the message of life, but that no preacher seems to be able to get off to bring them the Gospel. So I have promised the Lord to go there for the summer months and show them the way to Christ. I shall follow the Lord as He leads. Please pray for me as I go. When I had these battles of the heart, I consulted no one, not even my parents or wife or children. There will be plenty of criticism and strong opposition, but I must be true to my Lord and Saviour. Please pray for me."

We knelt right there and prayed that God's will should be done in Brother Ts'ao's life. When he arose he walked out to follow Christ. Will your prayers be with him?

SISTER GOERTZ WRITES FROM CHINA

September 12, 1941

The work is going on as usual. We have good clinics every afternoon. From forty to eighty-five come. Our inpatients number about sixty. All beds in third (men's side) are filled. The women's side has only a few empty beds.

Hua Mei School has a fine registration: Senior High 63, Junior High 218, High Primary 94, Low Primary 74, Kindergarten 20, total 469. Mary J. Regier has come to rescue the English courses. The students seem to appreciate her a great deal. The Bible school has around 55 students.

INDIA

GOOD NEWS

Missionary Moyer reports in India Calling:

Our Bible school, established about a decade ago, has been turning out a stream of workers trained for village work.

The Leper church usually numbers between three hundred and four hundred members; a total of 198 have been dismissed as cured, that is, symptom free.

This year again about 167 have been baptized in the Basna area (in the first three months of this year, up to April 15).

There has been a strengthening of the church in India. "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Today we have: 22 organized churches, 200 Christian workers, a Christian community of almost 4000 souls, 2000 patients last year, over 15,000 outpatients, nearly 25,000 return visits, hundreds of Bibles sold in 1940.

Missionary Martha R. Burkhalter reports that a spiritual revival has broken out in the Bible school; many have settled their accounts with God and with man.

MISSIONARY ISAAC WRITES FROM MAUHADIH

Since my last report the good work of God's spirit has continued. The full number of persons that has been baptized since Christmas from among the non-Christians is ten. The last one that took the step came alone, and I asked him as to whether he did not want to wait till his wife also would come. He said, "No, I have testified in the village that I had become a Christian, and I do not want to become untrue to my word."

MAGUNI ASKS AND RECEIVES

Maguni Nag was to be married. She was happy that her parents were in a position to make good wedding arrangements for her. She knew she was dear to them. Didn't her name itself mean, "Asked of the Lord"! So she felt she could trust them to plan most carefully for her future. They were gathering the dowry bit by bit, and she knew exactly what was packed away in the special tin trunk.

What an exciting time the day of the engagement had been! She, of course, had felt shy and had hidden away in the house among the women. The bridegroom-to-be had come from a village about sixty-eight miles away. His father and other men friends had come along. The courtyard seemed almost crowded. No modest girl would show herself boldly in front of them. The little girls of the village had come and stared inquisitively at her. In one of the rooms there had been baskets of candied puffed rice, cocoanut, and sweet Indian breads which had been provided by the bridegroom to give out after the ceremony.

Her parents were Christians, so the engagement ceremony had been in charge of the evangelist. Mother and her nearest girl friends had helped her put on the engagement sari and the silver bracelets that were the bridegroom's gifts. The part of the sari that went over her head had been pulled carefully forward to hide her face. Then she had been escorted out into the courtyard and seated near the prospective groom.

Songs, the reading of God's Word, and prayer had preceded the formal questions that would make the engagement binding. The parents on either side and also the two young people had been asked whether they were ready for this promise for the coming marriage. The answer had been "yes." Long ago the parents had known what they would say.

The following day the bridegroom and his party had gone home again. Now the definite wedding plans were being made. The prayer in Maguni's heart was, "Oh Lord, may everything go off without trouble and hinderance." Well she knew that sometimes the parents of either party were dissatisfied with the arrangements. Sometimes there were even quarrels, and sometimes engagements were broken. She felt that that must not happen with her wedding. She prayed, "O Everlasting Lord, put Thy blessing upon all. Grant that there may be nothing to mar my wedding day. I vow that in thankfulness I will give one rupee toward the building of the new church in Jagdishpur (Basna)."

The Lord heard her prayer and granted her a beautiful day, a happy wedding celebration, and the consciousness that His blessing lay upon them.

In the account book of the building committee for the new Basna church is this entry:

Received from Joseph Nag's daughter at the time of her wedding .... Rs. 1-0-0

Shall we too offer unto God thanksgiving and pay our vows unto the most High?

REPORT ON THE WORK AT CHAMPA FROM JANUARY TO JUNE, 1941

By P. W. Penner, Superintendent Leper Asylum

January: How grateful to the Almighty we felt that the prayers of a host of people and ours were answered and that we could behold this New Year's day on the field, ready for service. Secondly we enjoyed the company of our Nellie. When she sailed over the perilous seas near England, one of the convoys nearby was torpedoed, resulting in a heavy loss of life. Via Capetown she arrived in India before we did; again on the long delayed voyage over the mined waters were protected by the Almighty's hand. To Him ALL praise!

Some urgent preliminaries awaited disposal. On the 9th, with a band of eleven Indian workers, we launched out among the villages. The first camp was pitched at Akalsara, sixteen miles southeast of Champa, and the second camp at Beladula, six and a half miles farther south.

The surrounding villages were served during the forenoon with teaching and preaching, both men and women. In all of the villages the gospel had previously been profusely disseminated. In the village at our camp, the afternoons gave opportunity for house-to-house visits. The interviews hinged on the plan of salvation. The Bible was studied with the villagers. They knew much of the Book. The evenings were occupied with union meetings. Here mostly intense preaching took place.

The subjects for all meetings were diversified so as to avoid unnecessary repititions, of course, "Jesus Christ" was the center of all discussions.

The willingness to listen amazed us. There actually is a hunger in the land for the true God; the shackles loosen their hold. Not only that, but a host believed and decided inwardly for Christ as during the Apostle Paul's travels, although the difference lies herein: Paul organized churches; whereas, our converts lacked the boldness to step before the public with their confession of faith and organize churches. They are in the Kingdom as Nicodemus was. The morning is not only dawning, the Sun of righteousness is risen above the horizon and burns His rays into the hearts of men and women. Would all these emerge as in the Basna area, good-sized churches could be organized. The continual and faithful service the Indian workers performed, show ample fruit. This tour generated exceeding joy of being saved and found worthy to perform the Lord's work, feeling convinced the Lord worked with us, Mark 16:20; again the band, with the Lord, recommended others to Christ. John 1:45.

February: Much to our regret the touring had to be cut short. On the 3rd we both returned to the station to assume Brother and Sister P. A. Penners' responsibilities. These are manifold in the Leper Home, the Boardings for untainted children, and the station management. The major portion of the month was occupied with this transfer. One perceived immediately that we could hardly cope with these obligations successfully. The sentence flashed through us, "My grace is sufficient for thee." II Cor. 12:9. What more can a person expect; this reaches to the UTTERMOST!

The rest of our band for intensified witnessing, bolstered up by fervent prayers from their angle and ours, continued the work unabated till the end of April. The Indian co-workers are an invaluable asset to the evangelistic work. We ought to praise God much more for them, and lay them with our arms of prayers at the feet of our Lord.

In the middle of March the Indian Christian Conference convened for its annual session. The 25th anniversary of Korba was linked up. This celebration was observed by the missionaries in December, 1940. Each one attending the conference came away with the conviction that lately our Indian constituency had progressed miraculously; the spiritual necessity was foremostly stressed.

Towards the last of the month we visited the Chandkhuri Leper Home to gather information for the management of our Leper Home. We found the work of these two leper homes had much in common.

April began with farewell festivities, occupying nearly all the time until the 7th, the day of their departure. For the large leper family of over five hundred and for the Christian community the departure of the Penners caused agony. They sailed from Calcutta April 15 and arrived at Los Angeles June 7.

The rest of the month we tried to pursue the newly adopted obligations. The heat set in unusually early; daily for two weeks the thermometer registered from 110 to 113.

May, the hottest month since a number of years, opened with 112 to 118, mostly with a burning wind daily for the most part of the month. Many of the Indian workers took their annual leave, because the heat proved to be almost unbearable. The poor lepers suffered, especially those confined to their beds day and night. Then others were lying in huts and under shade trees. More than sixty pitiful creatures were waiting in front of the south gate to be admitted after someone died or absconded. We were allowed by the Mission to Lepers to have only 525 inpatients. The Government showed special compassion and raised the allowance per capita 20 per cent. No baptisms took place in the Leper Home. God, have mercy upon these helpless and semi-helpless sufferers!

May, furthermore, disclosed increased poverty among the Christians and non-Christians; the 1940 rice harvest had been nearly a failure; prices rose two and threefold. Earning avenues seldom opened. Daily our veranda was approached by beggars; the stories about need of clothing, food, and other necessities were most distressing.

June opened with Pentecost. The services, both in the Bethesda and compound churches, proved quite impressive. Largely the older church members realized the significance as being indwelt by the Holy Spirit. Growth among the lepers and among the offscour of human society encourage the spiritual workers among them and definitely convince us of the Spirit's influence. The compound church baptized fifteen young people out of Christian families. Some of these candidates showed aforetime so-to-say total indifference; now their testimony divulges the complete inward change.

The monsoon broke early, decreasing the terrible heat. The vim of the Indian workers revived; they energetically resumed their activities. The farmer rejoicingly sowed his fields, and the fields soon were carpeted. The missionaries returned from the hills, except Miss Schmidt, who had to submit to a major operation. The four language students continued their trying studies to the latter part of August.

The repairs, besides the church work, etc., etc., kept us both exceedingly busy. The manifold duties in the Bethesda Church occupied much time. I was relieved from this position by Brother Joel Asna, who began his pastorship in the latter days of June. He had gone out of our mission for a time. There he harvested a fine commendation from the respective mission and wherever he was called for protracted meetings. His vim and cleverness stir one's admiration. Joel is Nellie's second brother, the son of Pastor Rufus Asna. Joel's older brother Joseph is a fully ordained elder and is a missionary in North India. From among low-grade tribes Joseph has already won and organized a church, basing the constitution on Mennonite principles. These two men, Joseph and Joel, grew up under our observation; consequently we feel satisfied, having succeeded in guiding them into their high callings. O Lord, arouse more such ardent messengers of the Cross! Towards the last of June we were privileged to baptize, on the out-station, Bamnidie, under brother Sonsai's charge, an elderly widow, who shows great joy in her newly adopted faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

In closing let us praise God for the open doors in a sin-ridden world, engaged in unprecedented warfare. The influence, in spite of war, regarding spiritual progress, cannot be over-estimated. Furthermore, the heart elates over the service in His vineyard, knowing that numerous fields elsewhere have been closed. Then we thank the considerate mission board for its suggestions and the churches which lend a helping hand.

Our united prayers in behalf of all those concerned ascend frequently to the throne of grace. It is marvelous how the suffering lepers join the prayer bands with their deep-spirited prayers and supplications. They are to be admired.

God has signally showered His mercy, grace, and blessing profusely upon the mission enterprise; He will continue this bountiful downpour. "Let us consider one another" (Heb. 10:24) before His throne daily, and His bounty shall not cease.

Furthermore, we ask the mission board and God for forgiveness for all misgivings which certainly have occurred during the last six months. Our efforts are to fulfill to the best of our knowledge and with the help of the Almighty the requirements placed before us. The reasons for strength and courage and a hopeful outlook lie clearly before us in the daily routine. —P. W. and Mathilda Penner

BETHEL CHURCH, WINTON, CALIFORNIA

Greetings to all with Ps. 89:1. We served the First Mennonite Church in Shafter for a year and one-half, and we enjoyed our work there. However, our time was up and we prayed much that the Lord might open up a way for us. On June 12 we received a call from the Bethel Church at Winton. We accepted it as from the Lord. We packed our belongings and Brother Al Nikkel moved us to Winton on the 14th. We began our work here on June 15.

Rev. D. B. Hess was sent here about three years ago by the Pacific District Conference to start a church. It went as a community church for several years. Finally a charter was drawn up and signed by about forty members. The group chose the name, Bethel Church. They joined the Pacific District Conference last May. On June 1 we began to worship in the building known as the Koehn Church. It is a good stucco building free from debt. The building needs a little repairing, and we hope to do this now in the fall or next spring.

We had about thirty in Sunday School in the beginning. It has increased slowly even during the busy summer months. Now we have over fifty. The church attendance is usually a little higher.

As soon as we came here, my wife and I called on all the families, since everybody is in the harvest fields during July and August. We also had to go and work because we received no support from the conference. The group here helped us wonderfully for which we are thankful. We are all united; love and unity reigns, and all—young and old—work together trying to get in others who are still outside the fold.

One young married man came to me the first Sunday we were here and asked to be baptized. This young man is really a wonder. He comes from a Catholic family, but he has a clear testimony of conversion and with his faithful wife is very active in the church. He and two others were baptized in July and six others were taken into the church. Communion was also observed that same evening.

Every other Sunday our young people give us a program consisting of duets, solos, topics, Bible questions, etc. The programs are inspirational and are well attended. The other Sunday evening we have singing of choruses, an object lesson, and a sermon. These meetings are also well attended. Wednesday evening we have prayer meeting and Bible study. The Bible studies during last month centered on such Bible doctrines as, the new birth, faith, repentance, prayer, etc.

There is a large field here as a good many young people and also older ones with Mennonite background do not attend any services. Many seemingly have fallen away from other churches because of their strict discipline in regard to dress and other forms. We intend to have evangelistic meetings this fall or early next year and are praying for the Lord to send some one. We want to do all that we can in the coming year. —Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Glanzer

HUTCHINSON, KANSAS

Greetings to all from your mission church in Hutchinson, Kansas. Located as we are in a growing city of about 33,000 population and whose population is constantly changing, we find our church life in the city quite different from that of the rural church. Our people are mostly of the laboring class and so are quite often compelled, because of working conditions, to move to places where work is more plentiful and alluring. This, of course, means many changes in our church. In spite of various drawbacks and handicaps our church is awake to the opportunities offered in a city such as ours and is making many new contacts as people move into the city. The church is steadily growing. The membership at present is 128. Eleven new members have been received in the past year. The attendance has been larger and more steady than ever before. Besides our membership we have over sixty families who attend quite regularly. A large percentage of these have a Mennonite background and should be good prospects.

Regular meetings of Sunday School, morning and evening worship, Senior and Young People's Christian Endeavor are held on Sundays. Prayer meeting Junior Bible study classes are held on Wednesday. Ladies Missionary meets once a month.

Evangelistic meetings were again held in April in an effort to stir up our own people and to reach the outsider. This year Rev. P. P. Tschetter of Pretty Prairie conducted the meetings. His forceful Bible expositions were well received and will live long with those who heard his messages.

Daily vacation Bible school was held for two weeks in June in connection with the Brethren and Presbyterian churches. Attendance was 127 pupils and 16 teachers. Mennonites led the list.

Union meetings for Sunday nights were held with the same churches on the lawn of the First Church of the Brethren. There is a most helpful spirit of cooperation between these churches. The membership of these churches is practically the same. For the first time the young people of these churches joined in union young people's services. The results were most gratifying in spirit, attendance, and work accomplished.

From January to Easter a special "Go To Church" campaign was conducted by the ministerial association with the cooperation of all the churches. Stickers with "WE GO TO CHURCH" were placed in windows of church goers. Then the ministers went out two and two and called on all the non-church homes of the city. About one thousand homes were assigned to each two ministers. These homes were contacted and the claims of Christ were presented without any appeal of denomination. Results were real eye openers. The greatness of our task yet unfinished was seen in a new light. In really seeing man as lost without Christ the earnest Christian is stirred to a real passion for lost souls. The task of the church is to save souls and thereby be true to the great commission of Jesus Christ. God's Word says, "He that winneth souls is wise" and "They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars forever and ever."

The Hutchinson congregation is courageously moving on seeking to accept the challenge of our troubled world and to be faithful and true to Christ. Please, pray with us that very soon we may be entirely self-supporting, so that other fields may be helped. Pray that we may hold high the banner of the Cross and march to victory in Christ. —C. H. Dirks

MENNONITE GIRLS' HOME

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada

It is with pleasure and with gratitude to God that I can say that our Mennonite girls are wanted in the city as much as ever. In fact, more requests come in for them than can be fulfilled. Compliments fall back to the parents that have brought them up in a Christian way, but also to the missionary work done in this home.

Every Thursday afternoon, from 6 to 7 o'clock we have a Bible Study meeting at which we are reminded of being children of God, and therefore responsible to live up to that standard. Rev. J. H. Enns conducts these meetings. Rev. J. J. Klassen, and Rev. B. Ewert pay welcome visits at different intervals.

Last Thursday, October 8, we had the pleasure of having Rev. W. C. Voth, missionary from China at our home. The subject he spoke on was, "The Original Chinese Home and The Changes Christianity Has Brought To the Same As Well As to the Country At Large." We were deeply touched by some statements he made, and, no doubt, many of us present resolved to aid missionary work with more prayer, more sympathy and more money.

We are planning to have an anniversary in remembrance of the establishment of this home fifteen years ago, sometime next month. Through all these years it has been to several hundred girls, working in Winnipeg, a home, a place where they could weekly retire to rest, and to forget for a time their hardships and sorrows, and at the same time have their spiritual needs cared for.

May it be preserved, and in the future be blessed by the Lord.

—One of the girls, Emmy Janz

QUARRYVILLE, PENNSYLVANIA

Greetings in Jesus' name. We praise the Lord for the joy that is ours in serving Him and for strength to do His will from day to day. Looking back some victories are evident.

Services are held at Calvary Church every Lord's Day morning and evening. The Sunday School is also an important phase of our work. Mid-week church prayer meetings are conducted regularly.

During the winter months a number of young people were instructed in the Word of God and upon personal confession of faith in Jesus as their Saviour were baptized and received into our church fellowship at our spring communion service. At our fall communion service three were received by letter. Both communion services were well attended.

Our church cooperates every year with various churches of the community in a daily vacation Bible School. The worth and value of such teaching is proved by the happy faces produced by the knowledge of the Word.

We are planning for a week of special services in November. These are to strengthen the believers and win others to Christ. Pastors of various churches in the county will speak.

We are counting on Him who never fails. Pray for a large ingathering of souls; pray that the neglectful and careless may be won for Christ; that the purpose for which we are here may be accomplished; pray that we may clearly see our task, and that strength, love, and patience may be manifested in every phase of our work. —Sylvan Lehman

SMITH CORNER, PENNSYLVANIA

I have been very busy. Just now we are engaged in a series of meetings. Speaking every night besides the necessary visiting keeps one rather busy.

I am sorry, but facts are facts. The third quarter was not as good as the second one, that is, in numbers. There are three things that handicap the church and Sunday School work during the third quarter of the year. In our community they are felt very much. They are: picnics, family reunions, and vacations. I do my utmost each year to induce folks to have these occasions on week days, but when all is said and done, people are still people and must be worked with accordingly.

During this quarter it was my privilege to attend my first General Conference, and what a privilege it was! There, as you know, I met all members of the mission board. As a result I feel a little more united; there seems to be a little closer relationship to you. Also as a result of the Conference, I met and learned to love more of our good people. Rev. P. H. Richert and Dr. W. E. Regier of Kansas came home with me, and Dr. Richert spoke to us on Sunday morning. This was his first trip to Smith Corner. Dr. Regier spent several days with us, getting acquainted with his adopted daughters' relatives whom he had never seen. Also Brother and Sister Art Richert came the following Monday evening and spent the night here, leaving Tuesday morning for their home in California. Needless to say, we were happy to have them all; it serves to bring us closer together in our work.

Also during this quarter I had the privilege of speaking in two of our General Conference churches. An unexpected trip to Kansas with my family made it possible for me to speak in the Alexanderwohl Church, Rev. P. H. Unruh, pastor. Then on the last Sunday of the quarter I spent the day in Richfield, speaking at both morning and evening services for Rev. Ben. Graybill. Both trips were a real joy.

I guess that is enough about myself, now about the work here. The spirit of fellowship and love among us was never any greater since my coming. Our church and Sunday School attendance is "fair," not good. However, some of the other pastors here tell me I am too hard to please. One church here that has over eight hundred members has only twelve to fifteen in the midweek service, while we have thirty-five to forty. Our Sunday School attendance for the quarter averaged fifty-six; offerings averaged $4.07, a little less than last quarter.

Conditions in our Sunday School are such that it is necessary for us to take another step forward in opening an infant department in the basement. This, we hope, will be done in a week or so, and I will tell more about it in the next report.

We installed a water system during the quarter at a cost of $62.27. This sum has been paid. Now we have running water in both church and house. The condition of both buildings is good, except a few minor repairs to the church are needed and will be taken care of.

Little Robert Dodson, four-year old son of Henry Dodson, chairman of our trustees, was hit by an automobile while playing in front of his home. He died as a result of the accident. This again reminded our folks that life is not sure. This is one of the families that was won for the Lord last year. The father says that now he is glad that the last year he had Robert, he gave him Sunday School and church training. Our prayer is that we may have power to bring in more such families.

ALTOONA, PENNSYLVANIA

"Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." We again praise the Lord for the assurance of His presence, for the privilege of serving the true and living God, and for his promises.

As we continue to work here in Altoona we find our group of people very changeable. Walking down the streets you see "For Rent" or "For Sale" signs everywhere. Much moving has been going on. A number who attended our Sunday School have moved. We feel the importance of sowing the seed which is the Word of God while we have the opportunity, trusting that it will fall upon good ground and bring forth much fruit. Also do we see the need and importance of continued visitation work. One usually is received into the home with a welcome, and there is an opportunity to witness for the Lord and to invite them to the services.

Early in the spring we held our evangelistic services. Rev. Harold D. Burkholder, pastor of the East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pennsylvania, was in charge. Much interest was shown and rich blessings were received. Although there were no outward manifestations of conversions, we could see that souls were under conviction. We must leave the results with Him who is "able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him."

A large group of children attended the children's meeting conducted by Mrs. H. D. Burkholder.

We have held our regular morning and evening services, also our midweek prayer meetings throughout the summer months. Although the attendance was small many times, yet the Lord blessed. Many of the larger churches in the city closed their evening services for the summer months. Only the other day, one of the lay-men of a large congregation, with a membership over a thousand, remarked about having only five out for prayer meeting. If people today were more prayer-minded, the work of the Lord would grow more. Work and praying go hand in hand.

Our summer Bible School was held in June with an enrollment of fifty-nine, and an average attendance of forty-six. Most of the children were from our own Sunday School. However, there were also some who attend else-where, some Catholics, a few colored children, and some who had never attended a Sunday School and who are now coming quite regularly. The Lord again answered prayer in a very special way in getting teachers who were willing to come and teach the Word to these boys and girls.

The boys and girls are getting anxious to begin their Friday night meetings. These meetings usually begin in November and continue through the winter months. Although a number have moved this summer, we trust others will fill in.

In September we celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Mennonite Memorial Church. A week of special meetings was held with Rev. J. J. Plenert of Philadelphia as speaker. Inspiring messages were brought to us each evening, and rich blessings were received by those who attended. The meetings closed with a home coming day and communion services.

We were happy to be able to attend the General Conference and to meet so many of the mission workers and new friends.

We covet your prayers in behalf of our work here in Altoona. We need to pray much about the indifferent spirit that is prevailing and for consecrated helpers.

We thank the mission board and Christian friends for their continued support.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. Slotterback

WARWICK, SASKATCHEWAN

I want to apologize for the fact that news from Swift Current has not appeared more often in our conference publications. I am confident that if you knew all the things I am trying to do it would be quite understandable to all of you.

The entire territory, served by our church here, is again in the drouth area. It has pleased our Father to withold His material blessings. In most of this area no crop, whatever, has been harvested. In many instances even the gardens were a failure. Because of these conditions many fathers and young men left for other parts of Canada in search of work as soon as it became apparent that the crop was beyond hope. Most of them found work in Alberta, Manitoba, or British Columbia, at fairly good wages. This shifting of a part of the population has naturally affected church attendance and other church activities.

In spite of the unfavorable circumstances cited above, we have maintained our full schedule of activities and even enlarged it somewhat. Praised be His name! At Swift Current regular Sunday School in five classes, including adults, has now been held every Sunday, as well as services. In July the Mennonite Brethren, who worshiped with us thus far, completed their own church. Since that time a Christian Endeavor meeting has been held every Sunday (alternately in their church and in ours). In Wymark the record Sunday School attendance is seventy-four, which is a considerable increase from last year. Recently we have had a young people's orchestra playing at every Sunday School session. We also have regular services every Sunday here. Every two weeks there is a Christian Endeavor meeting, meeting alternately in Wymark and in the nearby village of Schonfeld; in the latter village there is also a regular Sunday School every Sunday and a service twice each month. In Blumenhof, eight miles south of Wymark the same program is maintained as that mentioned for Schonfeld. Twelve miles south of Blumenhof is a small church near Neville, called Pella. This is the parent church of this charge, and the small group there composed the nucleus of it. We have services there twice each month and Sunday School by the minister who conducts the services.

The attendance at Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, and church services at all of these places is gratifying. Yet it could be better and all efforts are being made to make it better by God's grace.

At Gull Lake, about forty miles west of Swift Current, we have thus far held monthly services at two places, in a school house and in a home. Occasionally, I have visited small, lonely groups south of Gull Lake, south of Carmichael and at Stone, which is twenty miles south of Tompkins. These people receive very little spiritual nourishment. When they do receive some, they accept it gratefully. On one occasion, especially, the Lord had timed it all wonderfully. One dear lady, a mother who had just returned from the hospital after a severe illness. The hearts of the mother and family were contrite and receptive. The somewhat cold and backslidden lives were reconsecrated to Jesus, and honest heartsearching and confession brought new peace and hope to their lives as well as to others present. Such are blessed moments for a worker and ample reward for all efforts.

Many other lonely ones who are scattered far and wide, live as sheep without a shepherd. The time and means simply are not sufficient to visit them and to seek to bring to them the bread of life. This condition causes us much concern and is the subject of much prayer, that Jesus, the great Shepherd, may open the way, send workers into the vineyard, or provide the means that workers may be able to feed the hungry ones. We covet the prayers of all home mission friends on behalf of these. Many of them drift to other denominations or sects, some of which are growth-promoting, but others are not at all commendable. I feel very keenly the burden and responsibility for these lonely groups and believe that God is going to hold us as a conference responsible for their welfare.

During July vacation Bible school was held at many places (16 places, 27 teachers, 334 pupils). Most of the willing young workers were students from the Swift Current Bible School. This alone is ample justification for its existence and reason for its support. Much seed has been sown in His name, and He will give the increase.

From July 28 to August 3 a young people's camp was held north of Swift Current. Exactly one hundred young people attended. The object was to provide spiritual and physical refreshment by arranging for three periods of Bible study daily and for definite periods for swimming and other healthful recreation. We are satisfied that this is one of the best methods of reaching the young, and we pray that the Lord may richly bless the seed sown. Please, pray for this effort also. Pray for the fourteen young people who made definite decisions for Christ, that they may be kept faithful to the end.

We are planning for two weeks of Bible study and revival meetings during November. For this work we are inviting specially qualified helpers. However, we cannot tell whom the Lord will provide for us until after the conference, which is to be held October 23 in Saskatoon for the purpose of planning this work for Saskatchewan. Pray for us and with us that this work may bear rich fruit for eternity to the salvation of the lost and the edification of the saved.

During the year so far twenty-two have been added to the church register, nineteen by baptism and three otherwise. For this we praise our Saviour, but we also pray that we may be able to fulfill our responsibility in shepherding them.

October 12 we had a thanksgiving and mission festival in Swift Current. Together with it we had the Ladies Aid bazaar. On October 13 we had the same in Wymark. For the following receipts we thank most heartily our Lord and Master and all donors. The record is exceptional, we believe, considering the fact that we have experienced a total crop failure: Swift Current mission offering $84.06, Wymark mission offering $40.40, Swift Current bazaar $133.15, Wymark $129.40.

I conclude with Luke 10:2. —V. E. Nickel

AMONG THE SCATTERED IN CANADA

"Strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die" (Rev. 3:2). Near the little town of Superb, in the far western part of Saskatchewan, lies a small Mennonite settlement, perhaps some ten families, all immigrants from Russia. I had been among these dear people for a few days serving the Word of God. From these people I learned that some thirty-five miles away on the lone prairie lived a lone Mennonite family, the remnant of a settlement that except for this one family had left the place because of the severe soil drifting. I suddenly felt a deep desire to see this lone family.

But how to get there? The people of the settlement I was visiting had had crop failures for years, and were poor indeed. We held a meeting after a service, talked the matter over, and to my satisfaction a way was found. An hour later I was sitting in a car, by no means the latest model, and with me were four other people; so the car was filled to capacity.

But what kind of places we passed by. A desert of sand and hills, where the Russian thistle ("kuraj" the Russians used to call it) tried to get a hold and stop the soil from drifting.

There looms a little farm. It is that of our friend Bergen. What a surprise for the poor people! Mrs. Bergen can't believe her eyes: visitors, speaking low German, Mennonites, immigrants! The Bergens will never forget this visit. Neither will we. They tell us some of their experiences during the worst soil drifting, how they spent a night in the cellar beneath wet sheets so as to be able to breathe. (In the neighborhood, a child was suffocated by the dust). But why did they not leave the place? Well this kind of immgirants sticks to the soil they have settled on. They simply don't believe in giving up. But what a sad picture: no Sunday Services as they were used to; the children are going to a non-Mennonite Sunday School (still better than no Sunday School); mother had an operation lately, a nervous breakdown, too; all the relatives are far away....

The Bergens have a service to-day, a real service, with songs from our familiar song book. Two brethren from Superb and I are serving. My topic is: "The Home." "In my Father's house are many mansions: If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

Home! What thoughts and what feelings are conjured in our hearts by the sound of this word? Fine homes we left in Southern Russia when we "shook off the very dust from our feet." Perhaps those homes we will never see again. But Jesus points to a home that is not a thing of the past: it lies before us; it is awaiting us...

Oh, how the tears are running! We all feel how we are bound together—one people, one church, one God, one Saviour.....

The time has come to depart. "Help me, help us, that we may join again our people." Is this prayer of brother Bergen fulfilled? Last time when I visited a small settlement near the town of Lusuland, I had the pleasure to visit Bergen's new place, a cheerful father and mother, where the children attend a Sunday School taught faithfully by an intelligent and experienced Mennonite mother. Lately Bergen's oldest son married a girl who is the daughter of the above mentioned mother and who was a pupil in our Rosthern Bible School.

Did it pay to make the trip? —John G. Rempel

REESOR, ONTARIO

Although our General Conference operates on a very extensive home mission field, and visiting preachers visit us every now and then, we in Northern Ontario feel in a special way the disadvantages of our remote position and the consequent detachment from our sister congregations. The latter condition, in conjunction with the fact that ours is only a small group, presents many problems that are peculiar to an isolated minority. I take it, that under such circumstances we must be on guard faithfully, to make sure that we exploit to the utmost any opportunity that presents itself, to foster and expand the work for the Kingdom of God, especially so, since such opportunities and possibilities here are fewer than in the larger congregations. We are deeply grateful to Him, that He regardeth that which is little as favorably as that which is large.

Our congregation, or church, has at present fifty-six members, representing some thirty families to whom religious service must be rendered. What work then, has been done and what services have been given with the help of God? Firstly, I should like to mention the work of preaching the Word of God. This may not be the most difficult part of the entire work, but it calls for careful preparation, devotion to duty, and punctuality. I preach one sermon every Sunday. The services take place alternately in our two church buildings. This service I have been able to render continuously for the last fifteen years and I have done it in charity. More difficult than the work of preaching is that of coping with the daily problems of life itself. There is so much poverty, care, perplexity, and temptation present, even in our own ranks, that the task to counsel, comfort, help, and to admonish in love and patience, is always with us. This pastoral work is of a nature which defies all attempts at statistical registration. Nevertheless, it calls for great exertions and real efforts, the strength for which must come from God.

Another phase of our work is that among the young people and children. Last summer two Sunday school classes were held regularly, one at each church. The number of children attending was seventy-five. Unfortunately this work can not be carried on during the winter months, and religious instruction during these months must be restricted to what is taught in the day schools. We are fortunate at Reesor, to have two faithful teachers of our denomination, who offer religious instruction to our school children once or twice a week in extracurricular lessons.

Of late we have again begun the work among the young people. Brother J. H. Enns (teacher), and myself have undertaken to do this very important work. It has fallen to me to lead in the opening exercises on our Sunday afternoon gatherings and to offer lectures on Biblical themes. It is my intention, also, to present a series of lectures on church history, especially that of our own Mennonite church. Brother Enns leads in choir work and in literary and social activities.

In closing, I want to make special mention of the work our women have been doing in their sewing circles. Last winter they made a considerable quantity of clothing and collected approximately sixty dollars in cash, which has been sent for war victim's relief in England. Our Lord's cause and work prospers everywhere, where men and women are ready to serve Him in charity. —H. P. Lepp

THE WATERLOO KITCHENER UNITED MENNONITE CHURCH

This church was founded and built as a mission church years ago and is being finished now as a self-supporting church. It is like a house that already shelters its dwellers and provides them with a certain amount of comfort and protection, although it is not perfect by any means and has to be completed in the course of time by the grace of God who is the real Founder and Builder of the church.

We are gathering every Sunday and also on many occasions in the week days in our nice, little church on George Street in Waterloo. We gather around the light of the Word of God, like a family at eventide, when the father calls the household together to read to them and to speak with them, and everybody is comfortable and enjoys the communion.

But the talk is of improvement. The house must be built larger to accomodate more of the wandering people outside, and the hearts of the dwellers must be warmer to comfort those who are going astray in the cold, loveless world. Now more than ever the Lord says to us, "Ye know the heart of a sojourner," —"God loveth the sojourner," and "Love ye therefore the sojourner for ye were sojourners. . . ." Men and women in finished houses are in a grave danger to grow conceited and not to care for anybody outside because those could spoil the comfort and the leisure of the landlords. This we must combat, and we are trying to do so by contributing to the mission cause, home and foreign, informing ourselves about the progress of the gospel among Christians and heathen, doing evangelistic work, and warming our own hearts by drawing nearer and nearer to Jesus.

We have received six souls into the membership of our church, three by baptism, and three by letter. This brings the total membership up to 281, of which 220 are contributing financially to the maintenance of the church. All officials of the church, the aged (over sixty years of age) and the poor, are exempted from paying church dues.

The pastor of the church formerly did a great deal of itinerant work all over the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but now he has settled down to serve the one church and keeps in touch with the outside religious world only by his "LETTERS TO OUR PEOPLE" which he issues and sends out biweekly.

Just today I received a letter of gratitude for these letters and the blessings conveyed by them to the home of a very aged couple, the man being eighty-seven years, the wife eighty-five. They once were active and are now unable to attend public worship. By the L. T. O. P. they are having communion with the Church of Jesus Christ. Recently an anonymous letter with a gift of five dollars came to me from a girl who appreciated the L. T. O. P. as a call to come home from the roads of this world which she had been roaming in pursuit of happiness. That is what the letters are intended for, to tell the people that we all have a beautiful home, and that our Father is waiting for us to come home, and that Jesus Christ, our Saviour, has opened and paved the road to the Father. The L. T. O. P. are intended to call the erring souls home where we all will be one in Christ Jesus. Pray for this work and help me to carry on. My funds are dwindling, and my debts in connection with this work are mounting.

God's Temple has not yet been finished, and we dare not feel conceited in our own comfortable dwellings. The harvest is still to be gathered in. Let us all work and pray. —Jacob H. Janzen

LAIRD, SASKATCHEWAN

I. What has been done in the little Church at Great Deer?

The Lord gave health and strength to conduct one week of revival services. During the days we made house to house visits and in this way we could touch twenty families. The Lord granted seven souls and many others were brought to a deeper spiritual life through the reading of the Word of God.

II. There are always some that we cannot reach in the cold winter season. When the Lord gives health my wife and I call on these scattered families during more favorable weather. In this personal work we have experienced many rich blessings. In some of our work we do not have joy, but tears. For instance, not long ago two mothers, one sixty-three years of age and the other one fifty-one, and one infant died. These deaths brought many tears. Will the reader please remember thes sorrowing ones in their prayers and the workers also? We also want to express our thanks to the ones that support the home mission work. May the Lord bless you all. —C. F. Sawatzky

ALBERTA COMMUNITY (MENNONITE) CHURCH

Portland, Oregon

The saying that Oregonians grow moss on their backs and web-feet has proven its worth during the last three months. We have had lots of rain which is untimely for the late summer and early fall season (so say Californians). The Lord has not only been gracious in this manner but has also sent "Showers of Blessings" in a spiritual sense. His grace and mercy are richly bestowed upon all

His children.

It is a privilege to be engaged in the Lord's work here in the city of Portland. In a time when we constantly hear bombers and other training planes over us, for we live near the airport where the air-corp is stationed, we can proclaim the gospel message of peace and inner security to those about us. "God is our Refuge." We take stock in Psalm 62 where we are enjoined to place our sole trust in Him. It is a timely message for our day.

The suggestion has been made that due to our Mennonite heritage our work should be chiefly in rural areas. We are appreciative of this vision and trust that more can be done for those living in outlying districts. This has been a burden on our hearts. Our little church has raised offerings for this specific purpose during the past year. But in view of Christ's great commission let us not lose our vision for city missions as well. We need both, one to supplement and inspire the other. This should be the case in regard to home and foreign missions. It has been our privilege to have close fellowship with Rev. and Mrs. A. Habegger of the Montana Indian mission field. One of the projects of our Sunday School has been to help Miss Rowena Horn of that station to attend Freeman Junior College. It has proved a blessing to all and has developed mission interests.

The Sunday School work among the children of our district is indeed gratifying and encouraging. Many new children are coming to our Sunday School this fall. They are eager to learn of Jesus. It provides a wonderful opportunity to shape and mould these young lives. Working with children is as planting a nursery. It requires much time of patient handling and cultivation to develop a seedling large enough to be grafted into a fruit-bearing tree. But, oh, the joy to see that tree bear its first fruit! So it is when we work with and teach the children. It is with this one hope that the Nursery-Man may graft His Spirit onto the seedling of our field of service and that it may bear fruit unto Him. We are inspired by the eagerness of the children, especially, when we see the indifference of many of their parents. We realize that they have many obstacles to overcome when there is no parental help. It prompts us to help them all the more to find their Saviour and Lord. We covet your prayers for these children.

For this reason we are very grateful to have Miss Etta Davis, a returned missionary from China in our midst. She has very graciously consented to help us with the children's work while she is attending the Multnomah School of the Bible of Portland. Miss Davis plans to open a Bible School Class for the juniors and the primaries on Wednesdays after school. The children are very enthusiastic about it and are looking forward to its opening. Mrs. Henry Schierling, formerly of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, will assist her in this work.

We are looking forward to the issuance of the mission number of The Mennonite and the inspiration that it brings. May God richly bless all of our efforts to bring the Gospel to the world in His Name.

PARTICIPATION

The work of the home mission workers, like any other Christian's efforts resolves itself into participation in Christ's great campaign of world evangelization. In the teaching and preparation of the Twelve, Jesus used four words which could be designated as the key words of their training and future activities. These four words are: COME, FOLLOW, ABIDE, GO. As workers in the home field we might well adopt these four words as our slogan for the coming year's work.

We realize from experience, that we need first of all to COME to the foot of the cross before we can efficiently follow our Lord and Master. There beneath the fountain of the shed blood of our beloved Saviour we lose much of that which makes us unfit for service. There we are emptied of malice, selfishness, hatred, and worldly ambitions. There we become empty vessels, which the Lord the great Potter can remodel into a new creation, a vessel fit and meet for the Master's use. Having received this cleansing we are ready for the next step, to FOLLOW.

"Follow me," was the Lord's call to Philip. To the two who had followed on the previous day it had been "come and see." Starting from the foot of the cross to obey the Lord's command to "follow" we are led into ways of understanding companionship. What an exceedingly rich experience those have had who have "followed" and tasted the sweetness of that blessed companionship. In the understanding, sympathetic, loving companionship of the Lord Jesus we experience just a touch of the fullness of that abundant life which He brought to us. And having thus tasted the satisfying elements of that companionship, it is not difficult to want to take the next step, to ABIDE.

This is an all important step in the experience of the worker, for Christ himself explains that as it is impossible for the natural branch to bear fruit except it abide (remain attached to) in the vine, so it is impossible for the Christian follower to bear fruit except he abide in Christ.

As we abide in the Lord, we grow and become grounded in the Word of Truth; we experience the unsearchable riches of the love in Christ Jesus; we feel the drawing and the urge of the Spirit, and in deep humility and with the feeling of unworthiness we yield to the call and with Isaiah we say, "Lord here am I, send me." And the Lord makes answer, "Lo, I am with thee, Go!" "Behold I have set before thee an open door and no man can shut it." I like to think at this point of the Upper Room experience of the twelve on that last night before Calvary. Had Jesus then pushed back the walls of the Upper Room and let them behold the future, as He in His Divinity might have beheld it, I wonder if any would have quaked with fear, if any would have wavered in their purpose? I think not. I think they would have let Peter speak for them in his former words, "Lord where shall we go, Thou hast Words of eternal life and we believe that thou art the Son of God." And so as we stand before the open door of service, God graciously witholds the view of the future from us. Perhaps, we like Paul will be dragged out of the city and left for dead; perhaps, our efforts will not be appreciated; I cannot help but remember the experiences of our early workers in Hopi Land.

How they toiled, how they prayed, how they pleaded, sometimes to apparently empty streets, yet did they give up the work? No, the voice of the Lord came again and again, "Be not dismayed, lo, I am with you."

Such may also be our experience; we have the same assurance of the presence of the Lord; we have the knowledge that before us is an open door; ours is but to "GO" at the command of the Master.

Then after we have toiled, after we have plowed the field, after we have sown the seed, after we have watered (yes, even with the water of bitter tears) after we have admonished, after we have reproved, after we have "done all we could;" then perhaps the Lord will ask us to let another come in and reap the harvest. This may be hard to yield to, but by the grace of God we will be enabled to say with John the Baptist, "He must increase but I must decrease." And in that trying hour, if we are "tuned in" to God's broadcasting station through the medium of prayer we may hear this: "OTHER SHEEP I HAVE." These I must bring into the fold. Will you PARTICIPATE?

All these things are necessary in the Christian life. First we come, then we BECOME followers; then we abide till we receive contact with the Infinite; then we go wherever the Lord would have us go, and then we endure as a good soldier the things He wishes us to in a world full of strife and turmoil. And yet we THANK GOD THAT WE ARE COUNTED WORTHY TO "PARTICIPATE."

MISSION STUDY

"Other Sheep I Have" is the name of a handbook on evangelism. This forty-eight page booklet contains seven articles that are all helpful in giving direction on evangelism. This booklet is free, and copies may be secured from Rev. J. J. Plenert, 429 Knorr Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

From the articles it appears that our home mission workers have already been busy finding and bringing into the fold many "other sheep." We hope that as you read you will note the number of conversions and the church additions which are reported. Note also that many churches are planning for definite efforts in the future to win more souls for the Master.

Winter is the time for study and for groups to become informed. The literature committee of the Women's Missionary Societies has published a pamphlet, "HOME MISSIONS." The cost is fifteen cents. You may order your copies from Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander, secretary, Quakertown, Pennsylvania. It is hoped that many mission societies and brotherhoods will study these three historical articles, "The Beginnings and Early History of the Home Mission Work of the General Conference of Mennonites," "Church Extension Through Home Missions," "Canadian Immigration Work and Home Missions." To miss any article is to miss some point of vital interest. Read and pray for the further growth of the work and the workers.

Yours for a great in-gathering,

—A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary.

Christian Love.

John 13:34,35 I Cor. 13:1-13

Introduction

Paul gives a marvelous exposition of love in I Cor. 13. He sets forth its lofty character and supreme importance. Love is the greatest thing in the world. It is heaven's greatest gift to a cold and selfish world. It is the "first and great commandment."

A New Commandment, vss. 34-35

Jesus is talking to his disciples in the upper room. He is speaking of the kind of love which Christian brethren should have for one another. Jesus has set for us the example of love in daily life. He loved every human soul. Each one was precious in his sight. His love for us, is the standard for us who say we are his followers. Jesus loved us even unto his death. This is a "new commandment" in that it is based on a new motive—Christ's love for us. This was a new thing in the world. "The love of Christ constraineth us," is the highest possible motive. This is no merely loving one's neighbor as one's self, but even as Christ loved. Such love is measured by a new standard in which Christ becomes the central reality in life. True love expresses itself in active good-will and helpfulness which men can see, and so recognize us as true Christians.

Love, the Supreme Grace, vss. 1-3

In Paul's great chapter on Love, he pictures it as the all inclusive and supreme grace from which all others spring. This love is shed abroad in the heart through the Holy Spirit. Paul mentions five things which were held in great esteem in Corinth. If love be lacking in these, they count as nothing. It is greater than the much boasted gift of fine speaking (vs. 1). The gift of prophecy may charm many, yet it is "nothing" without divine love. Love is greater than the power of miracle-working faith (vs. 2). Even the most self-sacrificing kind of philanthropy is as nothing if not motivated by love. Yes, even martyrdom will be of no profit for eternity, unless love be the compelling motive (vs. 3). Real religion is a matter of the condition of the heart and soul, and brilliant achievements can not of themselves make us acceptable to God.

Paul's Description of Love, vss. 4-7

Paul describes love by showing what it will do. He mentions fifteen marks of genuine Christian love. It is patient under injury and insult. It still loves on. Love "is kind." It does not know harshness. Love is free from all envy. It always seeks another's good. Love is generous toward others, it does not boastful about self. Love is humble, not inflated with pride. Love is curteous and considerate of others in all things. Love is unshelfish in heart. Love may often be grieved, but it is "not provoked." Love does not hold grudges. Love does not dwell upon the wrong and evil in others; it is never glad when others fall into sin. Love rejoices in righteousness in others. Love endures patiently and thinks the best possible of the acts of others. Love hopes unto the end.

Love is Permanent, vss. 8-13

Phrophecies, tongues, knowledge have their ending. All that pertains to our earthly condition will come to an end. Love has eternity, is permanent. Love partakes of God's nature. Our best knowledge is only partial (vs. 9), but it shall be more perfect (vs. 10). The wisest of us are but children now, but a day of fuller understanding is coming. Our knowledge of the future will be complete.

Love performs acts of service. It seeks with earnest zeal to anticipate and avert human misery. It will try to remove the causes of suffering and misery. Love seeks to bring about the change of the inner life that leads into fellowship with God.

We as a people in our nation, communities, and churches need to learn how to love one another, how to live together. Christian love is the warm and generous response of goodwill and affection which seeks the best for all. It springs from the heart of God. We deceive our selves if we put religious acts of worship, before living with love toward others. Our Christian love, if genuine, will forget self and think of the good of all. Christian love demands our obedience to God's will. If we love Him, we will obey Him.

Why do we so readily criticize people for what they say and do?

What is the difference between Christian love and natural affection?

Am I self-forgetful or self-seeking?

The Haughty Dollar

Fresh and crisp in his new green attire, the Dollar lay folded in the Churchman's billfold. Jingling about among the pennies and nickels, a little dime was playing.

"You'd better have a good time," the Dollar spoke through the partition, hearing the noise. "You won't be here long."

"How do you know?" The little dime stopped its frolicking, frightened at the idea.

"Because you're going to Sunday school."

"Do you go to Sunday school?" asked the dime of the Dollar.

"I?" exclaimed the haughty Dollar, in surprise. "Of course not! I go to shows and picnics, to gasoline stations and parks. Sunday is my big day, but I don't spend it in Sunday school. That's a place for small fry like you."

Obedience is not the mark of a slave—it is an important quality in leadership. The great leaders of this world have not been their own masters; they arose and followed someone higher up, and thereby became the greater. Obedience is a gateway to power.

With What Measure You Mete

"Madaki, the chief elder in the church, is also one of the most prosperous farmers in Kwoi, Nigeria. On a recent Sunday the following announcement was made: 'Madaki wants all the women to gather at his house tomorrow morning. Pass on the news to those who are not here, and tell them all to come.' When the women went to Madaki's house next morning, he asked them to go to his farm—about three and a half miles away—to carry home his field corn.

"One hundred and four women and girls responded and went to the farm with their baskets, little baskets, big baskets, and middle sized ones. Some brought back a big load, but others only a few ears of grain. One took such a heavy load that her strength failed before she got home.

"When all the loads had been brought in, Madaki called the women together and told them that each might keep what she had brought! There were shouts of joy and thanksgiving, but also signs of regret. 'If only I had known, I would have taken a larger basket,' was the plaint of some. There were those who had refused to go saying, 'I have work enough of my own.' These went to Madaki the following morning (their work seeming much less important now!) and begged him to let them go and bring in a load. But he told them quietly, 'The time is past; the corn was brought in yesterday.'

"Through this kind deed Madaki not only helped many needy families, but he also preached a quiet sermon. The Christians are telling and retelling the story all over town, always adding, 'That is just how it is in the Jesus' way.'

"Need we make the application?"

Have you furnished your soul with a well trained mind and a healthy body?

Why not grant others the rights we demand for ourselves?

These are times when we need to have our hearts made tender so that they can bleed over the needs of others.

The only safe place in the world is where God wants you to be.

The minister of the Gospel has a great work but he also has a great God.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Rev. Erland Waltner, Philadelphia, Pa.

NOVEMBER 23—"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." John 15:13.

The prairie fire had come and gone so quickly they could scarcely believe what had happened. It had swept over the little farm and left it in charred ruin. They were examining the ruins when they noticed the burned remains of a hen, sitting on the ground. One of the men moved the charred hen—and from underneath came two little chicks, frightened but unhurt. Covering them with her own body, the hen had given her life for her chicks. Christ has done this for us. He endured for us the fires of hell which burned at Calvary so that we "might not perish but have everlasting life."

"Were the whole realm of nature mine,
That were a present far too small:
Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all."

NOVEMBER 24—"The righteous dealeth graciously and giveth." Ps. 37:21b.

"You eat it," said the old woman, as she gave her piece of Christmas cake to the waif at her door. The child did not know she was eating the only special treat this woman had each year; she only knew that a loving, tender face was watching her while she ate. "The wicked borroweth and payeth not again; but the righteous dealeth graciously, and giveth." He who has learned the real joy of sacrificial giving has learned one of the great secrets of happy Christian living. The Christian gives graciously, with a smile, and without hope of return. He gives because Christ first gave to him.

NOVEMBER 25—"But the Lord pondereth the hearts." Prov. 21:2b.

The question is not, "What do people think of me?"—it is, "What does God think of me?" Many people who are keenly sensitive to social approval are utterly indifferent to divine favor. God does not ponder our social standing. He does not consider that "Clothes make the man." He is not impressed with our wealth, or education, or ability. "But the Lord pondereth the hearts." Whether my religion is socially or intellectually acceptable to others is a secondary matter. But whether my heart has been cleansed from sin and has been made acceptable to God is a concern of first magnitude. "My son, give me thy heart."

NOVEMBER 26—"And he hath put a new song in my mouth . . . Many shall see it . . . and trust in the Lord." Ps. 40:3.

The most convincing argument for Christianity is a glowing Christian life. More people are won to Christ by the witness of cheerful Christians than by the millions of unopened and unread Bibles on the shelves of our homes. The world does not read the Bible but it does read the Christian. We ask ourselves then, "What is the world reading in the lives of Christians in these troublesome days?" Christ has put a song in our mouths—not a blues song or a funeral dirge—but a song of hope and praise and joy which comes from the assurance of sins forgiven and from the faith in a victorious Christ. The Christian does not need to "whistle in the dark" but he is given real "songs in the night."

NOVEMBER 27—"Thou art the man." II Sam. 12:7.

"If I were you," we often hear people say, "I would do so and so." It bolsters our pride and covers our own sins to tell others what they should do or to point out where they are wrong. Yet, frequently, if we would examine our own lives honestly we would discover that we are no better than those we criticize. In fact, the very sins we denounce in others are the ones which cause us the greatest difficulties. David was quick to see the sin of the rich man in Nathan's parable, but it was only after honest self-examination that he recognized that he had been told of his own sin. Every time we catch ourselves saying, "If I were you . . . ," let us turn our counsel or criticism right back upon ourselves and say, "Thou art the man."

NOVEMBER 28—"He giveth unto his beloved sleep." Ps. 127:2b.

A certain minister in examining candidates for church membership asks them, "Do you sleep well?" The answer is often given with a puzzled expression, so he explains that sleep is a pretty good index of a good conscience and of a life of trust. Sleep is a gift of God. But worry may drive sleep away. If we allow our troubles which chase us all day to catch up with us at night when our heads touch the pillow, we may be robbed of this precious gift of God. We must learn the secret of a perfect trust in God which relaxes our tensions at the close of the day and lays hold on the promise of God, "He giveth unto his beloved sleep."

NOVEMBER 29—"Ye are the light of the world." Matt. 5:14a.

A famous candy-maker has on the outside of her candy box the slogan: "I can't make all the candy in the world, so I just make the best of it." When we see how much there is to be done in the world, we are sometimes tempted to do nothing at all, because our little bit seems too small to count. At such times it is well to remember that even a small light can be seen a great distance on a dark night. Perhaps it is not within our power to influence the course of world events in any significant way. But we can "brighten the corner" where we are by letting the light of Christ be reflected in our lives and thus show the way to some weary pilgrim as he gropes about in the darkness. His light in us must never fail.

NOVEMBER 30—"Our Lord Jesus, that great shepherd of the sheep." Hebrews 13:20b

A little French shepherd girl was brutally bitten by a dog while she was bringing her sheep home from pasture one evening. When she arrived at home and the doctor came to dress her wound, she said, "How fortunate that this happened just at turning-in time!" This led the doctor to ask, "So if the dog had bitten you earlier in the afternoon would you not have come home at once?" Then the girl, looking up with an expression as though the answer were self-evident, asked, "Who then would have tended my sheep?" She was a good shepherdess because she loved her sheep more than her own comfort. "The hireling... beholdeth the wolf coming... and fleeth" but "the good shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep." The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want."

This is a fine camp along the Super Highway, about seventy-five miles west of Harrisburg. Part of the boys are doing some work on this famous highway; others are doing rehabilitation in the camp; again others will be doing soil conservation work."

Seeds of Love

By Ellen Waltner

(The following oration was awarded first place in a Western District young people's oratory contest held in the spring of 1941.)

The flash across a five-thousand mile ocean cable reports: MISSIONARIES MUST RETURN HOME. GOVERNMENT CANNOT PROTECT. LEAVE AT ONCE.

This news comes via San Francisco. It is brought by telegraph here this afternoon. MISSIONARIES MUST RETURN HOME. GOVERNMENT CANNOT GIVE PROTECTION. LEAVE AT ONCE.

Missions . . . Yes! Because 1900 years ago a lowly Nazarene said before being lifted up in a cloud: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

For 1900 years it has been the task of the Christian Church to sow the seeds of love. The same Christ that gave the command, "Go ye," promised that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. So we have felt that if we sow the seeds of Christ in all lands, the seed will grow. But we forget that the seed needs to be re-sown in every generation. We forgot the real meaning and real depth of Christian missions. The real meaning of Christian missions is to tell of Jesus Christ to those who do not know Him and to help them live more happy and useful lives. Look at the world today! Yes, look at our own country, our own community, at ourselves. Is the task of Christian missions completed? Has the work been done?

Why is there no sunlight? Why, after 1900 years, do we move in shadows? The failure of the task of Christian missions is least evident by the fact that some of our missionaries are returning from China. Of course, that is a problem. But let us get at the root of the problem. Why are these missionaries coming home? Because there is war in China! The Chinese government cannot give them protection. And, also, the policy of our country is not clear. Once we announce that missionaries are to remain at their own risk; and then again, we threaten to interfere in the Far East. The exact course of our government is not clear. But, the big problem at the bottom of our total mission program is that we have failed to live as Christians ourselves; our land has not been truly Christian; the world has had to violate the principles of the Bible because the seeds of love have not been sown adequately.

The seeds of hate—not love—were in the Versailles peace treaty at the close of the World War. And for every cross that a country has borne, there have been a thousand Versailles! War among Christian nations makes a mockery of Christian missions. So, truly this is the time for Mennonites—for you and me—to promote the mission of peace and non-resistance.

So we are aware of the condition of our mission field in China. Our missionaries are returning from there, nearly all of them. Japan has nearly overrun China. But America is not blameless because the Chinese missionaries have been presented with empty shells fired by Japanese soldiers with the trademark: "Made in America." Is this sowing the seeds of love? Can we convince the Chinese that we mean to give them Christ when we furnish their enemies with bullets?

We had sixteen missionaries in China in 1940, at two central stations, K'ai Chow and Tamingfu. The secretary of the foreign mission board announced in The Mennonite Year Book of 1940 that the needs are gifts for the general treasury, gifts for the pension fund, special gifts to support native helpers, and prayers for the work and workers, especially in China.

No one knows the future of this work. We do know however, that the situation is very critical. Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Dirks, whom we all know in this district, because they come from our ranks, have been in the school of Chinese Languages at Peking. What faint glimmer of hope is there for them when the older missionaries have been ordered to leave the interior?

But let us turn to the other mission field, the field in India. Here we had twenty missionaries in 1940. The Penners and Thiessens returned to the field already. We are now celebrating forty years of continuous mission effort in this field. Dr. P. A. Penner is coming back from the field. He has lived through it all. His leper hospital has received the high praise of the British government. The work seems to be grounded on a great future. But is it? The British government has been very courteous and friendly. The superintendent of schools has given the mission schools a high rating. The Mennonite Leper hospital is known far and wide. The missionaries are free to go as they please. That is the condition now. But who knows how long it will last? The British government has been friendly, but Ghandi, a non-Christian, and Pandit Nehru, a radical Indian Nationalist leader, are waiting for an opportunity to break away from England. Britain is having a hard time to maintain her lifeline to India. She is threatened through the Suez and in the Mediterranean. If India should fall out of protection by the British, the future of mission work there would be in great peril. Perhaps, tomorrow the trouble will break. Who knows when?

I want to make clear that the problems of our mission program include not only those of finances or of saving souls. The last few years have brought to the front the large and all encompassing problem of the maintenance of our mission stations in the threat of war and in the face of war.

Now you can see that the solution to this problem is not simple. No longer can you and I be unconcerned about this most important business of extending the message of Jesus in days like these. No longer can we be indifferent to the tremendous forces that are moving over Europe and Asia and even, yes, even over our own United States of America. We cannot leave our mission fields; we cannot leave our mission friends in other lands; we cannot leave our mission task when there remains seed to be sown, tilling to be done, and harvesting to be accomplished. We cannot give up in the face of danger. Jesus taught the principle: "Go where I want you to go; do what I want you to do; Help where I want you to help; Build where I want you to build: Save where I want you to save!" Therefore, we cannot let up on our mission activity abroad. We must rededicate ourselves to the service of humanity regardless of the consequences to ourselves. That was the type of dedicating required of the early leaders of the Christian Church. We must rededicate ourselves to the service of our brethren regardless of the sacrifice, and in spite of the cost to our own interest. We must lose ourselves in the service of others. Having caught that spirit of service, that spirit of Christ, our part in the program will become clear. Let us begin here and now to meet that mighty challenge!

Plant lilies and lilies will grow.
Plant roses and roses will bloom.
Plant hate and hate to life will spring.
Plant love and love to flower will bring the power of the seeds we sow.

"It is usually not so much the greatness of our trouble as the littleness of our spirit that makes us complain." —J. A. B. Fry

THE BIBLE: GOD'S WORD

Ps. 19:7; 119:72, 97, 103; Heb. 4:12

Program for December 7, 1941

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Thy Word is Like a Garden, Lord," No. 290; "Thy Word Have I Hid in my Heart," No. 605; "There is a Name I Love to Hear," No. 496; "There's a Wideness in God's Mercy," No. 58.
2. Reading of leading topic, and sentence prayers.
3. Roll call answered by favorite verses from God's Word.
4. Offering for the spreading of God's word: foreign missions.

II. Leader's Introduction

The world, and the Christians, too, ask of the Bible today: "Canst Thou teach us and lead us in such a time as this?" There are so many things the world has not learned that are contained in the Word of Life which it so sorely needs. There is so much hope contained in it that the depressed world needs today. It has the needful light for the darkening shadows. There is healing in its waters of life for the ills of our time. It offers the remedy for mistrust, jealousy, ill will, hatred and enmity between individuals and nations. Its overflowing, life-giving waters will grow in abundance of the finest things on the hearts of man: faith, hope charity, peace, good will, faithfulness. Whoever comes in contact with the Word of God will feel its power and influence. It is the word of God to man today and will be His message to man tomorrow, and in the days to come.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Establishment of the Word, II Peter 1:20, 21.
2. Edification by God's Word, II Kings 23:1-3.
3. Effectiveness of God's Word, Isa. 55:8-11.
4. Expediency of God's Word, II Tim. 3:14-17.
5. Endurance of the Word, I Peter 1:24, 25.

IV. For Discussion

1. What different types of books does the Bible contain?
2. Is it best to read a chapter or two here and there, or a whole book of the Bible consecutively?
3. How can we make the Bible our own?

V. For Study

Material: The Bible, Story and Content, by C. W. Laufer. Each $1.25, from Abingdom Press, Cincinnati, Ohio.

This book has thirty-two short chapters with a set of well-chosen questions at the end of each chapter. Eleven chapters deal with "The Origin of the Bible," ten with "The Contents," eleven with "The Bible in Various Tongues."

The Graphic Bible by Lewis Browne—one of the finest books for Bible study for both the learned and the unlearned that I have ever run across. It contains one hundred "animated maps" which show where the great events of the Scriptures took place, large, very good print, the story of events told consecutively and interestingly. For anyone looking for a Christmas gift for a friend, this would be a good one.

Both books can be had through our book store at Berne, Indiana.

Doing What is Commanded

A man seeking for work was bidden to take a rope and pail, draw water fram a well, and pour it into a sieve. The work seemed highest folly, but he continued hour after hour the long day through. As evening approached he found the well nearly dry, when he happened to notice a bright sparkling light at the bottom. It proved to be a ring set with a brilliant gem which had been accidentally dropped into the well. He had not understood before; but having been instant and faithful in obedience he now saw the reason for the work he had been given to do. Here are some good words for every disciple of Jesus to bear in mind: "Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it."

VII. Food For Thought

OUT OF BETHLEHEM CAME THE SAVIOUR

Program for December 7, 1941

A Thousand Years Have Come

A thousand years have come and gone,
As in the days of yore;
Since happier light from heaven shone
Than ever shone before,
And in the hearts of old and young
A joy most joyful stirred,
That sent such news from tongue to tongue
As ears had never heard.

And we are glad, and we will sing,
And in the days of yore;
Come all, and hearts made ready bring,
To welcome back once more
The days when on wintry earth
A summer change began,
And, dawning in a lowly birth,
Uprose the Light of man.
—Thomas T. Lynch, E. H. Revell, Co.

Call to Worship

Leader: "O sing unto the Lord a new song; sing unto the Lord, all the earth. Sing unto the Lord, bless His name, shew forth His salvation from day to day." Ps. 96:1, 2.

Response: John 3:16.

Hymn: "O Come, All Ye Faithful."

Prayer.

Scripture Reading: Micah 4:1-4; 5:2.

Hymn: "Joy to the World."

Leader's Talk:

"The story of the Christ-child has been hailed by all critics as the 'sweetest story ever told.' One never tires of reading of the Wisemen and the Shepherds and how they saw the star. No more fitting guide could have been found for the Wisemen, for they were astrologers. We are not sure just what kind of a star it was, except that it was unusual in size and brightness. People of that day believed that the appearance of a new star heralded the coming of a great event. Therefore it was fitting that the greatest event of the ages should be announced by a new star.

"Since this new star was the star of Christ, let us place His name upon it. There are many names given to Jesus. Some of them are found in Isa. 9:6. Read the passage."

Vocal Solo: "Star of the East."

Poem: Christmas Bells

I heard the bells on Christmas Day
Their old familiar carols play,
And wild and sweet
The words repeat
Of peace on earth, goodwill to men!

And thought how, as the day had come,
The belfries of all Christendom
Had rolled along
The unbroken song
Of peace on earth, goodwill to men!

Till ringing, singing on its way,
The world revolved from night to day
A voice, a chime,
A chant sublime
Of peace on earth, goodwill to men!
—Henry W. Longfellow

Hymn: "Joy to the World."

Benediction: "The earth shall yield her increase; and God, even our own God, shall bless . . . and all the ends of the earth shall fear Him (Ps. 67:6, 7) and bless His holy name."

"There are strange ways of serving God;
You sweep a room, or turn a sod,
And suddenly, to your surprise,
You hear the whir of seraphim,
And find you're under God's own eyes
And building palaces for Him."

—Herman Hagedorn

Will Ye Also Go Away?

"From that time many of His disciples went back, and walked no more with Him" (John 6:66).

Jesus had been talking to His disciples and told them some truths, but it offended some of them, and they walked no more with Him. How sad! Then He turned to His Twelve and said, "Will ye also go away?" What kind of response did He get? Did they say, "Yes, many are turning away, and it is more than we want to stand?" Peter speaks—Peter who was scared and afraid of only a little maid. But here he knew what he was about. He said, "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the Words of eternal life." And he did not stop at that but said, "And we believe and are sure that Thou art that Christ, the Son of the Living God." There was no doubt in Peter's mind. On another occasion Peter said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," and the Lord said to him that flesh and blood had not revealed it to him, but the Father.

Let us bring it home to our own heart. We are living in the last days. Many are becoming weary and many are turning their backs to the Lord and are not walking with Him any more, and the Lord says to you and to me, "Will ye also go away?" How does it affect us? Can we say with Peter, "Lord, to whom shall we go?" If we have heard from Heaven we can say that. If we have heard from the other world we will not have anywhere else to go but just where He put us. There is no way back for the one who has heard from Heaven.

If we believe and are sure that He is the Christ, He is then the only one that we want to follow. What care we for the thorny way? What care we for the tests and trials that may come to us? "To whom shall we go?" The Psalmist said, "Whom have I in Heaven but Thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire beside Thee. My flesh and my heart faileth: but God is the Strength of my heart, and my Portion for ever." Our flesh and heart may fail at times, but He is the Strength of our heart and our Portion forever.

—A. E. Mills, in Gospel Herald

ALTAR CALL

By Clarence H. De Mar

My train did not go until later so I lingered after the inspiring evening service. With the low music and the quiet words of the minister there came a tenseness in the air. The moment for life decision was at hand.

The minister, well fed, well groomed, professionally eminent, was exhorting.

"Come, who will be the next to go all the way with Jesus? Give him your heart! He died for you!

God bless you, brother. Now who else?"

An usher tiptoed alongside a soldier near me.

"Brother, have you given your heart to Jesus? Have you gone the whole way?"

"I was baptized seven years ago."

"But do you know him as your personal Saviour?"

"Guess so."

"Guess so! Why, if you knew him you wouldn't guess! Won't you go to the front with the rest? Go all the way this time!"

"All the way! Listen, you—if I ever went all the way with Jesus would I consent to kill other Christians born under a different flag? Wouldn't I be more apt to end up in disgrace in an objector's camp? Do I look so dumb you think I don't know anything about his real teachings? I know all right, but what I have is the salve and thrill of a religion. I don't go in far enough to get into trouble. Now scram, before I get mad!" —Christian Century

PEARLS AND EYES

Most oysters are without pearls. It is the occasional one which, in some way, has received a grain of sand or some other irritant, and as it suffers from the chafing, there gradually developes the beautiful gem. If you will allow so strong a figure, the pearl is the tear solidified for quiet but permanent radiance.

Then there is the ordinary maple wood, beautiful but tame after all, compared with the spiral "bird's eye," with every single "eye" a circling wonder. Yet the tree specialists inform us that the "eyes" are "buds" or attempts at branches which have been frustrated—branches which have never come to the surface. These beauties are the result of defects!

Could it be that as in nature so in grace? Could it be that there may be produced in us a permanent beauty by the irritating things which come into our lives? Could it be that our good plans which have died in the making or before realization have added a permanent beauty to character which would otherwise be impossible?

If these things are to be so, certainly the suffering must be patient suffering and the defects must be in submission to the plan of God. "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt" was the great word before the great deed on Calvary. There was the awful Cross. But the glory of it has lighted the centuries. —The Free Methodist, in Gospel Herald

I HAVE LEARNED

That it is not always best for me to have my own way.

That I can, sometimes, be mistaken and others right.

That other people can disagree with my views and opinion, and still be right with the Lord.

That I am not the only one who is right with God and who preaches the truth.

That it is far better to live higher than I preach than to preach higher than I live.

That the goodness of a truly good man will stand on its own merit and needs no bolstering.

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is a day on which we are to be especially thankful to God for all His good gifts. Food, raiment, and shelter are, indeed, good gifts which should move us to humble thankfulness and to consecrated stewardship of them. But material things, as necessary and good as they are, are not God's best gifts. God's best and most necessary gifts to us are the things of the spirit. Without them human beings tend to live on the animal level, regardless of how great material abundance may surround them. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Which comes first, the spiritual or the material? Therefore, should not we on the day of Thanksgiving above all else give thanks unto God for that which nourishes our souls?

May we not well pause in Thanksgiving for such gifts as these: The great satisfaction which fills our whole being when we are true to the light which God doth give us. The rapid spiritual growth which is ours when we yield ourselves wholly to God. Self-respect, the result of doing our best. That freedom from fear that we gain when self becomes nought and Christ all. The ability to pick out sound kernels of truth from the prickly straw of criticism. The possibility of overcoming evil with good. A sound mind with which to think clearly. Cleanliness, quietness, and rest. The baptism of joy which takes place when we win others to Christ. The privileges of church membership. The opportunity to attend and support Mennonite Schools. The Christian care manifested in our Mennonite hospitals and old people's homes. The inspiration which comes from all lives lived sacrificially for Christ and His Kingdom. The growth of character which comes from work, responsibility, and hardship. The fact that all things work together for good to those who take the right attitude of love towards God. That God seeks us before we seek Him. Life eternal. Christian family life. Music which cleanses and lifts our souls to God. Books that give us the best of other human minds and hearts. The inexhaustible riches of the Bible. The willingness of Jesus Christ to shed His blood on the cross so that ye might plumb the depths of God's love and forgiveness and enter into blissful fellowship with our Father in heaven.

If we learn to be thankful for such spiritual gifts, then we will not have to exhort ourselves to thank God for His material blessings. Such thanksgiving will be added unto that which is most important.

THANKSGIVING

Margaret E. Sangster

For the days when nothing happens,
For the cares that leave no trace,
For the love of little children,
For each sunny dwelling-place,
For the altars of our fathers,
And the closets where we pray,
Take, O gracious God and Father
Praises this Thanksgiving Day.

For our harvest safe ingathered,
For our golden store of wheat,
For the corn lands, and the vine lands,
For the flowers upspringing sweet,
For our coasts from want protected,
For each inlet, river, bay,
May thy bounty, full and flowing,
Take our praise this joyful day.

For our dear ones lifted higher
Through the darkness to the light,
Ours to love and ours to cherish
In dear memory, beyond sight,
For our kindred and acquaintance
In Thy heaven who safely stay,
We uplift our psalms of triumph,
Lord, on this Thanksgiving Day.

For the hours when heaven is nearest
And the earth-mood does not cling,
For the very gloom oft broken
By our looking for the King,
By our thought that He is coming,
For our courage on the way,
Take, O Friend, unseen, eternal,
Praises this Thanksgiving Day.

THOUGHTS ON CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

OUR MONEY

By Rev. Gerhard Friesen

We start again with the thought that, for a Christian, stewardship means the complete consecration of all that he has for Kingdom purposes. Seek ye first His Kingdom and His righteousness.

Last time we emphasized our stewardship in regard to our faith in the peace principles. At this time we want to think about our stewardship in regard to material things.

Money is a medium of exchange. The value of practically everything is measured in terms of money. The possessor can use it to acquire life's necessities as well as luxuries. Sometimes it is used to obtain things that are harmful. If I am God's steward of the money in my possession, will I use it to buy anything that is harmful either to myself or to others, or will I be able, without scruples of conscience, to buy any luxuries while I see others in need and want? It is true that necessities are not the same for all, but with real love for our fellowmen, the number of the so-called necessities could be greatly reduced. If we would make a careful check-up on what we buy, many a one would find quite a list of things without which he could do, as well as such that could have been used longer. Fashion sometimes makes for wasteful living.

Occasionally one finds people whom God has blessed in a special way, either by oil deposits under their land, or in some other way, who use practically all such unearned income to buy land or to invest in some other property for themselves. Such riches seem to harden their hearts against the needs of their fellowmen, and to deaden their interest in the Kingdom of God. Sometimes even the relationship between the children is sadly marred because of such property.

Then again, there are the many organizations which one can join and which demand considerable fees. Some of these build halls and temples in which Christ has no place. One who considers himself a Christian steward will carefully weigh all these facts. Even supporting a seemingly good cause like the Red Cross, which is so intimately connected with the war system, should make a Christian steward think. When we remember how many channels we have, such as relief, peace work, the camps, etc., that can use all our support and more, and through which we can be much better witnesses for Christ and His cause, this business of Christian stewardship becomes quite serious. We expect our young men to know where they stand and to be willing to sacrifice. Does not this apply in other fields also?

There is another field which takes much Christian wisdom for right giving. Most of us have observed that professional evangelists have a knack for pumping money. I do not say that they do not deserve support, but when one notices how much money they drum together, one cannot help thinking that commercialism has crept in under the guise of religion. These men go from place to place and know how to use religious pressure and emotional strain to bring the money into the collection plate. To weaken any resistance they even claim to tithe from such gifts. What is a tithe if I get two hundred or three hundred dollars from donations? Why not give the sum outright to some cause where it does the most good? When we think of our missionaries, who are underpaid rather than over-paid, and how some of them give the tenth (some even two-tenths) of their meager salary to bring the message of life to those among whom they work, it seems wrong to fill the pockets of these evangelists who go from place to place and enrich themselves. If their work stimulates the giving spirit, let us give them what is due, and use the rest to support our own workers whom we know, and not give it all to those who often secretly, if not openly, ridicule our stand on the peace principles. They know that the Mennonites usually are good givers and endeavor to profit by it.

We mention the tithe above. Is the tithe a Christian principle of giving? What would you say if I had an income of from five hundred to one thousand dollars a month and gave the tenth? Would you not be inclined to say, "He merely tries to put his conscience to sleep?" I know families that do not make five hundred dollars a year, yet they support their church, give for missions and other such causes, often denying themselves necessities of life. How much could a person having an income of five hundred to six hundred dollars or more a month do for the Kingdom of God if he were really interested. If he took his stewardship seriously he would keep enough to supply the essential needs of his family, and, if he had a business, enough to carry on this business in a Christian way, and the rest would go into bringing the Good News of Him Who said: "Follow me," to the needy in the world. Jesus did not have a place to lay his head, and He invites us to follow Him. In some cases that might mean giving nine-tenths or more. Folks who do not learn to give sacrificially and try to make it possible for poorer folks not only to live, but also to share in the giving service, do not know of how much real joy they rob themselves and others. Many think joy and satisfaction come from large possessions, while in fact they are a by-product of being a true friend, a Christian friend, to fellowmen.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

Chicago, Illinois

In looking back over the past year we can see where in many things we have perhaps not measured up to what we should have. However, in spite of our failings we can truly say that the Lord has been good to us and has blessed us. What the future holds for us we cannot say, but we do know that there is a great mission field here in the city, and the conflict between the forces of good and evil stands out very clearly as we seek to win souls for the Kingdom and to maintain a church that is willed with the Spirit of Christ.

Much of this year has been spent in getting acquainted with the field and the work. Perhaps it would be of interest to our friends to know something about it.

Our church is located on the south side (seventy-three blocks south and fifteen west of the Loop, or the heart of Chicago) in a beautiful residential section. The people of this area consist mostly of the middle class, of working people and business men. Many are employed in shops and business firms of this area. A large per cent of our people are home owners, which makes for a stable community and church life.

A religious survey taken some time ago revealed that more than one-half of the people of this area are Catholics; the remainder is made up of the different Protestant faiths and of non-church going people. The survey revealed that most of the people of this area are affiliated or belong to some church; however, there is that group that does not attend or belong to any church. It is among this group in particular that we strive to arouse interest and try to bring them the gospel. Two weeks of evangelistic meetings were held last spring, and special efforts were put forth to get these people to come. The result in that respect was not very satisfactory. We did, indeed, get a blessing out of the meetings, but failed to attract those that we especially wanted to come. This has been true not only in our church; it seems to be characteristic of similar meetings held in other churches in the city. The powers of darkness seem to have a strong hold on these people who are lost, and it is no easy task to make them realize their need of Christ.

However, the work is not without its fruit. It is among the children of the community that we see the greatest opportunity. Parents are not interested in coming to Sunday School and church, but they do want their children to come to Sunday School. It is among these children that we have a very fertile soil in which to sow the Word; it is surprising to see how many of these children from non-Christian homes take a real interest in the Sunday School, and how they work to bring their friends and parents also. This work with the children is interesting and fruitful, but it takes wide-awake leadership in the Sunday School to interest and attract young people in the face of the many temptations and attractions of the city. Our Sunday School has a membership of 117, and at present we are having a special campaign to bring in new members. We have several strong auxiliary organizations all working to build up the church and to proclaim the Gospel. Our Young People's Fellowship has about twenty-five members. They conduct their own worship service every Sunday evening and have an hour of prayer and Bible study every Tuesday evening. Once a month they also take charge of the service at one of the Negro missions on State Street. The Young People are also quite active in their support of Miss Grantland, a mission worker in the mountains of North Carolina.

In such a large city we have to face the competition of the world in a way that makes the work slow and difficult. The impact of world conditions and the spirit of the day stand as a barrier before us. However, we believe that as Mennonites we have a contribution to make here, and we covet the prayers of our friends.

Ancient Dream

The world is full of broken dreams;
The days are filled with scarlet pain,
The nights with dark, Satanic schemes.
And sometimes men, as though insane,
Set hungry, black-mouthed guns in line—
Till heart and home and life are riven.
But in my soul a dream is mine:
I still believe in God and heaven!
I've watched the storm-god smite the world;
And when his drums had ceased to roar,
I've seen a splendid rainbow hurled
Upon the sky—and felt once more
No storm of sin could ever blow
So raging wild, or last so long,
But what somewhere, some time, somehow,
The right should stand above the wrong!
It must not, shall not, cannot die,
This ancient dream that truth and right
Shall lay a flag on every sky
Above the wreck of sinful might.
I still believe a kingdom grand
To sons of God must yet be given!
That they beyond this pilgrim land,
Shall live at home with God in heaven!

LANDMARKS

Another six months of the new year have passed. The Lord has given us health and strength, for which we thank and praise Him. Following are three of the chief landmarks which stand out along these six months of highway.

Joy: The joy of sowing and harvesting has been ours. The harvest is evident by the increase in numbers as well as the advancement in organization and spiritual growth. Rev. Duerksen's reports will give details of this much better than I can.

We think there has also been progress in the hospital. In the past few years we have especially stressed better work, such as will be a credit to our Lord and Master. About six months ago a patient came to the hospital with a strangulated hernia. His condition was extremely serious, and remained so for some days. He was miraculously healed. Later he was baptized. He is one of the most direct fruits of the hospital work.

It has been a joy and cause for thanksgiving that in these days of famine and high prices we have been able to give work to so many. The moving of the school has done much to make this possible.

Sorrows: The adversary is ever at work. Sin, indifference, betrayal, denial of His Name, these are all as common as the day is long. But, praise His Name, these can all be matched or more than matched by the fruits of the Spirit and the qualities of love which are ever evident.

Work: Rev. Thiessen arrived just before the beginning of the new school year. There is yet much land to be possessed in building up the school. The Janzen Memorial Boys' School is almost completed. The last of the rooms to be finished will be ready for use in a few days. Between the digging of the foundation and putting on the roof the price of metal increased so much that we are facing a real difficulty. Besides the school house, we dug a well and put up another master's house. We aso constructed a dam, partly as a relief project, and also to meet a definite need for the hospital and gardens.

We expect to go on with the building of the church. This work has been at a standstill since Christmas. We hope that by Christmas, 1941, mission funds for the roof will be on hand. This week we started digging the foundation for the doctor's house. We hope that we can employ a doctor soon, but as yet we have no definite prospects.

With sincere greetings,

—H. E. Dester

SOME NEWS NOT SO GOOD

On October 17 Sister Elizabeth D. Goertz wrote: "Right now we are betwixt the occupants and those in the local town. Both are clamping down upon our institutions, and we are much in their eye..... Just what even the next few days will bring is only known to God. We pray continually for the Lord to cover all, to overrule all, and to lead on with His hand.

"Carry all of us on the hands of prayer these days. In no other way do we dare to face the future. More next time. Pray for us continually."

Since Sister Goertz is now chairman of the mission in K'ai Chow, we can understand her feeling of responsibility, with only Sister Regier to assist her directly. Brother and Sister Brown and Sister Kuyf are in Taming.

When the missionaries ask for prayer, it is no empty phrase. They mean what they say. We dare not disappoint them.

SPIRIT OF GOD

Here in the Basna area we have some churches which are twenty years or more in existence. About a few we have to say it just literally that way—existence, and nothing more. They just exist, but not much life nor activity. Then again we have others, and thank God, a good many, which are in some instances very young, which are as vigorous as we could imagine the bride of Christ to be at her very best.

Just a few weeks ago Rev. J. R. Duerksen invited me to come along for a baptismal service in one of the villages. To my surprise we went some twenty miles. There we came to a poverty-stricken, small, dirty village, houses shabby, and at the first glance one could not help thinking in the line of ancient Nathaniel's thought that went, namely, "What good can come out of this?" We entered the village; a whole string of cheerful faces met us, men, women and children. After the profuse oriental welcome they said that the place of worship was ready. They took us through a narrow loop between two houses, which one would be prone to call shacks. Between these two houses was a little open courtyard. On top of this open courtyard they had spread a cheap mat, in order to keep the fierce sun somewhat off the heads of the visitors. We all sat down in this improvised shade. For us visitors there were bedsteads to sit on. Our entertainers sat on the ground. The worship services started with a vigorous song and a fierce fluttering of a setting hen who was disturbed from her nest in one of the houses in front of which we sat. She was so excited that she hopped from one head

By Rev. Jacob H. Janzen, Waterloo, Ontario

DECEMBER 1—"Set your mind on the things that are above, not on the things that are on earth." Col. 3:2.

We must stand on solid soil to be steadfast. There is no use of soaring up into unreal heights of which we know nothing. If we want progress we must keep our feet on the ground of reality, but our heads must be uplifted into the air. Our yearnings go out for a better life. We must grow up from the material to the spiritual, because reality is very often so harsh, yea, even cruel. If we want to be happy we must not try to dig deeper and deeper into the dust of earth but to rise up toward the things that are above. Our mind must be set on these things and the trend of our journey must be upward.

DECEMBER 2—"And he said, He that showed the mercy on him. And Jesus said unto him, Go, and do thou likewise." Luke 10:37.

This is December. Christmas is approaching and you know perfectly well whom you love and want to make happy on Christmas day. There are so many whose joy you would like to enhance and whose riches you would like to increase. But Jesus draws your attention toward mercy. He is a neighbour to mankind who showeth mercy on the miserable. The scribe asked Jesus who would be his neighbour; Jesus turned the question around and asked him, "Whose neighbour are you?" Are your neighbourly feelings limited by family, race, or such like? If so, then you are no better than the heathen. Christ came from heaven to be our neighbour on earth. Are you willing at this season to go, stoop down to the miserable, and do like He did?

DECEMBER 3—"The testimony of Christ was confirmed in you: so that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ." I Cor. 1:6-7.

Our children expect that the Christ Child will shower an abundance of blessings on them, but their parents ask them, whether they have been good to expect that, and tears fill their eyes because they know full well that they will be found wanting. You will overlook at this season their shortcomings and try to be a rich blessing to yours as a servant of the Christ Child. But no farmer would expect a bumper crop unless he has tilled his fields properly. Christmas or no Christmas. And you, as a child of God, did you permit the testimony of Christ to be confirmed in you, so that you are behind in no gift? Then you may wait with confidence for the day of Jesus Christ, our Lord.

DECEMBER 4—"Now shall my head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me." Ps. 27:6.

Are you waiting anxiously to discover which way the events will turn, and how the problems of this world will finally be solved? Then you are waiting in vain. You will never in this life see the end of all things. But you can see God now if you lift up your eyes. You will, perhaps, never know who will be the final victor in this world's wars, but you can be the victor above your enemies round about you now, if you hide in the tabernacle of the Most High. Above all, you can now be the victor over the enemy in your own heart and conquer sin through Jesus Christ. The victory that begins there will finally overcome the world.

DECEMBER 5—"When He, the Spirit of Truth, is come, He will guide you into all the truth." John 16:13.

Never will the Spirit of Truth compromise with the evil spirit of sin. Only if and when our hearts are cleansed by the blood of the Lamb and thus have become temples of the Holy Ghost can we be guided into all the truth. Never will men be able to conceive the truth unless the Spirit of the Truth moves them toward the conception of all the truth. All the wisdom of our days is bound to make destruction as effective as possible. The great lie of sin has succeeded in convincing mankind that their salvation lieth in the effectiveness of destruction. Unless we learn that evil can be overcome only by good, even at the cost of our lives, we will never see a truly happy world.

DECEMBER 6—"God said unto him, Thou foolish one, this night is thy soul required of thee; and the things that thou hast prepared, whose shall they be?" Luke 12:20.

You feed your body with all the vitamins from A to B, etc. But your body is nothing if it is not the soil on which your soul can thrive. And it is the soul that will be required of you, maybe this night. The body will be left to decompose in the grave, but your soul will most certainly be required of you. The world says that it is foolish to figure on anything that is above the material; but the Spirit of God says that it is foolish to strive for anything that does not make for the preservation, salvation and clarification of the soul. Every life is utterly worthless that is not made happy and worth while by the spiritual side of it. You will profit nothing if you neglect your soul.

THE NATURE AND WORK OF THE CHURCH

Acts 2:41-47 Eph. 4:11-16

Introduction

In the apostolic days the word "church" was applied to the whole company of Christ's followers and also to the local communities of believers. In its broadest sense the church is the whole company of those who are saved, of those who are believers in Christ. This is the church which Christ loved and for which He gave his life. He said, Matt. 16:18, "I will build my church: and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." He was her founder, and He builds her up through the operation of His Spirit. The divine resources back of the church are infinite, and she will continue to be His church. In our lesson there is suggested the work of the organized churches in general, of every denomination.

A Model Church, vss. 41-47

Peter's Pentecost day sermon had a tremendous effect (vs. 41). It was simply scriptural argument made effective by the power of the Holy Spirit. It was the result of ten days of meeting with God in prayer (1:14). These converts who openly confessed their faith in Jesus as their Saviour. The work proved to be lasting. They continued steadfastly in four great essentials for the church: 1. The apostles' teaching. They instructed them how Christ is the fulfilling of scripture. 2. In Christian fellowship with the apostles and with one another. This is one of the necessities for healthy Christian growth. 3. "In breaking of bread," the celebration of the Lord's Supper in regular obedience to Jesus' commandment. 4. "In prayer," united in earnest prayers, living in the spirit of prayer. Very many Christians of today fail to follow this example of the apostolic church.

Love abounded in the early church. Each regarded his property as a sacred trust for the whole body of believers (vs. 45). They assembled together frequently for worship. They continued their Jewish temple worship of God (vs. 46). In addition to this they had Christian services, celebrating the sacrament in their houses. The church took the place of the synagogue. They led lives of praise, gladness, and singleness of heart. Such a church must grow also in our time. The inevitable result was that many were led to salvation by the lives of the Christians. Those who professed regeneration were baptized on confession of faith and received into the church. Church membership ought to mean more than it, far too often, does at the present time.

The Work and Growth of the Church vss. 11-16

The work of the church is essentially two-fold —to win souls for Christ and the church and to build them up in the faith. Jesus gave Himself and gave the gifts mentioned in our lesson. Paul gives a remarkable description of the divine work given to the leaders in the church in leading the members into the deep things of God. Each member has a definite part in the life and work of the church. The purpose of the work of these leaders is "for the perfecting of the saints," for their edifying, for their spiritual up-building (vs. 12). The goal of this spiritual stature is the "fullness of Christ" (vs. 13). Christ, the full-grown spiritual man, should be seen in us. The qualities of Christ should be seen in the members of the church. Such full-grown spiritual maturity will make us immune to accepting crafty, tricky and false doctrines (vs. 14). We, too, need to guard against these in our day. Under the control of Christ the whole body of the Christian Church functions and develops.

The church needs to help create that environment which is conducive to true Christianity and to oppose such social conditions which degrade and lead astray. The church of the first century was on fire for God. She stood true. We are concerned with the church of today, of which we are a part. The church of our lesson was a joyful church and practical in aiding the needy. It was an intelligent church, well instructed in doctrine. It was a worshiping church. We need to make all our church services worshipful by careful planning, prayer, and conduct in the house of worship. Our homes, too, ought to be centers of worship. The church has the message which the world needs today. Christ, the only hope of the world, is the message of the church.

What testimony do we present by our lives to our non-Christian friends and neighbors?

What are some sure marks of a mature Christian?

What are some winds of doctrine today of which Christians need to beware?

SPIRIT OF GOD

to the other, whether visitor or home folks. But we all kept on singing. The heart of the worship was that nine souls were joined to the Kingdom through baptism. All young people, except one man who was middle aged. Who would have thought that in this neglected village the Spirit of God was at work? But He was, and the results were before us. Our humble brother Dani has brought Christ to these poor people, and they accepted Him with great joy.

C.P.S. CAMP NEWS

A Mennonite Central Committee report of October 21, 1941, states that 455 boys from sixteen Mennonite groups are now in Civilian Public Service camps. This comprises about one-third of the total who are in Civilian Public Service camps throughout the country.

Mr. G. C. Martin, Project Superintendent of the Marietta Camp, in a letter describing the work of this camp, has the following to say:

"Into this work on June 2, 1941, came the Civilian Public Service Camp, No. 8, to carry on this work of national importance. These young men have at all times proved their willingness to co-operate in every way possible and to do the work assigned them in a highly satisfactory manner and with neatness and dispatch.

"It would be hard to assemble a more genial group of young men. They have at all times conducted themselves as gentlemen. They are eager to learn, and it is my hope that after returning to their respective homes they will consider the time spent here not wasted.

"Much credit must be given the camp staff for their efficient work. Theirs has been no easy task. They must operate under many handicaps both within and without the camp, and I want to go on record in saying that they have done and are doing a splendid job."

A Blessed Thanksgiving Dinner

By Elizabeth R. Blough

Ellan Gordon was thinking, "'Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits.' I do remember them and thank him for giving me so much; maybe the time will come when I can thank him for what has been withdrawn but not yet." She felt that if James Murray had lived they might have been married.

"Good morning, Ellan; you are all through with your cleaning ahead of the rest of us."

"Sit down, Susan; I did not have much to do this week; I am glad you came; I want to ask you something. Just because I am an old maid is no reason for being discontented or unhappy. Yet I do envy the woman whose children are like olive plants round about her table. There's something like that in the Psalms. But this year I can't bear to sit down to my dinner alone on Thanksgiving Day. Jesus talked about going into the highways and hedges; that's where I am going to look for my visitors."

"Them in the hedges was poor folks; we haven't any suffering poor in Glenside; they said so at the ladies' aid."

Ignoring this statement, Ellan continued: "Susan, where are you going to spend Thanksgiving Day?"

"Going? Why, I'll go to church; then I'll go back home; that's all the going I'll do. I get lonesome enough to talk out loud to myself many a time."

"Will you come to my dinner?"

"And sit down to your table with other folks?"

"Of course, and I believe I'll have all my guests help me in the kitchen to prepare this dinner."

"That will be what we'll all enjoy. I feel honored because you invited me," answered Susan.

Ellan went first to the home of Doris Kratz, who lived in an apartment; it was clean but cold and cheerless. Ellan invited her, "I need my friends on Thanksgiving Day. Will you come to dinner?"

"To spend Thanksgiving Day with you? How did you know that I was heart hungry for friends?"

"Because I, too, am lonely; come early and help us in the kitchen." Then Ellan stopped at one of the fine houses in the town. Jane Fulmer met her at the door. She was in deep mourning for her husband; one who refused to be comforted, was Jane. Ellan gave her the invitation.

There was a reproach in her answer: "Oh, Miss Ellan, how dare you suggest such a thing? Me come to your house, and him lying alone out there? He was with me a year ago."

"He would'nt want you to spend your years in grieving; say you will come and help us in the kitchen?"

She shook hear head sadly, "You don't know what it means to lose one you have loved."

Ellan thought of her own lover, but she did not speak of him. After she had invited all the women she had included in her plans, she went home wishing she had more room for those who were lonesome and in need of understanding sympathy. When Thanksgiving Day came, Ellan set her table with her best china and linens. Then she went to church, where she met some of her guests. They accompanied her home. Dinner was to be served at three in the afternoon. Ellan had laid down the turkey, and was getting ready to stuff it, when Jane Fulmer came in; she said, "If I am not too late, may I stuff the turkey? I brought oysters and other things."

"How dear and thoughtful of you; we all appreciate your coming. I have so many things to look after, the turkey is yours."

The old-fashioned kitchen was large enough to give plenty of room to the women who were cooking cranberries, cleaning celery and arranging side dishes. Happy voices were heard as all seemed to be talking at once. Ellan went to the telephone and heard Mrs. Stevens asking, "Have you room for one more guest? I am alone and I should like to be with you?"

"You will be most welcome. Dinner is at three, but most of the guests are here now."

When Mrs. Stevens came, she brought snowy gardenias and laid one beside each plate.

Dinner was served at three o'clock. Jane Fulmer came in from the kitchen, carrying the turkey. She was followed by other women, each one carrying a dish. Ellan arranged them on the table. Mrs. Stevens sat at the head of the table. Jane Fulmer sat at her right. When all were seated there was a reverent silence; then Ellan thanked God for his mercies, his blessings, for this friendly company about her table. Jane Fulmer carved the turkey. Soon all were served and eating the best dinner they had ever tasted, or so they declared. The sincere friendliness of the occasion brightened every face. They told each other of Thanksgivings which were in the past; reminiscences were enjoyed. Mrs. Stevens voiced the sentiment of each one when she said: "Each woman here would have been alone today if Ellan had not brought us together; blessings on her for giving us a real Thanksgiving."

The air was white with feathery snowflakes when they went to their homes in the early twilight. But as they went echoes of light laughter drifted back to Ellan standing in her doorway. Jane Fulmer had said, "I am inviting each one of you to come to my home for a dinner; we need each other." —Gospel Messenger

Among the Migrants

by Onieta J. Tiahrt

This past summer there were over four hundred young people engaged in some sort of service projects in areas of social conflict throughout the country. They represented nearly every denominational group as well as every social and economic group in the United States. But they all had the same goal, namely, to identify themselves with the people among whom they were working, while at the same time demonstrating to the best of their ability the Christian, non-violent way of life.

Thanks to the Men's Bible class of the Bethel College Church and the American Friend's Service Committee, who provided my scholarship, I spent eight wonderful weeks at a Friend's Work Camp in Delano, California.

They called our camp a migrant work camp, but while we lived in a small town right in the heart of the San Joaquin valley where the migrant problem is a very vital one, and where most of the events portrayed in "Grapes of Wrath" took place, Delano had social problems of its own. In general, however, they were related to the whole migrant problem. Delano is one of these towns which is divided by the railroad tracks, so that all of the "nice" people live on the east side and the other people live on the west side. And the reason for this is that on the west side, you can find representatives from eight different national groups, including Japanese, Korean, Mexican, Filipino, Molokan Russian, Negro, and what have you. And our problem, which was almost on a par with the manual work projects, was to work out some plan which would establish better community relations. The camp the year before had aided in the establishment of an Inter-Community Council composed of representatives from every national group including a representation from the east side. Through lack of a real project, however, this council had stopped meeting. We managed to revive it, and after finding out what was wrong, the work camp and the council together managed to work out a plan for a nursery school to care for the pre-school children who often as not were left in the car or on a bundle of sacks while their mothers worked in the fields. The superintendent of schools who at first was a little hostile to the work camp, took up the idea for a nursery and promised to have it incorporated in the school system with the members of the council as the advisory body.

The work camp felt that they had accomplished their aim not so much in the establishment of a nursery school, but in getting a group of people interested in the welfare of both sides of town.

Now to describe the camp itself. We lived on the west side in the grammar school. Our nearest neighbors were two Mexican families and a Japanese family, who were practically a part of the camp. We were more fortunate than most camps, because we had all the facilities of the cafeteria at our disposal, which included a dining room, large kitchen, a room which we used for our laundry, and another which we used as a library and reading room. Because of the extreme heat, and also because we found that the mosquitoes congregated more inside than outside we slept out in the school yard. There were sixteen of us at camp including thirteen campers, the director and his wife, and the assistant director and his wife. We got up at 5:30 every morning, had breakfast, held a thirty minute period of silent meditation, followed by a planning meeting to discuss the activities of the day and anything else which came up, and then worked until twelve. At this point, I would like to say that the period of silent meditation somehow formed the spring from which our whole camp life flowed and to me was one of the most profound experiences, I have ever had. It was the most strongly unifying force in our camp life. It was amazing how personality conflicts and other problems which are inevitable in any group would be dissolved during the period of morning meditation.

And now, on with the schedule. During the first four weeks of camp, it was impossible to work in the afternoons because of the heat, so we spent our time reading, meeting the people who lived around us, and resting. Several discussion groups were held in the afternoons, also. Supper was served at six, and quite often we had visitors, friends of the camp in Delano, people who came to talk to us on various subjects, members of the Service Committee, etc. The evenings were taken up with discussions of topics in which the campers were interested, meetings where outside visitors talked to the camp, folk dancing, singing, and attending different social events which were planned for us by the people among whom we worked.

We undertook four major work projects during the eight week period. Since our aim was to establish better community relations, we wanted to get as well acquainted with the different national groups as possible, and to show that we could get along with all of them. For that reason, we shingled the Korean Church roof, and helped in the completion of the Filipino Full-Gospel Church. Both the Koreans and the Filipinos showed their appreciation of our efforts by inviting us to a dinner at which only their native food was served. Through this means, we came to know a large number of members of both groups, and were thus able to understand them better. Our third project was the construction of tent platforms for the county migrant camp at Shafter. The county camp, unlike the federal camp at Shafter, was simply a barren section of ground set aside for camping grounds for the transient workers. During the winter months, the camping ground becomes quite wet, and it is during these months, also, that the camp is usually full. It was for this reason that we were authorized by the County Health Department to construct twenty-five platforms which would raise the tents up off the ground. Our last project was painting the inside of the Southern Baptist Church in the more or less permanent migrant settlement just outside Delano.

During the summer, we took quite a number of field trips which were designed to acquaint us with all the aspects of the migrant problem in California. We visited nearly all of the federal migrant camps, even spending one week end in the camp at Farmsville where we lived in the little tin houses and endeavored in every possible way to conduct ourselves so that we would be considered a legitimate part of the camp. We also visited one of the large fruit ranches which employs these workers so we could get some idea of how they were administered. Three of our number spent one week at the state cooperative conference, and then reported to the camp on that movement in California.

On Sundays, different members of the camp always visited the various churches in Delano, of which there are quite an abundance (fourteen to 4,000 population). It was through this means that we made most of our contacts, and since we always invited them to visit us, it was not unusual for us to have members of several different racial groups at our folk dance evenings, attending our evening discussions, or sharing our meals.

The contribution which the camp made to us, was, I believe, far greater, than the one which we made to the community. This contribution was threefold, first of all, we learned a great deal about the "migrants," about the people, themselves, and about their relation to the state as a "problem." Second, we learned to appreciate, and to like, and to understand people of many different colors and nationalities. And third, the camp was a great experiment in co-operative group living where we learned to share the work as well as the play, and to get along with sixteen other people during eight weeks of intimate contact.

II. Leader's Introduction

The work of the General Conference in the field of foreign missions began as one of its first enterprises. It has been a field of major interest ever since and one of the strongest connecting links between the churches of the Eastern, Western, Middle, Northern, and Pacific districts. The interest in this field has made for a feeling of unity between the churches. Missionaries through their travels in the churches of the conference, telling about their work, have stimulated a common interest in the cause of the Kingdom. Wise leaders have seen the need for home missions along with the foreign work. There have been good workers here, too, who have done some pioneering in these fields for our conference. There is room for growth and continued effort here, and the General Conference is trying to meet the needs in the fields where it has assumed responsibility.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. A sketch of the early work among the American Indians.
2. Our present stations among the Indians, the workers on these fields and the work they are doing. You can get a large map of our mission stations among the Indians as well as study material from Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa.
3. Evangelistic work in India.
4. Schools of our Missions.

7. The later years and the development of the work.
8. Present day needs and problems.

IV. Question Box on the Work of Home Missions

Who are the workers? What are their stations? Where do we find them? Items of interest about the work.

V. True Stories from Our Mission Fields

While visiting a section of the community, I made a special point to visit Habil's home. He and his wife Manji Bae are young Bible school students who are attending here for the first year. A new baby boy arrived three days ago in the home. Now they are a family of five. The one-room home was very dark when I arrived. None of the evening sun could get in because a crude shelter of bamboo mat kept the rain out over the doorway, and another crude shelter over the window made an outdoor kitchen. The mud floors had turned into mire. Without a mother or sister, or any hired help to tide over during these days of extra work, this young mother and father helped themselves. The baby was sleeping nicely, dressed in warm clothes, on the bed. The mother was consoling the other little son, hardly more than a baby too. He and the little sister were hungry for supper, but mother only sat on the floor holding him and saying, "Daddy will soon come home to cook supper." With the cooking wood piled up in one corner, one bed used by the baby, two more beds set up along the wall to be out of the way by day time, a small study table, a few boxes and trunks, the dark room was so full that Manji Bae and the children sat in the only spot left, the middle of the room. "If it were only not so wet the children would play nicely, and we could manage better." It is the best Jangir can do for the many young families that have arrived, eager to take work in the Bible school.

—by Mrs. S. T. Moyer

She was carrying some wet clothes in a brass vessel on her head as she followed her mother, who was carrying a similar heavier burden to the river. It was washday. Priscilla was thoughtful. Somewhat haltingly she broke the silence. "Mother."

"Yes, daughter."

"Mother, I was thinking—I am a very fortunate girl. I have three or four dresses. I have never gone hungry. We have always had rice. Chandramani is not so fortunate. She has only one dress. Her father almost died the other day when he had his sick spell, and he cannot work. When the deputy commissioner was here and we had to sing for him, Chandramani had to keep on that dirty dress because she had no other. I felt so ashamed."

"Yes, daughter, God has been very good to us to give us our daily bread."

After another thoughtful pause. "Mother, I was thinking—would you let me give Chandramani one of my dresses?"

The mother, herself a radiant Christian, inwardly rejoiced that her little girl was willing to spare a dress out of her own meagre wardrobe. "Why yes, daughter, that's a good idea. You may give her any dress you choose."

"I'll give her the red one," she quickly replied, "but it is dirty. I must wash it." So saying, she dashed back, and bringing the dress, washed it, and gave it to her little friend.

Two little girls went to sleep happy that night.

GOODWILL PUT INTO PRACTICE

Program for December 14, 1941

(Make booklets in the shape of bells to give out at the meeting. Print program on the inside. Arrange chairs in the shape of a bell.)

Song: "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day."
Scripture Reading: Matt. 5:38-42.
Prayer Song: "Holy Night, Peaceful Night."
Sentence Prayers: (That we may show the love of God in our daily lives, and really practice good will.)
Piano Solo: "Christmas Carols."

Talk: Bells of Giving

"Jesus said, 'Freely ye have received, freely give.' At this season of the year we can ring the Christmas bells by freely giving of our substance to help those whose lives are dreary. We have many needy in our community who need food and clothing, and many little hearts will be anxiously beating, wondering whether someone will remember them.

(Sing prayerfully, unaccompanied:)

"Take my lips and let them be Filled with messages from Thee;
Take my silver and my gold,
Not a mite would I withhold."

Talk: Bells of Serving

"Jesus said, 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.' The 'fields are white with harvest' and the laborers are so few. Most of us cannot take the message to foreign lands, but we can help and encourage the needy at our door.

"There are ever so many people who are so discouraged that they need a little interest and friendship as badly as they need the food and clothing. With a little encouragement they could go on and make a living for their families. Many times we could aid them, if we would only take the time to speak a good word for them.

"As long as there are people who are not Christians none of us should ever be guilty of saying, 'There is no work for me to do.' "

(Sing prayerfully, unaccompanied:)

"Take our lives and let them be Consecrated, Lord, to Thee;
Take our hands and let them move
At the impulse of Thy love. Amen"

Talk: Bells of Loving

"God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life."

"The greatest gift which we can give our Master is the gift of self. In giving that, we can give our love. Love is the greatest, most lasting thing in the world. Paul says that love never faileth. If we truly love our king, we will never fail Him, and He longs for our hearts."

(Sing: "I Would Be True")

Song: "O Come, All Ye Faithful."

Reading: "Why the Chimes Rang."

Discussion: How can our society put goodwill into practice this season?

Prayer and Benediction.

Intermediate Expressional Service.

The suggestions below came in after the business committee had arranged the program, but they can be discussed at some time.

2. What is being done about the suggestion by our young men to hold meetings in our churches?
3. How far should one go in inviting people who are members of other churches but do not attend any church?
4. The problem of church discipline. (two pastors)
5. What can a pastor do when he does not see growth on the part of his members?
6. What constitutes Modernism?
7. What false teachings particularly are troubling our churches?
8. How can we make our ministry bear much fruit in these days?
9. Good plain Bible studies will be appreciated.
10. What attitude should we, as pastors, take toward the modern amusements, such as theaters, road houses, beer parlors, and dances. What should we do with members who participate in these amusements?

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN S. EWERT, son of Henry and Aganetha (Shroeder) Ewert, was born March 15, 1876, at Yankton, South Dakota. In the year 1878 he moved to a place northeast of Dolton, South Dakota.

On November 26, 1903, he was married to Elizabeth Schultz with whom he shared life's joys and sorrows. He was baptized upon confession of his faith on October 7, 1894, in the Salem-Zion Church, but he attended the Bethel Church which was a branch of the Salem-Zion Church until it was organized as the Bethel Church of which he was a faithful member until his death. He served his Lord and Master as trustee of the church for seventeen years.

Father had been ailing for a number of years. Several years ago he developed hernia. He consulted different doctors who advised him to have an operation. On June 12, 1941, he went to the hospital. Six days later he was operated. He left the hospital in great faith that his health was restored. He came home on July 1, but the Lord had different ways in store for him. Instead of getting well he began to lose shortly after the operation and kept getting weaker until the Lord took him home October 12. He reached the age of sixty-five years, six months, and twenty-seven days.

His suffering was great, but he took his burdens to the Lord in prayer and was very patient in his illness. He made the remark that he wanted his suffering to be to the glory of God.

He leaves to mourn me, his wife; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Ewert of Saginaw, Michigan; Josephine of Virginia, Minnesota; Leon of Syracuse, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Ewert of Syracuse, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Dick of Marion, South Dakota; and Johnny at home. He also leaves to mourn one sister, Mrs. Henry P. Tieszen; and two brothers, Zacharias Ewert and Peter S. Ewert; four grandchildren; and a host of relatives and friends.

MENNO E. BADERTSCHER, age forty, city councilman and grocer of Bluffton, Ohio, and a member of the Bluffton First Mennonite Church, died of spinal meningitis on October 31.

He is survived by his wife, Geneva; a daughter, Colletta, and three sons, Daryl, Don, and Larry, all at home; a sister, Miss Anna Badertscher of Bluffton, and four brothers, Dan, Fred, and William, all of Bluffton, and Noah of Beaverdam.

JOHANNES D. JANTZEN, son of Franz and Gertrude (Penner) Jantzen was born October 21, 1870, Gnadenfeld, South Russia. In the summer of 1876, he with his parents migrated from South Russia to America, arriving at Peabody, Kansas, on July 4.

Father was baptized January 20, 1888, by Rev. J. S. Hirschler in the Hillsboro Mennonite Church. On January 1, 1897, father was married to Louise Janzen of Mennoville, Oklahoma. On August 8, 1933, mother preceded him in death, a loss he keenly felt.

His education began in Russia, attending school at the age of five. In America his school attendance was limited to a few months of the winters of 1877 and 1878. He had youthful ambitions to become a doctor, but finances would not permit the fulfilling of his desires, so he remained on the farm to till the fields and eventually took over farming as his life's work. Farming, however, was only a means of providing a living for his family. His chief interest was in church work and in the education of youth. He served as a member of the Lighthouse school board for many years and always had the welfare of the community at heart. Father showed great interest and helped financially in the development of Bethel College, also providing the opportunity for all his children to attend that school. Likewise he was also an ardent supporter of the Hillsboro Bible Academy and served as a member of the board for many years.

Father also manifested great interest in church, Sunday school and Christian Endeavor work. At the age of seventeen he taught a Sunday school class and has been a Sunday school worker ever since, serving as teacher or superintendent. In 1917 the church elected him to be an evangelistic minister in which capacity he faithfully helped the pastor until October 1940, when he resigned. As a minister he proclaimed the love of God and Him crucified. He loved to minister unto the sick and sorrowing, and although he was at times misunderstood he believed that "As much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." Romans 12:18. In this spirit he aspired to become like unto Christ.

He was a widower for seven years and on October 20, 1940, he was united in marriage to Mrs. Agatha Froese of Inola, Oklahoma. This happy union was tragically ended last Friday.

To us children he was a good father, who was always interested in our spiritual, as well as physical, welfare. On the morning of the day of his tragic death he was busy at work filling out necessary papers for the Mennonite Aid Plan, being district secretary for this organization. At about 10:30 he and mother drove out to the farm. He always enjoyed working on his old homestead. At this time he was raking alfalfa. Just what occurred we are only surmising, but the Lord called father to his home eternal where he will serve the Lord.

He leaves to mourn his sudden departure his devoted wife and her family, two sons and four daughters, seven grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends. Surviving children are: Henry W. Jantzen and family, Hillsboro, Kansas; Gertrude, Mrs. Samuel Baergen and family of Wichita, Kansas; Katherine, Mrs. Alvin E. Wiens and family, Hillsboro, Kansas; Dr. J. Marc Jantzen and family, Stockton, California; Dorothy, Mrs. P. K. Dirksen and husband, Moundridge, Kansas; and Rosella, Mrs. Roland Dirksen and husband of Moundridge, Kansas. —The Family

CONFERENCE OF HISTORIC PEACE CHURCHES

Waterloo, Ontario,—October 29

(A Statement of Appreciation)

One of the privileges of a recent trip to Canada was the opportunity to attend the annual Conference of Historic Peace Churches. As we think of the darkness of our world, experiences such as these are as twinkling stars pitted against a background of penetrating blackness. Three great impressions are lodged indelibly upon my mind and heart.

First, the spirit of understanding and brotherhood was refreshing. There we were, delegates from more than a dozen groups, separated by hundreds of miles, but yet unified. To be sure, as one scanned the capacity congregation, one could see quite a difference in outward appearance, but hearts were united.

Second, a genuine devotion to our common heritage was evident. Although the roads travelled through the centuries by the various groups were varied, there was in all of them that great consecration to the ideal of peace. This gave to our group a new spirit of appreciation for our heritage and for each other.

Third, all the sessions were charged with the spirit of an "all out" effort to make our testimony ring true in the present hour. We cannot rest complacently on the sacrifices of the past, but God has intrusted this message to us in our day. In the words of our chairman, Bishop E. J. Swalm, "We have a chance to stand for the Truth, and the Truth is worth standing for." The Gospel of Jesus Christ is still the answer. We are faced with an opportunity and a challenge. It is a glorious one! Let us be true!

The various C. P. S. camps are publishing at regular intervals interesting papers. Their contents tell of the religious, educational, and recreational activities of the camps and frequently contain some very worthwhile reading material. Following are some of the names of the papers: The Bluffton Peace Sentinel, Bluffton, Indiana; The Olive Branch, Grottoes, Virginia; Pike View Peace News, Colorado Springs; The Olive Branch, Dennison, Iowa. Anyone interested in receiving these papers should write to the camps. Subscription rates are reasonable.

A bulletin from the National Service Board for Religious Objectors dated November 5 states: "At the present time there are 1309 regular assignees and 16 parolees in 19 CPS camps. An additional 307 have been assigned as of November 7 and November 25, which will bring the total to 1695 by the end of this month. It is expected that about 300 more will be assigned in December to bring the total close to 2000 men by the first of the year."

The same bulletin also says: "A new order from Selective Service Headquarters which will come through in about 10 days, will eliminate deferments of married men who have married after the receipt of their classification notices."

General Hershey, Director of Selective Service visited the Dennison, Iowa, C.P.S. camp on November 1. He seemed well pleased with the spirit of the boys in camp and noted also with satisfaction the manner in which the soil conservation work was progressing.

Brother David Wedel, having served his six months as director of the Marietta C.P.S. camp returns to serve his church at Halstead, Kansas. Brother John F. Schmidt of Buhler, Kansas, will replace Brother Wedel as director of this camp on November 20.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

Darkness fleeing, Light arising
And I watched that fiery sphere
Splatter among the heavens.
Daylight molden,
Darkness scolded,
Life unfolded
From its quiet slumbers here.
Then as twilight shades grew nigher
Thought I, must we lose that fire
And again in blackness, blindly grope our way?
But the star-gleam
Took the sun-beam
And re-cast its hidden hues
In a brilliant, sheen sapphire.
Once before in Old Judee
Son-light glowed down from that tree
Sending forth its healing glow
From that cleansing crimson flow,
Scattering blots of blackest sin,
Letting lighted love shine in.
Sun of Righteous, take our lives
Each a brilliant shining star
Moving meek in Thy great pattern
Lest ourselves, Thy beauty mar.
Son-light streaming,
Mercy beaming,
Sin-redeeming
Shining ever, shining far.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Freeman Junior College Annual Founders' Day will be observed on December 12. Rev. P. A. Penner, who has completed forty years of mission service in India and who is now serving the First Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, will be the guest speaker. Musical numbers by the Girls Glee Club, the Men's Quartet, the present choir, and last summer's choir tour, will be shown. A one act peace play, "Peace On Earth" will also be given. In the evening slides on "The Early Life of Christ" will be shown, and Rev. Penner will give the concluding address.

—The Johannestal Mennonite Church, Hillsboro, Kansas, recently had a series of evangelistic meetings, conducted by Rev. Lester Hostetler of Bethel College. Some of the themes were: "Why Be a Christian," "Christian Simplicity," "The Meaning of Non-Resistance," "The Silent Sufferer," and "My Church."

—Many of the men at the Colorado Springs Civilian Public Service Camp observed Armistice Day by fasting. This was done for the purpose of getting a sense of fellowship with the people of Europe who are forced to suffer the effects of starvation due to the food blockade and to protest against the blockade which is depriving of life the very people for whom the war is supposedly being fought.

—Rev. P. P. Tschetter, pastor of the Pretty Prairie (Kansas) Mennonite Church, wrote on November 9: "The Lord willing Brother Victor Graber will be ordained as minister of the gospel in the First Mennonite Church at Pretty Prairie on November 30, at 2:30 p. m. The prayers of God's people are desired. Today I leave for the Civilian Public Service Camp at Dennison, Iowa, and Monday evening I will leave for Gretna, Manitoba, where I will take part in the Bible Week held at the Mennonite Collegiate Institute. I will also visit some churches."

—Grace Moyer of Allentown, Pennsylvania, wrote the article, "Why I Am a Christian," which appeared in the November 11 issue. Miss Moyer is editor of the C. E. Witness which is the young people's paper of the Eastern District. Other errors in the above issue were the result of an undue and unnecessary delay in the mails which prevented the "dummy" (arrangement of type in The Mennonite) from reaching the printer in time.

—Rev. John F. Schmidt has resigned as pastor of the Buhler, Kansas, Mennonite Church. Brother Schmidt assumed his duties as director of the Civilian Public Service camp at Marietta, Ohio, on November 20. Rev. David Wedel, former director, has returned to his pastoral charge at Halstead, Kansas.

—The following General Conference churches; Hebron, Hoffnungsau, and Buhler, and the Mennonite Brethren Church of Buhler, Kansas, recently participated in a Sunday School convention, held in the Buhler High School. The combined choirs sang the closing number. The attendance was large.

—Mrs. P. R. Schroeder writes: "My address after November 23 will be Lodi, Wisconsin, instead of Mountain Lake, Minnesota. Last week a cablegram from my children, Orlando Waltners, Champa, C. P., India, reached us, announcing the birth of a boy on Wednesday, November 5. This cablegram was read to us over the phone. We were happy for two days. Then on Saturday when we got the cablegram itself and read it over, we were saddened to see the word, "still-born" in it also, which the operator failed to read when reporting it to us, but which made such a world of difference. One word, but what a difference! Our hearts are especially saddened, since it tears open again the wound which is not healed by any means. I have been living under severe strain for over two years, but praise the Lord that I can claim Isaiah 26:3, 4."

—Rev. W. H. Unruh of Pulaski, Iowa, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the West Zion Church of Moundridge, Kansas. Brother Unruh will begin work there with the beginning of December.

—The church unity committees of the General Conference and of the Central Conference of Mennonites recently held a joint session at Bloomington, Illinois. These committees are seeking a way in which the two conferences may coordinate and unify their activities.

—As a result of evangelistic services by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander in the Richfield, Pennsylvania Mennonite Church, the pastor, Rev. B. S. Graybill, was able to admit into the church six by baptism and one by letter. —Corr.

—The Grace Mennonite Church of Lansdale, Pennsylvania, will have home coming meetings from December 2-5. Brother Howard G. Nyce, pastor of the Allentown and Upper Milford charge, secretary of the Eastern District Conference, member of the Foreign Mission Board, and chairman of the Pre-Millenial Fellowship of Allentown and vicinity, will be the speaker.

—The Grace Mennonite Church Messenger

—Dr. Edwin McNeill Poteat, pastor of the Euclid Ave. Baptist Church of Cleveland, Ohio, and peace worker, conducted the annual Bluffton College Bible lectures during the week of November 9-14. In connection with these lectures a minister's retreat was held on Wednesday and Thursday. Dr. R. Lincoln Long of the Collingwood Presbyterian Church of Toledo, Ohio, and Dr. O. N. Baker, sociologist from the United States Department of Agriculture were the speakers.—Due largely to the efforts of Mrs. S. K. Mosiman Bluffton College now has a set of chimes for the college chapel organ. Mr. D. K.

Roth and family of Gibson City, Illinois were the benefactors. Mrs. Mosiman was also instrumental in getting the pipe organ for the college.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH
Newport, Washington

"Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation." II Cor. 6:2.

Greetings to all readers of The Mennonite. Many things have taken place since anything has been written from here. In June we had the blessed privilege to entertain the Washington Mennonite Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention.

The week end of July 4, sixteen of our young people, with the pastor, attended the Young People's Retreat at Clear Lake, near Yakima, some three hundred miles away.

During the summer the children in the community had mumps and whooping cough. Some of the older people also had mumps.

August 30 Henry Dalke was married to Edna Nafziger of Colfax at the Onecha Mennonite Church, and on September 7 Gordon Kliewer was married to a girl from Sandpoint, Idaho. Both young couples live at Ione. The men work in the mine at Mateline Falls.

On September 14 we were privileged to receive seven new members through baptism and four by the right hand of fellowship. May God give these young people grace to withstand temptation in this day. On October 19 Mrs. Henry Dalke was received into the church by letter.

The men who were away working in the harvest at Menno, and those in the apple orchards at Wanatchee have come home.

Our new church building is not yet completed. Some work is being done. The base for the furnace is made, but the furnace has not come. We have received some fine contributions from our Pacific District churches. They have helped us along very much. May God bless these gifts. —A Reader

WOODLAND MENNONITE CHURCH
Warroad, Minnesota

Greetings in Jesus' name. During the month of August our church membership was increased by four when Mr. and Mrs. Dave Fast and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Fast joined the church.

Rev. Schultz from California visited our church in August. From September 30 to October 9 we had the privilege of being blessed with revival meetings held by Rev. Jacob Friesen of Doland, South Dakota. Special music for the services were in charge of various members of the congregation.

Another harvest season of grain and fruits is ended, but the harvest in God's vineyard will not be ended till He calls us home. May we therefore so let our lights shine that others may be gathered into the fold ere night cometh. Let us not grow weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

EINSIEDEL MENNONITE CHURCH
Hanston, Kansas

We have had some lovely rains this fall, enough so that our farmers have been able to sow their wheat, and there is some fall pasture, the pasture being mostly on volunteer wheat. Our grass pastures have also made a remarkable showing in the last year. Buffalo grass is lifting its heads up through the blow-dirt in pastures where we thought nothing could ever grow again. For all this we praise our Heavenly Father, for we feel it a direct answer to prayer.

On the morning of August 24 we had our annual harvest thanksgiving services, and in the evening of the same day we gathered on the beautiful lawn at the Ed Hirschler home, where we had our annual picnic. We ate our basket lunch and played some games, planned by our social committee. This was followed by a half hour of Bible drills. Then we gathered together under a beautiful starlit sky and sang the first verse of each one's favorite hymn, ending with "Silent Night, Holy Night."

During September Brother G. A. Linscheid, who represented our congregation during August, was to be with us to give us a report on the General Conference, but he was taken ill just a few days before, so we have not had a report on the same. Our pastor and his wife attended the Western District Conference at Hutchinson and Newton.

November 9 four young souls were received into the congregation by baptism; this was a very impressive service—long to be remembered. The meeting house was filled. Sunday November 23 we will have our annual Thanksgiving dinner in the basement of the church. November 27, Thanksgiving Day, we will have services at 10 a. m.

A False Doctrine

In the Moody Monthly of November, 1941, there is given the following question and answer in the section on "Practical and Perplexing Questions."

"Question: We do not believe in war. The Christian's armor does not provide for it (Phil. 4:19).

"Answer: Sorry, but the Bible is not on your side in this matter, for there are righteous wars. Defense of one's country in case of attack is considered proper by most people. Our God is described as a "man of war" (Exod. 15:3). King David was accustomed to seek God's guidance in his military affairs. In New Testament times, John the Baptist did not demand of the soldiers that they lay down their arms (Luke 3:14), nor did Jesus do so of the centurion, nor Peter of Cornelius (Matt. 8:5; Acts 10). Evildoers were to be punished by the sword (Rom. 13:3, 4; I Pet. 2:14). Aggressors from without the state are to be fought against as well as transgressors from within. The Christian as a citizen has duties to the state, as well as the non-Christian. Defense of one's country is as much rightly expected of the Christian as of the non-Christian. God makes no exceptions. In this warring world a nation has the same right of self-defense as has the individual when his life or the life of a loved one can be preserved in no other way. Moreover, a citizen of the United States has special liberties handed down to him by his forebears, who once fought for them. How can we do otherwise than fight to preserve them?"

To us who believe in Biblical peace (in contrast to worldly peace), a peace that for many religious people truly passes understanding, the above answer is false doctrine. For us the above statement is not true to the whole Word of God and the whole Christ. As such we must guard against the influence of those who teach this false doctrine.

By no means need we doubt the sincerity and good faith of those Christians who do not believe the peace teachings of Christ. Their zeal and sincerity in other matters is, indeed, worthy of commendation. In fact, in large areas of their Christian life many of these may far outshine the living of many Christian believers in peace who fail to be very conscientious in non-peace matters.

Yet sincerity and fervency without full knowledge of all of Christ's teaching and spirit is insufficient. The wild modernist or liberal may be very zealous in his views and theories, but he lacks very much. Knowledge must go with fervency and sincerity. Where knowledge of the Bible is scarce, false doctrines easily abound. Where knowledge of Christ's teachings and spirit in regard to war are ignored there easily creeps in a fervent Pharisaical formalism, which leaves untouched the deeper and harder matters of the spirit.

Because our forefathers wanted to avoid such religious formalism (which did not go deep into the very practical issues of daily life) and wanted to be truly Christlike, they refused to join Luther and Zwingli in their military protected and promoted reformation. Luther is reported to have been convinced of the essential rightness of our peace stand. But the pressure of world circumstances made a mixture of Christianity and militarism ever so much more delectable, and he took the easy way. Luther was a great man, but he would have been even a greater man had he stood up for his early peace convictions.

There are Christians who long for earnest, deep, spiritual living. Yet they like all Christians are not free from the temptation to conform to the ways of the world. These ways of the world become doubly tempting and dangerous when presented by earnest, zealous men who attempt to make the way of militarism seem respectable, "proper," and Christian. Therefore, our young people who are anxious for earnest, deep, spiritual living are tempted to accept with this deep spirituality the terrible sin of militarism. They are tempted to believe that the two go together. They are tmepted to believe that adherence to the peace position goes with carelessness, shallowness, and disregard for earnest, spiritual living. They are sorely tempted because much good and some evil (a very grave and great sin, however), are presented together.

Therefore, those young people who, moved by the most worthy purpose, go to schools or churches where such false doctrine (as given in the above answer) is taught, are presented with a very subtle and dangerous temptation. That some of our people have become confused and have yielded to this false doctrine is a sad fact. Should not we, therefore, be especially on guard against it?

Our own Mennonite Bible schools and colleges and churches should be our means for guarding against this false doctrine. Certainly, our institutions lack a great deal in deep spirituality. However, they are ours. We can much more easily exercise a controlling influence over them than we can over institutions which are not ours and to whose disadvantage it would be to promote adherence to our peculiar doctrines.

Let us not run away from the problems which our own institutions present. Let us face them in a humble, persistent Christlike way. The person who does not go to church scoffs at those inside the church because of their evident mistakes and failures. Let us not be Christian scoffers of our own institutions. As the worldly man should be in the church, so we need to be in our own institutions, bringing about a deeper spirituality in ourselves and in our Christian brethren. Let us be such leaven, and we will be more successful in guarding our young people against a very false and pernicious doctrine that comes from a mixture of Christianity and worldliness. —rw

Golden Gossip

By Mrs. J. Z. Gilbert

Never heard of such a thing? Well the term does sound a bit out of the ordinary, but it was real gossip and it was truly golden as you will concede no doubt when the whole truth is known.

The meaning of the expression is less easily defined than illustrated, and so here is the story as it was told me: The peace of a certain community was being greatly disturbed by the continued talebearing of one individual. Backbiting had become the order of the day as a result of the busybody reporter, who took it upon herself to relate to the neighbors any insinuating or slighting remarks she happened to hear about them.

Then one day a true-blue Christian moved into this particular locality. It was not long until the talebearer called and began introducing this new neighbor to the various families of the vicinity—at first by making some pleasant remarks and then following with all sorts of uncomplimentary hear-say tales. The good woman listened to all that was said, but very wisely put aside everything of a besmirching type which the caller told her, meanwhile taking careful note of whatever was kind enough to repeat. Then later as she became acquainted with the other women of the neighborhood she told each one the kind things that Mrs. So-and-So had said about her.

The transformation was like magic. The community atmosphere cleared, troubled thoughts were replaced by wholesome cheer and neighborhood friction gave way to neighborly friendships.

WITH CHRIST ON THE EDGE OF THE JUNGLES

By Rev. S. T. Moyer

The Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Ind., $1.00

"With Christ on the Edge of the Jungles" is the burning, living narrative of a valiant achievement in modern missionary pioneering. The book belongs in the stream of noble Christian chronicles; it is one for which Mennonite people should feel a humble, though thankful, pride. So outreaching is it in scope, yet so replete with sound method and mission practice, that it should pass the bounds of denominational reading and be a source of inspiration to Christian workers everywhere.

The Moyers have been in India since 1920, and readers of The Mennonite have long been helped by their stirring letters and calls to prayer for the Indian work. Rev. Moyer has never despised the craftsmanship of the pen; rather, he has studied and toiled to master its intricacies that the work of the kingdom might be glorified through his words on the printed page. Thus, there is good writing in the little book. It opens and progresses for a time in almost allegorical style. The author has lived so intimately with the words of Holy Writ, with the Anglo-Saxon of John Bunyan, and with the writings of the church fathers, that his phrases are steeped in their spirit. The feet of many of his readers are doubtless mired in the clay of the commonplace, so when the style falls into the more familiar mode we are on surer footing.

The story opens in the jungles of India in May, 1924. Rev. and Mrs. Moyer are alone, sixty miles from the railway, among half-hostile natives, surrounded by a teeming, wild nature. The narrative pauses as the author pays tribute to those who passed this way in years gone by and left in the hearts of a few the longing to know more. Then follows the amazing story.

Local opposition means changing locations again and again. There are heartbreaking delays in purchasing the land and starting the building program; even water from a buffalo wallow must suffice until the first well flows. From prodigious labors a home and well-planned mission center gradually evolve. The jungle is beaten and transformed into gorgeous fruit, vegetable, and flower gardens. All this is basic, important, but it is not enough.

The mightiest jungle to be conquered lay in the lives of a parish including hundreds of towns and villages. Surely, no one can read of this intense struggle of years with sin, poverty, and ignorance, and not be mightily moved. Bringing Christ to this area, widening the work from village to village, is done with a zeal that exacts almost the last ounce of physical and spiritual energy. The problems and emergencies are endless.

There are detailed life stories of those who are nurtured into fine Christian living, and of those who lapse back into the jungle. There is a powerful chapter on poverty and the effort to meet this ill through the Christian Loan Society. There is the ever-present fear lest the missionary become too much the center of the station, weakening the native in his slow rise to stability and service. New Christians must ever feel the urge to evangelize their own people. The missionaries must ever draw mightily upon God's strength and His Word. They study Paul's methods of training for leadership in the new churches, and there emerge bands of utterly devoted pastors and lay leaders. Other missionaries come for special tasks, but Rev. Moyer and his wife are the only ones who labor from the beginning until 1937. Hundreds of Christian homes, a school cited by the government for its fruitful methods, twenty and more churches established, a fine hospital—such is the blessing of the years, the story of the Basna Mission.

Though not voluminous, the book cannot be read at one or two sittings. Strong situations so predominate, and the high points tread so closely upon each other that reading and thinking—reading and thinking—is the only method for the book's perusal. We close it, feeling with the author that "a highway has been established, the way of holiness."

"OTHER SHEEP I HAVE"

When some of our missionaries return from the foreign field to the homeland and take up work in our home churches they sometimes feel a lack of concern on the part of the home folks for the salvation of everyone in their respective community. At the instigation of one of these returned missionaries the Home Mission Board appointed a committee of three to make a study of the need and practice of evangelism among our churches and to make some efforts to promote the cause in our midst.

The committee sent out a questionnaire to most of our churches in an endeavor to find out what was being done and what more could be accomplished, also as to what methods were most favored and fruitful in carrying on the work of evangelism. The replies that were received provided a basis for a series of articles which were written by the members of the committee and a few other selected leaders of our denomination covering the various phases of the subject. These articles have been assembled into an attractive booklet under the title of "Other Sheep I Have," John 10:16. This booklet is now offered for free distribution and may be obtained from Rev. J. J. Plenert, 429 Knorr Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, or from the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas. Brother Plenert, however, has notified me that the first thousand copies are already practically all taken, but if there are sufficient calls for more, more such booklets will very likely be printed to meet the demand.

This handbook on evangelism has already proved to be useful in different ways in various places. One pastor reports that he has used it in his C. E. society meetings with much interest and profit. Another pastor has ordered thirty copies to be given to all the leaders in his large church. The writer of this brief review has used it as the basis of a sermon on evangelism and is now using it for prayerful consideration, an article at a time, with a small group in a weekly midweek service.

These brief discussions are presented to us by men who have given careful and prayerful thought to this important matter and are here sharing with us their experiences, observations, and convictions. The booklet covers quite well the entire subject under some such headings as, "What is Evangelism?", "Evangelism and Christian Education", "Our Church Witnessing in our Community", and "Conserving our Church Membership." This indicates in a measure that the treatment is broad and comprehensive and adapted to our own particular needs and background. There are seven articles in all, making a treatise which should be found helpful to all of our churches in fulfilling their mission of carrying out the commission of our Lord Jesus Christ.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

"INDIA C-A-L-L-I-N-G!"

There has existed a mutual feeling shared by both the missionaries in India and representative ones of the home constituency that more intimate and direct information should be available as to what is happening on the India Mission Field. No missionary can travel much at home without discerning it. The same feeling existed here in India.

This belief gave rise to a resolution in the India Mission Conference of 1939 that a news sheet should be published. The contents of this were not to displace anything which would normally find its way into the columns of any church paper, but was rather to supplement this. Accordingly a quarterly news sheet, in the English language, and from four to six pages was born. It has been entitled "INDIA C-A-L-L-I-N-G!" It is now finishing its second year of publication.

This quarterly is published by the missionaries in India. For the time being the writer of these lines has been serving as editor and manager. It is intended that five copies shall go to each church, one to each of the following: pastor, Sunday School superintendent, women's mission society, junior mission society, and the Christian Endeavor president. A few of the larger churches receive considerably more than five copies.

Through the much appreciated services of district distributors "INDIA C-A-L-L-I-N-G!" finds its way from India to the individuals concerned. In addition missionaries send out a limited number of copies to their friends. These district distributors are:

Miss Emma Ruth, Reedly, California, Pacific District Conference; Miss Huldah Myers, Quakertown, Pennsylvania, Eastern District Conference; Miss Inda Sprunger, Berne, Indiana, Middle District Conference; Prof. Edwin P. Graber, Freeman, South Dakota, Northern District Conference; Rev. Jacob H. Hoeppner, Altona, Manitoba, Canadian Conference; Mrs. Gerhard Friesen, Newton, Kansas, Western District Conference.

Occasionally word comes to me from pastors or from women's missionary societies asking that they might receive copies. Each church should be getting at least five copies. If any of those listed above have not gotten their copies, it is suggested that you get in touch with your district distributor and ask for the copies allotted to your church. Or you may write to me if you prefer. Our chief objective is to witness to the great things the Lord is doing in India. We would be grieved if this witness failed to reach you.

MR. SHEN'S TESTIMONY

Mr. Shen accompanied me on my way to Shao Chuang, since I was not familiar with the new road. While he was there he spoke to a small number of Christians.

" I want to give a testimony this morning. About ten years ago a missionary by the name of Miss Munsen held meetings in Tamingfu. She asked us all whether we were born again. I remember especially, how she asked whether any of us had anything in our home that did not belong to us something that no one had given us and that we had not bought; perhaps it was only a wash basin, a chair, or even a stick. Yet it belonged to someone else. If so we were not thoroughly born again, and the stick would be in our way when we wanted to enter the narrow gate of heaven. We were all scared and many of us wept, knowing that we still had such things in our homes.

"Some time ago the missionary gave me twenty-seven dollars to give to the tinner for a piece of work which we had done. The work had not been done very well, so I told the man I'd give him twenty-five and he accepted it. That left me two dollars. The missionary had figured on twenty-seven, so he would not be expecting the two dollars back. The church needed a wash basin and a few other things for the gate house. I decided that I might spend the two dollars that way. I was not spending it for myself, and the church needed those things. If I asked the missionary about it, he might not give it.

"But while I tried to reason with myself that way, I wasn't at peace. Every time I opened my Bible there were those two dollars. When I prayed those two dollars popped into my mind. I was getting more and more upset, and it came to me that a Christian should be a messenger of peace. How could I be one when my heart was going thump, thump, thump?

(At this place the whole audience chuckled sympathetically.)

"So I went back to the missionary. I gave him the two dollars, and I was at peace again."

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

RIDGEDALE, SASKATCHEWAN

As our work is not limited to one place or church, my report will undoubtedly be different than most others.

At present I am still teaching ten months of the year, but, if the Lord so leads, I may be able to go out in full-time service. The fields are ripe unto harvest; yet, where are the reapers?

During the summer months I have traveled about seven thousand miles in His service. We (Mrs. Dirks and I) have been in many homes. Most of the people were poor, and many were discouraged and weak. Also, there were the sick ones, and here I recall a home where the mother, about thirty-two years of age, is down with dropsy; her feet are heavy; even her face is badly swollen. They have a little boy about three years of age who is mentally weak. He eats paper, and, in fact, anything he may lay his hands on. When he is touching a hot stove he does not know enough to go away, but stands and roasts. Pray for this home. They are Christians, but need courage and patience. Financially too, they are not able to get help from anyone.

Last Sunday I traveled 125 miles and spoke at three services. Wednesday nights we have prayer meetings in a little church nearby, and Friday nights young people's meetings. At Teddington, about twenty-six miles from here, services, Sunday School, and young people's work is continued, other brothers taking my place when I cannot be present. As this is a branch of the Lost River church, their report will undoubtedly be in and will include the combined results of both places.

Somehow the Lord led us to visit a home of some poor people. We had dinner with them, and during the first few minutes found that the father of the home was not a Christian. He was open and confessed his lost condition, wept bitter tears, and said, "You know, I was under deep conviction a year ago; especially, at one of the services I could not hold my tears. When Rev.-------- put his arm around me and said, 'I suppose you have a hard battle too, brother, have you?' I answered, 'Yes, I sure have.' Then he said, 'Praise the Lord for battles; then we know we are on the Lord's side'." Of course, it was not a battle after being saved, but one in which this person saw his lost condition. However, the minister left him, and, of course, the result was an opportunity gone, and a soul left in darkness and sin.

How careful we should be in dealing with precious souls for whom Christ died. To make matters short, he there and then accepted the Lord, and thanked Him for saving grace. When kneeling and thanking, his wife also prayed. Among other things in her ardent prayer, she said, "Jesus, I have prayed fourteen years for my dear husband, and now I praise Thee for answering prayer—and I want to continue to thank Thee as long as I live. Now my prayer shall be of thanks and praise instead of pleading, as before."

Remember us and this northern field in your prayers.

WINNIPEG, MANITOBA

Winnipeg represents a great home mission field, There is much to be done in the work of our Lord. Our two churches in this city were bought and built partly with the generous aid of the General Conference. Every Sunday morning services are held in both of these churches and also in one of them on Sunday evenings.

Once every year, during the last three days of October, we hold our Manitoba Mennonite Ministers' Conference. Then we have nightly services which are always well attended. In winter we arrange for lectures on various subjects. This kind of service is indeed very helpful and promising. Twice a year, before Christmas and before Pentecost, we gather for holy communion. On these occasions the attendance is always good. Brother Victor Schroeder and some helpers prepare and conduct the monthly Christian Endeavor meetings. These are well attended by both young and old.

Two other efforts to serve our young people in Winnipeg are the Girls' Home and the Bible School. The Ebenezer Girls' Home is planning to celebrate, in a very modest way, its fifteenth anniversary on the twentieth of November. Until last year the Bible School was supported only by the Schoenwiese Mennonite Church. Now three other churches are willing to share with us the responsibility of carrying on the school. We also try to come in touch with the Mennonite students which are enrolled in the various schools and colleges of the city and with the youths who come into the city to work in the factories. In many cases we have succeeded; many of them come to our church and to our youth rallys.

I have a preparatory course for baptism about ten weeks before Pentecost. Thirty-four young men and women enlisted for the course this year. The sincere and simple acceptance of Christ by some of them gave me great joy and satisfaction.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

II Cor 8:1-9; 9:6, 7.

Introduction

The title, "Christian Stewardship," is used in our lesson to express our management of that which God has entrusted to us in a way that is pleasing to Him. This has especial reference to our material possessions. In the truest sense everything belongs to God, and we merely possess some things for a time; when we die we must give up possession.

Stewardship in the Macedonian Churches, vss. 1-9

In II Corinthians, chapters eight and nine, Paul is speaking of stewardship—though he does not use the word—in connection with obtaining funds for the needy Christians in Judea. He regarded liberality in giving as an important matter and vitally related to their spiritual welfare. Giving was on a high plane in the Apostolic Church, and the church of today can well learn much along this line. Paul would arouse the church in Corinth to liberal giving by telling what God has done in the churches of Macedonia. He speaks of it as "the grace of God" given to them (vs. 1). True generosity is the product of grace, and it was proof that a liberal measure of God's grace had been bestowed upon them. The Macedonian Christians were tested by severe afflictions, but, in spite of it all, their great joy of heart overflowed in very generous giving (vs. 2).

One of the very encouraging things in the church today is the joyful liberality of God's poor ones. The more well-to-do seldom give as much in proportion to ability as the liberal poor give. The Macedonians needed no urging. They gave gladly, even beyond their ability, thus expressing their gratitude to God (vs. 3). They even urged Paul to receive their liberal gift when he, knowing their poverty, hesitated to receive it. Their hearts went with their gifts in sympathy for those in need. Their giving was far beyond Paul's hopes. Far more important than their gifts of money was the giving of themselves to the Lord (vs. 5). This dedication of themselves to God's service was the incentive for their liberal giving. This is an essential element in Christian stewardship today. Stewardship of the whole life made it easy and natural for them to give of their means. When persons are unwilling to give according to their ability to God's work, it is an evidence of a lack of giving of self to the Lord.

The Corinthian Christians excelled in many virtues (vs. 7), and now Paul wished them to abound in the grace of liberality. A Christian is lopsided if he does not abound in liberality. There are many such. Paul did not command them to give. He wants it to be entirely voluntary, an essential element in true Christian love. The greatest motive to abundant giving is the example of our Lord Jesus Christ. We should never hesitate at the little sacrifices we are called upon to make for others.

Rewards of Faithful Stewardship, vss. 6, 7.

Paul compares the Christian who gives with the sower of seed. Giving is sowing. Liberal giving of self and means will result in reaping spiritual benefits. The Christian who wishes God to bless him, needs to give liberally. Many a professing Christian will reap a small harvest. Giving should not be done from a sense of duty, but much rather as a happy and cheerful privilege. God's work demands many willing givers. The Lord loves a cheerful giver. The Greek word translated "cheerful" is "ilaros"—pronounced hilaros—from which we derive our word "hilarious." God loves a hilarious giver. God's work will prosper when Christians give themselves in this spirit. As Christians, as church members, we must recognize our obligations as stewards and give to God according to our ability. Sympathetic giving of a definite portion of one's income to God's work is generally the best method. First of all, we must give ourselves to the Lord.

How is it evident that we are stewards under God?

What advantages are there in tithing for the support of God's work?

Why do so many Christians find it difficult to give to the Lord's work according to ability?

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Rev. J. H. Janzen, Waterloo, Ontario

DECEMBER 7—"The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which is lost." (Luke 19:10).

How shall I take care of my soul? No one feels the misery of sin more keenly than he who yearns to be spiritually minded but is held captive in the fangs of the material. He will time and again see and repeat that he is lost and cannot find his way home. The Christian Church celebrates Christmas in the period of the longest, darkest and stormiest nights. Christ came to guide those home who are lost in the dark. The Spiritual is not naturally in us but must be brought into our hears from without. We must be guided home by one who knows the way. Christ came. Did you accept Him and let Him plant the Spiritual, the Eternal into you in the new birth?

DECEMBER 8—"Ye ask, and ye receive not, because ye ask amiss that ye may spend it in your pleasure." (James 4:3).

It is a law of nature that we spend ourselves in the pleasures of the flesh, the material. Only he who understands the spiritual values of real joy and seeks and finds them will be able to build his life by them. We do not grant everything that our children ask us because we know that these things would not all be good for them. A drunkard makes his body sick while he thinks he has a pleasant time. The pleasures of the children of this world is the spending of wealth, health, peace, and everything. The joy of the children of God is to increase, to grow to the fullness of Christ and to give without impoverishing themselves.

DECEMBER 9—"He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; He breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; He burneth the chariots in the fire." (Ps. 46:9).

Egotism creates wars. Wars come because we want to spend much for our pleasures. Love destroys wars. They cease as soon as we are blessed and rich enough in Christ to give that others may be happy and have plenty, and as soon as we are wise enough to settle our differences otherwise than by sheer violence. The omniscient God and the loving Father will make the wars to cease and will destroy the instruments of war which are made to hurt and to destroy the happiness of mankind. When we grow up to be like Him, then wisdom will be our guiding light, love our constructive power, and no weapons of war will be possible.

DECEMBER 10—"Thou are more glorious and excellent than the mountains of prey." (Ps. 76:4).

A worldly victor enters the vanquished city, and his spoils, which he has taken from his victims, are carried before him. He seeks his glory in mountains of spoil. The Prince of Peace is not glorious because of mountains of prey but because of the wonderful gifts which He has bestowed on them whom He has conquered. He is more glorious than those who glory in their booty and more excellent than those who are great in destroying their fellow man's wealth and beauty. Earthly heores are glorious and rich because of that which they take from their victims, leaving them poor and miserable. Our King is glorious by making His subjects happy, even at the cost of His own life.

DECEMBER 11—"Be perfected; be comforted; be of the same mind; live in peace and the God of love and peace shall be with you." (II Cor. 13:11).

We all yearn for perfect peace, and there is no happiness for us, except in love. We wait for the time when peace will reign and love will make people happy. What will bring such conditions about? We wait for the great of this world to make peace and to build a Kingdom in which there will be peace and love. But kings and sovereigns will be helpless if we ourselves remain imperfect. We must be perfected in order to be comforted. We must have peace and love in mind if God's Kingdom of love and peace is to come. We must believe in peace and love to have the God of love and peace with us. God builds His Kingdom from the foundation, not from the top.

DECEMBER 12—"Behold, the Kingdom of God is within you." .(Luke 17:21).

Why are you hunting for happiness near and far? Why are you expecting it to come in the future in the form of some sort of a Utopia? You can be at peace and perfectly happy here and now. The Kingdom of God which is a Kingdom of perfect happiness and joy is right here and right now. It is within you. In the language of children we say, Jesus wants to dwell in our hearts. His Kingdom is there, and He wants to take control of it within us. In the language of grown-ups it means that all the possibilities for perfect joy, peace, and righteousness lie in our own innermost self. Our happiness depends not on what happens to us, but on how we bear up under everything that happens to us.

DECEMBER 13—"For the Kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." (Rom. 14:17).

The pneumatic tires of our automobiles have all their strength in themselves, but without the compressed air in them they will never bear up under the load that is put upon them. The possibilities for righteousness, peace, and joy are within us, but they will show under all circumstances only if and when we are filled with the Holy Ghost. Putting some sharp gas in our tires, instead of pure air, would make them corrode and break and would thus endanger our lives. Hearts filled with the shallow pleasures of the flesh instead of real joy in the Holy Ghost and in His purity will corrode from within and die.

THE CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR IN GREAT BRITAIN

A recent report from Great Britain gives an interesting and detailed account of the number and status of the conscientious objectors in Great Britain. By July 21, 1941, a total of 61,673 men had asked to be placed on the register of conscientious objectors. This figure is 92 per cent of the total number of men registered.

Of this figure 41,313 men had been heard by local tribunals which made the following dispositions: 2,389 or 6 per cent were given total exemption; 15,310 or 37 per cent were given conditional exemption; 12,168 or 29 per cent were assigned to non-combatant military service; 11,446 or 28 per cent were denied all claims as conscientious objectors and were assigned full military service.

Up to July 26, 1941, a total of 13,014 appeals were filed. A total of 9,912 appeals were renewed up to June 30, 1941. Of this number 47.5 per cent or 4,716 cases were heard. In only 148 cases did the appelate tribunal give the appellants a lower status or change the decision in favor of more military service. In 4,283 cases the appelate tribunal gave a more liberal decision than the local board and in 5,196 cases upheld the decision of the local tribunal. In 285 cases the nature of employment was changed though the individual remained conditionally exempt.

The highest percentage of conscientious objectors was found in the first registration soon after the outbreak of the war in September, 1939. In this registration there were 2.25 per cent of the total registration who asked to be placed on the register as conscientious objectors. This percentage gradually declined in the registrations during 1940 and the first half of 1941. By June 1941 the percentage of registered men who were conscientious objectors was .36 per cent.

The above figures and information come from a report issued on October 10, 1941, by the American Friends Service Committee and was summarized by E. Raymond Wilson. —Grant M. Stoltzfus

MENNONITE CENTRAL COMMITTEE RELIEF NOTES

November 19, 1941

Germany. In a letter to his family sent from Berlin on October 18 and received at Akron, Pennsylvania, on November 12, Brother M. C. Lehman tells of some future plans: "I now have almost definite plans to leave here for Switzerland and France on the night of the twentieth. I will probably stay in both the countries about three weeks. . . . I hope to see the new workers in France and to learn all I can about things American. . . . I do not think it will be possible to have the work in France and Germany organized as a single unit until after the war. It would not be wise to try. The German government is doing everything possible for me and is helping in every way. I could not ask for better treatment."

England. Our relief workers in England, brethren John Coffman and Peter Dyck, are sometimes asked by those whom they help to express gratitude to the Mennonite Central Committee and its supporters for help received. Following are excerpts from letters written by British war sufferers: "I am afraid I can only offer my thanks, but believe me, should I ever be able to repay, I will! Thank God, my babies will have clothes, and my husband warm under things for the shelter which is damp. God bless you, and the work you are doing, and the people of America who send us these good things." "If only your committee could know the joy and relief to get these things, it would do their hearts good. One woman to whom I took some baby clothes and a dress said 'Really, I was starting to think God really had forgotten us, and then these came.' "

France. Brother Jesse Hoover cabled to his wife on November 11 that inasmuch as Clipper passage was delayed indefinitely, he would be sailing on the S. S. Excambian and would arrive at Jersey City on the 24th of November.

I HAVE LEARNED

That God requires me to love even those who do not love me.

That a friendship which has to be bought and held with repeated favors will sell to the highest bidder.

That those accommodated most are often the least appreciative of your favors.

That it is profitable for me to be more exact with myself than with others.

That God carried His work alone before we arrived, and that He might be able to continue when we pass on.

That I have little difficulty in persuading myself to believe that what I want to do is what the Lord wants me to do. —Gospel Herald

Why I am a Christian

By Edna Langenwalter

What is Christianity? Christianity is believing in Christ and following His teachings. Religion has often been a hindrance to life. Such was the religion of the Pharisees in the first century. But Christ declared that His mission was to enlarge and develop life. "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly."

Christianity is a religion of love, not of law. Judaism said, "No idols;" while Christ says, "God is a spirit, worship Him in spirit and in truth." Judaism said, "Thou shalt not steal;" Christ says, "Give to him that asketh of thee." Judiasm said, "Inflict on the wrong doer no greater injury than he has inflicted on the wronged;" in other words, "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth." Jesus says, "Overcome evil with good."

Most religions reveal man as seeking God. Christianity reveals God as seeking man. We love God because He first loved us. Other religions seek God but they do not find Him because "The way thereof is death." Christians live on a higher level because they have a living Christ who has said, "I am the way, the truth and the life, no one cometh unto the Father, but by me."

What does Christianity offer? In John 14:18, we read, "I will not leave you comfortless. I will come to you." What would it be like—a world without Christ? We may be able to think of a sky without a sun or a garden without a flower, but not a world without the influence, comfort, and hope of Christ. Jesus not only carried our sorrows on Calvary, but He is always our closest friend in dark days as well as in bright ones.

He lightens our burdens and gives us strength to go on. A man frequently had to cross a river on a small dirty tugboat. The odors and the dirt and grime were always sickening. But one day he found a change. The odors were gone, the floors cleaned up, and the engine was gleaming and bright. When asked what the secret of the transformation was, the engineer replied, "Well, Cap'n, it's just this way, I got a glory." The old dirty engine room could be made like new because he had "a glory." This experience of an inner peace, a feeling of His nearness, lends distinction to many a humble task and gives us courage to face each new day with renewed interest and brighter outlook, for He has promised "as thy days, so shall thy strength be."

Most important, Christianity is salvation. Since we are all born in sin, we need to be saved from the wages of sin, which is death. But the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. We should indeed be thankful that we have such a loving God who would give His only begotten Son to bring us salvation. When Christ was speaking to the Samaritan woman, He said, "He that believeth on me though he die, yet shall he live." John 11:25.

"He lives, He lives
Christ Jesus lives in me
He walks with me and talks with me
Along life's narrow way
He lives, He lives
Salvation to impart
You ask me how I know He lives
He lives within my heart."

I am a Chistian because it is the only life that pays. For in Christ we have all that we need for this life and for eternity. While a life without Christ, even though we had all the riches and comforts this world could give, is all in vain. Paso Robles, California

FALL RALLY

On November 2, 1941, the young people of the Eastern District Conference Young People's Union gathered at the Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and held one of the best rallies ever held, with a large number attending.

Mr. Robert Huffman, of the Second Church, Philadelphia, gave the group fine words of welcome, after which Stanley Fretz led in a song service. A beautiful reading on Service for Others was given by Anna Bauman of Quakertown. Special music was furnished by Arthur Cotton of the Second Church, Philadelphia.

A very inspiring and challenging message was given by Mr. Gerald Stucky, Berne, Indiana, at present a student at White's Biblical Seminary, New York City. Mr. Stucky spoke on "Our Hope and Opportunities to Witness in the Present World Crisis."

A special feature of the rally was the presentation of C. O. kits, prepared by the various societies, to be sent to a C. O. camp located along the new super highway from Harrisburg to Pittsburg. Twelve societies responded with kits for this camp.

PEACE RALLY

A peace meeting sponsored by the Western District Young People's Peace Committee was held in the Eden Church, Sunday, November 16. The main speeches were given by Dr. P. C. Hiebert, chairman of the Mennonite Central Committee and Rev. David Wedel, who has just finished a six-months term as director of C. P. S. Camp No. 8 at Marietta, Ohio.

The young people's group of the host church had charge of the opening portion of the program. Miss Edna Goering, C. E. president, introduced Rufus Baehr, co-chairman of the peace committee, who presided over the rest of the meeting. Dr. Hiebert gave a good, inspirational talk. His topic was "Mennonites Unite for Peace." Rev. Wedel spoke informally of his experiences and the work of the boys in camp No. 8. The information he gave was very timely and was well received. A question and answer period followed the talks.

Special music for the occasion was rendered by Miss Emma Clara Graber of Bethel College on her marimba and the ladies' chorus of the Halstead Mennonite church under the direction of Mrs. Richard Regier.

JOINT RALLY

A joint rally of the eastern and western branches of our Eastern District Conference Mennonite Young People's Union was held on October 4, 1941, at Roaring Spring, Pennsylvania.

The afternoon program featured special music by both groups, with an inspiring discussion of what the various societies were doing. Leaders of the various societies of the western branch gave a report on their work, and Mr. LeRoy Weidner, president of the Eastern District Young People's Union, gave a report of the activities here in the east.

This was followed by a fellowship supper in the basement of the church. The group was then taken on a tour through the large paper mill located there.

At the evening meeting a fine talk was given by Prof. A. C. Schultz of Bluffton College, who spoke about the problems we have to face in this present world. On Sunday the group visited the various Mennonite churches at Altoona, Smith's Corner, Napier, and Roaring Spring, Pennsylvania.

There were twenty-one young people present from the eastern group and a larger number from the western group. Mr. William Snyder, president of the western district, was in charge of the meetings.

ROOM FOR JESUS

Luke 2:1-19; Eph. 3:17.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Thou Didst Leave Thy Throne;" "O Holy Night, the Stars are Brightly Shining" No. 86; "Angels From the Realms of Glory," No. 81.
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Christmas carols sung by all.
4. Offering for Mission Work.

II. Leader's Introduction

This is Christ's day. Let us welcome Him—make room in our hearts for Him. There is the story in Luke that "there was no room for Him in the inn." Today there are many preparations for Christmas—the stores with their displays, the streets with their decorations, schools and churches preparing programs, homes with their loving gift-planning. These should be used as helps and should not be permitted to be hindrances in preparing the heart to let the Christ enter in more fully with His spirit of love, peace, and good-will.

The din of the defense program, the awfulness of war should not blot out the star that the wise men saw. May men learn to look for Christ today at the right place, not in Jerusalem, but in Bethlehem; not in the place of the mighty of this world, but "where meek souls will receive Him still, the dear Christ enters in."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Mission of God's Servant, Isa. 42:1-7.
2. Entrance into heart and home, Acts 16:25-34.
3. National preparation, Jonah 3:1-10.
4. Personal preparation, Luke 19:1-10.
5. God's Gift, the Prince of Peace, Isa. 9:6, 7.

IV. Suggested Topice for Discussion

1. In your opinion, what is the central truth about Christmas?
2. For what peace ideals did Jesus stand?
3. Why would Jesus not approve of military training of young men?

V. Facts for Study

When a welcome babe is coming to any home, what an eager expectancy there is! The father is planning, and the mother is preparing to care for the little one and give it a home.

All the best of the human family had been awaiting the coming of the Christ-child with intense expectancy. Only those who were not of the family of God had been indifferent to the event. Prophets, ancient worship, the longing of human hearts had prepared for His coming. God was preparing by all the events in history: Roman law and roads; Greek language and learning; the disperation of the Hebrews among all the peoples of the world. God prepared the earth and got it ready for the coming of His Son. Then Christ came, not seeking a place to live in, or a kingdom in which to reign, but knocking at the door of the hearts of men, who may bid Him to live and dwell within.

VI. Illustration

How shall we find the Babe on Christmas eve? The immortal story of Martin the Cobbler, told first by Tolstoy, is an answer also. Martin dreams that the Master promises to come to him. So he cleans up his humble home and shop, dresses himself, prepares a humble repast, and waits. But the Master does not come. Only an old man, shivering with cold because he has only his thin, ragged coat. So Martin gives him his own warm cloak. Only an old woman, carrying a bundle of wood, and she drops with weariness at his door. So he places her beside his warm fire, rubs her frozen feet, gives her food and the heavy warm shawl his own mother used to wear, and sends her refreshed on her way. Only a barefooted child lost in the storm, stumbling across his threshold. And he places stockings and shoes on her feet. He warms his last bit of food for her, then takes her in his arms and carries her home.

It is late when he returns, and he wonders if perhaps the Master came while he was gone. At last he drops off to sleep and sees the Master again. "O Master, all day I waited for Thee! My house was cleaned; I had food prepared for Thee, and Thou didst not come!"

"Three times this day, Martin, came I to thy house," speaks the Master kindly. "I was the old man with the ragged coat; I was the old woman with the bundle of wood; I was the child lost in the storm. Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these, ye did it unto Me."

II. Study Period

Aim: To prepare the Junior's heart for the "coming of the King." To help our Juniors to realize who our wonderful Saviour is.

1. Introduction by a Junior boy.

"In Bible times, names were full of meaning. They told what a person was, or what he would do. Our Lord Jesus has very many different names in the Bible. They all help us to know Him better. More than fifty of these names are found in the Old Testament. They all help us to understand what His life, death and resurrection meant for us. In our study this month, we will learn of the four names that we find in Isaiah."

2. Read in concert from the black board the verse which has been beautifully printed. Isaiah 9:6.

3. Christ is called "Wonderful" because He is wonderful: by six Juniors. (a) In His birth, Luke 1:35; (b) In His childhood, Luke 2:52; (c) In His teachings, John 7:26; (d) In His actions (miracles), Matt. 11:5; (e) In His death, Romans 5:10; (f) In His resurrection, I Cor. 15:4; (g) He is without sin, II Cor. 5:21, Heb. 4:14-15.

4. "Christ is Counsellor" by a Junior girl.

One who counsels or advises another must be very wise. Jesus is a wonderful counsellor because He is wisdom. Isaiah 11:2. He says, "I am the way . . ." John 14:6; Isaiah 30:21.

5. Heart talk by the leader.

III. Mission Minutes

Refer to the Missionary News and Notes for letters and reports. Stress the work of our missionaries in India, especially, of those who teach in our mission schools.

On Sunday morning, September 28, a group of young people received the rites of holy baptism and confirmation when they pledged their allegiance to their Lord during the Morning Worship Hour. May God bless these young people and make them a blessing to others during their course of life.

Again we are coming to the close of another harvest season. We all thank God for the many blessings that we have received both spiritually and materially. On Sunday, October 26, the Annual Harvest Home Festival was held. The guest speakers for the day were Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Unruh. Rev. Unruh is the pastor of the Mennonite Church at Pulaski, Iowa. At the morning worship hour Rev. Unruh delivered a missionary message. Then we had a basket dinner and fellowship hour at noon in the basement of the church.

The afternoon services were in charge of the Ladies Missionary Society of the church. Mrs. Unruh discussed missionary work among the women of India. Both Rev. and Mrs. Unruh have served as missionaries in India.

For the evening services Rev. Unruh again delivered the sermon. Special music was rendered at each service. Everyone present had a very enjoyable day.

MENNO MENNONITE CHURCH
Lind, Washington

On October 26 we had our annual home coming. Our own members living at great distances, former members, and friends were invited. From Spokane, Newport, Edwall, and Colfax they came. We had a very nice group.

In the forenoon we had Sunday School, worship service and communion services. An offering was held for C. O. camps. At noon a fellowship luncheon was served in the basement of the church. Immediately following the luncheon, while still seated at the tables, a number of short inspiring talks were given. Also the Hi C. E. orchestra entertained between the talks and the comments given by Rev. E. J. Miller, our pastor, who presented the speakers. Arthur Franz spoke to us on "The Church Of The Past." Arthur Krehbiel spoke on "The Church Of Today." P. C. Jantz spoke on "The Church Of Tomorrow." These pointed out very vividly that the church of today is making the church of tomorrow.

It seemed good to fellowship together thus, where the atmosphere and our very being were filled with the Spirit of Christ.

At three o'clock in the afternoon, President Frank Warren from Whitworth College of Spokane was with us. He brought with him two vocal soloists, Evelyn Seyforth and Mr. Goodsell and a pianist, Mrs. Uhden. Dr. and Mrs. Munn and daughter were with us too. Dr. Munn is Dean at Whitworth. The following vocal solos were sung: "Open The Gates Of The Temple" (Fanny Crosby), "The Living God" (Jeffery O'Hara), "The Lord Is My Light" (From Ps. 27:1), German solo.

President Warren spoke to us on a very timely text taken from Matt. 16:18. "And I say unto thee, that thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Truly we had a wonderful time in the Lord. Isn't it His promise to bless those that gather in His name?

We have had a wonderful grain crop this year. For this we are truly thankful. The yield exceeded that of many former years.

This year we have had one death among our members. Peter L. Franz of the Schrag area passed to his reward on June 24.

On June 15 our church and friends were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Jantz and family in Odessa. It was the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary. The gathering was held in the open on their lawn because of the large number present. A program of vocal and instrumental music was given. Rev. Galle and Rev. Miller spoke to the group. Rev. Galle read a letter that was written to the couple by the pastor that had performed the wedding ceremony. Gifts were presented to the couple and a silver tray with silver dollars. Following this refreshments were served. Mr. Jantz is a deacon and also superintendent of our Sunday School.

Three marriages have taken place this year. Married were:

Evelyn Jantz, daughter of Mr. Andrew Jantz of Ritzville, to Clinton Claassen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Claassen of Colfax, on May 31. They reside at Colfax. Norma Moose to Jonathan Jantz, son of Mrs. Rosie Jantz of Edwall, on September 6. They reside at Spokane. Bernice Nafziger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Nafziger of Colfax, to Harold A. Franz, son of Mrs. Anna Franz of Marlin on September 10. They reside at Marlin.

FLATLAND MENNONITE CHURCH

Quakertown, Pennsylvania

Greetings to the readers of "The Mennonite." With a plentiful harvest in this section a nice array of fruits, vegetables, and canned goods was brought to the harvest home on September 21. Everything that was brought was given to the Old Folks Home at Fredrick.

In October our church visited the Home at Fredrick, and the music was given by our Christian Endeavor Society and the children of the Community Children's Home. Our pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, delivered the message.

Two of our faithful members passed away during the month of October. They were Mrs. Mary Fellman and Mrs. Kate Lewis. Funeral services for both were held in the Flatland church with our pastor in charge.

So far only one of our young men, Oscar Frei, has been called by the government for service. He is stationed at the C. O. Camp at Grottoes, Virginia.

Our pastor has been conducting special services at the Mennonite Church at Richfield for the past two weeks. During his absence Gerald Stucky of the Berne Mennonite Church of Berne, Indiana, now a student at White Biblical Seminary, New York City, had charge of the morning worship service.

BETHEL MENNONITE CHURCH

Winton, California

Sunday morning, November 9, we had in our midst Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Neufeld of Bakersfield, Mr. George Gaede, Mrs. Bertha Reimer and her daughter Leona, and Gwyondolin Ummel of Shafter, California. We had been looking forward to this visit. In the evening the church was filled while a service of illustrated songs was enjoyed by all. Such songs as "Rock of Ages," "The Old Rugged Cross," "Where is my Wandering Boy Tonight," and others were sung while pictures of them were cast on the screen. These touched and moved the hearts of the listeners.

On October 8 in the place of our regular mid-week Bible study and prayer meeting, the congregation met in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Glanzer, where a service of special songs, scripture verses, readings and prayer was dedicated to Rev. and Mrs. Glanzer in honor of their thirtieth wedding anniversary. A similar evening was enjoyed in the home of Brother and Sister Joel Koehns, in honor of their thirty-fourth wedding anniversary.

Anticipating the Christmas program our trustees are planning to enlarge the church stage.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

Madrid, Nebraska

We greatly enjoy reading the pages of The Mennonite—the recent General Conference reports, correspondence, etc.

From here I can say that the Lord has wonderfully blessed us this last year, materially as well as spiritually. We had a wonderful wheat harvest, averaging around tweney-five bushels per acre; we also have a good corn crop. Corn picking is in full swing, and many fields are yielding a good thirty bushels per acre.

Sunday, November 2, we were privileged to celebrate our harvest thanksgiving and mission festival. Miss Aganetha Fast, missionary from China, was with us. She spoke Sunday morning, and also at two evening meetings, Monday and Tuesday. She told us much of the mission work in China.

Rev. Eduard Duerksen and his quartet from Avon, South Dakota, had also promised to be present for the festival, but they could not come because of corn picking and other work. Other guest speakers were Rev. D. M. Duerksen and Rev. George Jansen from the Mennonite Brethren Church, Paxton, Nebraska. Rev. George Jansen gave the mission sermon in the afternoon, substituting for Rev. Eduard Duerksen.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Becker, now engaged in child evangelism work in western Nebraska, gave a full program in the evening.

The morning offering for foreign missions amounted to $120.81. The afternoon offering for relief work was $81.00. The evening offering, which was divided between home missions and child evangelism, amounted to $42.40, making a total offering for the day of $244.21.

Dinner and lunch were served in the basement. As the Mennonite Brethren Church was also invited for the festival, the church was filled to capacity throughout the day.

Our earnest prayer is that the Lord may continue to bless the work of the missions. —P. A. Regier

SECOND QUARTERLY CONFERENCE HELD AT BOWMANSVILLE, PA.

The Second Quarterly Conference of the Eastern District was held in the Pine Grove Mennonite Church, Bowmansville, Pennsylvania, on Monday, October 20.

After a brief business session in the afternoon, a paper on "The Ministry of Reconciliation" was presented by Rev. Harold D. Burkholder, pastor of the East Swamp Mennonite Church. The general discussion was opened by Rev. J. J. Plenert, pastor of the First Church of Philadelphia, and it was followed by a very interesting discussion.

In the evening service Rev. Erland Waltner, pastor elect of the Mt. Lake, Minnesota, Church, delivered a message on "The Twentieth Century Prophet." This was the last time Brother Waltner could talk to the group as pastor of an Eastern District Conference Church (Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia).

WESTERN SECTION

Ministers' and Deacons' Conference

Since four of the Eastern District Churches are in the western part of Pennsylvania, the district holds one meeting annually in one of those churches. The four churches are, Smith Corner, Rev. John Raugh, pastor; Roaring Spring, no pastor at present; Napier, Rev. George Greger, pastor; and Altoona, Rev. Emerson Slotterback, pastor.

On November 10 a meeting was held in the Napier Church which served a two-fold purpose. In the afternoon there was a Ministers' and Deacons' Conference and in the evening, an installation service for the pastor who had recently occupied the pulpit of the Napier Church.

In the afternoon Rev. Greger presented a paper on "The Work of Home Missions." Rev. John Raugh opened the discussion, and a number of others participated in the general discussion.

In the evening, Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, chairman of the Home Mission Committee was in charge. Rev. Howard G. Nyce presented the charge to the congregation, using for his text I Thess. 5:12, 13. Rev. Sylvan Lehman presented the charge to the pastor, basing his remarks on Col. 4:17. Rev. Olin Krehbiel, president of the Eastern District Conference installed Rev. Greger as pastor of the church. Rev. Greger was a member of the Lansdale Church, of which Rev. Krehbiel is pastor. After the installation service the day came to a close with a communion service, which also was in charge of the president of the conference.

Christmas Gifts

God gave Christ, the unspeakable gift, not with the hope of receiving much in return, but rather in a sacrificial manner that braved the depths of human selfishness and unthankfulness. God gave because he loved and because he sought to make available to man the immeasurable riches of Christ.

How do we give? Do we really seek to give or only exchange? What is our purpose in giving? Is is true that if we with our giving would commemorate God's giving of Christ, we must so give that we primarily affect the spiritual welfare of the recipient?

Therefore, is it not entirely in place, in fact, is is not commendable to give gifts that fire the spirit and enrich the mind? The Bible is the book supreme. Each person in the family should either have his own Bible or have very ready access to one. Give a Bible. However, many individuals already have one. Might not these individuals very much appreciate receiving a copy of S. T. Moyer's book, With Christ On The Edge Of The Jungles, or a copy of C. Henry Smith's book, The Story of the Mennonites, or both? In the coming year, these two books should find a place on the bookshelves of every Mennonite home where English is read. Unless that happens, the riches of these books will not find their way into the hearts of many Mennonites. "Man does not live by bread alone." How very true this should ring at a time when we commemorate our Saviour's birth.

A QUESTION

A newspaper from one of our Mennonite communities tells of a number of Mennonite men and women who are preparing to promote such an investment of money as is not consistent with our peace position. Is it possible they may not know our position? If so, they should ask their pastor for copies of the statement adopted at our last General Conference and then follow the voice of the Holy Spirit. Or is not this the right procedure for Christians?

Securing a Minister

*By Lester Hostetler

There comes a time when the church must secure a minister. It is a difficult task. The only task more difficult is to get rid of a minister that doesn't fit or will outstay his years of usefulness and welcome.

How should the church go about it? Mennonites are organized on a congregational basis and so the responsibility of selecting a minister rests with the members of the local church. In some ways it would be better if we had a bishop or superintendent or board with authority to ordain our ministers and appoint them to our pulpits. But we are congregational in our church policy, we are democratic, and we don't like to have anybody outside our congregation to run our business.

The worst of all methods in selecting a minister is to ask a procession of candidates to preach trial sermons, and then ask the members of the congregation to vote on the candidate they liked best. Charles E. Jefferson, in a fine book called Quiet Talks with Ernest People calls this the devil's method of humiliating a minister and dividing a church. The trial sermon is a farce. The congregation is not thinking of God, but of the candidate's voice, his gestures, his necktie, his theology, his hair or lack of it. The minister himself is placed in a difficult position. Instead of concentrating on the worship of God, he is busy thinking of the people and speculating as to what is going on in their minds and what impression he is making.

The trial sermon says something of a candidate's qualifications but not much. A shallow man with a lot of self-confidence may leave a fine impression. A better man, self-effacing, and realizing the terrible artificiality of the situation, may leave a poor showing. Every layman should remember that the work of the ministry is far reaching and that a man cannot be judged by the trial sermon. There are many sermons to follow the trial sermon. Has the candidate the ability and the studious habits and the good sense necessary to produce them? Has he prepared himself adequately for the ministry? Has he taken the time to study and to learn the great doctrines he is to preach, and has he acquainted himself with the history and work of the organization he seeks to lead? Or was he satisfied with a "fly-by-night" preparation? You cannot tell by his trial sermon. Maybe he found a good sermon in a book or in the Christian Century Pulpit and memorized it for the occasion.

* Professor of Bible at Bethel College and editor of the Bethel College Bulletin.

Then there is the matter of pastoral work. It is important work and if you select a minister that "doesn't believe in wasting his time ringing door bells," as some call it, you make a serious mistake. You cannot tell from a trial sermon whether a candidate is a good pastor. You are looking for a man of character and integrity. Most candidates are that, but unfortunately there are a few men in every denomination, candidating for pulpits, who have no business in the pulpit. They have a shaky business record. They are not true shepherds. They are more interested in shearing the sheep than in feeding them. But this you cannot find out by hearing one sermon. A church is a business enterprise, and the minister must be something of a good business administrator. You do not want a man to run your church who has failed in everything else he ever attempted. A trial sermon says nothing of the administrative ability of a minister.

On what basis then should he be selected? Our answer is, on the basis of his record. A minister's work is not done in a corner or in the dark. It is always in the open for people to see. If he has shown his ability in one church, the chances are that those same qualities will appear if he works in your church. If he is a young man, judge him by his record as a student in college and seminary. The college dean and his seminary professors can tell you a lot that you ought to know about his habits, his character and his ability. If we put every man on his record, it will have a salutary effect upon the candidates themselves, and it will give the church a sound basis for making a choice.

The ideal candidate has never been found. And if you should find one, he probably would not fit into your church. But when a man is found with a reasonably satisfactory record, let him be presented to the people as the unanimous choice of the committee, and if the congregation then elects him, the way is open for him to begin his work with the support of a united congregation. If the people do not elect him with a large majority, let the committee get on their knees and ask God to help them find a second candidate, well qualified and of good report, whom the people will receive as their prophet and priest and pastor.

— AS THOU GOEST —

Child of my love, fear not the unknown morrow,
Dread not the new demand
life makes of thee,
Thy ignorance doth hold no cause for sorrow
Since what thou knowest not is known to me.
Thou can'st not see today the hidden meaning
Of my command, but thou
the light shalt see again;
Walk on in faith, upon my promise leaning
And as thou goest all shall be made plain.
One step thou seest—then go forward boldly
One step is far enough for faith to see;
Take that and thy next duty shall be told thee
For step by step Thy Lord is Leading thee.
Stand not in fear, thy adversaries counting
Dare every peril, save to disobey;
Thou shalt march on, all obstacles surmounting
For I, the strong, will open
Up The Way.
Wherefore go gladly to the task assigned thee
Having my promise, needing nothing more
Than just to know, where'er
the future find thee
In all thy journeying
I go before.

HOW'S YOUR "FORGITTERY"?

"My memory is pretty good," said the old lady, "but I have a mighty good forgittery."

Often a good "forgittery" is more valuable than a good memory. It is especially so at this time of the year.

1. Do not carry into each day the worries of the yesterday.
2. Forget your grudges.
3. Forget the ugly words that were said and the mean things that were done.
4. Forget your failures.
5. Forget your doubts.
6. Forget your fears.

DECEMBER 14—"Ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost." (Acts 1:5)

No motorist expects his tires to swell up with good air all by themselves. He knows that he has to put the air into them from without, and he does it. Christ said, "Ye can do nothing without me," even if all the possibilities for your happiness lie within yourself. Only the baptism with the Holy Ghost puts you under an obligation to bear up bravely and not to lose your peace and joy under any circumstances. Jesus promises definitely, "Ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost." The question is, whether you and I open our souls that the Holy Ghost may enter. As far as He is concerned, we shall be baptized. But we must submit to that baptism.

DECEMBER 15—"For I say unto you, that except your righteousness shall excede the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the Kingdom of heaven." (Matt. 5:20)

The Pharisees meant to please God by fulfilling the law of ritual which meant nothing for the well being of the people. They thought that they could neglect the love of their fellow men if they were only right with God through ritual. But God says that they will gain nothing by their rituals. Our righteousness must be far better than theirs if we want to enter the Kingdom of heaven. Only a righteousness which grows out of the Kingdom of God within us can make us acceptable in the sight of God, and that righteousness will move us to treat our fellow men right. Only he loves God who loves his brother.

DECEMBER 16—"Being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." (Rom. 5:1)

There are no two ways about it. We are indebted to God and men. Only the payment of our debts can justify us before God and men. We never were, and never will be able, to pay our debts. Christ paid them for us. If I believe this, then I do not want Him to die over and over again for my sins. After I have been justified by faith of the sins of my past, I no longer shield my sins before the judgment of God. There could be no place with God as long as I denied my guilt while He was accusing me of it. But there is perfect peace, since I have admitted my guilt and have been justified by faith, take sides with God against my sin, and not, as formerly, with my sin against God.

DECEMBER 17—"The ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and singing shall flee away." (Isa. 35:10)

By sinning Adam and Eve departed from God and became the slaves of sin, and thereby unspeakably unhappy. God is the Good One, and it is self-evident that anyone forsaking the good and departing into the evil must become miserable. In God we are free, but sin keeps us in bondage, until Christ ransoms us. This He has done. His blood and life He paid as a ransom for us. Now we may return into the presence of God our Father, the Good One, and be happy again. Sorrow and sighing cannot stay with us if we come into his presence. They must flee away while everlasting joy is upon our heads. Do you want to be happy? Yau are ransomed. Return to the Father.

DECEMBER 18—"Ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." (I Cor. 6:20)

We are bought, not from God but from Satan and sin. Jesus Christ paid our debts for us and thus set us free. By the book of Job we understand that Satan had a claim on men, which God did not deny. He therefore did not take us away from Satan by sheer violence but annulled his claim by paying the price and buying us out of bondage. Now Satan has no further claim on us and cannot keep us, unless we ourselves, by our own free will, turn again to sin and darkness. We can do that because God did not buy us out of one bondage to put us in another. He bought us for real freedom, and being free, we may choose God or Satan. God wants no slaves. He wants friends. (John 15:15)

DECEMBER 19—"Ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers: But with the precious blood of Christ, as a lamb without blemish and without spot." (I Pet. 1:18-19)

Was there no other way to redeem us, except this bloody way? I do not know what ways were open to my God. But I know, if He chose this way for my salvation He must love me dearly. Was it Satan who would accept nothing but Christ's blood for a ransom? Was it God's righteousness that would not try to buy us out at the cheapest bargain which He could get, but would pay in full what we were worth to Him? I do not know. But I do know that it would be very hard to convince me that God loves me, except by what He has chosen to do for me. Since Christ has shed His blood for me, I believe God loves me and seeks my salvation and happiness.

DECEMBER 20—"Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God." (Isa. 40:1)

Many believe a Christian life is a very grievous one, because it puts us under a strict law that takes all the fun and joy out of our lives. To believe that is blindness. Our sinful lives make things hard and grievous for us. Therefore, God in His mercy paid the ransom for us and gave us freedom to be His people. And whosoever chooses Him will be comforted, for God's desire is that His people be comforted. A Christian life is not funny. That is true. But it is joyful and worth while, and nothing is forbidden in a Christian life that gives real joy, not fun in the foolish things of this world, but real joy in making our lives a real success.

MAKING AN APPLICATION

Kheru sat in his courtyard and around him sat his family, the five sons and the daughters-in-law. Some of the little children played near by or sat with their elders who were listening to the Bible lesson taught by the evangelist who had come to the village for this meeting. It would soon be the time for the harvest thanksgiving festivals, and the lesson was on the joy and blessing of giving. The Scripture story was the one of the widow who gave her all. Eagerly the evangelist sought to teach them that God is vitally concerned with our giving and that He values our gifts by higher standards than the world does.

When the lesson was over Kheru said, "The teaching is true. God sees and rewards. Here is this middle son of mine and his wife. They always show an interest in the things of God. They never miss a meeting. My daughter-in-law always puts aside the wee handful of rice when she prepares her meals. Besides giving that they also often have a money gift ready. Now look at their fields! In spite of the drought they have a fairly good harvest while some of my other sons will not even put the sickle to some of their fields. Truly, God sees and considers our giving to Him."

BUILDING GOD'S KINGDOM

Jesus told His hearers that the kingdom was not eating and drinking; neither was the kingdom based on miracles, even though Jesus did perform such in order to help people. Rather, one of His main phases of work was to teach people about the Father and what the Father stands for. He invited people to think His thoughts after Him; so He taught.

At Basna station a fine schoolhouse is being constructed. This is a very direct result of the working of the Spirit of Jesus in devoted mission friends in America. In this case it is through our sister in Christ, Mrs. Herman Jansen and her children from near Elbing, Kansas. This fine school building already does a wonderful piece of work in God's Kingdom. The way it works now in the kingdom is that it provides bread for many of our hungry brothers and sisters i this area. My readers will have read that the crop almost failed entirely here in this area last November It is still over four months before a new crop can be expected. Prices of rice, the main and staple food are double and more above normal. At least ninety-five per cent of all our Christians live from hand to mouth. Now some forty of the Christian fathers and mothers can earn their daily bread in helping build this schoolhouse. All the masons, the cement and lime mixers, the brick makers, the carpenters, and all carriers are Christians—every one of them. How grateful they are for the chance to earn their daily bread!

If the donors of this building could see this gratefulness they would be rewarded by this fine scene in itself. These, our brothers and sisters, feel rightly that they are building a house of God, because in this building children, young hearts, will be led into the fellowship of Christ. The kingdom is being built, and in the process our Christians have their daily bread.

If only 'some' had received the Holy Spirit on the first Day of Pentecost and three thousand had 'mocked' that would not have changed the value of the Holy Spirit for mankind. HOME MISSIONS

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

OUR WORK IN VANCOUVER, B. C.

We think the conference is doing a wonderful thing by sending news and accounts about the work that the Mennonites are doing for missions, and in bringing help to the needy all over the world. We are told in special leaflets how the heathen are brought the gospel of the Lord, the glad tidings of the love and kindness of Christ, our Saviour. We hear how the word of God is brought to people of all nations and languages, bringing hope and joy into their often dreary and sad lives. Then we read about the work in our own midst, in our Mennonite Home Missions. We are getting glimpses of the never ending, tireless work of our ministers and their helpers (the congregations) to strengthen the weak and help the erring ones to find the right path.

We here in Vancouver appreciate the Messenger leaflets very much, and we would like to be remembered by, and keep in touch with our brethren in the Lord all over the world.

Our work in Vancouver is quite new. Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Janzen started it in 1935. Two years later my dear wife and I took it over. The beginning was not easy. It was a work in quite unknown surroundings—a city full of danger and temptations for old, and so much more for young people. Besides, there was the responsibility for the working girls, the parents of whom were living in the country or even in other provinces. We often began to doubt if we would be able to do the work, but then the promise of the Lord would give us new strength and courage again and again.

Momentarily our community consists of a small but strong and active group of about sixty-seven members. Some of them are older residents, several families are newcomers from the prairies, and some are young people that joined after being baptized.

We are thankful that we have a place of worship, a place where we can forget our daily hardships and troubles, where we can gather and praise and thank our Lord.

As a little expression of our gratefulness, in October we had an auction of fancywork that our women's sewing circle had prepared. This brought a total amount of $172.25. The money is destined for foreign and home mission purposes.

We are asking the Lord to enlighten us and help us preach so that our words go to the hearts of our hearers. Our evening services are of an evangelistic character.

In our Home for Girls I am giving weekly Bible courses. The theme is "The Way of Salvation—in the Word of God." We feel that the Lord is with us and helps and assists us to discover ever more and more the glorious truths that are in His Word. We intend to keep up this theme for the duration of the winter months.

Our visits in the various homes give us the opportunity to share sorrows and joys. We learn to know our people better, and in these heart-to-heart talks God has revealed to me riches where I had not expected to find them.

We are thankful that there are always brethren and sisters in the Lord who are inspired by the heavenly Father to sustain this mission work in Vancouver.

GREAT DEER, SASKATCHEWAN

By the wonderful grace of God another year with its seeding time and harvest is passing, and we people of Great Deer view retrospectively the spiritual life of it. Our two meeting places, the Bethel church as well as the Walter Scott school, which is also used for mission work, are under the supervision of Rev. C. F. Sawatzky, Laird, Sask., and are also attended by Brother Isaac Nickel and me of Great Deer as helpers in mission work.

It was a pleasure to observe how willing all opened heart and hand to donate for the collections that were made for the poor and needy ones of the bombed-out areas. The two Ladies' Aid Sewing Circles of the Walter Scott District did particularly well. They turned over a large share to the above-mentioned purpose. May the almighty God help us so that we never get tired of these sacrifices. The suffering of the people in the war-torn countries should touch the heart of every Mennonite very closely. It is again a God-sent opportunity to make, even for the benefits of the liberty and peace we are enjoying in our countries.

On two occasions our community has been able to keep holy communion, as Christ bids us in John 14:15. More than fifty persons participated.

We have received a considerable number of new brothers and sisters in our community by way of baptism as well as by entering as members. May God bless us all, and may the home mission be supported.

It is wonderful how God sends His light into the hearts of men, so that they may see the way. We came across an old man more than sixty years of age. He wanted to see the light clearly; why we sinners should receive grace. It was the Lord who attended our prayers to make it plain to him that Jesus has borne our sins and asks us to become holy. We trust that the Lord will help use be His children always.

As the Bethel church has been turned over to the General Conference, we wish to express our thanks for its use. As a small token of gratitude we have done some work in the church, on the yard, as well as the cemetery. The church was nicely cleaned, the fence thoroughly fixed up, and the cemetery was repaired. We also wanted to give the church a new coat of paint, but on account of meager crops, it has been postponed.

We wish to ask everyone to pray for us so that the Lord may assist us, as always, in this important field of mission work. May the Lord bless you all.

THE COMING OF GOD'S SON

Isa. 9:6,7; John 1:1-4, 10-14; I John 4:9-11

Introduction

The coming of God's Son to earth stands out as the greatest occurence in all history. It is greatest in importance, in its significance, and in the supernatural element involved. This great event took place because man had sinned and the human race had fallen and needed a Saviour. God must intervene and provide salvation, for man could not save himself. God provided a way for man's salvation at a great cost to Himself.

A Marvelous Prediction Isa. 9:6,7.

Over seven hundred years before its occurence, Isaiah spoke of the birth of the Messiah as an accomplished fact. He predicts his coming and describes this child in language which can apply only to a divine being (vs.6). He describes the character and offices of the Messiah. The ensign of office rests upon His shoulders. His name signifies His characteristics. He is our "Counselor," "the mighty God," and the "everlasting Father," signifying his absolute union with God the heavenly Father (John 10:34). He is the arbiter of peace between God and man (Eph. 2:14). His endless rule is described (vs. 7), indicating that He is everlasting. His reign shall extend throughout the endless cycles of the heavenly state.

A Wonderful Fulfillment John 1:1-14.

John's gospel is intensely deep, and this lesson is the deepest part of the book. John carries us back to the dawn of the history of the universe, and there we see a being who was then already (Gen. 1:1). This eternally existent being is "the Word." John's beautiful prologue to his Gospel tells us how Christ, the pre-existent Word, who was with the Father from all eternity, became flesh and dwelt among men. This Word (person), "was with God," in close intimacy with Him. He "was God," a very definite statement of the true deity of Him who dwelt among men in the person of Jesus Christ. John's entire Gospel revolves about this center (John 20:31).

He, through whom all things were made, came into the world to live a human life. In Him was life in its widest sense, both physical and spiritual (vs. 4). He is the eternal source of life. Eternal life is in Him. He was Himself the life, and He was also "the light of men" (John 8:12). He was the true light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world (vs. 9). He shines forth as a heavenly light in the darkness of the world's sin. When sin came, night came. He, the shining light, was not recognized by the world of his day (vs. 10), and it does not recognize Him as divine today. His own people, Israel would not receive Him to themselves (vs. 11). There were those, an elect few, who did welcome Him and accepted Him as Son of God. To them the door of the Father's house was opened, and they became sons (children) of God (vs. 12). We become children of God only as we believe in and trust in Christ. Man's natural heart will not receive Christ. A new birth of God is necessary.

God entered the life of the world in the fleshly form of Jesus. God in Christ's person was present among men. Verse 14 is an exact statement of what we mean by the incarnation. Jesus' character revealed the character of God. The incarnation itself is the greatest of all miracles. God's gift of His Son stands as a sure proof of His love. God sent his Son because humanity needed a Saviour. Christmas will be valuable to us so long as we keep alive our appreciation of who Jesus is and what his coming means to and for us.

Why did the world not know Jesus when He came?

What should His love toward us prompt us to do?

The Hour Before You Go to Church

I have in my eye at present the hour before you go to church on the Sabbath forenoon. I am anxious about it. The note struck then is likely to give tone to your spirits all the day. Redeem it. Redeem it as much as you can from family duties. Redeem it from "plaiting of hair and putting on of apparel." Redeem it wholly from vain conversation.

How very much the power of the minister's preaching depends on the preparing of the hearer's heart! If you come up to the church with your mind crowded with trifles and puffed up with vanity—what can ministers do? They can do nothing but beat the air.

What else can they do, if there be nothing before them but air to beat at? It will make a sound, and that is all. I fear that many of my dear people spend more time on the Sabbath morning in putting veils on their faces than in taking the veil off their hearts.

COURSE IN OBJECTIVES BEGINS WITH STUDY OF PACIFISM

(Colorado Springs C. P. S. Camp)

The Core Course, an all-camp study group, held its first sessions this week, (November 10-16). Planned to be the major contribution of the camp educational program the Core Course is to be a survey or orientation course centered about basic Christian and pacifist objectives.

As planned by the camp staff, the tentative outline for the course includes four sections of study, each six weeks in length: Pacifism and Non-Resistance, Historical Rootage of Our Way of Life, The Rural Community, and Christian Citizenship.

The plan for the course of study is based upon the expressions of interest of the campers and constituency, as well as the purpose and policy of the Mennonite Central Committee and the National Service Board. Leadership for the course will be drawn from the camp and camp staff, from the local community, and from the personnel of the church colleges and institutions.

Class sessions are to be held on Monday and Thursday evenings. Outlines of the first section of the course have been presented the class members. All campers are urged to participate in this course of study.

Thursday evening the group began the study on "Pacifism and Non-Resistance" with a panel discussion on the subject of "Why Do We Choose Civilian Public Service?" Rev. Francis Bayles, Rev. L. C. Miller, and four campers participated in the panel. The heart of Section I will be devoted to the scriptural basis of peace principles.

Other subjects that will be studied under Section I are the history of the peace movement, the peace movement today, the conscientious objector, the C.O.'s peace testimony to the world, the C.O.'s peace testimony in the home community. The section on "Pacifism and Non-Resistance" will be concluded with a panel discussion on "After CPS, What?"

NEW INTEREST GROUPS ORGANIZED

In addition to the new typing class several courses have been added to the camp educational program. Approximately twenty campers have enrolled for the Tuesday evening classes in elementary surveying. This interest group is taught by John Brelsford, a camper. Supplementing the class sessions, several hours are spent in the use of surveying instruments.

Mr. Robert Dearth, graduate student of Colorado College, is the instructor of the newly organized class in Spanish. To be started in the near future is a course in spelling and English Grammar. Also in the process of being organized is a camp dramatics group. This group plans to stage one-act religious plays, as well as other types of drama.

COLLEGE CREDIT COURSES OFFERED

Classes are being started in three college credit courses. These courses, which are being arranged with the cooperation of the Mennonite colleges, are offered free of tuition. Only a small registration fee is charged.

The college credit courses, with the instructors, are as follows: Algebra I, N. Paul Stucky; Accounting I, Ray Schlichting; and Church History—Reformation, Robert Kreider. —Pike View Peace News

CHALLENGES IN A C. O. CAMP

Dear Fellow Soldiers in Christ:

The greatest challenge to the men in the Civilian Public Service Camps, as well as to those ardent supporters in civilian ranks outside, is the thrilling thought of having a part in the writing of a new chapter in the technique of patriotism and national defense for a world at war. Here is an opportunity to be a Christian soldier without apologizing for the word Christian and without submerging the ethical and moral principles which Jesus taught.

The boys in the C. O. camps have an opportunity to blaze a new trail. The enthusiasm and the idealism with which they blaze it will determine the length and breadth of the trail and the goal to which it will ultimately lead. After this war is over and overshadowed by a new day, I hope the trail blazed by the C. O. boys will not appear like a short bad stretch of road that acted as a detour merely for the duration of the war, but I hope it will rather appear like a great white way leading to "the better way" which all men seek and of which the apostle Paul spoke.

I hope the boys in C. O. camps are thinking of their work as that of erecting a memorial. A memorial that will remind posterity that in the Second World War a little company of men chose to answer their country's call by shouldering shovels instead of shooting shrapnel, and that they attempted to exercise faith and truth that by doing constructive service in the spirit of love, destructive forces and evil could be overcome. It should be a reminder that these men were willing to pay the full price in dollars and in deeds that both their government and their God demanded of them.

This is the challenge which I think the C. O. camps might present to the boys composing them.

All on a Saturday Morning

By Helen A. Penner

Lois and I were very much interested and amused at the activity this morning here at the Canet Plage Convalescent Home. (Lois is staying with me until arrangements are completed to open a similar home at Port Vendres.) This is Saturday, and it really is a busy day! Today, and every day, after the rising bell this place is suddenly transformed into a veritable squirming, wriggling, jabbering hive of human activity; is it any wonder when you stop to consider that there are usually around sixty children staying here? We had eight new arrivals Wednesday. We have them in assorted sizes and ages, from "pocket editions," age agout three, to age fourteen or so. Sometimes they forget to use their hankies, perhaps, don't have any, come down in the morning with the wrong shoe on the right foot, and wear clothing of every size, color, and description, but still they're cute! They are so happy to be here and appreciate everything we do for them. After breakfast some of the older children help the workers make beds, air bedding, scrub floors, tidy up the rooms and grounds, and prepare vegetables for the next meal.

We also have various nationalities represented; some speak French, others Spanish, still others German, and one can speak a little English. Some speak a mixture of languages. The grown-ups use many gestures as they speak; one almost wonders if they'd be able to express themselves if they had their hands tied behind their backs. It is convenient for us that they practically dramatize everything they say as it facilitates our understanding of what seems a long line of chatter at the rate they sometimes utter it.

On Saturday morning baths and shampoos are given wholesale. They have to start in the morning to be sure that each one of the sixty or so gets his turn. It is much warmer during the day so they take less chance of catching cold. The house isn't heated, so it is chilly most of the time. Fuel is used to heat the water for baths. Three of the older children help scrub the younger ones. They stand in line to wait their turns. Each steps into a pan of warm water and is thoroughly sudded and scrubbed. This is followed by a rinsing-off by dousing a pan of warm water over the child. A large warm towel is taken from the oven to be wrapped around him, and he steps out of the pan to make room for the next one. One of the workers combs him and helps him dress.

About ten o'clock we had some letters ready to mail, so we took about a dozen of the clean children with us and went for a walk, mailing our letters on the way. We came back along the beach. The children enjoyed shuffling their feet through the sand and stopped to pick up the small shells they saw along the shore. When we returned, the cook handed me two letters postmarked U. S. A., the perfect finishing touch to a beautiful Saturday morning!

REPORT OF THE FIFTY-FOURTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BETHEL COLLEGE CORPORATION

The fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Bethel College Corporation was held on Friday, November 28, in the College Chapel. It was a beautiful day and a large crowd attended, more than 4,500 votes being represented. There were about 350 visitors, not only from the surrounding communities, but from a distance as well—Dr. Langenwalter was here from California and Dr. Johnson from Hartford, Conn. Both had an opportunity during the day to say a word to the audience and express themselves in appreciation of the work that is being done here. The President's report was distributed in printed form. This report was supplemented by a personal word from the registrar, the dean of the college, the division heads, the dean of labor the assistant treasure, and a number of other faculty members. The treasurer's report indicated that there were more than 2,000 contributors during the fiscal year who made a total contribution of over $70,000, practically all of which has been used for endowment or the Memorial Hall. The net worth of the school therefore has inreased by about that much during the last current year, for all of which we are very grateful.

The nominees for the Western District Conference representatives on the Board of Directors were David C. Wedel, of Halstead, and Henry N. Harder, of Enid, Oklahoma. David Wedel was elected. The nominees for the Corporation were P. K. Regier, of Fredonia, C. C. Wedel, of Hillsboro, and John S. Friesen, of Inman. P. K. Regier was elected.

During the day a number of different points were brought up from the floor for discussion—especially the matter of religious emphasis and prayer among the college faculty. During these times the institution, as well as all those who stand for peace, will be subjected to criticism and fire from the outside, and it is natural that the institution can be sustained only through consecrated prayer on the part of the constituency and the entire school family. Repeatedly it was emphasized that we are living in a very critical time and Bethel College is most urgently needed to

Plea For The Concientious Objector

By Ellen Hutchinson

"Conscientious objector" they cry—
"Communist!" "Coward!" or may be, "Spy!"
Spies there are, many communists, too;
I have no patience with what they do;
But I plead for the man who is true . . .
True to his own conscience' inward light,
True to the faith that right makes might,
That force gains nothing that ever paid,
That what it gains is by far outweighed
By losses vast and by widows made . . .
By physical wrecks of once-fine men;
By minds deranged. Can you tell me when War-gains paid for such? It never fails
That moral decay will tread war's trails.
Our C. O. says, "Put that on the scales!"
He sees modern warfare foul with sin;
Men refrain from naught just so they win.
Injustice, treachery, lying, greed,
Mark the army's march, who give no heed
Though women are killed and children bleed.
You call him "coward" who works 'gainst this!
Full well he knows that his country's bliss
Rests on justice, peace, and religion's sway.
Come jeers and sneers, yes, let come what may.
No cowards are they who this goal seek.
They'll get the earth, because they are meek.
To hate evil they never will cease.
Their spirit chimes with the Prince of Peace.
My full heart says, "May their kind increase!"

What is a Man to Live For?

In his immortal story, "Where Love Is, There God Is Also," the great Russian writer, Leo Tolstoy, depicts the character of a man named Martin, who from the depths of discouragement and despair, asks the question, "What is a man to live for?" And the answer comes to him, "For God, Martin; He gave thee life, and for Him, therefore, thou must live."

How often, among the confusion about us and within us, do we too ask this question: "What is a man to live for?" Perhaps we forget the answer, forget how we must live for God. But we may find the answer in God's Word as did Martin in the old story. He found that to live for God he must live for others. When he had learned this lesson of helping others in need, he found that life was, after all, worth living. So, too, will we discover that when, in the spirit of Christian love, we help even the least of our brethren, we are living for God. —H. H. M.

HELP! HELP!

When we set foot on European soil for the first time October fourteenth, I couldn't help but think of the conditions under which the Apostle Paul first entered Europe. It was in answer to the call, "Come over into Macedonia and help us." There is surely a call for help from the countries of Europe today! We will all need to cooperate to the utmost to answer their cry. Even at that it is only a drop in the bucket, but, it is a drop! "As we work together, joining hands and hearts across the wide expanse of waters, and all keeping our hands clasped securely in those palms that are nail-scarred for a sin-cursed, suffering world, I am extremely confident of the great success that shall attend our labours." * —*Helen A. Presenting Christ's Message

By Miss Gail Yoder

We cannot present a message if we do not have one. So, to present Christ's message we must definitely have it in our hearts, and by that I mean that we must be sincere Christians. We must show by our daily living that we have been with Jesus and know His message.

The first way of presenting Christ's message is by example. In a meeting of this kind it isn't hard to let people know that we are Christians, but when temptations come or we are out with the crowd, can we always show it? My thoughts, words and deeds must be right—for as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he. I must express my real self at all times by being sincerely friendly, never pretending to be a Christian when I am not. I must be honest. Honesty is the best policy, and from His word we have assurance that He will approve the way of an honest man. I must reveal the completeness of my equipment: (Given by Paul, Eph. 6:14-17) Loins girt with truth, breastplate of righteousness, shod with the gospel of peace shield of faith, helmet of salvation, sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God. I must reflect happiness and express faith—faith in God, country, leaders and in myself. (Faith grows just as we put confidence in God).

Another way of presenting Christ's message is through a life of service; service in the home, school and church. We should take our religion seriously and serve wherever possible in the church. We should not attend in a half-hearted manner, giving excuses, and seeking after pleasure when we should be in His worship. Christ said that he who would be great must be servant of all. So, feed the hungry, clothe the naked and visit the sick. Christ also said that if we serve the least of these, we serve Him.

We must be interested in our fellowmen if we want to present Christ's message, and we can show this interest by being "missionary minded." If we cannot be a missionary in a foreign field, we can at least pray for missions and give as the Lord has blessed us, presenting the message in this way.

We may present Christ's message through nature, history, prayer, reason and conscience, and, above all, during these times, through common sense.

And, In closing may I add, due to unsettled world conditions, the hatred and bloodshed, let us all become "missionary minded" in our own every-day living, and present Christ's message to those people who have not yet found Jesus.

"The new year stretches before us. Its record, twelve months hence, will include our inscription. It is as though each day were a clean page on which we are to inscribe a message. Let us determine, by the grace of God and with confidence in His power, to make the message of our lives a testimony to Him whose we are and whom we serve."

3. Cast off darkness; change to light, Rom. 13:11-14.
4. A perpetual gift, John 2:16.

IV. New Year's Resolutions in Answer to Roll Call

Let all members share, either individually by a brief word, an appropriate Bible verse, or a verse of poetry.

V. For Study

More Stately Mansions

There is no more appropriate time than the beginning of the new year to try to follow the advice that the poet gave to himself, "Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul, as the swift seasons roll." The return of January the first is a reminder to us that time is rapidly passing away. It ought to remind us, too, that if we are going to build more stately soul mansions this year than last, it is time to begin.

The first requisite of soul mansions or of any other kind of mansions, is to have the foundations deep and strong. Paul said, "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." The first day of the year is a good time to stop and consider whether we have made Jesus Christ the foundation of our soul mansion. If we have done so, we are ready to go on with our building, and to help others to build.

No mere man can forgive my sin
And break its raging power within,
Or reach down to my deepest need
And give life that is life indeed.
That must my Savior be to me.
All that a God could ever be

Love Never Fails

"You do not love that Man," said Tolstoy bluntly to a Russian painter displaying a canvas in which Christ was the central figure. Tolstroy missed something in the figure. It was not adequate; it was not worthy. "You do not love that Man," he said. A painter must love Jesus Christ before he can speak for Him or work for Him effectively. Love to Christ is the touchstone for making the new year a success.

VII. Food for Thought

"You are writing a gospel
A chapter each day,
By deeds that you do,
By words that you say;
Men read what you write
Whether faulty or true:
Say, what is the gospel
According to you?"

Poem: The New Year

Upon the threshold of the year we stand,
Holding Thy hand;
The year holds mysteries and vague surprise
To meet our eyes;
What will its passing moments bring,
To weep, or sing?

We fear to take any step without Thy care
And presence there;
But all is clear to Thine all-seeing gaze,
Counting the days
From dawn of time, till ages cease to be—Eternity!

Upon the threshold of the year we stand,
Holding Thy hand;
Thou wilt walk step by step along the way
With us each day;
So whether joy or woe shall come this year,
We shall not fear!

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

By Mrs. J. E. Entz

"HIS NAME—JESUS"
"EMMANUEL—GOD WITH US"
"THE MIGHTY GOD"

Program for December 14, 1941

"Who is this King of Glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle." Psalm 24:8.

Setting: This is the third Sunday in Advent. Three tall lighted candles, cedar, an open Bible, turned to the story of the Annunciation, and the beautiful printed verse (Zech. 9:9a, b.) helps us "feel" the greatness of the joy that His coming brings to the heart.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude "Holy, Holy, Holy! Lord God Almighty!"
2. Call to worship: "O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt His name together. O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in Him." Psalm 34:3, 8.
3. Sing in unison: "Holy, Holy, Holy!" vss. 2, 3, 4.
4. Scripture reading by a Junior boy: John 1:1-12.
5. Sing prayerfully one verse of "Come, Thou Almighty King."
6. Leader's opening prayer.
7. Poem by a Junior girl:

Mighty God

"His Name is 'Mighty God,' the Lord,
All might is found in Him,
No power can stand before His might,
No cause He cannot win.
His mighty love will kill all ill,
His power will keep from self,
His mighty grace will bless our life,
And give eternal wealth."

—F. E. Marsh in The King's Business

8. Song: "Joy to the World."
9. Story by a Junior girl: "Making Jesus King,"

Intermediate Christian Sunday School Quarterly, No. 4, Vol. 3, p. 71.

II. Study Period

Aim: To bring to the hearts of our Juniors the comfort of knowing that we have a "Mighty God" who is kind and merciful.

1. Introduction by a Junior girl:

Another name that we find for our Lord Jesus in Isaiah, chapter nine, is the "Mighty God." When Jesus was here on earth the people who were with Him were amazed because everything obeyed Him. The storm at sea, the fish, the trees, every kind of disease, even death obeyed our Lord Jesus, because He is the "Mighty God." He could feed thousands with just a few loaves and fishes, and because He is the "Mighty God" He could forgive the sins of the people.

2. In concert repeat "Isaiah 9:6."

3. Talk by a Junior boy: "The Mighty God created everything." John 1:3; Acts 14:15; Rev. 14:11.

4. Scripture reading: (all Juniors follow in their Bibles) Jeremiah 32:17-19, 27.

5. Bible story told by a Junior girl: "The Mighty God can alone forgive sin." Mark 2:7, 10; John 1:12; Rom. 3:23.

6. Talk by a Junior boy: "A Paralysed Man Cured," Mark 2:3-12.

7. Talk by a Junior girl: "The Mighty God knows us and cares for us," Acts 14:17; Romans 2:4; II Cor. 1:3; John 3:16.

8. Leader's heart talk.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Name the Indian tribes to whom we have sent missionaries. In what states do they live? Who are the missionaries on these different fields? In which Indian Mission field was a church dedicated this fall?

2. Plan to send a gift to one of the Sunday School classes in each field.

3. Pray for our workers among the Indians.

IV. Closing Moments

1. Finish memorizing the song for the month.
2. Repeat in concert the verse for the month.
3. Pray the prayer for the month.
4. Sing softly: "Into My Heart."

HIS NAME—JESUS
EMMANUEL—GOD WITH US
THE PRINCE OF PEACE

Program for December 21, 1941

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." John 14:27a.

Setting: A transparency showing the manger scene (to one side). An "Advent-tree" with its four lighted candles, hung with stars upon which are printed passages of scripture containing promises of the coming Messiah. A large five-pointed star drawn on the black board with one of the names we are studying printed in each corner. This is the fourth Sunday of Advent and Christmas is near. Let us help our Juniors feel this.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude: Melody of "O, Come All Ye Faithful."

2. Call to worship: Ps. 34:3, 8. "O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt His name together. O taste and see that the Lord is good; blessed is the man that trusteth in Him."

3. Stand and sing together: "O, Come All Ye Faithful."

4. Leader's opening prayer.

5. Scripture reading by a Junior boy: I John 4:7-16.

6. Sing: "Joy to the World."

7. Poem by a Junior boy:

Christmas Feelings

"We're dull indeed if we can't see
What Christmas feelings ought to be,
And dull again if we can doubt
It's worth our while to bring them out.
'Glory to God; good-will to men!'
Come! Feel it, show it, live it, then."
—Selected.

8. Solo from rear of church: "Silent Night."

9. Gathering of Christmas promises from the Advent-tree. (Have each Junior read the passage he finds on the star he has gotten from the "Tree.")

10. Singing of a favorite Christmas hymn.

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors into an appreciation of the "peace" that Christ came to bring. To help them seek to be "peace-makers."

1. Introduction by a Junior girl: Just a few days and then Christmas will be here. Already the air is a-tingle with joy and happiness; for several weeks the very air has seemed full of peace and good-will in our homes and schools. All this is because two thousand years ago Jesus came into the world.

2. All Juniors repeat in concert: John 3:16.

3. Reading of the Christmas story from Luke: by a Junior boy.

4. All Juniors repeat in concert: "The Angel Song."

2. Pray the prayer of the month: Psalm 16:1, 11, 9a.
3. Sing the song of the month: "O Come, All Ye Faithful."

5. Sing softly: "Into My Heart."

IN MEMORIAM

PETER L. FRANZ was born in Crimea, Russia, May 22, 1874, and died at the St. Luke's Hospital, Spokane, Washington, Tuesday morning, June 24, 1941, at the age of sixty-seven years, one month, and two days.

He was brought to America by his parents, Leonard and Eva Franz, when one year old. They settled in Yankton, South Dakota, later moving to Parker.

He was baptized on September 13, 1896, by the Rev. Christian Kaufman at the Salem Zion Church east of Freeman. On January 9, 1902, he married Agnetha Ewert at Dolton, South Dakota, and they came west in October of the same year, homesteading near Warden, Washington, and later moving to the present home in Schrag. To this union were born four sons and two daughters, all of whom survive him.

Mr. Franz has always been active in the community and the church. He joined the Menno Mennonite Church, Lind, Washington, by letter in 1903 and has been the teacher of the Men's German Bible class for many years. He was a school director of the Schrag District for twenty-five years.

Mr. Franz had been ill for less than a week, and had undergone a major operation on Monday, June 23. Though the operation seemed successful, his heart was not strong enough to stand the strain. Funeral services were held at the Menno Mennonite Church, with Rev. E. J. Miller in charge, preaching on the subject, "The Village Tragedy."

Surviving him are his wife, Agnetha Ewert Franz; four sons, Walter, Victor, and Albert of Schrag, and Arnold who is in Alaska; two daughters, Bertha and Sylvia, also of Schrag; four brothers, Leonard of Schrag, Julius and William of Toppenish, and David of Auburn; one sister, Mrs. Cornelius Allert of Pullman; and many other relatives as well as a host of friends who deeply regret his passing, but who know that he has gone to a better land than this where God shall wipe away all tears and where there shall be no more sorrow nor pain.

LEVI S. MOYER passed to his eternal reward on November 10, 1941, at his home near Chalfont, Pennsylvania. Levi S. Moyer, senior deacon of the Deep Run Mennonite Church, attained the age of seventy-seven years, five months, and eighteen days. He is survived by three sons and seven daughters, nineteen grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, and four brothers. Funeral services were held on the 14th at Deep Run. Rev. A. M. Fretz, pastor, was assisted by A. D. Hiestand of the Doylestown church. The text used by Rev. Fretz was II Tim. 1:12.

CORRESPONDENCE

NEW HOPEDALE MENNONITE CHURCH

Meno, Oklahoma

Beginning the third of November, and through the evening of the ninth, we were blessed by having Rev. J. J. Esau, the blind evangelist, bring us inspiring messages. From here he went to the Saron Mennonite Church at Orienta to conduct a week's meetings.

On Sunday, November sixteenth, Miss Aganetha Fast, who has served twenty-three years as a missionary in China, gave us a very interesting report of the work there.

Recently our semi-annual business meeting was held, and plans were made for the coming six months. There we decided to purchase The Mennonite Hymnary for use in our church services.

Our Sunday School was represented by Brother Victor Graber at the Northern District Sunday School Convention which was held in the Friend Church, Ringwood, Oklahoma, on November 16. Brother Graber's topic was "Christ, My Life." Brother Nelson Wedel gave a report of the state convention, and the Men's Chorus sang a double number.

Plans have been made to start our mid-week Bible class with Rev. J. R. Barkman in charge. The Ladies Mission Circle had their annual mission sale November 26. —Corr.

THE ONECHO FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

near Colfax, Washington

This rural community, locally known as the Onecho community, has for several generations centered around the church and school. The school, and therefore also the church, is frequently designated by that name. The church is, however, known throughout conference circles as the Mennonite Church of Colfax, but this too has led to wrong conceptions; since the church is located twelve miles south of Colfax, in the above mentioned community and is better designated as near Colfax. The congregation was shepherded for nearly forty-five years by the well known brother, the late P. R. Aeschliman. Upon his retirement the congregation called Rev. W. Harley King who has now served the congregation for the last five years.

This year the congregation and community inaugurated a new move, that of a vacation Bible school. Six teachers and assistants directed the school and fifty-five scholars were enrolled. At the closing program of the school parents and friends were enthusiastic about the accomplishments and possibilities of such a community effort. Parents and children alike were hopeful that another larger and even better school might result another year.

While the pastor and his family were away attending the General Conference and visiting relatives, various ministers brought inspiring messages to the faithful worshipers. They were Rev. A. J. Wiens, Mennonite Church, Deer Park, Washington; Rev. Earl Shoup, Methodist minister at Onecho; Rev. P. D. Unruh, Mennonite Church, Newport, Washington; Rev. C. C. Miller, Church of God, and Rev. Lew Brown, Christian Church.

On September 10 the congregation was invited to rejoice with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Nafziger in celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. The commemoration was in connection with the wedding of their second daughter, Bernice, to Harold Franz and was held at the church.

The harvest this year was an abundant one, due to the frequent rains it was a long and drawn-out season. Much of the grain was damaged, and within the county some grain could not be salvaged.

In the past, visitors from other Mennonite communities have visited here; we welcome such visits and seasons of Christian fellowship. —Corr.

FIFTH CONVENTION OF THE UNION MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The fifth annual convention of the Union Missionary Society of the Mennonites of Indiana was held at Grabill on October 16, with Mrs. Harry Yoder, president of the group, presiding.

More than three hundred persons enjoyed a very inspirational program built around the theme "My Father Worketh Hitherto and I Work." A challenge to greater Christian service was presented through an exhibit of posters on "Service," supplied by the societies represented in the convention.

Mrs. Roy Jones was song leader for the day, with Mrs. Elwyn Blough at the piano. Devotions for the morning session were led by Mrs. Arthur Slagle, using "Faith" as her theme. After roll call of societies and introduction of guests, Mrs. P. A. Hauder, Miss Elma Sprunger, and Mrs. J. S. Slabaugh were appointed to act as a committee on resolutions. Many interesting and helpful suggestions for new projects and for meetings that are different were brought out in a panel discussion, very ably led by Mr. J. E. Hartzler.

Our honorary president, Mrs. Mary Burkhardt, reported briefly on a meeting held at her home where nine members of our group met with Miss White to discuss the work of the churches among migrants. An inter-conference committee of three was appointed by the group to continue study of the subject. Mrs. Burkhardt also urged study of the migrant problem by our societies, introducing literature available for that purpose.

The afternoon session was opened with a devotional service led by Mrs. Garth Stolz, who spoke on "Consecration in our Christian Work." In the current events period for the afternoon Mrs. N. J. Smucker reported news from the Congo and presented definite needs for that work. Miss Inda Sprunger reviewed the work of our home missions, past and present. Dr. Floyd Pannabecker, who had returned from China one week before the convention, very vividly described the difficulties under which missions in China are forced to operate because of the war with Japan. American mission boards are withdrawing many of their workers for the present, leaving the work in the hands of a few missionaries and native Christians. Mrs. Pannabecker, dressed in Chinese costume, gave a brief description of the Women's Missionary Society in China.

An invitation to hold our next convention at the Berne Defenseless Church was accepted during the business session, and the following officers were elected for next year: president, Mrs. Howard Gilliom, Berne; vice president, Mrs. J. S. Slabaugh, Nappanee; recording secretary, Mrs. M. E. Plank, Middlebury; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Jerry Sander, Grabill; treasurer, Mrs. O. J. Yoder, Topeka.

The Win One Missionary Girls of the local church provided a pleasing and helpful program during the fellowship hour, following the afternoon session. The concluding devotional period for the day was led by Mrs. O. J. Yoder, with a talk on "Christian Service."

Rev. R. L. Hartzler, director of Camp 13, Bluffton, Indiana, reported on life in a Civilian Service camp, including in his address the attitude of the boys toward camp life, the attitude of the government toward these camps, and the generous support by the churches. Rev. Hartzler stressed the need of both material and spiritual support of this new work undertaken by the Mennonite Central Committee.

Mr. Ted Claassen reported on European Relief Work by describing his work among English children in and near London during the past year. He pictured some very touching incidents and told of the blessings brought into destitute lives by our relief work.

The convention passed resolutions pledging full support to our Mennonite Central Committee and the inter-conference committee planning our work among migrants. We are deeply grateful for the gracious hospitality of the Missionary Societies of the church at Grabill. Profiting by the inspiration received from this convention, we can surely look forward to a year of blessing and progress in our societies.

Report of the Fifty-fourth Annual Meting of The Bethel College Corporation help our church through these dark days. Leadership in the civilian service camps is largely coming from college graduates and recognition on the part of our government for our peace position is largely due to the work that has been done by college graduates.

The meeting was adjourned and the folks went home with a new determination to put forth extra ort, financial and otherwise, especially in the light the fact that a few larger gifts are in prospect from r non-Mennonite friends provided the Mennonites not lie down but keep up and, if possible, increase eir gifts during the coming year. It is hoped that e Jolliffe $50,000 challenge can be met by the ne of the Booster Banquet. If the Bethel College ends everywhere help to their capacity this should possible.

By special resolution the Corporation voted to aim an average contribution for the College of $10.00 r church member per year.

FOUR THINGS TO DO

"Four things a man must learn to do
If he would keep his record true:
To think without confusion, clearly:
To love his fellow man sincerely;
To act from honest motives purely;
To trust in God and Heaven securely."

Getting or Giving

God so loved that He gave unto us Jesus Christ, His Son. Jesus so loved that He lived and died for us in order that we might know the forgiveness of sins and experience the love and fellowship of our Father in heaven. As the disciples of Christ we are to love so that others will find life abundant in Him. The love of Christ in the hearts of his disciples can have no other outlet than the one of giving.

Getting is one of the key notes of the Christmas shopping season. Hamlets, towns, and cities put up Christmas decorations. Are most of these put up in honor of Christ or are they put up to stimulate Christmas buying? One wonders at this annual action of chambers of commerce when one remembers some of the evils they condone during other times of the year. Stores whose owners and workers make no great efforts to attend church regularly put up Christmas decorations. Why? To honor the Christ whom they refuse to worship on Sundays? Hardly. Liquor stores have Christmas wines and whiskies. It is hard to imagine wise men bringing packages of fancy liquor to Christ. How must Christ feel when His birthday is used for cornering the dollar?

Getting is a note which strikes disharmony in many a home. Adults grumble when the exchange of "things" leaves them with the poorer possession. From an early age on youngsters are stimulated to irritate their parents with, "What am I going to get for Christmas?" Smiles and eager looks turn into stiffly-drawn faces when "Santa Claus" (Santa Claus harmonized with the note of getting, not Christ) proves disappointing. In too many homes, homes which have all necessary material goods, Christmas would be considered a failure if no material gifts came into the home, even though the riches of Christ were as available as ever.

Giving is the characteristic of those who are the disciples of Him who gave all. Above all should joyous giving be the distinguishing mark of Christians at a time when they commemorate the giving of Him who in turn gave Himself that men and women might give themselves to God and thereby do His will upon earth as it is done in heaven.

If a Christian rejoices in Christ, should he not above all seek to give Christ to those who have not received Him? How many empty hearts there are across the sea and right in our own neighborhoods who need the Christ of Christmas! Christ is the greatest gift that we can bring to anyone. Let us never become confused in our values. It is good to give material gifts out of a loving heart to those who are needy, materially and spiritually. But "the gift without the giver is bare." The Christ of the Christian heart must be given along or the gift will be very bare. When we give a material gift and fail to give Christ, we are but bringing relief to the recipient and not life abundant.

Above all this Christmas, let us give the most precious gift, Christ, and material gifts will be added unto our giving in their proper place. When we so give, then the worldly idea of getting will find little room in our mind and heart. "It is more blessed to give than to receive." —rw.

A Personal Query

By Fred Scott Shepard

Had I been with the shepherds there,
Upon that holy night,
Should I have seen the vision rare,
Which burst upon their sight?
Or would mine eyes have holden been
To glories which by them were seen?

Had I been there when wise men brought Rich offerings from afar,
Led to the One for whom they sought,
By a mysterious star,
Would I have worshiped, as did they,
Or turned indifferently away?

The angel's song, the shepherd's word,
The Magi's witnessing
Proclaimed, with wonderful accord,
The birth of Christ, the King:
If I such marvelous things had seen,
What would my attitude have been?

Today, as in the long ago,
When Christ on earth was born,
Men either seek His will to know,
Or turn away in scorn;
If Christ, as Lord, they would enthrone,
Then would His "peace on earth" be known.

A Joyous Christmas

To all the readers of The Mennonite a very Joyous Christmas. May Christ become yours in a greater and deeper way. The Mennonite is not published during Christmas week.

GIFT SUGGESTION

Perhaps, you are rushed and can't think of what to give to so-and-so. Why not give that individual, especially, if he appreciates singing very much, a copy of the new Mennonite Hymnary? This is an outstanding book. Someone who hasn't a copy, will be very happy to get his own private one.

CHRISTMAS

No sheep in the folds,
No star in the west,
No babe lulled to sleep
On His young mother's breast.
But sheep of God's flock
Straying far from His love,
Have a glorified Man
Interceding above.

No gold and no myrrh,
No sweet frankincense,
But the gift of the heart
When the sinner repents.
No music on earth
From the angelic bands,
But the praise and prayer
Of the saved of all lands.

Apart from the Christ—
No joy at His birth,
Though merry and gay
All the feasting on earth;
The candles burn out,
And the feasting is done;
But the glory of heaven
Shines forth in God's Son.

CHRIST OR SANTA CLAUS?

The other day," says the Lookout, "a midwestern preacher asked the children of his Sunday School, 'What do you think of first when you think of Christmas?'

"Like an avalanche came the reply, 'Santa Claus'!

"If you were to try it in your Sunday school, the chances are the results would be the same."

Now would they? That depends entirely on the character of the entertainment furnished during the holiday season. If it is a Santa Claus-centered program, Santa Claus will be the hero of the occasion. If it is a Christ-centered program, memories of Christmas will be very properly associated with the Hero of heroes. After all, children only reflect the atmosphere in which they have been instructed.

Greetings from Basna

It is with joy that we prepare to send out the second number of our Newsette. Looking back over the past months we realize that we have much to be thankful for. As we look forward to the birthday of our King and Redeemer, we anticipate a blessed Chistmas season, perhaps, more peaceful than you will have in the homeland. We see only an occasional car, and clanking street cars and shrieking train whistles do not reach us. We will be able to hear the songs of the carolers long before they reach our home and we will rejoice in the old, yet ever new message.

Some of you may be wondering just how much our work is affected by the present world condition. Very little! There is, of course, the irregularity of the mail service. And some materials, especially building materials, have gone up tremendously in price. But considering what so many others are facing at this time, then these inconveniences are scarcely worth mentioning.

"If thoughts of hope and joy and mirth
Can travel freely round the earth,
A host of them are on their way
To greet you on this Christmas Day."

(By the Basna missionaries, Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Dester, Mr. and Mrs. John Thiessen, Miss Augusta Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Duerksen, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ratzlaff, in the Basna Newsette of October, 1941.)

A MEETING OF THE PEACE COMMITTEE

On November 21 and 22 the Peace Committee of the General Conference met on the campus of Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas, to make its plans for action for this coming year. Four members were able to be present, as follows: H. T. Unruh, Bluffton, Ohio; L. J. Horsch, Ontario, California; Emil J. Waltner, Hurley, South Dakota; Ernest J. Bohn, Souderton, Pennsylvania. Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, North Newton, was not able to be present, due to his prolonged illness; John J. Rempel, Rosthern, Saskatchewan, also was not able to come.

At this meeting various activities were planned by our committee which we hope may be an aid to our people to meet the crisis we are facing these days. We feel that especially at this time we have a God-given task to perform, and we would appreciate your prayers for the uncertain days ahead of us.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

REASONS FOR PRAYER AND THANKSGIVING

Now that we are fully in the world war, prayer is needed more than ever. While, as far as we know, our missionaries in China and the Philippines are all safe, we have wired to the State Department in Washington for whatever information they may have. We sent them the names and addresses of the five missionaries still in China (Brother and sister Brown, sisters Kuyf, Goertz, and Regier) and the six in the Philippines (Jantzens, Dirks's and Wuthrichs). After we had sent this wire, the secretary of the Foreign Missions Conference also asked for full information, so that the officers of this conference may help not only to get information but also to find a way for all of them to come home.

As far as China is concerned, the chief problem just now is, how to get money to our missionaries. They have some accumulated funds, which would be enough to pay for their home trip immediately, but if their home coming should be long delayed, this surplus would dwindle.

The last word we have is from sister Marie J. Regier about ten days ago, dated September 25, almost three months ago, which shows how slow the mail now goes. In September they were still happy in the work, with but little trouble. What trouble they had, was caused mostly by misunderstanding the turning over of the work to the Chinese, and the restricted turning over of the property, i. e., only for use, not for ownership.

A few months earlier sister Wilhelmina Kuyf reported in a letter to her home church, First Mennonite, Philadelphia, Pa. She also writes to clear up misunderstandings among people here at home.

While her letter is not expressly written for publication in the church papers, she will not object, if we publish most of it here:

Taming, Hopei, China

Dear Friends at First Mennonite:

Just this morning Marie J. Regier, my co-worker, received a letter in which her friend said that it was a pity that humanly speaking our work in China is breaking up.

It bothered me to think that some folks at home are under that impression, so I'm hurrying to write to you, my special friends, to tell you that it isn't so. The church of Christ is bigger than people, and it is going on here, with many consecrated Chinese men and women continuing their work as evangelists, Bible women and teachers.

Last Sunday our attendance in Sunday School here in Taming was 258, with a larger number than that in church. While church was going on, 62 children took part in a Junior worship service. The day before that we had the first graduation exercises of the Young Women's Home Training and Bible School, when four young women received their diplomas after three years of work. This morning all the members of six "character reading" classes had a combined program and meal together, and at the time given for testimonies, they had to be limited, they were so anxious to give their witness. Then yesterday Marie went out to see how two of our Bible women were getting along. They are in a village about 35 li from here. Some of you have heard about this place before, it is the home of the woman who used to be a witch (called that for want of a better way of translating it). She is now earnestly studying the Christian way of life. Marie found that the women were glad to stay out, in spite of the fact that the weather is hot, and home is a lot more comfortable, because of the big groups that come to listen each time they preach or teach.

Just had a letter from Miss Goertz in which she reported triplets born at our Kaichow hospital, the first in her history, and in the hospital's history too. Another woman, 36, was delivered of her first child after a long, difficult labor. Without our hospital the mother of the triplets would have died of hemorrhage, and in the second case it would have been a question of mother or child.

I mention these unrelated facts to show you that Christian work over here isn't breaking up. Our Chinese Christians are a capable group, and God never said that His church could prosper only under foreign direction.

Keep on praying for us all, that we may be found faithful, and above all, that we do not cheat ourselves by not staying close to the Master.

Hope all of you have a good summer, at home or elsewhere. Let me hear from you. God's richest blessings on you as you work there with Him.

Sincerely, in Christian fellowship,
Wilhelmina Kuyf

THE SEASON'S GREETINGS

"A Merry Christmas" with "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable Gift" (II Cor. 9:15), and "A Blessed New Year," thinking of "My times are in Thy hand" (Ps. 31:15). The gift coming to us thus will, undoubtedly, furnish perfect security to be in His hand. He has said, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world" (John 16:33) and "All power is given unto Me in heaven and on earth" (Matt. 28: 28). Look at the:

Wonderful facts: The Old Testament opens with man made in the image of God; the New Testament opens with God in the image of man!

Wonderful announcements: "Ye are the light of the world and the salt of the earth"; "Ye are my friends, little children, brethren, disciples, apostles, witness of me!"

Wonderful commands: "Go preach and teach the Gospel, make disciples of all nations, bid to the marriage!"

Wonderful opportunities: "To turn the world upside down; to cause new creatures among men."

On the mission fields of our conference, among the American Indians, Chinese, and Indians, reside hundreds of thousands, groping in utter darkness, who are yet to be evangelized.

Nations spend from fifty thousand to seventy-five thousand dollars to kill a single soldier; whereas it has not cost one percent of this amount on our mission fields to save from everlasting destruction a soul worth more than ALL riches of the world. There now live on the Indian field over two thousand cleansed saints. Oh, how wonderful!

"The silver is mine, and the gold is mine; every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills; prove me, if I will not open for you the windows of heaven and pour out a blessing, that there shall not be found room enough to receive it; is the seed yet in the barn? yea, as yet the vine, and the fig tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive tree, hath not brought forth: from this day will I bless you!"

During 1940 the Sudan Interior Mission sent thirty new missionaries into their African field. By July of this year twenty-three had already gone out. Thus last year's number may be equalled or superseded.

We are told to "ask," "seek," and "knock." We have such promises as, "Will be given," "Shall find," and "Shall be opened." Could we not take from this a lesson in simple faith? It is easy for a person who believes.

Yours in His service for more than thirty years,
P. W. and Mathilda Penner

SNAP SHOTS FROM JANJGIR

By S. T. Moyer

He had just returned from school. He would no lift a finger to help in the home chores nor in the field labors. A prayer in my prayer room and a frank talk with him before his father started him on a better path. Thus he established a good record for himself.

He came to my Sunday School class. After five months he accepted Christ as Lord and Saviour. Five more months passed. One morning the news suddenly spread. He had been caught out at night with a young girl. Condemnation of sin was universal. His only sin was serious indiscretion. And I, a missionary, had to be a surgeon of souls.

* * * *

A cement arch had to be built over a nine-foot span. The masons were on the walls and everything was in place. They were the best masons of which this place could boast. "You will have to tell us how to do it", they told me. And I, a missionary, had to know how to lay a flat cement arch over a nine-foot span, so as to hold the heavy weight of masonry above. I had to be a teacher of bricklayers.

* * * *

Since the time when Brother P. W. Penner went on furlough in 1938, the catechetical instruction of the local church had been somewhat neglected. "You will have to do that", said my fellow missionaries. So I became a catechist. Twelve were baptized at Christmas and three more before school opened in June. Two more classes are now running about twenty-five enrolled.

* * * *

We were making our first evangelistic effort since returning from furlough, and for us, at this new station. We had not yet arrived with the team of workers when unitedly we were "utterly captivated by Christ, completely consecrated to Christ, personally commissioned by Christ, heroically crusading for Christ."

Still, believing that our sharpest tool is the Word of God and that one of the best methods is teaching, we spent four days in retreat. "You tell us how to do it," said Eshwaridas.

So taking the newly enlisted workers, I had to become a teacher of teachers as we laid siege on Udeband. Two of the non-Christian leaders utterly opposed us with hearts as hard as stone. But when we came to leave after three weeks, one of them said, "The day will come when we will become Christians, and I will lead the entire group." This second year we had eleven campaigns, with perhaps, eight hundred non-Christians learning, thus permitting the Sword of the Spirit to pierce their minds and souls.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Rev. Jacob Janzen, Waterloo, Ontario

DECEMBER 21.—"Surely the people is grass." (Isa. 40:7)

God's word denies no truth, be it as severe as it may. The people are grass that withers and dies at the breath of the Righteous One. There is no use denying this. We are under a law which we cannot fulfill and by that law we are condemned to death. No one can be saved unless he sees this. No lost man can get home unless he gets his bearings and finds out where he stands, to take the direction in which his home lies. No sinner can be saved unless he sees his peril and finds his way to the Father. Therefore repentance opens the doors of salvation for us. This is the hard part of our conversion. But God comforts those who see their peril, and saves them.

DECEMBER 22—"But the word of our God shall stand for ever." (Isa. 40:8)

If our peril is sure, then our life from death is all the more sure, because God says, "Live!" We are lost in our sins but not forsaken by God. He passed by us and saw us polluted in our own blood, and He said, "Live!" God's word is no withering grass and will stand even when heaven and earth shall pass away. We have to see and to admit our deadly sickness of sin, to come to the Great Physician to be restored to life by Him. To the sick man the diagnosis of the surgeon sounds like doom; he would not submit to the operation if the doctor did not tell him the whole truth about his condition. But the operation is for life, not for death.

DECEMBER 23—"He shall feed His flock like a shepherd: He shall gather the lambs with His arm, and carry them in His bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young." (Isa. 40:11)

Why is God so much interested in our life? He is love, and love wants to live out her nature. He wants us to live, so that He might make us happy. The prophet shows this in the parable of the shepherd who feeds his flock and rejoices in the joy of his sheep. He needs our hunger to satisfy us. He needs our weakness to fill us with His power. He wants to hold us close to His heart and to carry us home in His arms. And if we have dependents ourselves and are filled with His love to care for them, then He will lead us gently to make our duty easy for us and to increase our love toward those whom He has entrusted to us as a flock. He is our all in all.

DECEMBER 24—"Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." (Luke 2:10)

This is a day and a night of joy, for all that is necessary for our salvation has been placed within our reach, in a manger, fully accessible not only to us but also to the dumb beasts of the fields. Kings and shepherds, the wise and the simple, can find, and have found, their way to that manger and to the Christ Child therein. But the joy, which the angels proclaimed, has not yet penetrated and reached all the people. Bloody wars still rage. Unspeakable misery is being spread all over the world. And so many men and women are too foolish to let that joy enter their hearts. But the angel said that that joy shall be to all people, and it will finally fill the hearts of all people. Then wars will cease.

DECEMBER 25—"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ, the Lord." (Luke 2:11).

Many have come to present themselves to us as saviours, but they have all failed miserably. They had nothing to give man. They could not help him, because they were as weak and poor as man was. Then Jesus Christ came into our poverty and weakness; He is the Saviour, the Lord, who is mighty to help us, and rich to give us all that we need to be filled with eternal joy. As soon as the people will surrender to Him wars will cease, and joy and peace will prevail. As long as we pass Him by, no wisdom and no violence will bring us rest. Who is your Lord and King?

DECEMBER 26—"On earth peace." (Luke 2:14).

People blaspheme, saying, "The angels told the shepherds a lie, because there was, and there is no peace on earth, and never will be." But Jesus once said, "If a son of peace is there, your peace shall rest upon him; if not it shall return to you again." Peace has been on earth ever since the angels proclaimed it. But where are the sons and daughters of peace? To many people peace is here as a rejected gift. They deny peace, and refuse to accept it. Then they say, "there is no peace." The spirit of war is so strong against the spirit of peace that one justly fears, there must be very few children of peace on this earth. Only the peace accepted by men will overcome the spirit of war and make the wars cease. Peace is here. Are you a child of peace?

DECEMBER 27—"We beheld His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth." (John 1:14).

Our forebears were slaves of sin, and although there is some difference among their descendants some being great, some insignificant, they are all alike in being slaves also. But Jesus was a free man by His birth from the Father, full of glory and truth. Before his new birth every man is bound to sin. Many would like to be righteous, but Satan compells them to sin. Jesus was free to choose because He was the son of a free Father. Except for that freedom He was exactly as we are, in the same flesh and in the same weakness. But He was free to choose, and "Glory be to God," as our head He chose God, whom Adam and Eve had forsaken. And with the Head the whole body is restored to God. Are you with the Head, Jesus Christ?

DECEMBER 28—"If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." (John 8:36).

Because all men are slaves of sin nobody can redeem his brother from the bondage of sin. There is but One who can redeem us, Jesus Christ, the free born Son of the Father of Glory. If you are heavy laden under the burden of your sin, there is but One who can set you free and give you everlasting joy. Many despair, trying to redeem themselves. Many are deceived into the fellowship of such who do not know the way themselves and have no power to release anyone from his slavery. Many also believe themselves to be free by their own wisdom and might; but wisdom and authority over our fellow men, if given to us, put us only so much the more under obligation to do what we are unable to do. Whom the Son makes free, he is free indeed.

DECEMBER 29—"Casting all your anxiety upon Him; for He careth for you." (I Pet. 5:7).

Our Saviour is a free man, a Lord, and the King of Kings. We are His because He redeemed us from the slavery of sin and bought us at a great price. He careth for us, and if we grow anxious about something we minimize His glory and mistrust Him. He is interested in us as in His own treasury, and whosoever hurts us, hurts Him. The days of this year trickle away. God has kept us wonderfully so far. And if He saw fit to put a cross upon us, He also gave the strength to bear it. Why should we care anxiously? Our fate is in His mighty loving hands. As long as the Lord lets us live, we will work and strive, but we shall not care anxiously. We will do the sowing, and He will bring about the harvest.

DECEMBER 30—"Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in Thy sight." (Luke 15:21).

The year draws to a close, and we feel that the hour nears in which we will be taken to account for what we have done and how we have redeemed the time entrusted to us. Our conscience is against us; I believe, our confession will be just, "Father, I have sinned." We have sinned against the subtle requirements of our spiritual life or against heaven; we have sinned against our fellow men here on earth. Peter had sinned. When the Lord asked him whether he still loved Him, Peter said, tears trickling down his creased cheeks, "Thou knowest all things; Thou knowest that I love Thee." We have sinned. But whosoever still loves Him will be reinstated in his office to feed the flocks of the Lord.

DECEMBER 31—"Thou turnest men into destruction; and sayest, Return, ye children of men." (Ps 90:3).

As the year is coming to its close, even so our lives will once terminate. We must die, and death seems to be destruction to us. Our dead are the departed to us. But that is a onesided conclusion. They depart from us for the time being, and return to the Lord. But, praise the Lord, He does not bid them to depart, but calls them to return when they die. He who brought us here, will also lead us further, even through the valley of death, into His presence. Even where sin abounded, His grace did much more abound. He will carry us through until we return to Him. Though everything terminates, we are His in life, His in death, and His in all eternity.

A TESTIMONY

Of late we have heard and read a great deal about the Historic Peace Churches, our peace program, our heritage, our opportunities to witness to the non-violent way of living, etc. It was our privilege to be at the Colorado Springs camp for a few months this year. It is the finest, the most congenial group of men I have ever worked with. They cooperate with each other and with the members of the staffs and respect each others' views not because they have to but because they want to. Voluntary cooperation is an inspiration. The brotherhood of man means nothing without the Fatherhood of God.

Last fall a man from that soil conservation area was at the camp for several days while working on some machinery used in the work of soil conservation. He occupied the guest room in our apartment during his stay. The first morning the devotion was closed by repeating the Lord's Prayer. He repeated it with us. After dismissal I waited for him to open the conversation. He did and this is, in essence, what he said, "You know, I was just thinking that this is exactly what we need in our C. C. C. camps. Some of the boys may have forgotten it when they walk through the door, but, at least they thought on it at that time. . . . The best way to begin a day's work is with a period of worship." This man spoke from personal experience.

The C. P. S. camps need our support, both prayers and finances. It is another way to testify to our way of life. Our educational institutions, missions, publications, and other agencies need our support as much or more than ever. In a time like this, more than ever before, we have the opportunity to express and to live the Christian life. Read I Corinthians chapter thirteen.

Our thoughts often go to the camps, the boys, and the technical staff as well as the camp staff. Naturally we think of the Colorado Springs camp.

C.P.S. CAMP NEWS

C. P. S. CAMP NEWS

CORRECTION—An error appeared in the C. P. S. news released on November 19. The Cascade Locks Camp is located in Oregon and not in California.

The Marietta, Ohio, camp has published its first issue of "Whispering Pines," which is the camp paper. In its first issue, "Whispering Pines" gives an interesting glimpse of camp life at the Marietta Camp. It tells of the work project, educational program, recreation, and religious interests of the boys.

SPECIAL

Churches and individuals occasionally inquire as to how they may help our camps in a special way. We suggest the following steps:

First, write to the camp director to find out what suggestion he may have for donations. Second, limited storage space and danger of an over-supply of perishable goods require that at least a week's notice be given to the camp director before any deliveries are made to the camp.

With Christmas near, a splendid opportunity is at hand for showing interest in the boys who are in camp.

CLIPPINGS

(From Pike View Peace News, November 29)

VISITORS SPEAK

Dr. E. G. Kaufman, President of Bethel College, spoke of the challenges of the rural community in a meeting of the camp core course. In his interesting lecture he stated: that the Bible is primarily a rural book; that the rural individual is God-minded because he works with God; that we must guard against the loss of the true community spirit with the introduction of farm machinery.

Dr. Henry Fast, general director of Mennonite camps, paid his fourth visit to the camp on November 23. He was able to stay only one day while enroute to the new camp to be opened in Oregon. In his talks he pointed out the factors that contribute to a wholesome morale.

Mr. Carl Landes, rural secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, also emphasized the benefits of the rural community. He stated that conserving the holy soil of our country is of utmost importance and is directly related to our beliefs.

ADVISORY COUNCIL VISITS CAMP

Four members of the advisory council met with the camp staff, Tuesday, November 25, to discuss the problems of this camp and to interpret the churches to the camp and the camp to the churches.

During the course of the meeting three major suggestions were made in the interest of the CPS program:

1. That the men in camps use their furlough time, as well as the time after they are released, to promote understanding of and encourage support for the camp.
2. That the various churches who send men to CPS camps give the assignees a charge before they leave for camp. They are entering a significant service and their departure for these camps should receive appropriate recognition.
3. That efforts be made to have intra-denominational Mennonite conferences in convenient geographic areas to discuss the CPS program and to obtain information concerning it.

The opportunities for spiritual education and growth were emphasized in the meeting. The feeling was also expressed that the home communities are not receiving adequate information about the camps.

MATRON ADDED TO CAMP STAFF

Mrs. Eddie Linscheid arrived in camp November 20 to assume her duties as matron of the camp. Having been without a matron since September, the campers received their new "camp mother" enthusiastically on Thanksgiving day.

Chief among her duties will be the supervision of the library, the work in the laundry, and the orderliness of the dormitories. She has already shown that she will help the men in countless other ways.

Mrs. Linscheid, whose home was originally in Hillsboro, Kansas, has come to us from Arlington, Kansas, where she has been operating a wheat and poultry farm since 1938. Her mother, Mrs. Rudolf Riesen, came with her to camp, and together they will make their home in the former J. H. Gaeddert apartment.

NEW CAMPS

Camp No. 21, Henry, Illinois, will receive its first assignment of men on December 9. The camp is administered by the Mennonite Central Committee, and the men will do soil conservation work. Four men from the Denison camp are making preliminary preparations.

Camp No. 22 at Cascade Locks on the Columbia River in Oregon is expected to open soon. It will be administered jointly by the Brethren Service Committee and the Mennonite Central Committee, and the work will be in the forestry service.

SIXTEEN COMPLETE FIRST AID COURSE

First Aid Class I completed their course November 19. They used the first aid book of the Red Cross for a textbook. The class was taught capably and efficiently by Mr. Billy Griffiths of the local Red Cross unit. Those who finished the course will receive the Red Cross card authorizing them to render emergency first aid.

THANKSGIVING

Sixty guests were entertained by the camp at a Thanksgiving banquet in the dining hall Thursday evening, November 27.

The dining hall and the tables were decorated in holiday garb. The turkey and other items on the menu were contributed by friends of the camp. A brief program, arranged by the campers, was given after the meal.

Following open house in the dormitories and the new recreation lounge the choir of the First Methodist church presented a concert.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The SCS office received notice that four new Ford trucks will be delivered to our camp in February. The trucks will be used to take the crews to the work projects.

The Mennonite Central Committee informs us that the money that was saved through our Armistice Day fast has been put into the fund for European relief. The amount was slightly over twenty-five dollars.

A program rendered at the United Presbyterian church November 23, included numbers by the camp quartet, the men's chorus, a violin solo by Arlo Sonnenberg, and a talk by Albert Gaeddert on the subject "Gratitude for Liberties." Earlier in the evening Rev. Gaeddert spoke at the Evangelical church. The quartet sang at Union Printers Home on Sunday afternoon, November 9.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE

John 14:1-6 Rev. 22:1-5

Introduction

In our common usage, hope is a desire accompanied with more or less expectation of attaining the thing desired. In scripture the term hope is applied to our future reward and to our Lord's return, and in this there is no element of uncertainty. It is as certain as the absolute promise of God and of Christ can be (Heb. 6:18, 19). Paul speaks of "the hope which is laid up for you in heaven" (Col. 1:4) and "the hope of eternal life" (Titus 3:7) as one of the most certain of all things. The gospel of Christ has a message full of assurance and comfort on which we can absolutely depend.

Jesus' Words of Assurance, John 14:1-6

"John 14 is the richest vein in the most remarkable gold mine in the world—the Bible" (Torrey). The keynote of the chapter is in the first clause of verse 1. The second clause is Jesus' prescription for heart trouble. We take our choice between believing hearts and troubled hearts. When faith enters, anxiety leaves. The disciples had troubled thoughts because Jesus had been speaking about his going away. Jesus urges them to hold firm faith in Him, even as they believe in God. Jesus is our supreme authority concerning the future life. His words are most comforting. They resound like music in the souls and fill the heart of the Christian with gratitude and joy. Heaven, the Father's house, is a large place—many abiding places—with room enough for all of us in his presence (vs. 2). Jesus went to prepare this place—a glorious assurance for us.

Jesus is coming again to take us to that place (vs. 3). He will return personally to earth, and, in a sense, He comes for each believer at the hour of death. We need to so live that we may be ready for His call. There will be an eternity of bliss with Him and the Father. He will not send for us; He will come Himself. The return of our Lord is the "blessed hope" of believers (Titus 2:13). To be with Christ will be unalloyed happiness.

Jesus reveals the way to the Father's house, the way to life everlasting. He Himself is the way, the only way. The "I" in verse six is very emphatic in the Greek. Jesus is the "truth" incarnate. Others teach the truth. Jesus is the truth. He reveals God fully. He is "the Life." Through Him spiritual life is imparted to men.

The New Jerusalem, Rev. 22:1-5

This is the closing section of John's remarkable description of the heavenly realm (Rev. 21). The "pure river of water" flows forth from the very presence of God and Christ (vs. 1). The true water of life is the Holy Spirit (John 4:10, 11). He proceeds from the Father and the Son (John 15:26, Acts 1:4, 5). The tree of life, nourished by the river (vs. 2) gives fruit in constant supply and in abundance. It is the symbol of true wisdom, and there is healing for all spiritual diseases through our Christ. All sins and ills will be healed in the heavenly city. Christians need daily spiritual refreshment, which comes through the Holy Spirit.

God's throne is in the midst of His people. The curse of sin cannot enter the city. Nothing defiling can enter heaven. God's servants shall see His face and rejoice in the eternal light. God Himself is the light of the city. All light is derived from Him. Eternal fellowship with Christ is the final reward of the Christian. Christ so desires it. In the child of God eternal life begins here on earth. The life hereafter is a continuation and enrichment of that which he knows and enjoys as a child of God in this world. The sinner, when he dies, steps out into the night; but the Christian finds the lights of home at the end of his earthly walk. His hope of heaven is glorious and sure.

Why is definite information about the future life especially welcome?

Why, in your opinion, do so many people ignore the hereafter?

Jesus said, "I am the way." What does that mean to us?

"Until . . . The Day Star Arise"

By Arline Yoder

"Hallelujah! Oh, how the angels sang!
Hallelujah! how it rang!"

Rita and Joy were standing along with others outside the church, the words of that last song still ringing in their hearts. They had helped to sing it. The chapter of another annual Christmas program was closed. Their hearts had been strangely warmed and thrilled in the celebration of the birthday of the King of kings.

A light snow had fallen and the night was so still—so calm, that one could almost feel the quietness around. Bright stars glittered in the heavens and a pale moon hovered above as a beacon to a Christ-worshiping world.

Joy, her mind apart from the conversation, was watching the sky.

"And the sky was bright with a holy light,
'Twas the birthday of a King."

"Yes, tomorrow will be Christ's birthday—and mine. That is why I was called Joy, because I was born in such a joyful season. "Dear Jesus," she prayed, "I thank Thee for Christian parents who love Thee, and who constantly pray for me that I may always do the right."

"What are you staring at the sky for, Joy, I almost forgot you were here?" questioned Rita as the conversation was broken up by the departure of some of the girls. "Oh, here come Jim and Dave—looks as if they have something plotted. It looks as if we may have a double date, Joy."

Joy liked Jim, but he was a bit worldly minded, as were also Dave and Rita. But she was never a "wet-blanket"—even though her conscience did trouble her at times. She loved fun too much herself to spoil it for others. But tonight Joy did not want to be brought back to earth. Her mood was too worshipful,—she wanted to stay on the mountain top to which she was borne on the wings of the birthday songs of her King.

For a long time Joy sat quietly in the car beside Jim, her mind scarcely on the conversation, though the laughter irritated her.

Finally, Jim ventured, "Joy, what makes you so unearthly quiet tonight? Rita doesn't give you a chance to say anything, I know. She's so talkative." They laughed—that is, all except Joy.

"I'm sorry, Jim; I didn't mean to be rude. But it is such a quiet and beautiful evening, and after such a wonderful service I can't get my mind off the fact that it is so wonderful to have a birthday on the same day as my Lord. But where are we going, Jim? May I ask?" politely.

"Dave and I had that all planned—a Christmas surprise for you girls. We must celebrate, you know."

Considering the direction in which they were traveling, Joy concluded that they were on their way to G————, a large city not far distant. That meant one thing—what it had meant a number of times before. Each time her conscience troubled her a bit less.

But tonight she wondered how she could endure to sit through a two-hour performance at the theater. All the wonders she had experienced that evening would be swept aside. And as she would step out into the stinging cold from a hot, stuffy balcony, weary-worn, the only thing left would be an empty heart. If they only felt as she felt—but there must be a way out some way. Maybe Jesus could help her. She thought of her parents praying for her at home—what if they knew? They would be grieved. There was a tug at her heart. She pleaded with Jesus, with her whole heart, soul, and mind that they would not take her to the theater. She truly did not want to go.

"Still enjoying the evening, Joy?"

"Yes, Jim, do you mind—?"

"Not at all—this is your birthday party."

Rita and Dave in the back seat became engrossed in conversation of their own, leaving Jim and Joy to their own meditations.

At last they reached the city. The dazzling lights and decorations blinded them as they entered.

Suddenly Rita sat forward in her seat and looked searchingly out of the window.

"Say, Jim, do you mind turning around up here? I think I saw something on that church signboard back there."

"Sure, Rita; don't tell me you want to go to church again after sitting in one all evening?"

"Well, if it's what I think I saw, I do. The rest of you can go on to the show if you want to, and pick me up here. I'm going to hear this if I have to walk home."

Joy's heart leaped. Whatever it was, it must be better in a church than a theater, especially on this particular night. "What was it, Rita?" Joy suddenly beamed with interest.

"I don't know; I'll tell you later when I'm sure."

Jim turned the car around, and drove back slowly. He parked directly in front of the signboard.

"That's it—I thought I saw right." In bold letters—"Kay Curtis—Converted from the Stage." "That's the girl who was a star toe dancer a few years back in all the largest theaters. She danced in the best theaters in Broadway. My cousin, Fred, lives in New York, and I heard him talking about her. And now that tells me she is speaking in this church. Did you ever hear anything like it? I'm going to hear this."

"I'd like to, too," ventured Joy.

'But," laughed Dave, "it's nine forty-five and church is probably over. You don't see anyone around."

"But the signboard says 7:30 and 9:30. The second service is going on now, I'll bet." Rita was sure.

"That is unusal to have two services in one evening, isn't it?" asked Joy.

"They do occasionally when the crowds are too large to take care of," Rita informed.

"Well, let's go in and see what we can see." Jim was reluctant.

As they opened the door they saw no available seats. There was standing room only, as many others had discovered before them. So they lined up along the back wall with the rest of the standers.

Kay had just risen and was facing the large crowd. How wonderful she looked in her Christian beauty! thought Joy. She could scarcely visualize her as a dancing girl on the stage. Her heart was touched. Kay could not be any older that Rita herself,—and there she was,—speaking before large crowd after large crowd, giving her testimony to the saving power of Jesus. But what was she saying?

"My heart goes out to you Christian friends, tonight, to make Jesus real in your lives. Is He real to you? Tomorrow we celebrate His birthday. Is it real to you? I've been asked to give my testimony, and may it bring many into a fuller realization of who Jesus is. Ever since I can remember I was interested in dramatics. As soon as I could toddle on the stage I toddled on to entertain the public. I took dancing lessons from as far back as I can remember. I loved it. I dreamed day and night of what I wanted to be—what I wanted to do.

"I hung around stage entrance doors until I finally found enough nerve to enter for an audition. The producer was astonished at my beautiful dancing. I at once signed a contract. I was thrilled. I climbed up and up and up. It was hard work too. We had to keep constantly ahead of the other person. The devil does not want 'good-enough's.' He wants his work well done. Many times we went to stage rehearsels at ten in the morning, danced all day and all night, and finally found ourselves crawling into bed when most folks were crawling out after a night of refreshing sleep. We had to keep ahead to keep our jobs. But anything seems good enough for Christ—if we don't feel like going to church or prayer meeting we don't go. Many girls have fainted on the stage from utter exhaustion—but Christians can't go to church when they have a little headache or some slight ailment. Christ demands our best work and interest. If He is real to us He will get our best.

"One time when I was dancing in Philadelphia I stayed with my cousins. They were very religious, and constantly talked about the Bible, and quoted Scripture. Something was happening inside of me. I couldn't explain it—but something was tugging at my heart. I was glad to get away, and back to New York. But even then, in my dressing room I found myself humming a chorus I heard so often in their home, 'In the cross, be my glory ever.'

"One afternoon I received a letter from my cousin begging me to attend a large church near where I worked. To satisfy my curiosity I went the next Sunday evening. That something was tugging at my soul again. The invitation was given,—I jumped to my feet and ran down the aisle. What would my friends say? I didn't have time to consider. I only knew I wanted to satisfy a longing within me. A Christian lady prayed with me. I knew something had happened,—and I was happy. I went to my room that night, happier than I ever was before. The next morning a card came calling me to rehearsal in the production that I had wanted so much to have a part in. But the devil was too late,—I had signed my contract with Jesus. But I had failed to consider the future. I was the sole support of my widowed mother. I walked the street day after day looking for a job, while my mother, frail and ill, was forced to work hard to keep our bodies and souls together. Though she did not complain, yet she did not understand.

"Job's comforters, my friends, came around with their advice. They called me lazy and foolish for leaving the stage with a good salary, and let my poor sick mother support me. I had a hard battle. Perhaps they were right. Perhaps Christ didn't want me to leave the stage. I had always lived a decent life. Perhaps I was too young to be a religious fanatic. I was just beginning to learn what life was all about. I had given Jesus a chance. I showed Him I wanted to leave the stage. But He hadn't given me a job. Yet I couldn't feel that I could follow Christ and at the same time dance on the stage where we are gazed upon by the eyes of greedy, lustful men.

"As I walked up and down Broadway the lights of the theater dazzled me. The doors seemed to swing out telling me I belonged there. I was tempted to yield. But I felt to do that would be to turn my back on Christ. I left the stage because I had fallen in love with Christ, and I couldn't turn my back on Him now.

"Finally, I came to the end of myself. I told Jesus I couldn't stand it any longer. Something had to be done. The battle was too great.

"One evening, a few weeks after I accepted Christ, there were baptismal services in the church. Preceding that was a consecration service. I found out I had been fighting my battles alone—I went to the altar and surrendered my will to Jesus and gave my battles to Him.

"As I sat there waiting for baptismal services to begin I helped to sing a hymn. As we came to the second verse, I could not sing. My eyes were glued to the words:

" 'Though the way seem straight and narrow,
All I claimed was swept away;
My ambitions, plans, and wishes
At my feet in ashes lay.'

"That was a perfect picture of me. I had left Broadway with its glittering lights, and chose the narrow way. Now all I had ever dreamed, planned, and wished was in ashes at my feet. I had surrendered all to Christ—He would take care of that. I had to surrender before He would show me my work. I wast baptized and far happier and contented.

"As I walked back along Broadway towards home I had to pinch myself to see if it were really me. There were no dazzling theater lights—no opening doors. They were there,—but not for me. All desire was gone. Christ had won my heart.

"I was no longer ridiculed by my former friends. They respected me, for I practiced what I preached. Christ is real to me. My Christian life is real. I cannot compromise with the world. I faded out of the lives of my friends, for I no longer had anything in common with them. 'Old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new.'

"Soon I was called on to conduct young people's conferences, and God led me very directly into His mission field. I plead with you young people, Stand for Christ!"

There was not a dry eye in the audience. Joy and Rita were sobbing. Tears trickled down the cheeks of Jim and Dave. They felt, oh, so very much ashamed. It was a quiet group that rode home that Christmas eve. But each had made a solemn resolution.

Jim ventured one remark: "I thought our ministers and parents were cranky about show-going—trying to crush our fun. I enjoyed sneaking to the theater, thinking no one knew. Here we are with our Christian heritage,—and this young girl has more Christianity than we have. Her Christ is real to her,—He isn't to us or we couldn't go to shows. I'm so ashamed that my Christian testimony has not rung true. Never again shall I darken the doors of a theater or do anything that would disgrace my Lord."

"Neither will I," echoed back the others.

Christmas dawned more beautiful than ever before to these young people who had consecrated their lives anew to the Saviour of the world.

THE MESSAGE OF THE CROSS IN SUCH A TIME AS THIS

Program for January 4, 1942

In the book, Christ at the Round Table, by E. Stanley Jones, the chapter, "The Cross—The Key to Life," is a real challenge to us in such a time as this. If your society has this book (get from Mennonite Book Concern) the chapter referred to might be reviewed by someone who will present it as a challenge for our lives, for such it is.

I. Quiet Music: "Break Thou the Bread of Life."

II. Call to Worship: "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." (To be sung as a solo, unannounced). (Note: If the meeting is held in the church it would be effective to have a cross before your group and have it lighted when the soloist begins to sing the hymn).

III. Leader's approach: In our service today I trust that with our theme, "The Message of the Cross in Such a Time as This," we shall have not only a program, but that the message of the cross shall be a message to each of our hearts, one that will send us out with a new spirit of power and victory in our own lives. Let us pray that this may be realized. (This period of prayer may be silent, voluntary, or directed, as the leader feels led to conduct it).

IV. The Message of the Cross, as Revealed in the New Testament: (The scripture references should be marked beforehand so that each in turn can be found immediately and read with no break in thought). When we turn to the New Testament we read the message of the cross from the very lips of Jesus—the message it had for Him, and for us who would be His followers. Hear the words from His lips. (Luke 9:23, 24; John 12:32).

One cannot read the New Testament without becoming aware that a strange, new something was stirring at the hearts of His followers, driving them into all the world for the love of His name. Amid the conflict of early persecutions Peter and those who laid the foundation were fired with a devotion which their enemies could not understand, for the record goes on to say of them—Acts 5:41, 42.

Again and again Paul returns to the theme of his enthusiasm—II Cor. 5:14, 15.

The testimony is always the same. The cross of Christ has in its keeping the power to capture the hearts of men and send them forth as ambassadors of Christ and His Gospel. Across the centuries, out of every situation we hear the refrain, "The love of Christ constraineth us."

V. Short Story: In a certain mission station, a girl who had come into contact with Christianity, would not respond to the message of the cross, nor to the spirit found there. The missionary did all she could, but the girl was unresponsive. Finally, when all other things failed, she called the girl into her room, bared her arm, and said, "I am going to thrust this needle into my arm."

The girl was shocked and protested, saying, "But that will hurt you."

"Yes," said the missionary, "it will, but it will not hurt me nearly so much as what you are doing is hurting me."

She thrust the needle into her arm, and as the blood trickled down, the girl looked at it for a moment and then threw her arms around the neck of the missionary. "I didn't know you loved me like that," she sobbed. "Forgive me for what I've been and done." She was changed from that hour. That outward blood was a sign of an inward wounded love—wounded on account of sin—and showed the girl what she had not seen before.

How could we who are limited by our senses know of that inward cross that is upon the heart of God on account of our sin, unless He showed it to us by the outward cross? Now we know what God is like. The cross has lighted up the nature of God. He is self-giving love and bears upon His heart our sins. That is the meaning of the cross. And it must be the meaning of our lives too.
—(From Christ at the Round Table, by E. Stanley Jones)

VI. Poem To Give One's Life

To give one's life through fifty years is harder
Than to give it in one moment gloriously;
To make each instant a brown willow basket
Heaped with fresh flowers and ferns, to still be

A cup of never failing cool spring water
To those who walk a dusty road alone,
To succor with life giving bread, rewardless,
Those who expect a stone.

To give one's life, on weary days and hopeless,
To give one's life, hour after hour; and be Ready to give again, again—is harder
Than to give it in a moment gloriously.
—Mary Carolyn Davies

VII. Meditation: (While the pianist plays softly, "I Gave My Life for Thee," let the message of the story and poem speak its message to each one. As a closing for the meditation, while the pianist continues to play softly, the following verse may be read).

"When I remember all the way
My Saviour trod for me,
And all the weary paths that led
His feet up Calvary.
When I consider all the price
With which I have been bought,
I cannot render to my God
That which has cost me nought."

VIII. The Message of the Cross for Our Modern world: In our modern world we see the cross way ahead, beckoning us to follow. And as we look upon it we see two pictures. One is that of Jesus on His way up to Jerusalem for the last time. The record says, "They were on their way to Jeruralem, and Jesus was going before them, and they were amazed, and they that followed Him were afraid." What a picture! Jesus marching before them, His face set. The disciples as they watched were afraid, and yet, imperfect as their following was, they followed Him.

The second picture is still more stirring. Jesus is on trial. He has been brought before the High Priest. Caiaphas asks Jesus some questions, one of them is this, "What of your disciplines?" What of them that early morning when their Master faced death? Where were they when it cost something to be known as a disciple?

The world today is looking at Jesus and asking, "What of Thy followers?" Where are the Christians when it costs something to be known as a follower? Where are we when great political, moral, and social issues are at stake? Where are we when material security is slipping away? Can the world see in Christians a faith and courage which it does not possess? Is the world saying today, "Where are Thy followers?" The followers of Christ have the answer to the world's deepest need, but to meet it requires that we must be willing to pay great prices. It will involve sacrifice. There has been discovered no other way than the way of the cross, Christ's way.

IX. The Message in Song: "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?"

X. Short Message: Perhaps we will not see the application of the cross to every-day life until we see it more fully expressed in the life of the church. "If a grain of corn fall into the ground and abide alone it dies, but if it dies it bringeth forth much fruit." That is the message of the cross for the church as well as for the individual. The church that loses itself for Christ's sake will save itself.

"The ancient cathedral of St. Sophia in Constantinople, once a Christian church and now a Mohammedan mosque, is being cleaned of the accumulated whitewash of centuries. The old mosaics are coming out in beautiful lines. Christian texts are being revealed, and up in the dome the great central cross is shining out once more. The church must recapture the dynamic of the cross."
—(From The Christian Mission in America by Kerr)

XI. Preparation for Prayer: (Note: May these questions stir our thinking and our hearts and lead us to our Father in prayer). Do I shun the cross or do I accept it as a natural part of a Christian's life? Do I make of my cross a victorious testimony to the power of God? Can Christ count me among

His followers when it costs dearly to stand up and be counted? Is our church saving itself or saving others? Is it zealous in extending His kingdom to the uttermost parts of the earth as it is in extending its program in our community? Do I pray daily for the missionaries of the cross, praying for them by name and for their individual needs?

XII. Prayer Period:

XIII. Closing Hymn of Challenge: "Am I a Soldier of the Cross" or " Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken."

THE NEW YEAR

Program for January 4, 1942

How Shall We Make the New Year New?

A. Forget your past failures

We are all human and we all make mistakes at one time or another, therefore we should never let a mistake of the past keep us from doing our best today. None of us would have learned to walk or talk if we had let failure discourage us. There are many big words which babies cannot pronounce, but are they discouraged? They are not. In learning to walk the baby falls many times, but does he give up? He does not.

It is said that Disraeli was laughed at when he made his first speech, yet he lived to be listened to with respect by the same men who laughed.

Nearly all writers fail at first. Israel Zangwill, who wrote "The Melting Pot" when a teacher, sent some verses in to a magazine. They were promptly returned. Was he discouraged? No. And years later the same magazine paid a big price for the lines they had turned down.

B. Make each failure a new starting point

At the end of each failure there is always a chance to start anew. Your life may seem a failure, but if you will take a fresh grip on yourself you can still be a glorious success.

John Cassell, founder of great publishing house in London, began life very humbly. He was extremely poor, and, after working in a cotton factory, then in a velveteen factory, he took to carpetering, though he was unskilled, doing odd jobs.

Then he heard a talk on temperance and was so touched that he traveled over the country in his workman's apron, speaking on this cause. One day the thought came to him that if the people had entertaining literature and mental food they would not thirst after liquor. So he began to issue a cheap paper called the "Workingman's Friend," and gradually built up the great publishing house in England which is today called Cassell and Company.

C. Have Confidence in yourself

If you are sure you can do a thing, it is half done. If yon determine to learn your lessons, they are already half learned. If you know a thing to be wrong and start in earnest to master it, the fault is half overcome.

If you make up your mind to confess a sin and turn away from it, surely you are already on the road to forgiveness.

One of the greatest sins in the world is the sin of disbelief—or the lack of confidence. There are more people lost in this way than in any other. So many say, "I know I should give my heart to Jesus, but I'm afraid I couldn't remain a Christian." And because of this lack of confidence thousands go to meet the eternal Judge sadly unprepared.

So believe in yourself and you will be well on the way to success.

D. Remember the Lord Jesus Christ

Let us ever keep before us the life and deeds of Jesus, and they will serve as a beacon on our path during the new year.

Jesus was never discouraged, He had faith that God would make things come out all right in time.

For thirty years He prepared Himself for His life work. Yet He knew that He would be allowed only three years of service after all this preparation. Yet He wasn't downhearted, but put His best into His work.

Sometimes we have to wait a long time to see the results of our work. Many missionaries have labored for years before there has been one convert to Christianity.

In the three years of Christ's ministry, the greatest Teacher of the ages, He had, you might say, only twelve converts, and one of these were false—but this did not dampen His faith.

Sometimes we have to wait a long time before we see the results of an education, or from having been faithful in our studies. But Moses and the people had to wait forty years before they could enter the promised land, and then some could not see it. God is patient—so we have the courage to wait.

Our Saviour's life and work were seemingly a failure, but He trusted in God to make it "all right." It has taken almost two thousand years, and Christ's work is not finished. So when our work fails, or we are discouraged, let us remember Jesus Christ—His life of service, His courage and His patience.

BERGFELDER MENNONITE CHURCH

Delft, Minnesota

"Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised." We have again experienced this fall the goodness of our Heavenly Father. He has given us a bounteous harvest and has supplied our needs, for which we are truly thankful.

In October our pastor, Rev. John Bartel, conducted a series of meetings in the community near Huron, South Dakota. He was gone for two weeks. From November 10 through November 16 he had special evening services especially for young converts. Both young and old were blessed through his clear, simple messages on Christian living, etc.

Our church observed its harvest home festival on Thursday afternoon and evening, November 27. Dr. P. A. Penner was the guest speaker for the afternoon program. He again related experiences and informed us of the ever interesting and important mission work in India. Pictures of their work and of the India mission field in general were shown in the evening. These also were very interesting and greatly appreciated, for they seemed to bring us much closer to our great responsibility in mission work. We are always happy to have Dr. and Mrs. Penner with us.

Our Sunday School is busy with preparations for the Christmas program. May we as Mennonites be very careful not to forget the true meaning of Christmas. —Mrs. Abram P. Baerg, Corr.

BETHANY MENNONITE CHURCH

Quakertown, Pennsylvania

Another year is coming to a close, and it is well to look back and count the blessings we have received during the year. Many will never forget the blessings received while attending the General Conference at Souderton this year, a privilege some will not receive again.

The Thanksgiving season is over, and our church has had several interesting and inspiring meetings. On Sunday evening, November 23, the C. E. Society celebrated its fifty-first anniversary, at which time Robert Wetzel of Allentown gave a fine program of songs. On Thanksgiving morning we joined with the Bethany and Flatland churches in a Thanksgiving service held at Bethany. The service was well attended. On the evening of the same day the Young Women's Missionary Society held their sixteenth anniversary, and the Ladies Aid and Missionary Society had the fifty-third anniversary celebration in a joint meeting. At the meeting "The Bertolets" of Reading presented a fine program of songs and illustrated lectures. Everyone was greatly blessed for being there.

We are now preparing for the Christmas season hat is approaching. On December 21 the program will be given by the Junior Department. The following Sunday the adult department will present the Christmas pageant "What Shall I Give," and the White Gift Offering. —Anna Bauman, Corr.

BROTHERHOOD CONVENTION

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Eastern District Conference Brotherhood was held on November 22, 1941, at the Deep Run Church, Bedminster, Pennsylvania. The theme of our convention was "Our Brotherhood in a Time of Crisis." This was divided nto three sub-topics presented as follows: "Crisis in the Home," given by Robert Huffman, Second, Philadelphia Church; "Crisis in Education," by Rev. Freeman Swartz, Schwenksville; and "Crisis in the Church," by Ely Fretz of Deep Run. A very fine general discussion followed.

During the past four years the brotherhood has pledged to give up to $250.00 per year to aid John Boehr complete a college course at Bluffton. The treasurer reported that this project was nearing completion.

A new project in the form of a scholarship or students aid fund was presented at the meeting. It was decided to hold this for definite action until a special meeting to be called next Spring.

Newly elected officers are, president, Ely Fretz; vice-president, Melvin Clemens; secretary, Lester Schaeffer; and treasurer Harry M. Detwiler.

At the evening session we enjoyed a very fine message on our general theme given by Dr. Russell Stine of Muhlenberg College. Special music was furnished in the form of a trombone solo by a member of the Springfield Church and a men's quartet from the East Swamp church.

The resolutions committee presented the following report:

1. Resolved that we thank our Heavenly Father for the beautiful day and the leading of His Spirit through this convention.
2. Resolved that we thank the Deep Run Mennonite Congregation for their hospitality and the ladies for their care of our bodily needs.
3. Resolved that a letter of cheer and encouragement be sent to Brother John Moser, telling him that his presence at this convention was missed. We also hope and pray for his speedy and complete recovery.
4. Resolved that the brotherhood again cooperate with the Sunday School Union in keeping in contact with the boys called into both C. O. and military camps.
5. Resolved that we commend all those who had a part on the program for their fine contributions.
6. Resolved that the brotherhood executive committee again try to continue the brotherhood topics for the chapters.
7. Resolved that the brotherhood again observe a Brotherhood Day at Mennolan as set by the brotherhood executive committee.
8. Resolved that attempts be made to hold a brotherhood fellowship supper.
9. Resolved that the visitation of one brotherhood chapter with another chapter be encouraged.
10. Resolved that we endeavor to make the brotherhood a real spiritual power so as to meet the crisis in the home, school and church. We believe that a re-examination of the fundamentals of our faith will be a wholesome stimulus toward true Christian living.

Everyone present enjoyed this fine convention which was the best we have had for several years.

RELIEF

Mennonite Central Committee Relief Notes

FRANCE—On November 24, Brother Jesse Hoover, relief worker in France since last March, arrived at New York on the S. S. Excambion. Brother Hoover tells of meeting the new relief workers (Byler, Gunden, and Penner) and helping them become oriented in their work before he left for America. Brother Hoover also spent three days with Brother M. C. Lehman who came from Germany to southern France before Brother Hoover's sailing.

Brother Hoover reports the opening of a new home for convalescent children at Port-Vendres. The home will accommodate 150 children, and Sister Lois Gunden will be in charge of it. Sister Helen Penner is at Canet Plage where she is directress of the children's convalescent home which has been in operation for some months.

Brother J. N. Byler in a letter to his wife, dated November 2, says: "I want to get busy now and learn French as fast as possible so that I will be able to help more efficiently here in the work. We will have quite an extensive program of milk and dried vegetable distribution here in Lyon this winter. Hoover has purchased some milk from the Quakers this week. We hope to get this into the schools here without much delay. . . . The dried vegetable distribution program is still in the process of being worked out. Part of it will depend upon the foods available. Hoover will report fully on this when he returns."

GERMANY—Brother M. C. Lehman is in good health and spirits, according to Brother Jesse Hoover. While limited in certain of his undertakings, Brother Lehman continues to be busy in working out plans, for relief in German-controlled countries, especially Poland.

PARAGUAY—In a letter to Brother P. C. Hiebert, dated September, 1941, Brother Nicolai Siemens, Fernheim, Chaco, gives the following:

"I am happy that I can give you the good news that twenty young students again enrolled in this year's Bible class. At the time Brother Miller was here, the outlook for such enrollment was not at all promising, but again God has led in making the continuation of this work possible. Another cause for rejoicing among us has been the first spring rains which have just come the last few days. The dry season this year was unusually long."

A bulletin on relief in Fance, just issued by the American Friends Service Committee, gives this picture of France's needs:

"The chart of want is sharply etched. Further curtailment of fats, cheese and potatoes became effective October 1. Children are increasingly listless in the classroom, sit on benches in the play yard because they do not have physical energy for play. Phy cians continue to report a rise in infant mortality, the incidence of tuberculosis, predict a continuing u ward sweep in mortality and morbidity charts." Common Ground

Individuals, by nature, seek that feeling of satisfaction which comes from union with other human beings. Mary would rather play dolls with Sue than alone. Jack is a member of a boys' club. Joan, who goes to high school, reads books on popularity. Mother thinks a quilting party is a lot of fun, and dad enjoys that approach which acclaims him as an acceptable member of the community. Christmas cards brought joy, because through them we felt united with others. Loneliness chokes the heart. Proof, the prison cell. Separation brings pain and union affords joy.

However, union can only be achieved by having something in common. Consequently, last year's hat which has gone out of style is extremely painful to many a woman. Youths begin to smoke in order to be one of a group for which it is the acceptable thing. Some join in a "friendly" glass of beer. Others don a uniform and chant, "We're in the army now!" Again others are united by singing together Christmas hymns. Highest and most thorough is the union achieved through a common acceptance of Jesus Christ. We are a United States because we have much in common. We can be united human beings only by having something in common.

It is evident that union can be achieved on different levels and at different costs. Very often all that is necessary to be accepted as a "good fellow" is to lower oneself to the standards of others. That is the easy way to union. The price is low. The result is destructive. To establish union with a person of lower standards by lifting him up to your own higher standards, is hard, but constructive. Consequently we face the temptation of lowering our standards in order to achieve union. In this critical time we are, especially, tempted to adulterate our peace principles for the sake of achieving union with others. That is the easy way. To keep our peace principles intact and to achieve a certain measure of union with others in spite of them is the hard way, but it is the way of the cross which Christ would have us take.

Christ came "eating and drinking." He dined with a tax-collector who had been none too scrupulous. He defended a woman taken in adultery. He called Judas "friend." Never did he lower himself to the standards of others. Always did he meet the basic needs and wants of human beings lost in sin. He had in common with sinners that which was not sin. That was a point of contact. From there he began to lift and to win them. He did not cut himself off from others.

Neither can or should we. But neither can or should we lower our standards. We are to go the way of Jesus, the hard way. We are to be in the world, but not of the world. We are to overcome the world, and not the world us. That means for us the achievement of superlative Christian character, that kind of character that is honorable in the sight of all men when they are at their best. We must be ardent peacemakers who have common ground with those Christians who do not believe in peacemaking as we do. How can we?

We can have common ground with others by emphasizing that on which we agree. Far too often we forget how large and important this area is. For instance, most Christians cherish such ideals as faithful prayer, faithful reading of the Bible, regular church attendance, the reading of church papers and religious books, cleanliness, truthfulness, faithful stewardship, proper recreation, humility, and patience. Many may not realize all the implications of these ideals, but they value them. Christians generally respect him who is faithful in these ideals, who makes them the delightful lubricant of every day living. People, generally like genuine Christians.

If we as peacemaking Christians would stand high in the estimation of militaristic Christians then we must excel in those traits of character which they recognize as virtues. They will judge us favorably, not so much by the quantity and quality of our pacifism, but rather more by the virtues which they acknowledge. What if we fall below the average in these virtues or only reach the average? Then our critics will associate mediocre Christian living with pacifism and will have little respect for either.

On the other hand, if we as peacemakers excel in the generally accepted Christian virtues, then men will put deep Christian living and pacifism together. Respect for the former will make them more thoughtful and sympathetic towards the latter. By such manner of association we accept many things in life. We put good health and spinach together, and we learn to like the spinach. Very few people accept the fruit of pacifism for the sake of good spiritual health. It is up to us to associate the two again and again until the vitamins of pacifism will bring a glow of spiritual health to many who are now suffering from spiritual malnutrition.

Today many Mennonites are tempted to win the approval of others by whittling down their peace principles. This is the easy way, for it does not require any effort. The harder way, the Christ-like way, is to win the approval of others by excelling in those Christian virtues which are acceptable to them and also to us, while holding to our peace position in an "all-out" manner. The feeling of union achieved in this way is Christ-like, for it is redemptive. —rw.

What if They Say

What if they say, "Let every soul be subject unto the higher power," meaning thereby that a Christian must obey all orders given by temporal governments? What if they insist that to "be subject" means to "obey?" Then suggest a word study.

The original Greek word which our English Bible translates "subject" (hupotasso) means "to set in array under" or "to place under the power of another." Romans 13:1 teaches that Christians respect governments as stewards over civil matters. They are on the side of law and order. The opposite of "subjection" is "anarchy." Every Christian recognizes civil authority. He obeys "for conscience sake" (Rom. 13:5) unless he cannot do so "for conscience toward God" (I Pet. 2:19). He remains "subject" either by obedience or by accepting the penalty. Peter and the apostles remained "subject" (Acts 5:26-29), while they continued to disobey the officers. They were brought in "without violence" (vs. 26). No Christian resists arrest. When "suffering wrongfully" (I Pet. 2:19) he suffers willingly. When asked to explain, he says, "We ought to obey God rather than men." Should our government choose to say, "I want you to learn the art of killing." My answer would be, "No, Jesus taught us to love our enemies." Should they say, "This means the penitentiary for you," then the Christian answer would be, "I accept the penalty. I am determined to remain subject even though a higher loyalty makes me seem to be disobedient."

RELIEF

Traveling in France

By Helen A. Penner

So this is France!

The Mennonite Central Committee decided that it would be a good idea for new workers to see the work that is being done at different centers before settling down to their particular work; so that is what Mr. Byler, Lois Gunden and I are doing. We crossed the French border a week ago Sunday, on the nineteenth of October. After the final examination of both baggage and ourselves in a Spanish customs house we again boarded the train at Port Bou and soon entered a tunnel in the Pyrenees about a mile and a half long. We emerged in France at Cerbere near the Mediterranean shore. Jesse Hoover and Henry Buller met us at the French customs house. The Mennonites have such a good reputation here that we went through customs with very little trouble. We were given temporary food tickets and were warned that it would be more tragic for us to lose our food tickets than to lose our money.

One can't help but admire the spirit with which the people accept the trying circumstances these days. The French people are noted for their good cooking and often apologize for what they have to set before us. They use such ingenious ways of preparing food. You will be served a dish, and the thought will run through your mind, "This is something different!" when, lo and behold, it is the same vegetable you were served the day before, but it has been disguised by preparing it in a different manner. They serve their food as attractively as one possibly could, without using butter, sugar, etc.

We see much beautiful scenery from the train windows. The mountain slopes are carefully terraced for cultivation. The fields in the valleys are small, and many are irrigated. One can see clusters of red-roofed homes, surrounded by cultivated plots. Rarely does one see a house standing alone. Here and there as we pass through some of the old cities, we see castles and towers and beautiful, ancient cathedral spires. It seems queer to pass fields of grapes instead of fields of wheat and corn. The trees are numerous. Most of them are olive, sycamore, and poplars. At this time of the year they are beautifully pruned, and in some cases topped, and the dry branches used for firewood. Many of the roads are lined with avenues of trees. We see women doing their washing on the rocks along the river banks. Washing machines seem to be unknown here. Even the washing for the convalescent home, and the colony is done by hand! Soap is also rationed, so you can imagine housekeeping must be more of a headache than a pleasure.

Enroute from Marseille to Lyon, we followed the Rhone River through a fertile valley in many places. As we approached Lyon, the temperature dropped lower and lower. Yesterday it snowed in Lyon. The ground was soon white, as the flakes were large and came down thick and fast. Just before sunset we saw clouds with silver linings, mountain peaks wreathed with fluffy clouds, and some snow-capped mountain tops. If the people could live on scenery they would not need to go hungry this winter!

An interesting incident happened while we were waiting to leave the train at Lyon. A man who had probably noticed the American Export tags on our baggage turned to Mr. Hoover and asked him in French, "You are an American?" When Mr. Hoover told him that he was, he asked, "Why didn't you stay there?" (as if doubting his sanity). When he explained that he was director of the Mennonite Aid for Children in France, the man replied with much emotion, "You are very welcome here."

The trains are crowded because much of the service has been disrupted by the war and by lack of lubrication and fuel. The trains have very shrill, almost deafening, whistles. Stations are not announced, and the conductors do not help one enter or leave the cars. That reminds me of the scare we had while traveling through Spain. After the train stopped at Barcelona, we tried to get a porter to help us with our baggage, but before we could get one, the train started to move. We were relieved to find that there were two stations in Barcelona, and we were supposed to get off at the second one. We thought surely we were headed for parts unknown!

Train time is figured on a twenty-four hour basis, so it is not unusual to take a train leaving at thirteen o'clock or twenty o'clock (one P. M. and eight P. M. respectively).

The train windows are all bordered with a strip of blue paint to prevent any light from showing outside after the shades are drawn at night. This is only one of the many reminders that we are now in war-torn Europe.

In France, as in Spain, one has the choice of traveling first, second, or third class. In first class, the compartments are divided in such a way as to accommodate six people. Second class has compartments for eight. There are two long cushioned seats facing each other in each compartment. Third class has very poor accommodations. The hard, unpadded, wooden seats are very uncomfortable, and the ventilation is poor. This section is always terribly crowded with people who may be carrying chickens, etc., with them. Even so, travel in France compares favorably with travel in Spain!

We had a forty-minute train ride from Perpignan to Canet Plage that reminded us of the "Toonerville Trolley." Mr. Hoover has lost the fillings of four of his teeth since he came to France, and I told him it was no wonder if he rode on that contraption often.

Mr. Hoover laughingly said soon after we arrived, "This would be a nice country if there weren't so many foreigners!" It is hard to get used to the idea that we are foreigners now. One's ears almost get tired of hearing a foreign tongue spoken constantly. The sound of the English language is music in our ears after traveling through Portugal, Spain, and now in France. It still seems queer to me that the children are so proficient in speaking a "foreign" language. I am hoping that I will soon be able to understand enough of the conversation to make it seem a familiar tongue. Many of the children and some of the personnel in the colonies are Spanish, so it will mean learning some Spanish and more French. I move that a universal language be adopted and put into use in the near future!

Note to Contributors

A hearty thank you to all contributors who have frequently sent in jottings and fresh, short, vital correspondence. Such jottings and correspondence compare with long correspondences going back many months like hot soup compares with cold soup. Your help in serving material that is fresh and tasty is much appreciated. An interesting news item during these times is the number of young men from each church which have gone to C. O. and military camps. "Thank you" to the dozen or so ministers who send in their church bulletins. The other twenty-six bulletins are also needed for the JOTTINGS section. All typewritten material should be double-spaced. —Editor

Often it is impossible to publish some material as quickly as a contributor desires because, firstly, material in the files that has been sent in previously must be used, and, secondly, the material in question may come in too late. All material should reach the editor two weeks before date of issue.

NOTICE

Please, address all material that is to appear in The Mennonite to The Mennonite, 500 Bell Street, Beatrice, Nebraska. All notifications of changes of address and subscription orders to The Mennonite should be sent to The Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas. Whenever any subscriber to The Mennonite changes his address, he should inform The Mennonite Publication Office of his new address immediately. If these suggestions are heeded many causes for delay will be removed.

FAMINE

We must . . . let you know of the sufferings of our brothers and sisters in Christ, here in this area. Last year the crop was so small that many of the families had to live on chaff, wild fruits, and roots. Now the crop fails again because the later rains have not come. It is nearly harvest time (written in October) and the rice is not heading. It means famine for thousands. (Matt. 25:35) A few days ago one Christian brother came to us and said, "Please, give me some work so that I may earn a meal. I have not eaten since yesterday morning, and it burns so." And he put his hand on his stomach. What shall we answer? —John Thiessen

CHANGES

What a change four and a half months can make in the appearance of a station. When we left Basna for language school, in the middle of April, the walls of the new Janzen Memorial Schoolhouse were about two feet high. Today it stands complete and classes are being held in it regularly. A few hundred yards to the west of the Dester bungalow, where we are living, a new well was being dug and the foundation of a new school master's house had been laid. Today, not only are well and house finished, but the foundation of a house for an Indian doctor has been laid. The land to the north and east of the bungalow had never been cleared of jungle underbrush and trees. Today, this land is cleared and plowed, a fruit orchard has been started, and vegetables are beginning to grow in the new gardens. Yes, Basna has changed since we left. For these much needed material blessings we are grateful to God and to you people, but we are also praying that they may prove a spiritual blessing to the Indian people as they are intended to be. —Ruth Ratzlaff

THE LAST WORD FROM THE PHILIPPINES

On December 22, the following brief cablegram arrived:

"Children and mothers at Baguio, others carrying on." (The Methodist Board received this cable, and we conclude the same for our missionaries.) Three days later the radio reported that Baguio, where our six missionaries are, was to be evacuated.

Since then the report is that the main capital, Manila (Baguio being a secondary capital) was declared an open city, which makes it legally safe against bombing. It seems natural to suppose that our missionaries have gone there from Baguio. From China we have no word. Thank the Lord for protecting them so far, as far as we know.

P. H. Richert, Sec.

P. S. On December 23, the American Board of Foreign Missions received the following telegram from Paul A. Collyermdatee, December 22: "House destroyed, all safe, impossible contact Iloilo. Need funds. Merry Christmas."

CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL

World's Sunday School Day, September 21

Our Sunday School Superintendent has asked the three divisions of the Sunday School to meet in the shade of some beautiful trees near the church for closing exercises. We could not meet in the church building because it is too small. The attendance was 206 in Senior, 62 in Junior and 89 in Primary. This did not include the little ones that were still in mothers' arms or had not yet learned to sit still.

After a few remarks about the significance of the day the superintendent reminded us that we had come together to give, to decide what we would do with the money in the Sunday School treasury. There were 163 rupees on hand. A motion to give 125 rupees of this towards the work on the new church was passed, but some seemed dissatisfied. The reason became plain when someone made a further motion that 25 rupees more be added to this amount. It was a joy to see how gladly hands were raised now. "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." —Augusta Schmidt

EXCERPTS FROM LETTERS BY REV. W. C. VOTH WRITTEN TO HIS FAMILY

Encouraged by the appreciative reception of excerpts from my husband's letters which appeared in the Mennonite Weekly Review in August, I have decided to send in another installment—edited, of course, to some extent. It is now over two years since our arrival home from China, and, considering that we are still under the Foreign Mission Board, perhaps, we should have reported more often to the church papers. Mr. Voth visited the churches in Saskatchewan and part of those in Manitoba before the General Conference session. Leaving home September 16, he went again to Canada, first to Ontario. Since October 1, he has been among the churches in Manitoba, which had not been visited before. From there he is to go to North Dakota, Montana, Alberta, and British Columbia. Prayerful remembrance of this work by readers of The Mennonite would be appreciated.

The family is living in Newton, where the children enjoy the fine school system. Stanley is in fourth year high school, Leland is in the sixth grade and Maurine in the fifth. However, they also remember

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

Note: A few years ago many young people's societies and district C. E. unions contributed funds to help erect a much needed dormitory at the Swift Current Bible School. Sufficient funds were contributed, and the building has been in use every year. We felt this introductory statement would help you to appreciate the letters by the pupils even more.

Swift Current, Saskatchewan

After a few weeks of instruction we greet you with a cheerful "God reward," in regard to the effort you have brought forth in the work of the Lord in respect to the S. C. B. S. Again the Lord has made it possible for a group of students to attend school. As it was our desire that the school should consist of three classes, the Lord has given grace and made it a reality. At present we have twenty-eight students who are under the instruction of four teachers. We, as directors of the school, do not wish to say much, but we will give the pupils an opportunity. Imagine, dear reader, the students as they talk to you.

—The Directors

Letter A

"Thank and receive"—To God be glory and thanks that the Bible school could be opened again this year, for all those that are willing to obtain there, "and grace for grace." But our thankfulness goes also to all those that have assisted in making this work of the Lord possible. Many have helped by spending; many have earnestly prayed that the schools might be opened again. Other students relate how marvelously the Lord has been leading them. I myself had visited the Bible school occasionally, and my desire was to attend Bible school this winter. It seemed to be impossible in the summer. In the fall my way grew darker, but in spite of that, my desire was to attend Bible school. When I could see no way out, God had a way for me. Someone else took my place on the farm, and I was able to go and study God's Word.

So once again we thank all those who have put forth an effort in this work and invite you to come, "to taste and see that the Lord is good."

—Jake Andres, First Class
Rush Lake, Saskatchewan

Letter B

When I came home from work this summer my parents asked me whether I would like to attend a Bible school this winter. I was told how good it was to be at such a place, and I was glad to have the privilege to attend school. It was decided to which school I was to go. However, the last few weeks before school opening there seemed no way open to the Bible school after all, and it seemed impossible that I would go. But the Lord has made it possible for me to be here.

This is my first year here. When I came here I was very lonesome, but I got over that, and I like it very well. We have studied the Word of God for two weeks now, and the Lord has blessed us greatly.

I would like to say to all those that have a way of going to Bible school that they should not miss it, for I'm sure they'll never be sorry for a decision like that.

THE SYNOPTIC GOSPELS: MATTHEW, MARK, LUKE

Matt. 1:1, 17; Mark 1:14, 15; Luke 1:1-4; Acts 1:1-5
Topic: Different Emphases in the Gospels

Introduction

During the next six months we shall study Christ's life as given in the Synoptic Gospels. The aim of this course is to give a connected view of the life and work of Jesus in all parts of Palestine and to give us a sense of the devotion of our Lord to his task of saving men, and to win our fuller allegiance to Him as Saviour and Lord. The purpose of this is practical and evangelistic. The Synoptic Gospels record chiefly the events of Christ's Galilean ministry. All three Gospels give a detailed account of His last week before his death.

The word "synoptic" is derived from two Greek words meaning "view" and "together," and these three Gospels present a similar view of our Lord's life. Today's lesson is introductory in character and is intended as a study of some of the important facts pertaining to these Gospels. All of the Gospels were written to promote belief in Jesus Christ as the Son of God. The facts related have definite religious meaning. They reveal Christ's power and picture His character as spotless. They set forth his teachings as our guide through life.

Emphases in Matthew

Matthew's Gospel has a definite Jewish atmosphere and emphasizes the fact that Christ and the kingdom as preached by Him are fulfillments of Old Testament prophecy. Matthew carries the genealogy of Jesus back to Abraham. From the Jewish standpoint it was quite important that Jesus' ancestry should be traced back to David, from whom the promised Messiah was to spring. Matthew wanted to convince the Jews that Jesus is the Messiah of prophecy.

Emphases in Mark

Mark is the earliest and shortest of the Gospels and begins when the gospel began to be preached. Mark was with Peter in 62 A. D., and he supplied Mark with the facts of the Gospel. Mark recorded the things Peter had related concerning Jesus, of which he was an eyewitness. Mark's Gospel largely represents the witnessing of an apostle as he went from place to place. Mark's aim was to win men to Christ and build them up in the faith. He records many of the teachings of Jesus in connection with narratives. He portrays Jesus as the Messiah, the Son of God, who preached the gospel of the kingdom of God and called people to repentance and faith. He proves Jesus to be the Son of God by his mighty deeds, by his teachings, and by his death and resurrection.

Emphases in Luke

Bible teachings agree that Luke's Gospel was written by a Gentile. Luke says that he wrote primarily that Theophilus might know more certainly the things pertaining to Christ (vs. 4). Doubtless too Luke expected his writing would be spread among the Gentile churches. Luke refers to written records of Christ's sayings and deeds then in existence (vs. 1). These were written by eye-witnesses of Christ's work (vs. 2). Luke had made a careful study of these writings and perhaps verified them as much as possible (vs. 3), so he could give an accurate account of the life and teachings of Jesus. He dwells upon the broad, universal aspects of Christ. He declares His full Messianic authority (A. 1:2). He makes prominent the human, tender, all-embracing compassion of our Lord. He presents Jesus to the Greeks as the Perfect Man, the Universal Man. Luke was broad in his sympathies, and he alone has preserved some material which has made a universal appeal, such as Christ's forgiveness of the penitent woman, and the parable of the Good Samaritan and the Prodigal Son. Christ's teachings, as revealed in the Gospels, are adequate to our needs.

Civilian Public Service News

C. P. S. PROGRAM CONTINUES

O. O. Miller, Mennonite Central Committee member on the National Service Board for Religious Objectors, reports that the N. S. B. met at a special session at 20 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia, December 12 and 13. It was reported that from the several contacts with government officials during the week preceding, there was no indication of any material change in the plan for Civilian Public Service from what has developed to date. The several ammendments to the Conscription Act passed and proposed designating the term of service to be for the duration of the war and that draftees can now be used outside the Western Hemisphere wherever needed and of the change in age groups to be affected by the act would indicate that we can expect a steady growth in the total number of MCC-CPS campees. The Mennonite Central Committee and the National Service Board agencies will continue to keep in touch with pending developments as has been attempted in the past. It is, however, evident that in the main the program will continue as heretofore and that the same church relationships and responsibilities will continue. Six hundred fifteen boys were in MCC camps on December 1.

Spiritual Life Meetings at Bluffton Appreciated

A letter from two Bluffton campees tells of appreciation for the service of Spiritual Life Meetings held recently at the camp by Brother C. N. Hostetter. The letter reads: "I am sure I can voice a statement of sincere appreciation for all Bluffton campees for your efforts in providing the series of meetings conducted by Brother Hostetter. We are sure they have been a great blessing to all of us. We are looking forward to a time when we can have more such spiritual feasts. Thank you again for your efforts."

Report of Advisory Committee of Denison Camp

On November 23 and 24 a meeting of the Advisory Committee of the Denison, Iowa, C. P. S. camp was held at the camp. The committee discussed problems relating to the conduct, recreations, and religious life of the boys. It is the work of the advisory committee to help formulate policies and rules which will make for the highest social and religious welfare of the boys in camp. The report closes with these words: "After duly considering the efforts and accomplishments of our camp staff and campees in the high standards they uphold, we as a committee wish to commend them for what they have done and assure them of our hearty support and prayers."

(2) Each person who is handling this work for his group will work out his own procedure for distribution of the certificates and stamps among his own church members.

(3) All individual requests coming into the M. C. C. office at Akron, Pennsylvania, will be referred to the proper person in the various groups.

Please note again that these certificates and stamps are receipts for donations to War Sufferers' Relief and Civilian Public Service.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Harold D. Burkholder, Quakertown, Pa.

JANUARY 1—"There shall be a space between you and it . . . that ye may know the way . . . ye must go: for ye have not passed this way before." Josh. 3:4.

When Israel was preparing to cross over Jordan they were admonished to follow the Ark of God, leaving a space between them and it. This was necessary in order that all might see the Ark and follow it.

The Ark of God is a type of the Lord Jesus Christ. If we are to know that the way we are taking, in 1942, is the right way, realizing that we have never passed that way before, we must not permit anything to blur our vision of Christ, our leader and guide.

JANUARY 2—"Looking unto Jesus." Heb. 12:2a.

The real thought in this quotation is, "Looking off unto Jesus." Let us look off from the burdens and trials of 1941; look off from the besetting sins; look off from the people around us, and look unto Jesus. Too often we pattern our lives after man instead of Christ who left us an example which we, as believers, are to follow. Discouragement comes in looking at the changing things around us. Look up Christian friend to the Unchanging Christ. Look up sinner friend to the One who can save to the uttermost all who trust in Him.

JANUARY 3—"In everything give thanks." I Thess. 5:18a.

Perhaps there have been times when we have felt it impossible to give thanks. Sickness, death, financial loss, etc., was our lot. Are we to give thanks in the midst of such things, we ask? Yes, if we are truly God's redeemed children. "For we know that ALL THINGS work together for good to them that love the Lord." We are to give thanks "always for all things." The story is told of a woman who was always grumbling. One year she had the best potato crop in the community. A neighbor friend meeting her on the street one day reminded her of the bumper crop. The old lady glowered at him as she answered, "They're not so poor. But where's the bad one's for the pigs?"

JANUARY 4—"But Daniel purposed in his heart . . . and continued . . . and so prospered." Dan. 1:8, 21; 6:28.

As a young man, Daniel was torn from a Christian home. Thrown together with many others he was carried into the iniquitous land of Babylon. While there he "purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself." He did not believe that while in Rome he was to be like the Romans. Instead, he stood firm by his convictions and thus continued to live a separated life. As a result God blessed him, and Daniel prospered. There may be some young man in camp who will read these lines. My friend, PURPOSE in your heart to stay clean. CONTINUE living for Christ, and God will make you PROSPER. Daniel was unpopular among men, but popular with God.

"Dare to be a Daniel, Dare to stand alone, Dare to have a purpose firm, Dare to make it known."
—P. P. Bliss

JANUARY 5—"Sanctify yourselves: for tomorrow the Lord will do wonders among you." Josh. 3:5b.

Sanctification means, "to set apart." Israel had murmured against God, worshiped idols, and had become like the nations about them. Before God could work wonders for them, they had to set themselves apart from these things.

God's children are a "peculiar people," different from the unsaved around them. We are to live a separated life, if God is to work wonders through us. There are too many borderland Christians who like the little boy when asked by his mother why he fell out of bed, replied, "I stayed too near the place I got in."

JANUARY 6.—"But God . . ." Eph. 2:4a.

These two words are a gold mine in themselves. Many of us get into "wits end corner" where we hardly know which way to turn. Someone has said, "then turn to the right and go straight ahead." It is only God, who when fully trusted, can bring us through. When burdened with sin, "Who can forgive sins, BUT GOD only." It was while man was walking according to the course of this world, dead in trespasses and sin that we read, "BUT GOD who is rich in mercy . . . loved us." If you are bearing a heavy burden remember that GOD IS ABLE.

JANUARY 7—"These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God: that ye might know that ye have eternal life." I John 5:13a.

In these days of uncertainty it is encouraging to know that there are still some things we can be sure of; salvation, through faith in Christ, is one of them. Paul said, "I know whom I have believed." The blind man who had his eye sight restored said, "One thing I know, whereas I was blind now I see. . . ." If God means what He says in His Word, then we can certainly know whether or not we are saved. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and THOU SHALT BE SAVED."

"Blessed assurance, Jesus is mine!
Oh, what a fore-taste of glory divine!"
—Fanny Crosby

JANUARY 8—"Come and dine." John 21:12a.

Every healthy person responds immediately to such an invitation. Before Jesus invited the disciples to "dine" with Him, He invited them to come with their load of sin, "Come unto Me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest!" We must come for salvation before we can come for fellowship. What a pleasure to be a guest of Christ's; feeding on the riches of His Grace.

"Come ye weary, heavy laden,
Lost and ruined by the fall
If you tarry till you're better,
You will never come at all." —J. Hart

JANUARY 9—"But the people that do not know their God shall be strong, and do exploits." Dan. 11:32b.

The secret of strength is to know God: to know Him as our Saviour and Friend, through the Lord Jesus Christ. Lives that are crumbling beneath the strain of the times are those that have failed to know God as One upon whom every burden can be cast. To know that "God is our strength" is an immovable anchor to the soul. We "can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth us." It is only then that we can do exploits for Him.

JANUARY 10—"Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." Gal. 6:9.

"Weary hearted child of mine,
Take heart and courage strong;
Do not weary in well doing,
The fight will not be long!

Tho' tossed about, misunderstood,
In patience bear the trial;
Remember Christ has passed that way,
He understands, so smile.

'Tis true that oft' we weary,
Amid the struggles of life;
"We shall reap if we faint not,"
Take courage in the strife!

"In due season" we shall reap
The harvest golden grain;
Sheaves so precious, young and old,
Your labours now are not in vain.

Do not be weary in well doing,
The fight will not be long;
"We shall reap if we faint not,"
Go forward and be strong."

(Dedicated to Rev. H. Burkholder by Mrs. Barbara Burkholder.)

"But to every man there openeth
A high way and a low;
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go."
—John Oxenham

CORRESPONDENCE

BERGTHAL MENNONITE CHURCH

Corn, Oklahoma

We are very grateful to Rev. C. H. Dirks of Hutchinson, Kansas, for the inspirational messages brought to us during the evenings of the week beginning November 10. We have received manifold blessings and know that Rev. Dirks' work here has not been in vain.

Our annual harvest mission festival was held on Sunday, November 2. Pastor Hege, assisted by Brother Henry Franzen, brought the messages, morning and afternoon. A fellowship dinner was enjoyed by the congregation during the noon hour.

Sunday night, November 23, Rev. J. J. Esau of Bluffton, Ohio, concluded a week of evangelistic meetings in the Herold Church. Considering that Rev. Esau is totally blind, it is almost unbelievable that he is able to prepare and deliver such powerful and inspired sermons.

Thanksgiving services were held the last Thursday in November. Pastor Hege brought the morning message of thanksgiving and praise. This was followed by a fellowship dinner. In the afternoon the Ladies' Sewing Society sponsored a mission sale which netted $400.00. Brother E. A. Hinz again served very efficiently as auctioneer.

We are very happy, especially the respective parents, to have with us again the young folks that spent part of the summer and fall working and visiting in California. They include Misses Lodema, Betty and Hilda Janzen, Milton, Ervin, and Miss Ella Hinz, and Allen and Gus Janzen.

Miss Aganetha Fast, who has recently returned from China, visited the Herold, Sechar and Bergthal churches last week over a two day period. Missionaries always have interesting experiences to relate and worthy messages to bring. Miss Fast is no exception, and her visit here was very much appreciated.

On Friday, following Thanksgiving day, we had with us Rev. J. J. Barkman, together with a young men's quartet and a ladies' trio, all from the Oklahoma Bible Academy of Meno, Oklahoma. To do justice to this splendid group we would require more space than the editor could probably allow us, but after listening to the messages by Rev. Barkman and the well rendered songs and verbal testimonials by the student group, we ask ourselves, "Do we really appreciate such a Bible school in our southern conference, and do we take full advantages of the opportunities the school offers?" It is safe to state that we do not. We wish again to thank Brother Barkman and his group and hope they will be able to give us a return

PEACE

By Alvin Beachy

"These things have I spoken to you in order that in me you might have peace. In the world you will have tribulation, but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." John 16:33.

Here again Jesus is being, as He always was, very realistic. He has been accused by men in the course of history of being "Naively Idealistic." Perhaps a better terminology would be "unjustified optimism." One can not help but feel, however, as he studies the life and teachings of Jesus that He faced life in a very realistic manner.

The words of our text clearly indicate that Jesus recognized the problem of evil within the world as ultimately beyond the power of man's solution. In spite of this, however, He asks His disciples to be of good cheer in just such a world. Obviously Jesus was not merely jesting for He never made light of human life and its problems. What then could He have been driving at?

In the first place Jesus was concerned that men should have an inner source of power which would enable them to live good lives in an evil world. He was concerned that we should have, as it were, a guiding voice, which could be heard above the roar of the storm. His peace was not mere complacency. It was, and is, a deep abiding confidence that enables a man or a woman to go on living as though life still had meaning when all outward circumstances point to the contrary.

This does not mean that we can afford to leave untouched certain sore spots in our so-called modern civilization. Race prejudice, slum districts, excessive crime, and finally war, which is the collective expression of individual sin. We may not be able to remove them entirely; in fact, we doubtless never shall. Nevertheless, if we have been set afire by "Him who is the light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world," we cannot and we dare not hide our God-given lights under the bushel of unconcern. The peace of which Jesus spoke then was of a spiritual nature. It comes only when men through Christ are at one with God and His eternal purpose for the world. It was this peace that made a Lion of Luther at the council of Worms. It was this peace that gave us a John Hess and a Wycliffe and countless other heroes of the Christian faith. When we have this peace, even though physical life is destroyed, we have a confidence that in the realm of the spirit, "God can make even the wrath of men to praise Him."

Our Father, forgive us where we have vainly tried to light the world with our own unlighted lamps. And forgive us also for having cried "Peace, Peace" when in our own lives there was no peace. Help us bear on high thy flaming torch of love and sacrifice and give to the world, not our own peace, but that which passeth all human understanding. Amen.

WESTERN DISTRICT ORATORY CONTEST

Since our country has entered the war it is supremely important that every Mennonite youth should study the basic Mennonite doctrine of peace. General Hershey, federal administrator of the selective service act, has suggested that the draft age may be lowered to eighteen. Therefore, high school students must have the question of peace and war definitely thought out. Write a peace oration and inform yourself and others on this vital subject.

Think of mission work. War and nationalism are seriously crippling missionary efforts. What are the next steps in Christian missions? What about missions after the war? We must have an answer to these. Explore the answers in a timely oration on missions.

Send in your entry blanks immediately. The sooner you begin, the better the quality of your oration. The dead line for entries is May 1. Winners will be rewarded with an expense paid retreat. The time and location of the contest will be announced later. For further information write to Rufus Baehr, North Newton, Kansas.

War In The New Testament

Matt. 26:47-53

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "Thine Arm, O Lord, in Days of Old;" "When My Love to God Grows Weak;" "Love Divine, All Love Excelling."
2. Reading of leading topic, and prayer.
3. Talk by pastor: "Righteousness Exalteth a People, But Sin Is a Reproach To Any People." Prov. 14:34.
4. Offering for Civilian Public Service Camps.

II. Leader's Introduction:

When Christ came to earth the angels sang, "Peace on earth good will to men." As he took up His work He claimed this as His mission, "To preach good tidings to the poor, bring release to the captives, sight to the blind, liberty to the bruised." He emphasizes that His kingdom is a spiritual kingdom, and He goes about "doing good." He says, "Blessed are the peace makers," and tells his followers: "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you." He lived a life of love and service, of kindness and helpfulness. He came to save men, not to destroy them. He gave life everlasting to those who would accept Him and His way of living. If we are His followers we cannot kill, we cannot go to war, we dare not hate our enemies. We have something better and nobler to do—we must prove to them and to those around us that since "God is love," we too must love, and love will help and save. We must be willing to follow Christ's teaching: "Whosoever shall smite thee on the right cheek, turn to him the other also."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor. Rom. 13:10
2. Avenge not yourselves. Rom. 13:19
3. Overcome evil with good. Rom. 13:21
4. If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight. John 18:36
5. The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but spiritual. II Cor. 10:4
6. The fruits of the Spirit. Gal. 5:22
7. Christ, leaving an example. I Pet. 2:21-23

IV. For Discussion:

1. What did Christ mean when He said, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's?"
2. When should we obey God more than man?
3. How can we arrange our daily life so it is in harmony with our peace stand?

V. Facts for Study:

When the negroes were forced into slavery they were deprived of their freedom; they were required to work for their masters, but their work was for constructive purposes. Today, when the young men of our nation are forced into the army, they are deprived of their freedom, and they are made to work for destructive purposes. They are asked to kill and destroy. If an individual does that he is put behind the bars and punished. If a nation does that on a big scale, it is called patriotism, and it is done in the name of righteousness and democracy and even religion. If two boys fight and the stronger wins, we do not acknowledge that he was right because he won. It sounds sacrilegious for any nation to ask God to help them win the war when His word plainly tells us that war is sin. How can the God of love, to Whom every human soul is precious, approve of maiming and killing men who are created in His image?

VI. Suggestion through Illustration:

WE CAN—THROUGH CHRIST

Lorenzo Dow was a unique character in early American church work. His preaching methods were unusual, and sometimes dramatic, as the following story shows. He once began to preach by saying: "My text is Philippians 4:13: 'I can do all things.'" Then he extracted a bill from his wallet, and said: "Paul, that is simply preposterous: I'll wager this that you can't do anything of that sort." Once more he opened his Bible, and read: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." When he read this, he returned his bill to the wallet and remarked, "So? Then I withdraw my offer. Of course you can. Anyone can do anything by the help of God."

VII. Food for Thought:

We need to be deeply penitent for our sins and the sins of our nation.

visit soon.

After a long illness, Sister J. A. Ratzlaff finally had to succumb to a cancer condition. She passed away peacefully Saturday, November 29, at the Clinton hospital. Although we realize that she has been relieved of much suffering and has departed to a better home, yet our hearts go out in sympathy to her husband and five children. We hope to be able to send in the obituary soon. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Bergen and daughter, Elizabeth, are expected back from Illinois this week.

Marvin Janzen was a welcome visitor home from the C. O. camp at Colorado Springs, but his furlough was only for a few days. Last week his brother, Gus, also left for the same camp. In order not to make it too inconvenient for the family, the third brother, Allen, has been deferred until Marvin will be discharged. These young men are sons of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Janzen.

Harry Friesen, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Friesen, has been discharged from the Colorado Springs C. O. camp on account of physical disability. He is at present employed in Enid. —H. A. Unger

EMMAUS MENNONITE CHURCH

Whitewater, Kansas

On Thanksgiving Day, November 27, two services were conducted by Rev. J. R. Barkman and a group of students from the Oklahoma Bible Academy, Meno, Oklahoma. We were greatly blessed by their services.

Sunday evening, December 1, the choir from the Mennonite Church of Wichita gave a program in our church. Rev. P. E. Frantz accompanied the group. The program was appreciated.

Tuesday evening, December 3, Missionary Aganetha Fast from China was our guest speaker. She gave a very inspiring message. Wednesday afternoon she spoke at the women's missionary society meeting.

During the last three months, three of our young men have left for camp. At this Christmas season let us remember the words, "And the Angel said unto them, 'Fear not: for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.' "

FREDONIA, KANSAS

We, as a little group here, are thankful for the support the conferences have given us till now. We have a common battle with the larger churches, but we have local problems that seem rather confusing. Our group is composed of representatives from various churches, some where curch policy plays a great part. Whether that practice is very important could be debated.

Another handicap, if we may call it so, is the distance of our church attendants. Another is our place of worship. It's a rural school house. It is too small, and it is not arranged for Sunday School work or even worship. It does not seem attractive to many. They want a church home. Here we are always watched by the school-board, and if a school-board is not church-minded, it does not take higher mathematics to figure out what the results are. In a schoolhouse we have nothing to say, but all to take if we want it any longer.

What we need is a little mission church in town. There are many poor people who would like to attend if it did not mean high membership dues.

Can the dear reader now guess what we would like to ask for? May the Lord bless all of you who have a fine church-home and not forget the needy smaller groups. —Gustav Frey

SPRINGFIELD CHURCH

Springfield, Pennsylvania

The Springfield congregation held a pre-nuptial shower for Miss Lydiamarie Thomas of Zion Hill, Pennsylvania, and their pastor at their regular missionary meeting on October 22, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schimmel. The gifts were many and valuable. The Ladies' Aid Society also presented the couple with a very beautiful quilt.

The wedding took place on November 8, in the Quakertown Church of the Brethren. Most of the Springfield congregation were present. Nearly three hundred people attended the wedding. The pastor and his wife toured the southern states on their honeymoon.

On November 21, a musicale was held in the Springfield Church, featuring Bob Wetzel, radio gospel singer, the Bethlehem Mennonite Brethren in Christ Male Quartet, and Miss Edna Mussleman, soloist.

FIRST MENN. CHURCH OF CHRISTIAN

Moundridge, Kansas

December 10, 1941

"It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most High" (Ps. 92:1).

As we look back upon the year that soon will come to a close, we can say that it has been a year of many blessings, spiritually as well as materially. For all these blessings we give thanks and praise to our heavenly Father.

For his Thanksgiving message our pastor chose the very timely subject, "Thanking God in Trying and Difficult Times." His text was Acts 28:15. In part he said, "My text is taken from the story where Paul, as a prisoner in chains, was being taken to Rome for his trial. Undoubtedly, those were trying and difficult days in the apostle's life. Yet, in spite of such adverse circumstances he found reasons to give thanks unto God. We are also living in trying and difficult times. There is so much fear, hatred, strife, suffering, discouragement, and distress in the world today that we have a tendency to overlook many of our blessings, and consequently we are not as we should be. Surely, we still have much to be thankful for! Food, raiment, shelter, health, homes, friends, especially, the Friend of friends, the open Bible, open churches, a nation still at peace, and a government giving recognition to conscience (permitting C.P.S. camps). For all these blessings we should be grateful and should thank and praise God even if these are dark and troublesome times in which we are living today."

So far, three of our boys have been called to the Civilian Public Service camps. Roland Ortman is in the camp at Colorado Springs, Colorado, and Richard Stucky and Orvid Schrag are in the camp at Denison, Iowa. Encouraging reports have been received from all of the boys.

On May 7 our congregation was saddened to hear of the death of Mr. Arthur Wedel, forty-three years, at the Good Samaritan Hospital, Los Angeles, California. The body was brought here for the funeral services which were held in our church. Brother Wedel grew to manhood in this community and was a brother to our pastor, Rev. P. P. Wedel. On May 31, 1914, he became a member of our church. He retained his membership until his departure Since he was a field geologist for an oil company his services were often required at various places. Thus being transferred quite frequently, he with his wife have lived in many places and in many states. At the time of his death they were living in California.

Ten of our young people are receiving catechetical instruction from our pastor every Sunday afternoon. The choir, under the direction of Mr. Ed. Wedel, has two rehearsals each week in preparation for the celebration of Christmas.

On November 9 our annual church meeting was held. Mr. D. J. Stucky was elected as a new member on the board of trustees. In this year there were fourteen marriages and one death. The annual business meeting of the Sunday School was held on November 30. The following officers were elected, Superintendent, Richard Graber; assistant superintendent, John P. Krehbiel; secretary, Agnes Graber; treasurer, Waldo Goering; librarian, Evelyn Krehbiel. The Sunday School will present a Christmas program on Christmas eve. Dedication services were held last Sunday morning for the new Mennonite Hymnaries that were purchased recently.

During this year many of our members have been sick, some very seriously. However, we are grateful for the way God has kept us, as thus far, there has been only one death.—Orlando E. Unruh, Corr.

BETHEL MENNONITE CHURCH

Mountain Lake, Minnesota

December 14th might well be called an epoch for the Bethel congregation at Mountain Lake, Minnesota. In the forenoon the Rev. Erland Waltner, who comes to us from the Second Mennonite Church of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, was installed as Elder of the church with Dr. P. A. Penner officiating. Dr. Penner, in a short message preceding the installation, based his thoughts on a portion taken from Acts 10:33, "Thou hast well done that thou art come," stressing especially the present need of the church. The remarks by the Rev. Waltner, following the installation, were based on a portion taken from Exodus 3:11, "Who am I, that I should go?"

In the afternoon the Christian Endeavor sponsored a program in the form af a welcome for Rev. and Mrs. Waltner and an expression of thanks and a farewell to Dr. and Mrs. Penner, who for the last five and one half months have so faithfully filled the vacancy caused by the death of the late Dr. P. R. Schroeder.

Dr. and Mrs. Penner are leaving on December 15 for Newton where they will make their home in the future.

The new church building is nearing completion. If the work goes on unhindered it will very likely be ready for dedication in less than two months. May the Prince of Peace be glorified in all that we undertake. Mrs. D. H. Fast, Corr.

—Two truck loads of vegetables and fruits, contributed by members of the Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas, were delivered recently to the Civilian Public Service camps at Colorado Springs, Colorado, and Denison, Iowa.

IMMANUEL MENNONITE CHURCH

Los Angeles, California

We praise the Lord for continued spiritual blessings in our church, Sunday School, and auxilaries. The attendance all along the line has been increasing, as also the interest in spiritual things. We feel keenly the need of a larger church auditorium and more Sunday School rooms. For the past month the Sunday School has carried on a contest between classes, which includes memory work, keeping the quiet hour, and bringing in visitors. While the whole Sunday School was invited to join the contest, it was expected that the Juniors and Intermediates would lead in the race. However, it turned out differently. To everyone's surprise, two adult classes, the older men's and the older women's classes, took the lead —but the contest is not yet ended. Several Primary classes and even the Cradle Role Class are making a good record. The memory work consists of scripture portions carefully selected for each grade. The mothers and grandmothers memorize their verses while washing dishes, etc. One of the older brethren testified in prayer meeting that he praises the Lord for the discovery that he could still memorize and for the blessing it has brought him.

A teacher training class for Sunday School teachers was organized last fall. It meets Wednesday after prayer meeting. Bible doctrine is taught by the pastor in the first period, and in the second period the principles and methods of pedagogy are studied under the leadership of Miss Dorothy Schroeder, with occasional outside speakers. This has proved to be a very popular class.

Our church sponsors sixteen neighborhood Bible classes for school-age children. These meet weekly in certain private homes over the whole church district and are cared for by a teacher and a hostess. By the aid of scripturegraph a definite course of study is given. One object is to get children interested who are not attending Sunday School. The parents are of course also contacted and some have joined Sunday School. During the first six weeks of these classes 440 children were contacted, of whom ninety professed to accept Christ. This is part of the child evangelism movement. There is a large field around our church for such service.

We thank the Lord that this year our church has suffered no loss by death, though several of our members have been seriously ill. Sister Elizabeth Braun has had a long siege of heart trouble, but is able to be about again. Dear Mother Wirkler, mother-in-law of our General Conference President, is laid up in the hospital with a broken hip, received from a fall on November 23rd. She has suffered very much, but she is so brave and cheerful. We trust the Lord will restore her to normal health. Brother Bernard L. Glavin is in the hospital, ill with pneumonia. The latest report states that he is improving.

We are deeply saddened by the beginning of hostilities and the wartime conditions we are facing, but our eyes are upon the Lord Who rules heaven and earth, and Who will guide and comfort as the need arises. Praise His Name. —Anna G. Stauffer, Corr.

SWISS MENNONITE CHURCH

Alsen, North Dakota

On October 12 we had our Harvest Mission festival. Brother and Sister Albert Ewert from Lustre, Montana, had been asked to come and serve us during that time. At the morning service Brother Ewert spoke on I Peter 1:3-8. The spiritual blessings rather than the material blessings are what really count in our lives. Brother H. Ortman spoke on Revelation 26: 12-25. God loves us whether we receive blessings or what seem to be hindrances. In the forenoon Brother Dahlenburg spoke on the needs of missions, and the need of praying for our missionaries and missions. Brother Ewert again gave us a very timely sermon on "Our Mission Field." As text he used Luke 2:49 and Luke 15, comparing men to the lost coin, sheep, and prodigal son. Some are like the coin—lost, but do not know it; some like the sheep—know they are lost, but are unable to find their way back without help; others like the prodigal son—they come to themselves and then come back. Since we find these people right in our own communities, our missionary field begins there. He also pointed out the influence of true Christian life. We should live as Christ taught us to live. The question then arises, "Have we done our share?"

Brother and Sister Ewert stayed a few days longer, and Brother Ewert gave us real spiritual food. This brother preaches the Word of God as it is written and does not try to interpret it into something new or different, as is often done in our day. How sad it is that there are those who do not like to hear the Word pure and undefiled. Man loves darkness rather than light. Why? Because his deeds are evil. If Satan has ever worked hard, he is doing it in these latter days. There is only one way to defeat him, and that is in prayer. Do we use this power of prayer enough?

November 16 Brother Kleinsasser, teacher of the Bible school at Munich, gave us two inspiring messages. This brother also preaches the Word of God truly and honestly. We were greatly blessed by the services, and our prayer is that the Word may bear fruit. The main points of his message were based on Hebrews 1, God's last word to men. It is up to us to accept or reject Christ. Our only advocate is Jesus Christ. Light has come, but men prefer darkness rather than light. What are we doing with Christ?

November 13 and 14 we had a very blessed time by having Missionary W. C. Voth in our midst. No doubt most of you have heard him speak. You know how he is able to take the audience right into China, and how one is privileged to see the Chinese brothers and sisters in their every-day life and share with them their joys and sorrows.

Many may have heard of the very rainy weather we had this fall. Well, thanks be to God that most of the grain has been threshed, even though it took over two months to do so. Quite a bit of swatted grain remained on the fields, and the shocked grain was damaged quite a bit. As a whole, however, the crops were good and prices are somewhat better, so no one will be in want of the necessities of life.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH
Allentown, Pennsylvania

Our Rally Day service, held October 12th, was well attended. The children coming from the primary department to the intermediate department were each presented with a Bible, with their names inscribed on the fly-leaf. The other members received certificates and seals to be attached thereto, for each perfect year's attendance. One of our members received a seal for twelve years' attendance in our own school.

Some members of the congregation, including especially delegates to the General Conference held at Souderton, Pennsylvania, are still reminiscing on the inspiring time they had at the conference and the wonderful fellowship they had with new and old acquaintances.

Mennolan, the site of our Mennonite Young People's Retreat, situated near Finland, Pennsylvania, is being closed up for the winter and is expected to be in fine shape, with new additions, for next summer.

Our Sunday School is planning on having a White Gift service on December 14th, in conjunction with the evening church service.

Some of the members are planning on attending the tenth joint conference of Mennonites, Schwenkfelders, Brethren, and Friends, to be held at the Friends' Meeting House, 15th and Race Streets, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, next Saturday, December 6th.

LETTERS FROM REV. W. C. VOTH

their home and school days in China and hope to go back again some day. My thoughts and prayers go there continually. Four-year-old Helen Alice hopes to stay here long enough to go to kindergarten, to which she has only two blocks to go and ten months to wait.

—Mrs. Wm. C. Voth

Mr. Voth's travel letters are as follows:

Sandusky, Ohio, September 17. Well, I got this far safely. Before me is Lake Erie, and no way to cross from here. The agent at the depot told me that the boat would leave at 8:00. Took a taxi to the boat, but was told there that there was no boat to Pelee Island today. The only way left was to take a bus to Detroit, and from there to Leamington.

Scudder, Pelee Island, Ontario, September 19. This is a very beautiful morning. At 6:50 I took a boat from Leamington to Pelee Island. Yes, I finally got to the island, and all is working out quite well except that I have one meeting here in place of two. This gave me a chance of getting in a meeting at Harrow last night, though.

Passing immigration at Windsor was not as easy as the last time. Officers had many more questions to ask, but they gave me a traveling permit until December 31, which they said could be renewed if need be. Then I went to the customs office, and on another round of questions got to my projector. . . . They finally gave me a permit, on which, however, they priced the machine pretty high, and I am to pay twenty dollars duty on the slides if I leave them in Canada. Well, that's all right as I surely will take these things back.

On my arrival at Leamington I inquired for Rev. N. N. Driedger, after I found that the only boat to the island had left at 3:00 P. M.; this was 4:15, with no boat going at all on Thursday. He telephoned to the island and arranged for a meeting for tonight (Friday) in place of Wednesday, as previously planned. We went out to Harrow Thursday and got a nice little group together in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Goertzen. They have no church there, but some may come to Leamington for Sunday also. Most of the people are working, and since it was an impromptu meeting, it was late when we got started. I spoke about as long as usual and was going to close, when several spoke up at once, "We don't get to hear from China . . . go on." After the close some wanted to know more about Chiang Kai Shek and Madame Chiang, whom I had mentioned, and more questions were asked till, at 11:00 o'clock, I said we would have to quit, as they would have to work the next day. This was one of the most live-wire groups I ever had the privilege of speaking to. If I had gotten to the island as planned I might not have gotten to go there at all. So, after all, it looks as though the Lord changed things in His own way.

It was quite a reminiscence to cross on this ferry to the island. It was one about the size of those ferrying between "Dumb-bell Island" and Hong Kong. But in place of large baskets of fish the cargo consisted of large baskets of bread, five or six cars, a big oil truck. On the boat also was a man named Willms, of our Mennonites. He brought his fourteen-year-old son on a stretcher from the hospital. The boy had had infantile paralysis. His legs had been in casts for several weeks. . . . The doctor had said he should stay in for two months more. The boy took it very courageously and said, "Anything, just so I get well again some day."

All matters pertaining to the Friedensfeld Mennonite Church, Turpin, Oklahoma, should be sent to H. B. Regier, Turpin, Oklahoma. We have made the change to the Carnegie community and are serving the Greenfield Mennonite Church. Our address for the present is Fort Cobb, Oklahoma."

—Orrie O. Miller writes: "For quite some time past we have felt the need of an M. C. C. (Mennonite Central Committee) insignia and have just recently worked out one which tentatively might be acceptable to our M.C.C. After such insignia is finally approved by our organizations, it can be used in a number of ways on letterheads, stickers, shipping instructions, etc."
